A.L. Castoffs Like New Scenery

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Attention slump - ridden batters and shellshocked pitchers: Are you tired of going hitless day after day? Are you getting fed up with the way things are teeing off on your best pitches as if they know in advance what was coming?

Just get a transfer to another major league club. It doesn't matter which. The important thing is a change of scenery.

It has done wonders, for example, for Jerry Walker, Ron Kline, Larry Osborne, Stan Williams and Orlando Pena of the American League.

Walker hurled shutout ball for 4 2-3 innings after coming to the relief of starter Jim Grant Sunday and was credited with Baltimore Orioles' 5-4 victory over Detroit Tigers. Walker was 8-8 at Kansas City last year.

LIKE NEW SHINE

Kline's sparkling four-inning relief stint helped Washington Senators defeat Boston Red Sox 7-4. Osborne drove in two runs with a double and sacrifice and scored another Senator run. Kline was 3-6 and Osborne batted .220 at Detroit last year.

Williams turned back Baltimore Orioles 3-1 with a five-hitter as he pitched New York Yankees into first place. He had a mediocre 13-10 record with Los Angeles Dodgers last year and wore the goat's horn after walking in the winning run in the Giants' final playoff victory over the Dodgers.

Pena pitched five dazzling relief innings in Kansas City's 5-4 triumph over Minnesota. The Cuban right-hander, a bust with Cincinnati, was rescued by the Athletics from the minors last summer.

In Los Angeles, where the only other AL game was scheduled, rain washed out Chicago White Sox and the Angels.

In Saturday's games the Yankees downed Baltimore 5-1, the Angels shaded the White Sox 1-0, Detroit defeated Cleveland 4-1, Boston blanked Washington 3-0 and Kansas City shaded Minnesota 3-0.

PASCUAL ROUTED

A five-run fourth inning that sent starter Camilo Pascual to the showers gave the Athletics their fourth straight victory Sunday after two losses. Manny Jimenez, a pinch hitter, doubled home three runs and Joe Tartabull tripled home two.

Rookie Vic Davalillo, Tony Martinez and Max Alvis collected seven hits among them in the Indians' triumph over the Tigers. Davalillo drove in two runs with his first major league double. Martinez had three singles and Alvis two.

Walker took over with one out in the fifth when Grant was hit on the pitching hand by a line drive. He not only hurled scoreless ball the rest of the way but singled home a pair of runs.

Williams, acquired from the Dodgers last winter in exchange for Bill Skowron, fanned eight Orioles in recording his first Yankee triumph. New York got all its runs in the first three innings against loser Chuck Estrada, who fell victim to Baltimore's 13-hit attack.

Bulldogs Whip Hawks 5-2

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs took a giant stride towards their first Allan Cup final berth by defeating the hard-trying Moncton Hawks 5-2 before 3,055 fans here Saturday night.

The victory gave the OHA champions a 3-1 stranglehold in games in the best-of-seven senior hockey title. The fifth game will be played here tonight.

Jerry Servias, a centreman converted from defence, set the pace for the Bulldogs, lifting them time and again with his sparkling checking and scoring two goals.

Walter Pawlyshyn, Jacques Begin and captain Leo Bendo notched the other Windsor goals.

For Moncton, which played its best game of the series in an attempt to tie the things up, Jacques Allard and Al Flanagan did the scoring. Allard's was a gift from Windsor goalie Wayne Rutledge who waved at his shot wide of the net and then fired it in.

Jean-Guy Morissette, in his easiest game of the series, faced only 34 shots while Rutledge kicked out 31 of the 33 directed his way.

Windsor took eight of the 15 minors handed out by referee Norm Warner in the fast, hard-hitting contest.

Day at the Vatican Showed Pope John in Private Study

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television makes travel so easy and inexpensive.

Sunday night, for instance, ABC took us on an hour tour of the Vatican, complete with glimpses of the Pope, a look at the Sistine Chapel and access to a private chapel and chambers closed to ordinary visitors. We saw and heard Pope John as he sat in his private study.

The idea was to show a day at the Vatican, starting with the Swiss Guard opening the gates. It was a reverent and earnest program although it was not done with much imagination.

The program was one of ABC's occasional excursions into color television. It was not satisfactory from that view point. One received the impression that the Vatican is a large mass of green masonary inside and out, occasionally relieved by a rosy view. Obviously the lighting crews had their problems. . .

"The Bob Hope Show de-voted its major sketches Sunday night to wary spoofs on television hospital shows and a pointless bit about congressional investigating committees. It was rather an off night for the comedians.

NBC is building lots of attractive acting talent into next season's Richard Boone Show, a series of hour-long dramas to be performed by a repertory company.

Among the permanent members of the company will be Lloyd Bochner, who was something of a hit in Hong Kong for two seasons; Bethel Leslie, one of television's busiest and most attractive guest stars; Harry Morgan, half of Pete and Gladys and a popular character in December Bride, and Jeanette Nolan, wife of Wagon Train's John McIntyre.

Take "B" Division Title, Trophy

Peewees Win at Tourney

Glen Enberg's Belleville Peewee All-Stars captured the "B" division championship at the Kingston Fort Henry Heights Peewee Hockey Tournament played Saturday.

The local youngsters were knocked out of the championship series when they lost a 4-1 decision to Camp Borden in their first game.

Dropping back to the "B" division, Belleville blanked Camp Petawawa 8-0 to earn their way into the finals.

Belleville defeated Cornwall 4-2 to take the title and the Basil Hearne Trophy, despite being outshot by Cornwall 44-10. Ron Jury, who played tremendous hockey in the Belleville nets all day, was great from start to finish.

Ted Waite paced the team scoring-wise, triggering three goals in the Cornwall game. Darryl Demers added the fourth goal and with Jury kicking out every shot after by the Cornwall players, those were all the goals that were necessary.

The host Fort Henry team won the overall championship, defeating Bowmanville 7-5 in the finals.

Eight teams who took part in the tournament were: Fort Henry Heights, Cornwall, Camp Petawawa, Belleville, Trenton, Bowmanville, Peterborough and Camp Borden.

By BRUCE STOVEL

MONTREAL (CP)—A broken leg stopped Toe Blake playing hockey 15 years ago. A broken competence may bring his coaching career to a halt this spring.

Blake feels he is at least partly to blame for the Canadiens' showing this season — their worst since the 1940s. They were eliminated by Toronto Maple Leafs in the Stanley Cup semi-final by four games to one.

"I just couldn't get through to the players this season," he said. "And when that happens it's time to leave.

"I'm going to talk things over with the management this week and see if they still think I'm of value to the team. Then I'll make up my mind in a week or so."

Blake will be 52 this summer, has some medical reasons for thinking of quitting.

He has always been a nervous man with one dominating drive — to win. Last winter, pitching for the NHL finished in third place, lowest in 12 years, and was eliminated in the playoffs with the Leafs for a third straight year. Blake's nerves were stretched to the breaking point.

PAINFUL STRETCH

The last few weeks of the season were particularly painful, because he was troubled with a pain in his groin which he believes is hernia. He is seeing doctors about it.

"But that isn't the main thing," he said. "I didn't seem to be able to make them see things, to really lead them the way I used to do."

Blake's personality has never been as clearly defined in the public mind as those of some of his fellow National Hockey League coaches such as Rudy Pilous of Chicago and Punch Imlach of Toronto.

One reason is simply the methodical success of his first five seasons as Canadiens coach, when they won five Stanley Cups and finished first four times. In the following two seasons, his team also won the league championship, even if they were dropped in the playoffs.

Another reason for Blake's lack of color in the public eye is the way his career has seemingly followed in the wake of Maurice Richard, perhaps the greatest scorer in league history.

WITH ROCKET

Blake's best-known days as a player were spent on Canadiens' right wing with Elmer Lach and Richard, then breaking in as a rookie. Later Sabourin scored for the Totems next Canadiens' coach when Dick Irvin left in 1955.

Blake was born in the Northern Ontario mining town of Victoria Mines, but his family moved to nearby Coniston, about 10 miles from Sudbury, when he was young.

"My mother was French-Canadian," he says, "and my sister had trouble pronouncing my name.

"She said 'HecTOR' and by the time I started playing junior with Sudbury they were calling me 'Toe.'"

In January, 1948, he broke his leg in a game in Montreal. He was 23, and thought still fast he could come back, he was sent to coach Houston Huskies of the now - defunct United States Hockey League.

That team won its league championship and the playoffs and Blake moved on to Buffalo of the American Hockey League. After four years in there, he quarrelled with the management and went to coach Valleyfield in Quebec's Senior League.

After five successful seasons with Valleyfield, the coaching spot with Canadiens came open.

"There were three candidates," Blake recalls. "Myself, Billy Reay and Roger Leger. The Rocket made a speech somewhere mentioning me as his choice and that helped a lot."

ROCKET WAS LEADER

Blake says the Rocket was the actual team leader in his years with the club.

"He was always able to come through with the important goal, even when he was in his last years. After he left, there was Doug Harvey, and Boom Boom (Geoffrion) was going pretty good.

"But last year, none of them was right up near the top scorers. It used to be the players could look to the Rocket, or Harvey, or Geoffrion. One of them was bound to give the leadership. But this year, there were too many games when there wasn't anybody to come through the way Gordie Howe does for Detroit, or the way the Rocket used to."

Reay, now 41 and a Montreal businessman, ranks high among possible candidates for the Canadiens' coaching position. Blake, however, says many people are mentioning the team's farm director, Sam Pollock, as a replacement. Other possible candidates are Pete Morris, president of Lachine Maroons junior club, and perhaps Floyd Curry, coach of Quebec Aces.

Henry Mancini Wins Third Oscar in 2 Years for Score

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—On the day after winning his third Oscar in two years, Henry Mancini was back to work.

That wasn't unusual. In the last decade Mancini has poured forth an amazing volume of music, including scores for 125 movies and four seasons of television series, and much of it has been good.

Mancini's victory this year was for the song Days of Wine and Roses, which Johnny Mercer wrote the lyrics. Last year he won for another Mercer collaboration, Moon River, as well as for his score of Breakfast at Tiffany's.

He has won the patronage of record buyers to an extent that 95 other Hollywood score composers can match. His album Music from Peter Gunn sold more than 1,000,000 copies. Breakfast at Tiffany's topped 800,000 and Mr. Lucky 500,000.

Mistat recorded the 25,000-mark, and the single of Baby Elephant Walk from that film was a big seller.

What has Mancini got?

HAS FRESHNESS

He avoids the tin fan of his art, that his scores brought a much - needed freshness to many old television back ground music." It perhaps took a newcomer to get away from the soaring strings and trumpet blasts that have long punctured dramatic pictures.

Mancini remarked:

"I try to capture a contemporary feeling in music, using sounds that we all hear around us. There's no reason why movie music of modern subjects should be accompanied by 18th century music.

"Actually, they didn't wear high-buttoned shoes in Breakfast at Tiffany's.

Mancini is not reluctant to use modern rhythms, especially jazz, and he is bearish on off-beat instruments. He has often employed the electric organ to lend refreshingly, especially in Mr. Lucky. Other favorites of his are the electric calliope (used in Baby Elephant Walk) the E-flat clarinet and almost any member of the flute family.

Hank was born in Cleveland 39 years ago Tuesday. He grew up in The Land town of Aliquippa, Pa., where his father taught him the flute at eight.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Brandywine at Stable's Green Monkey won the 1962 Preakness but has done little since, captured the $28,100 Excelsior Handicap at Aqueduct Saturday, but the 53,277 fans got a real eyeful earlier in the sunny afternoon.

Greentree Stable's Kentucky Derby hope, No Robbery, won the fifth race by 10 lengths with blazing speed and stamped himself as favorite for next Saturday's $75,000 Wood Memorial.

Jockey John L. Rotz rode both horses and Greentree's Money home an easy three-length victor over Davie Shaw's Hang Back. Wheatley Stable's Rebellious Third, another one-half length away. The winner paid $11.50, $6.50 and $3. Misty Day paid $7.60 and $3.30, while Rebellious returned $2.40. Greek Money collected $18,255 for his owner, Donald P. Ross.

HAS NEW EXCUSE

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Erik Carlsson of Sweden, international motor rally champion who had been leading in the race since it started Thursday, was knocked out of action Sunday when his car hit an ant eater. The ant eater damaged the front suspension of his Saab, in the accident near Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika.

Wellington Shades Ayr, Squares Series

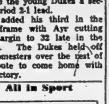
WELLINGTON (Special) — Wellington Dukes squared their OMHA juvenile "D" finals series at one all Saturday night, defeating Ayr on the latter's ice by a 3-2 score.



The third and deciding game of the series is slated for the Trenton Community Gardens Saturday night starting eight o'clock.

Tommy Lavender was the hero of the game for the winners scoring all three goals.

The teams split two goals in the opening period with Lavender scoring his second goal to give the young Dukes a second-period 2-1 lead.

He added his third in the final frame with Ayr cutting the margin to 32 late in the period. The Dukes held off the homesters over the rest of the route to come home with the victory.

Ousts Orangeville In 5 Games

Napanee In "C" Finals

Napanee Red Wings climbed into the all-Ontario OHA Junior "C" finals when they defeated the Orangeville Tri-Stars 5-2 in Orangeville Saturday night.

Red Wings took the semi-final series four games to one and made the victory all the more convincing by chalking up three of the wins right in Orangeville.

Walt Gerow's hustling youngsters will meet either New Hamburg or Hespeler for the provincial championship. The semi-final series between those two clubs is presently tied 3-3 and the seventh and deciding game is scheduled for New Hamburg on Wednesday night.

Coach Gerow told this newspaper this morning that his club "was in good shape for the finals and we hope to bring home the title". He said he knew nothing about the Hespeler-New Hamburg clubs but noticed that the home team had won every game in that series to date. "Our three wins in Orangeville gave the Napanee boys as far as a road club goes," he said.

The Wings led 2-0 and 4-0 by periods in Saturday's game but the Orangeville squad scored twice, at 2.50 and 7.22 of the third, to cut the lead to 4-2.

Doug Dafoe scored the clinching goal for Napanee, assisted by Anderson and Cruji at 7.31.

Bob Anderson, who has played well during the entire series, tallied the winners' final three of the wins right in Orangeville.

Phil Meeks made it 2-0 with Galt and Davy drawing assists.

Anderson triggered his second goal, aided by Dafoe and Cruji, while Garry Lucas banged home Martin's pass to make it 4-0 in the second.

Royister and Hunter scored the Orangeville markers.

There were 15 penalties handed out in the game.

Rotary Club Hears Talk on Compensation

CAMPBELLFORD — Jack Hollingsworth of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board's public service department, spoke to the Campbellford Rotary Club on Monday at their regular luncheon meeting.

He told members that the Ontario set-up for Workmen's Compensation is a model which is being studied by many countries throughout the world. When foreign delegations come to the United States to study their various forms of compensation they are inevitably advised to come to Ontario to study the administration of the Ontario act, he stated.

In tracing the history of the Compensation Act in Ontario, Mr. Hollingsworth said that its foundation was laid by Sir William Meredith, who made a study of various plans before 1915. On January 1, 1915, the act was passed creating workmen's compensation compulsory in Ontario, and there has been little change in it. Now all provinces have similar acts SAFE PLACE TO WORK

Ontario has a comparatively safe place in which to work. More than 1½ million workers are protected by the act, and 90,000 employers are subscribers to it. About 1,100 accidents are reported each day to the board, 70 per cent of which are minor, demanding only medical care charges. There is about one fatal accident each day in Ontario.

In benefits the association pays 75 per cent of a workman's wage for the salary waiting period with a limit of $72.11 per week in the case of a maximum salary. The average employee is covered as long as he is on the job regardless of whether or not it is the work at which he is usually employed.

REHABILITATION

The association, a non-profit organization, is designed to give the maximum protection at the lowest cost of its revenue, 60.6 cents of each dollar is paid out in claims; 31 cents is paid out to various accident prevention agencies for education in preventing accidents, and 7.5 cents for administration.

A most important work of the association is rehabilitation. The Workmen's Compensation Board has a hospital of 525 beds at Downsview which is a model for all accident cases in the world. Only industrial accident patients are treated.

The number of permanently injured persons has been reduced by about one-quarter of that of 20 years ago, largely by better medical facilities through the board.

SEVERAL AMENDMENTS

Pensions are paid in accordance with the degree of disability. Total disability brings the claimant 75 per cent of his wage. In the case of a fatal accident, the widow receives grants at the time of death. There are also special allotments in the offing which will increase this if and when the amendment is passed.

The speaker was introduced by Campbellford Rotarian Ian and thanked by Rotarian Wallace Rutherford.

Prime Minister

scheduled for Tuesday to discuss the situation.

Mr. Diefenbaker's moves Saturday to arrange the change of government to the Liberals followed the 1957 pattern when the Conservatives took over from the Liberal government of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. The Conservatives took office June 21 that year—11 days after the election.

Barring changes in any recounts, this is the party lineup in the new Parliament, compared with the outcome of the last three federal elections:

|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lib | 130 | 100 | 49 | 107 |
| PC | 94 | 116 | 208 | 112 |
| SC | 24 | 30 | 0 | 19 |
| NDP (CCF) | 17 | 19 | 8 | 25 |

FALL SHORT

With the Liberals falling short of a majority, Canada now will have its third minority government in less than six years.

Mr. Diefenbaker was the only Conservative candidate to win a majority of the service votes cast for his constituency. The armed forces favored the Liberals in every one of the other 264 contests.

The two turnovers from the service voting paralleled what happened in last year's election when two Conservatives—one of them Solicitor-General William Browne—were ousted in favor of Liberals.

In Quebec's Pontiac - Temiscamingue riding, the 41-year-old Mines Minister Martineau ended 16 votes behind Liberal Paul-O. Goulet. A 49-vote service vote margin for Mr. Goulet upset the 33-vote lead held by the minister in Monday's civilian balloting.

The big RCAF vote at the Trenton, Ont., air base was the main factor in upsetting Conservative Lee Grills in Hastings South constituency. Liberal Robert Temple had a 630-vote lead in service voting to wipe out the 93-vote plurality for Mr. Grills in the civilian vote.

TWO STILL CLOSE

Two ridings still are considered close enough to be subject to change in a recount: Pontiac - Temiscamingue, and Lambton-Kent in Ontario where Conservative M. T. McCutcheon was left with a 17-vote lead over Liberal John Burgess in the combined civilian - service vote.

The armed services vote, covering 141,210 servicemen, their wives overseas, and veterans in government hospitals, was taken April 1-6 during the week before general election day.

The Liberals boosted their share of the service vote to 70.5 per cent from 63.5 per cent last year. Shares of all other parties went down: Conservatives to 20.5 per cent from 25.5, Social Credit to 4.6 per cent from 6.5, and the NDP to 4.1 per cent from 4.5.

The overseas service vote went about 80-per-cent Liberal.

The civilian vote on Monday went 41.3 per cent for Liberals, 33 per cent for Conservatives, 12 per cent for Social Credit and 13.3 per cent for the NDP.

The NDP, campaigning for exclusion of nuclear weapons from the Canadian forces, got 3,986 service votes compared with 4,776 last year.

There were eight Communist party votes compared with 14 last year.

Liberal Leader Pearson, who told voters that Canada should carry out commitments to take nuclear warheads, had a huge majority of the service vote in Algoma East—380 to 13 for the Conservative candidate in the Ontario riding.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas in Burnaby-Coquitlam (B.C.), Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson in Red Deer (Alta.), and his deputy leader Real Caouette in Villeneuve (Que.), all placed second in service voting in their constituencies although their over-all winning majorities weren't challenged.

Defence Minister Gordon Churchill in Winnipeg South trailed by 366 in the service vote, and his over-all plurality was trimmed slightly in 1,170. The Liberals had held hopes of the service vote swinging two other seats their way—Lambton-Kent and also Rimouski in Quebec.

But in Lambton-Kent they fell 17 votes short, and in Rimouski were 124 votes behind a Social Credit candidate, after the service vote was added to the civilian count.

NOWLAN RETAINS EDGE

Finance Minister George Nowlan was the only other cabinet member who might have been in danger, in his Digby-Annapolis-Kings riding. But a 431-vote edge in service voting for his Liberal opponent still left the minister 425 votes ahead.

The six cabinet members defeated on the basis of last Monday's civilian count were External Affairs Minister Howard Green, Postmaster-General Allen Fairclough, Immigration Minister Richard A. Bell, Defence Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley, Forestry Minister Martial Asselin and Minister without portfolio Frank McGee.

Ballots were cast by 68.2 per cent of eligible service voters—a turnout which compared to 69.1 per cent last year. The service electorate covered 125,630 servicemen at home and abroad, 9,390 wives and dependents of servicemen overseas, and 2,490 veterans in veterans affairs department hospitals in Canada.

The civilian vote a week ago had a turnout of nearly 80 per cent.

Prime Minister To Meet Vanier On Wednesday

Cabinet Session Will Be Held After Visit

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he will see Governor-General Vanier at noon Wednesday.

He made the announcement on entering cabinet meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters today's meeting will not be the last before the government changes hands. A further session will be held after he sees the Governor-General.

"There never was any suggestion that this would be the last one," said the prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker held a 20-minute meeting with Liberal leader Pearson Monday. He said afterward he would say nothing about the future of his government until after his visit to the Governor-General.

Mr. Pearson said after the meeting in Mr. Diefenbaker' office that they reviewed the official steps to be taken in handing over the reins of government. Earlier Mr. Pearson said arrangements for a new government to be sworn in Friday.

The Cabinet meeting was called unexpectedly. It also met last Thursday to review the result of the April 8 general election.

Standings in the new House of Commons have 96 Conservatives, 128 Liberals, 24 Social Credit, and 17 New Democratic Party members. The armed forces vote, announced Saturday, switched two seats to the Liberal from the Conservative camp.

COURSE IS OPEN

On the initial outcome of the election, there were reported to be some western ministers who wanted the Diefenbaker government to remain in office until it met the new House of Commons and sought a vote of confidence. This course technically is open to any prime minister after an election.

Other ministers, however, prevailed in the argument that the government should quit as quickly and as orderly as possible, leaving it to the Liberals to form a new government.

As soon as the service vote was announced Saturday, Mr. Diefenbaker telegraphed his congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Pearson and proposed the Monday meeting.

Under a warm spring sun in a cloudless day, Mr. Pearson walked the few hundred yards from his office in the Centre Block for the meeting in the East Block, where Mr. Diefenbaker had arrived a few minutes earlier.

A swarm of reporters followed the prime ministers and the first holiday crowd of tourists applauded Mr. Pearson.

The Liberal parliamentary leader, O'Hagan, his press secretary, who waited with reporters outside the private meeting room.

Emerging from the meeting the number of reporters and

JFK, Jackie Are Expecting Third Child

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President and Mrs. Kennedy are expecting their third child in the latter part of August, the White House announced Monday.

Mrs. Kennedy will cancel all official engagements, spend much of the summer at Massachusetts' Cape Cod, then return to Washington to have her baby, reporters were told.

Although she has a history of miscarriage and both her children were delivered by caesarean section, Mrs. Kennedy was reported in good health and undergoing a normal pregnancy. Preset Kennedy children are Caroline, 5, and John Jr., 2.

If all goes well Mrs. Kennedy, who will be 34 July 28, will become the first presidential wife in 70 years to have a baby while living at the White House and the second one in history to do so. The other was Mrs. Grover Cleveland, who bore her second child in the White House Sept. 9, 1893.

Thus the president, 45, joins his two younger brothers in the waiting game. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy's wife Ethel is expecting their eighth child in June. Joun, wife of Senator Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) is awaiting their third, in August.

Fidel Castro Will Visit Soviet Union

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba will visit the Soviet Union this year, Havana radio said today.

Prime Minister Khrushchev issued the invitation in a personal letter to Castro, the broadcast said.

The broadcast, monitored in Key West, said Khrushchev expressed a desire that Castro get to know the Soviet Union and "see the great successes obtained by the Soviet people."

Representatives of Cuba and the Soviet Union will work out the date and itinerary of the visit, the radio added.

TTC RAISES FARES

TORONTO (CP) — Transit fares will be increased to six tickets for $1 from seven tickets for $1 effective May 1, the Ralph Day, chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission, said Monday. He said the commission has given up hope for a fare-freezing subsidy from Metropolitan Toronto before the May deadline.

Moscow People's Bank in London Declares 12 Per Cent Dividend

LONDON (Reuters) — The Moscow People's Bank, located only a stone's throw from the Bank of England in the City of London, is threatening many of its Western rivals in this fortress of capitalism.

The Soviet bank, run on profit-motive lines, was founded in the financial heart of London by capitalist-hating Russian revolutionaries in 1919.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A low-pressure system moving eastward will likely bring an end to the spell of settled weather which has prevailed over Ontario. Cooler air will reach Ontario Wednesday.

Last week the bank declared a dividend of 12 per cent to its shareholders, amounting to a net profit of £375,000 ($1,025,000)—an increase of nearly one-third compared with last year.

Moreover the bank's turnover more than doubled in 1962, to £11,000,000 from £5,300,000.

The proof that a Communist organization can operate more successfully than its rivals in London's City—the financial district —with its centuries-old capitalist environment, is given by the even more impressive growth of the Moscow bank's assets. Five years ago, they amounted to £8,500,000. ($23,800,000). Today, they stand at £104,000,000.

In his annual statement, Chairman A. I. Doubonossov announced shareholders have been asked to put up more capital, to double the share capital to £4,000,000. The shares are

THOMPSON TOLD SOCREDS ASKED TO JOIN LIBERALS

Heard Report Few Days Ago

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson says he has been told that "a rather handsome remuneration" was proposed in a bid to get some Quebec Social Credit members of Parliament to join the Liberal party.

In an interview, recorded Saturday by radio station CKRD Red Deer, Mr. Thompson said he heard the report a few days ago "but I didn't think this would actually take place."

"Whether it has now, I don't know," he said.

Mr. Thompson was commenting on a statement promising support for a Liberal government, signed by six Social Credit MPs from Quebec.

Mr. Thompson said the statement "caught me completely by surprise."

"I had heard a few days ago that our senior organizer in Quebec had been asked to recommend four members who might be most easily influenced toward joining the Liberals and in return were offered a rather handsome remuneration for it," he said.

ASKS A PROBE

Mr. Thompson said he had asked his party whip, Dr. Guy Marcoux and Marcel Lessard, chairman of the party's caucus, to hold an investigation into the statement because "certainly some of our members have the right to go ahead and make an arrangement of their own."

The Social Credit leaders said he does not plan to go to Ottawa personally until after a holiday.

He was not available for comment on a statement from Real Caouette, Quebec Social Credit leader, criticizing the way Mr. Thompson handled the investigation. Mr. Caouette said he should have been consulted first.

A spokesman for Liberal Leader Pearson said he had no knowledge of any such offer being made, and that the first he heard of the six who said they made it voluntarily, with no expectation of reward.

SURPRISES HIM

Another Liberal source said he was surprised at Mr. Thompson's remark because it seemed to be an unflattering commentary on his own followers, suggesting as it did that their votes in Parliament could be bought.

In Quebec, Dr. Guy Marcoux, Social Credit party whip, said he had also heard reports of propositions made to Social Credit MPs to persuade them to support the Liberals.

But he said no party has no "senior organizer" in Quebec, and he has no idea whom Mr. Thompson had in mind when he said he had heard the party's "senior organizer in Quebec" was asked to recommend four Social Credit members who might be most easily influenced toward supporting the Liberals.

In the last election campaign, he said, a committee of Gerema headed the Social Credit organization in Quebec.

School Trustees Defend Right to Control Budgets

TORONTO (CP)—A group of school trustees will cut themselves loose from the army of teachers and trustees in convention here today to go before the Ontario cabinet and defend their right to control school budgets.

The delegation from the Ontario School Trustees' Council will visit Queen's Park to oppose a suggestion—made in the report of a select committee of the Ontario legislature — that municipal councils exercise control over school board budgets.

They are likely to get a mixed reception. While Education Minister William G. Davis said Monday he also opposes municipal control of school budgets, he indicated several cabinet ministers take an opposing view.

There have been several demands recently, including some from municipal councils, that aldermen and councillors be able to trim school expenses. At present, school board budgets are set by the board of education in each municipality and the municipal council must set the mill rate to provide the money requested.

Harold A. Klipck of Windsor, president-elect of the Ontario Educational Association, said in an interview Monday municipal councils could operate a school system through mistaken thrift.

Selective Price Increases Seen in U. S. Steel Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — A pattern of selective price increases seemed to be taking shape today in the United States steel industry but there still was no word from the No. 1 producer, U.S. Steel Corporation.

Republic Steel Corporation, the third-ranking firm, fell into line with three smaller companies by posting boosts averaging $3.34 a ton on products that accounted for about one-fourth of 1962 sales.

The executive committee of U.S. Steel, which initiated last year's shortive price rise, was to meet in regular monthly session in New York today.

Few thought that higher prices fixed by Republic and Pittsburgh Steel Company Monday, and two other companies earlier, could stand up unless U.S Steel went along.

Big Steel, as U.S. Steel is known in the trade, accounts for about one-fourth of the American industry's tonnage.

President Kennedy last week conditionally approved increases on selected steel products but warned against a general price increase that could upset the country's economic stability.

Shortly before Republic's announcement, a congressional inquiry into steel prices, profits and production problems was ordered by Senator Paul H. Douglas, Illinois Democrat who is chairman of the joint congressional economic committee.

Govt. Expenditures Growing Faster Than the Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Tax Foundation says the continuing trend of government expenditures is growing faster than the economy "makes it probable that in coming months taxes will increase rather than decrease, particularly at the provincial and municipal levels."

In the first brief to the royal commission on taxation, the private research organization said today that the high level of taxes is at the root of the concern about taxation in this country. "Government expenditures, in relation to the gross national product, "have no peacetime precedent."

However, the foundations said that the Canadian tax structure, despite its imperfections, ranks with the best in the world. And with the current investigation Canada had an opportunity to

Teacher Climbs 500-Foot Tower To Test Shaken Self-Confidence

LONDON (AP) — Every morning Frank Gatesman, 51-year-old schoolmaster looked across the rooftops at a 500-foot television tower.

After breakfast Monday he walked out of his mother's house and headed for the steel tower.

He was about 200 feet up when an engineer spotted him, called the police, then climbed up after Gatesman.

The teacher climbed to the platform on the top of the tower and began the descent.

At the hallway mark he met the television engineer on his way up.

They exchanged "good mornings." The engineer urged Gatesman to come down. Gatesman explained that was what he was doing, and the men descended.

Police were waiting.

They took Gatesman to the police station and an officer had a long talk with him. Finally Gatesman went back

RCAF BOMBERS IN EUROPE TO CARRY BOMB

Could Destroy 144 Cities in One Blow

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF supersonic CF-104 low - level jet bomber in Europe will carry a one-megaton bomb, authorities here say.

A one-megaton bomb, equivalent to 1,000,000 tons of TNT, is five times as powerful as the bomb which destroyed Hiroshima in 1945.

The RCAF Air Division in Europe, with eight squadrons of 18 CF-104s each, would thus have the power to destroy 144 cities in one blow—assuming cities were the targets and all 14 planes got through to their targets in one attack.

Authorities say such an example is hypothetical because CF-104 targets would be military installations such as missile bases and not population centres. In any event, the RCAF CF-104s, about 20 per cent of the NATO tactical nuclear force in Europe, were meant to be primarily a war deterrent.

The CF-104 has a radius of action of some 500 miles, meaning that it could not hit Russia from its European bases.

PROBLEM IMMEDIATE

The problem posed by the massive strike capability of the air division is staring a Liberal government in the face because a NATO ministerial meeting on control of nuclear weapons will be held May 22-24.

The Liberals never did like the CF-104s, weapons and, they say, they still don't.

However, Liberal Leader Pearson has said Canada should honor its nuclear commitments and, as Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons Jan. 25, the CF-104 is a nuclear commitment.

Paul Hellyer, MP for Toronto Trinity and Liberal defence critic, said in the Commons March 26, 1961, of the CF-104: "This is a rough engine being installed in a poor aircraft to carry out a questionable role to which we should not have committed ourselves in the first place."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in January that Canada at the May NATO meeting would seek a "clarification" of the CF-104's role.

SHOULD GO ALONG

The previous month, Charles M. (Chuck) Drury, Liberal MP for Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount who may be the next defence minister, said that if NATO adopted the view that nuclear weapons for the alliance were necessary, Canada should go along with that view.

"We as a member of that alliance should have and employ nuclear weapons under NATO control," he said.

The NATO council has reportedly worked out a unified command system covering Canada's CF-104s and other nuclear carriers. But the command would be exercised not by NATO as a whole but by the supreme allied commander, Europe, who is an American general.

Meanwhile, Mr. Pearson and Mr. Hellyer have said Canada should put more emphasis on strengthening conventional forces in Europe.

'Spies For Peace' Ring Sought By Scotland Yard

74 Marchers Already Arrested by Police

LONDON (CP) — Scotland Yard made spy-ring raids today in its campaign to crack the "spies for peace" ring for betraying some of Britain's nuclear survival secrets.

Swinging into action after a wild, fist-throwing ban-the-bomb rally, agents of the special branch dealing with security offences swooped on houses in search of a typewriter used to draw up pamphlets first distributed during the weekend peace march on London. The pamphlets disclosed secret plans for dispersal of government officers in the event of a nuclear attack.

There was no immediate word on what if anything the raiders found.

Publication of the secret government plans was described by Home Secretary Henry Brooke as "the work of a traitor."

HEARS MORE PRINTED

The special branch has been told that the mysterious anti-war group has published another series of leaflets revealing more official secrets.

Young detectives, many of them in duffle coats, mingled with the ban - the - bomb marchers Monday on the watch for the new leaflets. One marcher who was distributing leaflets from a shopping bag was arrested. The leaflets were digests of the original pamphlet. Some 25,000 copies of the digest were reported distributed.

Brooke returned to London for talks today with senior Scotland Yard and government officials on the "spies for peace" pamphlets.

Prime Minister Macmillan's government has been plagued by repeated security scandals. Strong attacks on it are considered inevitable April 23 when Parliament reassembles. The report of a special tribunal set up to investigate security is scheduled for presentation then.

Macmillan returned to London from his home in Sussex to deal with developments.

INQUIRY SPREADS

The inquiry spread out to provincial towns and cities. Special branch officers planned to question members of the regional government teams who would take over in a country if a central government was unable to function after a nuclear attack.

Security men theorized that the information may have come from volunteer civil defence workers rather than civil servants.

Violence broke out in central London Monday as police struggled to control the huge crowds of demonstrators converging on the city after a 60-mile Easter protest march to the entrance to the nuclear weapons research centre at Aldermaston.

Some 74 marchers were arrested in the 24-hour march through police lines. During skirmishing police helmets

U.S. REBUKES CUBAN LEADER, REJECTS DEMAND

Wanted $50 Million Or Voice in Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has rebuked Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardona for his purported bitter denunciation of U.S. policy toward Cuba.

In doing so, the government made public for the first time Monday what has been rumored for days: That Miro had demanded a voice in U.S. policy toward Cuba—or else $50,000,000 to mount a private expedition against Premier Fidel Castro.

The U.S. government is not prepared to make any such payments, the state department said. It took this position in a rejoinder to Miro's reported criticism of U.S.-Cuban policy in his 20-page letter of resignation as chairman of the Cuban Revolutionary Council.

The Miro letter never has been made public. But enough informed descriptions of the letter were in the air for the state department to turn loose its strong statement.

CLAIMS TOLD TRUTH

Informed of the state department's comments, Miro said of his letter:

"I told the truth. I do not tell lies."

"I have never asked a second invasion," he added. "I have asked for humanitarian cooperation for joint military action."

Sources who claim to have studied the letter say it includes:

A detailed account of Miro's relations with the U.S. government—including President Kennedy—since the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961.

Charges the United States reneged on promises to set up a Cuban government-in-exile including a second invasion.

Complaints that United States has embarked on a course of coexistence toward rolled in the streets and beaten with fists and boots.

The chairman of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, Anglican Canon John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral, was attacked by members of the right-wing League of Empire Loyalists. An eight-pound bag of flour was poured over him as he led the marchers into Hyde Park—the last point on the march.

Thousands of Acres of Woodland Burned in New England States

NEW YORK (AP)—Dry forests, encouraged with a drought, have made for hazardous fire conditions in the eastern United States, where thousands of woodland acres have burned.

In Ellsworth Falls, Me., a grass fire got out of control Monday and destroyed two buildings and a woodland plot one of them only a few hours before.

The same day, 105 forest fires were reported to the Massachusetts department of natural resources. Officials there described the fire danger in eastern and central Massachusetts as "extreme" and as "extreme if not explosive."

Open fires were banned in Rhode Island, where one man died fighting a blaze.

The weather bureau said the bulk of New England passed its 25th day Monday without appreciable rain. Little relief was in sight. The only rain forecast was a band of light showers expected late today.

In Florida, 154 fires razed 6,000 acres during the weekend. Two blazes north of Panama City blackened 2,500 acres. Forests were tinder dry. Silas Foster, 17, Coulter said a prolonged period of exceptional fire danger was expected pending the fall of general, soaking rains.

Connecticut, which hasn't had a soaking rain since March 23, is going through its longest period of high forest fire danger since natural resources officials began keeping records in 1948. Firemen fought a 35-acre woodland blaze for more than five hours Monday.

Buckhorn State Park, on Grand Island near Buffalo, N.Y., was the scene of five large fires covering more than 150 acres in the last four days. The park was ordered closed after the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission declared a state of fire emergency.

School Budgets Sent Back, To Strike Rate Next Week

Pleads Guilty To Two Charges Of Breaking

City police, called to help a youth suffering a badly gashed wrist wound up by charging him with two break-ins.

The story was told in city magistrate's court this morning when 18-year-old Joseph William DeRushie pleaded guilty to the charges.

Police Inspector J. B. McLauchlan told Magistrate T. V. Wills that DeRushie was at an East Dundas Street house party, March 30 when he staged the attempts to take two cars.

He first went to the nearby Wellbanks car lot and attempted to drive a car out of the garage.

"He did not succeed, there, and he went directly across the street to Christie's car lot and broke the glass there and in the process severely cut himself," reported the inspector.

DeRushie returned to the house and police were called to take him to hospital.

"He was just released yesterday after surgery", said the inspector.

Magistrate Wills, remanding the youth for sentence, said he would not be placed on probation.

"I don't think there is any question that you are going somewhere," he added.

Top-Talent Variety Show Presented by Police Assoc.

Belleville's Police Association took to a different kind of beat last night — a down beat — and results have members thinking the attempt should be repeated.

The beat was tapped out in strict tempo as Belleville Collegiate last night as the association paraded a top - talent variety show before nearly 1,100 spectators.

The audiences actually were the performers, while the cast themselves. With a sellout of all available tickets the association decided on an encore and again — that two shows should be presented during the evening.

The early house brought in a hearty sprinkling of the younger set, while the second presentation, starting at 9.15 brought in a majority of adults.

However both audiences had one thing in common — a warm reception for the artistes, and with good reason.

Veteran producer Bob Allen last night, as show, and Mr. Allen has been doing it for years for police associations across Canada, proved his acquaintance permits him to automatically gauge the kind of entertainment that will go over. Something that was in evidence last night.

VARIETY KEYNOTE

Keynote of the evening was variety — in this case a colorful study in contrasts.

Led by emcee Kenny Payne, a master of ceremonies from Chicago's Harvey Lads, the show trouped a succession of top contrasting acts across the audience's vision.

On the semi-right side was Nick Bonacci, a young protege of famed accordionist Dick Contino, now himself turning to instrumental mastery in his own right.

On the just-right side was Bill Hood, comedian from Spirito, who came back for several encores on each of his appearances, and appropriately a Comedy to music, or musical comedy — have it how you will — was Master Duke Zurzel, a master violinist with an irresistibly inimitable touch in both tempo and bow arm effects.

Thrills of the evening were distributed at random by Marcelli, a slack wire artist, with a performance backed solidly and maxed by engagements with Ringling Brothers.

Most spectacular of the evening was in the elusive bands of the Youngs, Oriental illusionists.

As the applause for the last curtain of the last presentation died down last night good news was in the offing for those and there are many — who still like to mix their entertainment with a dash of live presentation. The Belleville Police Association already is planning its show for next year.

Guilty Pleas Are Rejected By Magistrate

Two Belleville teenagers had their pleas of guilty to a breaking charge pending sentence next week by Magistrate T. V. Wills today.

Gerald Lorne Reid, 17, and 18-year-old Lawrence McCaw, were charged along with a juvenile after police apprehended them during a break-in at Patterson's service station on West Dundas and Pinnacle streets.

"By their own admission they had planned this earlier in the day," said Police Inspector J. B. McLauchlan. "Their only excuse was lack of funds."

McCaw was caught near the scene; Reid on East Dundas street and the juvenile arrested later in the Belleville Shopping Plaza.

The magistrate deferred his decision when told McCaw was presenting himself for admission to the Canadian Army this week and that Reid also was employed.

"I am inclined to give this boy a chance to get in the army," commented the magistrate as he rejected the pleas and enlarged the case — one week.

URGE CABINET SHUFFLE

Nominations For Kinsmen Offices Made

A large number of Kinsmen gathered at the Shrine Club on Monday evening when the list of nominees for the 1963-64 slate of officers was presented by the nominating committee chairman, Kin Bob Wood.

Nominees were: president, Jim Wilde; vice-president, Frank Walker and Bud Drury; treasurer, Terry Bender; secretary, Paul Russell and Ross Parks; directors, Charles Gray, Roy Pralick, Bob Swain and Jim Coverdale.

The election of officers will take place at the April 29th meeting and the new officers will take over their appointed responsibilities in January.

The collection of dues during the past year has on several occasions presented a great problem to the treasurer Kin Jim Wilde. He brought a motion to the floor at last night's meeting to the effect that the fee of $5.00 be collected from each member every month instead of collecting $2 from each member at every meeting and the $15 yearly dues at the end of the year.

This would include all mail over a period of 20 meetings and the yearly dues, plus all other assessments, with the admission charges to the club's annual ladies' night.

Kin Bob Wood during the month they are due would be subject to a penalty of $1.25 during the following month.

New members accepted in to the club were Douglas Heath and Donald Robertson. The meeting was conducted by President R. Belanger.

Will Serve Two Months

A Deseronto youth will serve two months in Hastings county jail for attempting to clean out a Belleville laundromat.

Larry Herman was charged with attempted theft a week ago after a change machine on Dundas Street laundromat was smashed. Arrested nearby, Herman later told police he got scared after breaking the machine.

Speaker Poses As Victim Of Cancer

TORONTO (CP)—A 32year old philosopher who posed as a victim of fatal cancer told a luncheon audience Monday that people should not fritter away their time praying for a non-existent eternal life.

Dr. Peter A. Angeles, contending he expected to die of cancer in three months, urged his audience to live intensely in service to others, in creation and in suffering and the "end will be bliss."

But Dr. Angeles said later in a telephone interview from his home at London, Ont., that he does not have cancer and doesn't expect to die in the near future.

An assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Western Ontario, he said he used psychic license to create a mood, using a technique similar to one last month when he posed as a 24-year-old professor addressing his students for the last time at a university lecture.

Dr. Angeles said he had forewarned three officials of his intention and planned to tell the audience after, but there was no discussion period and no opportunity.

He added: "I want to make it powerful. I guess I overdid it if I did. I'm very sorry."

Pale and quiet-spoken, he had told the luncheon audience in his last public appearance because of his approaching death.

Dr. Angeles' speech was made to the vice-principles' section of the Ontario Educational Association. William R. Evans, president of the section, said the group had no advance warning of the philosopher's intention and was left with mixed feelings about whether it was a hoax.

SHOCKS AUDIENCE

Members of the audience, shocked into silence by the opening words, were apparently convinced Dr. Angeles was serious. When he spoke his piece over, several men left the room.

Dr. Angeles said that sensitive men will know that each tick of time was precious and must be used wisely.

"The universe is infinite, there is no end to it . . . the only certainties in physics is out and out and out. . . . There is no supernatural."

He is a vice-principals that there is no cosmic purpose, only eternal existence without beginning or end.

Dr. Angeles, a native of Ohio, graduated from Columbia University with a doctorate in philosophy.

Fish and Game Meet Tonight At Club Canara

Up-to-date information on the marsh reclamation project on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve will highlight an address to be given to the Belleville District Fish and Game Club tonight at Club Canara.

Chief Melville Hill, head of the Mohawk-Quinte Band, will be the guest speaker. To Chief Hill goes much of the credit for the implementation of this project.

Club members should not expect a highly informative and interesting address.

All other waters in the Tweed district see the pickerel season be open on May 11th through March 31st, not May 15th as first announced.

Masonic Grand Master Pays Official Visit to P.E. District, Tells of Worth to Community

A reminder that Masonry must be lived in the spirit by its exponents if it is to fill its community mission was given in Belleville by a leading figure in Canada's Masonic world last night.

The speaker Russell Williams Treleaven, Grand Master of Ontario and his audience, which gave him a standing ovation, numbered close to 250 members from 17 lodges in the Quinte district.

Describing Masonry as "a system of morality which must be lived," the Grand Master said its membership emphasized its importance in the human community.

"When one considers the variety of the occupations and the professions of the (Masonic) Craft, it is apparent how Masonry has woven itself into the warp and woof of our society."

An eminent Hamilton jurist now retired as an Ontario Supreme Court Justice, the Grand Master is now serving the last of two years as Ontario's chief Mason. His appearance at the Masonic Temple in Belleville last night was officially a visit to the Prince Edward District A.F. and A.M., which counts lodges from Brighton to Deseronto and south to Bath Cricket. Tonight he speaks in Kingston. On his tour he is accompanied by G. E. Dixon, Hamilton, Grand Secretary for Ontario.

LOCAL MASTERS PRESENT

Also on hand last night for greeting the Grand Master Treleaven were local masters of the Loder in the Prince Edward District. Their introduction drew special words of advice from the distinguished visitor.

At the Grand Lodge sessions for Southern Ontario in the past two years much discussion centred on steps to attendances at Masonic events, he said.

"Considering the five million membership in North America the falling off is not alarming and it can be accounted for," he said.

Various causes, ranging from TV to lack of parking space, contributed to the effect.

"But invariably, the discussion ended up like this: If the trend is to be reversed it depends on strong and vigorous leadership by the masters particularly, the master in the various lodges.

While it is an honor to be a Mason, he told the local lodge masters "we should perhaps say less and think less about the honor and more about the responsibility."

It was that theme he emphasized in his main address to the general assembly later in the evening in a speech that was direct, serious and all the more effective for homespun overtones.

Speaking personally, he confessed since becoming Grand Master he was forced to recall incidents that brought him back on an even keel "because you have been so kind it would be easy to overestimate oneself — and I do not want to do that."

Masonry today, he reminded members, cuts across a representative mainstream of humanity.

"In all seriousness just a glance at that variety of profession (represented in Masonry) . . . does show, I think, how the influence of our Craft has penetrated into every branch of our society."

"If I were to go to any of you and ask you the question individually, 'What is Masonry?' I think I know the answer I would get in many cases. But what is Free Masonry.

"Let me quote from a certain expressions in life—there are certain things — which cannot be defined satisfactorily. Certainly not in a sentence or two."

The chief definition of Masonry might be "a beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory and depicted by symbols." "But, said the Grand Master," an initiate into the Craft might fail to fully grasp the meaning conveyed in that description.

MUST LIVE MASONRY

"To understand Free Masonry you must experience it. To truly understand it we must live it."

"It is a question of morality which must be lived by Masons. We alone can make that beautiful system of morality real."

The Craft's principles must be carried beyond its Lodges and become basis for the personal attitude of its membership. Masons must "spread abroad" the principles inculcated in their creed.

"And that world, my brethren, is not a vague distant. It's the little community in which you and I live."

"Say what you will about Masonry. Until Masons live it, it's not anything. How about trying it?"

Chairman, at the three-hour meeting which followed the turkey banquet was District Deputy Grand Master Bruce Portt.

Youth Given Sharp Warning By Magistrate

A Belleville teenager, who pleaded guilty to two charges of drinking and being drunk while a minor, was given a sharp warning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

"It's just foolish of you at your age to start losing control of yourself," the magistrate told Robert Wayne Fowler.

He put the youth on a year's probation with orders to report to county probationary authorities twice monthly.

Trenton's Tax Rate Jumps 7.23 Mills for Residential And 4.5 Mills Commercial

TRENTON—Trenton's 1963 mill rate was announced last night. The commercial mill rate is upped 9.4 mills from that for 1962 from 95.4 to 104.8 mills. The residential mill rate is up 7.3 mills over last year, 87 mills for 1962 and 94.23 mills for this year.

Council approved the mill rate almost at the end of last night's three-hour session.

As Mayor James MacDonald put it: "We don't exactly approve it, but we've no choice."

Councillor Gerald Weaver insisted that notice be taken of the fact that the commercial mill rate increase was mostly due to education requirements; the 9.4 mill increase is broken down into a 3.13 mill increase for general government and a 6.25 mill increase for the needs of public, separate and high schools. The 7.23 mill increase in the residential rate can be broken down to a 2.2 mill increase or general government and a 4.33 increase for school requirements.

PROTEST POLICE COSTS

Council approved, "under protest," the police department budget for 1963 of $129,323. But council intends to have the last word. A letter will be sent to the Trenton Police Commission telling the members that council will scrutinize police budget "under protest," and that, in the opinion of council, Trenton's municipal police force than it can afford. The 1962 budget, council will recall, "unfortunately have provided adequate police protection for a much increased population in Trenton. In fact, council will tell the commission, the town spent approximately $10,000 more than it should have for last year's police protection.

The commission will also be told that in the opinion of council a recent survey "proper, not by Staff Inspector D. V. Whiteley of the Ontario Provincial Police, only gave adequate coverage" to actual costs of running the police department. Most of the concentrated on the inspector's opinion that Trenton had one of the most efficiently run departments in Ontario.

Council will ask the commission to have the projected police budget for 1964 in its hands well before Jan. 1 so that council last night provided a few smiles and laughs in some otherwise tense moments.

PROTESTS LETTER

A Bay Street resident, (a lady) had written in to protest a parking ticket. Here, which, she says, she had received from the town, telling her that if she didn't pay the said tax within a 10 day period "appropriate action" would be taken.

I resent this letter very much," wrote the lady, "there are no parking meters on this street without tags. I call this letter persecution by a petty minded municipal clerk who thinks he's a big wheel. I think that some approximate action should be taken about this."

The lady will be told, by letter that there was no disrespect intended and one other dog owners on her street will receive similar letters.

Dr. J. D. Beecroft had taken exception to a traffic committee resolution that a hedge in front of his property should be lowered to a height of four feet in the interests of traffic safety. Dr. Beecroft admitted that there had been some accidents at his corner but he attributed them to "stupid sort of human error" on the part of drivers rather than the height of the hedge. After a prolonged discussion, council left the matter between Dr. Beecroft and Ontario Highways, and the latter will be asked to trim it to the desired height.

WANTS NEW PUMPER

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis had written to council asking for a new pumper for the department were not purchased, he suggested, his out-of-town calls for fire fighting assistance, (with the exception of Municipal Aid signs), be refused. The chief said that yesterday, the Bickle pumper was called out to a fire in Shelleborne and he was forced to send the aerial ladder to a grass fire in town.

The chief will be asked to submit specifications for a new pumper and council will call tenders for its supply.

Councillor Weaver wondered if Murray and Ameliasburg townships might not terminate their agreements with the town as a money saving move. He might not be to Trenton's advantage to get along with two pieces of fire fighting equipment and refuse out-of-town calls. However, town solicitor Roderick Campbell suggested that since the town had agreements with the township, consideration should be given to these before action to cut off service was started.

Councillor C. V. Graham pointed out that Trenton collected no more than $1,000 last year for fighting out-of-town fires and suggested that two such large pumpers would pay for a new pumper.

Councillor Ross Burtt queried the commissioner's policy of refusing to answer calls out in Murray township.

"Would we be satisfied in our own minds that we had done the right thing if we discontinued?" he asked. "Trenton can't live by itself and ignore the surrounding township."

SCHOOL GUARD QUESTION

Councillor Graham told council that the safety committee had recommended letting the school guard at Prince Charles' School go for the rest of the Easter term, as it was felt the children had had sufficient time to learn to cross the pedestrian lights, installed last fall.

The matter raised a cry from other councillors who felt small children could not be trusted to cross the busy streets and generval landscaping outside the home and redecorating and painting, adding street space, removal of partitions to enlarge rooms, placement of fireplace and gas burners in an existing furnace and the repair or replacement of existing fixtures are inside, do not add to the property assessment.

You can repair or replace sidewalks and drives; you can add a lawn sprinkling system; you can repair a feiter or a hedge; you can add outdoor lights to your home; you can have your wiring inspected, rewired or add electrical circuits or have additional outlets installed in your home without raising your assessment.

Property owners are also urged to tear down old sheds, dilapidated barns or outmoded garages to which they may be paying assessment.

The owners of vacant lots will be urged to clear these lots of debris or the town will clear them and charge the owner back the costs.

Merchants will be reminded of a 1954 by-law by the terms of which they may be liable to a fine if garbage is not put out for collection in safe tamperproof containers.

And while the town is at it, it will check into the state of town - owned lots as for- more attempts to clean up the town have met with a certain amount of, "why don't you clean up your own property first."

Merchants, Residents Asked To Clean, Paint Premises

TRENTON — If Trenton isn't a cleaner and a more attractive town by May 10, it won't be the fault of the town authorities who gathered at the municipal office Monday morning to plan activities for publicizing Clean Up Week, May 6 to May 10.

Town residents and merchants can't help but co-operate in the "clean up," "paint up," activity when they're going to be bombasted by radio and newspaper advertising; placards in store windows; streamers across the downtown streets and the sense of urgency in the air.

"Beautify Trenton . . . Clean Up; Paint Up," will read the overhead street banners, prepared by members of the fire department.

"Clean Up Week," placards, donated by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, will greet shoppers as they enter the town's main stores. As an extra nudge, merchants will be asked to place waste receptacles at the entrance to their stores.

When property owners open their tax bills this year (they'll be mailed out by April 30), they'll also be greeted with the bad news that the town, by a letter from the assessment department, "good maintenance only" sustains the assessed value (of your property), it does not raise it.

And then, should all else fail to bring the need for property improvement to the residents' attention, their school children will arrive home sometime in May 6 with a pamphlet, got out by the fire department, asking them to dispose of debris, which can be construed as a fire hazard.

WON'T RAISE ASSESSMENT

Assessment commissioner Alan Smith says that many property owners are afraid to improve their property lest such action will raise their assessment.

This isn't necessarily so, says Mr. Smith. Such improvements as painting, repairing, replacement of broken glass, reroofing, replacement of windows and doors, addition of storm windows and doors and general landscaping outside the home and redecorating and painting, adding closet space, removal of partitions to enlarge rooms, placement of fireplace and gas burners in an existing furnace and the repair or replacement of existing fixtures are inside, do not add to the property assessment.

You can repair or replace sidewalks and drives; you can add a lawn sprinkling system; you can repair a feiter or a hedge; you can add outdoor lights to your home; you can have your wiring inspected, rewired or add electrical circuits or have additional outlets installed in your home without raising your assessment.

Property owners are also urged to tear down old sheds, dilapidated barns or outmoded garages to which they may be paying assessment.

The owners of vacant lots will be urged to clear these lots of debris or the town will clear them and charge the owner back the costs.

Merchants will be reminded of a 1954 by-law by the terms of which they may be liable to a fine if garbage is not put out for collection in safe tamperproof containers.

And while the town is at it, it will check into the state of town - owned lots as for-

Fires Started By Children With Matches

TRENTON — Murray township Reeve Douglas McMaster, today appealed to parents in his township to impress upon their children the dangers of playing with matches and lighting fires in the woods.

Yesterday the township reeve himself helped to extinguish three brush fires that might easily have got out of control if not checked.

Mr. McMaster fought the fires himself rather than put the township to the expense of calling the fire department.

All three fires were believed to have been started by children playing in the bush with matches. The grass and bush were said to be very dry due to the lack of rain.

"It is not only the property that could be the result, but there is also the danger to the lives of the children," said the reeve as he appealed to parents to impress on their children the dangers of starting brush fires.

The council still hasn't accepted Miro's resignation and has planned a formal meeting to decide its course-and to discuss the state department outburst.

DOESN'T WANT WAR

The gist of the state department declaration was that the United States doesn't want to be drawn into an all-out war by anti-Castro exiles. The department said:

"While appreciating the urgent desire of the Cuban exiles to return to a free and independent Cuba at the earliest possible date—a desire which is fully shared by the people and the government of the United States—the department considers this statement (the Miro letter) a gross distortion of recent history and of this government's policy with respect to the elimination of Castro communism from this hemisphere."

The department said Miro's letter "as it relates to conversations with the president and others in the government is highly inaccurate and distorted."

MOSCOW (AP)—Mikhail Botvinnik and Tigran Petrosian today agreed to a draw in the 10th match of the 24-match world chess championship. The score now stands 5½ to 4½ in favor of Petrosian.

The draw was offered by Botvinnik before Botvinnik and accepted by Petrosian without resuming play. The game had been adjourned on the 42nd move.

Green to the Senate?

The Montreal Star thinks that Hon. Howard Green, Minister of External Affairs, should be appointed to the Senate. Mr. Green was defeated in Vancouver Quadra, in one of the major surprises of Monday's election.

Coming from the Montreal Star, the suggestion of a Senate seat for Mr. Green is doubly significant, for the Star has a Liberal tinge to its customary claim to being independent in politics.

The words in which the Star couches its proposal, however, provide striking proof of the differing ways in which even a man's friends may view him. "Mr. Green," says the Star, "sees the world too much in plain black and plain white to have made a good foreign minister." Now it may be true that there is room for differing views regarding Mr. Green's performance as minister of external affairs since the death of Dr. Sidney Smith, briefly member for Hastings-Frontenac. But we would not have expected one of the objections to his record to have been that he was unable to distinguish various shades of grey.

His whole policy fell well within the grey area. While he believed the western democracies were right, he did not always agree with the policies advocated by the U.S. While he was a foe of communism, he did not always condemn Russian proposals. His opposition to Canada acquiring nuclear arms' and his persistent and unremitting efforts to get the big powers to talk about disarmament possibilities substantiated this view. But, perhaps, the Montreal Star is right, perhaps Mr. Green does see the world in plain black and plainit white—but they are his own black and his own white and, laid on the conference table between the rival blacks and the whites of the opposing big powers, they provide a reasonable facsimile of grey.

Mr. Green's record as a minister in the Diefenbaker governments since 1957 is distinguished by one remarkable achievement — his performance was always better than expectations. There are many men who fail to live up to their great potentials. Mr. Green does not fall into this mournful category. He grew with his duties—the greater the responsibilities placed on his shoulders, the abler a man did he prove himself. If all were able to match this, the world would be a happier one.

Adenauer to Retire

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Germany has announced he will retire in the fall of this year.

Chancellor Adenauer does not regard this as news. "I have stated so often that I would offer my resignation in October or November, 1963," is the way he puts it. "And what I said still goes."

There is, however, this difference between this announcement of his pending retirement and previous ones. This time Adenauer made the announcement himself. It is the first time he has done so publicly. Previous announcements were by spokesmen for his party, quoting what they said he had declared privately. But as has been proven on more than one occasion, nobody speaks for Adenauer but himself.

Incidentally, this is the first indication that Adenauer's retirement has been fixed. A couple of years ago, when he was 85, he was slated to retire—but changed his mind. Perhaps, this time at 87, he will finally bow out.

West Germany is not going to find it easy to replace him. The only German with an even remotely comparable reputation in the Western world is Willy Brandt, the mayor of West Berlin. And Brandt is a political opponent of Adenauer.

Critique of a Crisis

After a 13-hour all-night meeting, the Cuban Revolutionary Council in Miami, Fla., has refused to accept the resignation of its president, Jose Miro Cardona. The council wants Miro to continue as head of the anti-Castro organization.

After the same meeting, the council reaffirmed its resolution to continue the fight against the "Castro Soviet regime" and said that a "state of grave crisis exists, caused by the present policy of the government of this country," meaning the United States. The policy in question is that the laws of peace will be respected, and the U.S. government does not intend to allow a pack of displaced oligarchs to endanger world peace by attempting an invasion of Cuba from U.S. territory.

But a crisis exists, that much is certain. And this crisis will continue until the people who helped to make Castro possible are either properly interned or kicked out of the U.S.

Diefenbaker Unlikely to Give Up Tory Leadership Peacefully

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — They have compelled and persuaded John Diefenbaker to step down as Prime Minister — but it is not going to be anywhere nearly that easy to shuffle him off as Conservative leader.

And in the cold, ice-blue Diefenbaker eye, "they," now, as always, are all those forces, pressures and even people he has said have always been arrayed against him.

"Resign?" cried Senator Grat-a-tan O'Leary who campaigned so excellently for him, "Diefenbaker resign as Prime Minister and abandon the fiercely loyal Prairies, the faithful farmers of Ontario and his beachhead in Quebec, abandon them to the tender mercies of Bay Street, St. James Street, and the 'King-makers' of the three Toronto metropolitan papers? What manner of man do you think him to be to turn his back on those who kept faith with him?"

Strong sentiments these, and not calculated to endear either John Diefenbaker or Grattan O'Leary to the Toronto or even Ontario establishment, the Conservative party, but then the highly emotional Senator from The Ottawa Journal," as the Capital and perhaps Canada know him, has never been noted for any really-motivated choice of words.

NEVER SEE THEM

And as to the Toronto metropolitan newspapers, Jean Douglas, who lost out for the Conservative seat to Liberal Judy LaMarsh in Niagara Falls, perhaps put them in perspective — or rather, in their place so to size - - better than anyone so far.

"Thousands, no, hundreds of thousands, even millions of Canadians will be born, live good and useful lives and die, never having held a Toronto newspaper in their hands.

"The fact is," she said, "that Toronto is just a mere point on the map to the vast majority of Canadians.

"Toronto doesn't make the wheat grow on the Prairies. It doesn't make the salmon bite on the West Coast, or the lobsters and cod slip into the pots and nets on the East Coast."

But even so, despite the brave words of Senator O'Leary and Jean Douglas, while other people, pressures, circumstances and events have pushed and persuaded John Diefenbaker to step aside as Prime Minister, it still leaves him as leader of his party.

It may be assumed that those elements in the Conservative high command who talked John Diefenbaker for his scalp in the Cabinet crisis of only nine weeks ago still want to discard him for a new and younger leader.

But this is not going to be easy.

For one thing, he wants to remain as leader. And for a second, he simply can't afford to quit now.

BROKE

For as Opposition Leader he would get an annual $27,000.

While as plain Opposition M.P. he would get but $10,000.

And retiring completely from public life, at 67, he would have only a Parliamentary pension of $3,000, less income tax, or a thin $2,900.

It is a cold and comfortless fact that the Prime Minister, having been involved in public life — either as a candidate or rewarding field — since 1925, has few, if any funds set aside for retirement.

But more important than personal considerations, those who still stalk John Diefenbaker to scalp him not only as Prime Minister but as party leader, will find he wears a stubborn and skilful warrior with some pretty wild tribesmen just itching to go on the warpath.

For although he lost the election across Canada, he still won the West where the hard-core of the party's strength is now concentrated, and where, with the enthusiastic backing of that Prairie political pin-up boy, Alvin Hamilton, he still commands a fanatically loyal following.

Among those Prairie Conservative MPs are those very hard-handed men, who, with blood in their eye, launched into last February's crucial Commons caucus at the height of the Conservative Cabinet crisis, vowing openly as they put it, "to get its some of those Bay Street Barons bothering our John."

So while John Diefenbaker may be going more or less gracefully as Prime Minister, he won't give up the party leadership without "the damgdest fight," as one of his fierce loyal Prairie partisans so aptly phrased it.

Realist Knows Death Penalty Is No Solution

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One man is opposed to capital punishment. Another man is in favor of it. Question: which man is the "sentimentalist"?

Most people would answer, I think, that the man who opposes capital punishment is the sentimentalist. He is the "bleeding heart," the idealist, the one who is "soft on criminals."

This is how words continually betray us. For all the facts we have available indicate that the man who opposes capital punishment is the realist, while the man who favors it does so for emotional reasons and no other.

In a new pamphlet, "The Unexamined Death," an analyst of capital punishment by Hans W. Matick, formerly assistant warden of the Cook County Jail of Chicago, the author states in his conclusion, "the evidence indicates that those who favor the capital punishment are sentimentalists, pure and simple."

The knowledgeable and practical people are those who have actually examined the evidence and found that "capital punishment is irrelevant to the homicide rate." It is indefensible on any rational grounds, and is simply a form of legalized vengeance or "corporate murder."

There are, I believe, good moral and psychological reasons for abolishing the death penalty. But I am not concerned with them here; what interests me is Matick's brief and pungent study of the subject is the overwhelming evidence that capital punishment prevents no murders. It does not do the one thing its proponent insist it do.

What capital punishment does do is to provide society with an infant and irresponsible outlet for its anger and fear. Furthermore, it permits us to close our eyes to the social causes of crime by getting rid of the symptoms only. Meanwhile, the crime rate continues to increase everywhere, despite more stringent penalties.

I have argued the case against capital punishment in previous columns, and I have never seen a factual refutation of it. But what is most ironic in this whole controversy is that the label of "sentimentalist" should be attached to the opponent of capital punishment, when the proponent smugly believes himself to be the "realist" in the matter.

If realism means understanding cause and effect, if it means proportioning the methods to the ends, if it means being true to something because it really works in fact, if it means refusing to be swayed by emotional considerations — then it is the opponents of the death penalty who are realists, in any meaningful sense of that abused word.

Why Bangor Gave Majority to Liberal

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

Within the riding of Hastings-Frontenac I have heard it said of late, why did the Township of Bangor cast the only Liberal majority vote in the riding?

The answer to this question is very simple when one lives in the township and knows the conditions and is aware of the lack of interests given by the government representatives.

Bangor Township abounds with beauty, and is dotted with wonderful lakes and waterways: in fact it is a sportsman's and tourist paradise. Yet the people of Bangor have many problems.

For one example we are geographically isolated. There exists an eight-mile gap in the telephone and postal service. While the federal, provincial and municipal governments; provincial highways department, Dept. of Highways and Dept. of Lands and Forests maintain in Belleville, Bancroft and Smooth the mail and telephone come from Ottawa and have to circuit the province to reach the services.

For instance, a long distance call must travel over three hundred miles to reach the police, with the resultant delay should there be an emergency and a forty-cent charge.

The provincial road program is a joke, packed full of delays and indecisions.

In my opinion Bangor is overdue for a government project to bridge the gap, put in the invisible line separating Hastings and Renfrew counties we should share the cost of the project with South Renfrew County. A program of some type is urgently required.

We have a monument in Bangor, a monument which is visible proof that we are disenfranchised against. As one approaches Bangor Township from the east or west on a brand new highway, one is confronted with probably the worst and most dangerous portion of highway in Ontario. This highway is an outward sign of the complete by-passing of this area by our federal and provincial members here.

No member has been in The Bangor Township for fourteen years. Bill Shannon our Liberal candidate broke with tradition and paid us a visit which was well received.

I ask you how would you vote?

J. C. Brodie,
R.R. 3, Combermere, Ont.

Home Study Nursing Course Is Not Very Practical

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been planning to take a home study course in practical nursing.

My friends tell me it would be a waste of time because doctors do not recognize it and there isn't any actual hospital training. Are my friends right? — M.F.

Yes, because you cannot become an L.P.N. (licensed practical nurse) through a mail order cours- of study.

I suppose you'd be bound to pick up some information, but even if you then got work as an aide in a hospital you would still have to take the in-service training that most hospitals require.

A better way is to find out what practical nurse training classes are available in your locality. Some are run in connection with hospitals. Some are offered as a part of the public school adult training program.

Since the situation varies from place to place, inquire through a local hospital or get in touch with a nursing bureau or nursing association, either a state or local one. They will surely tell you what training you can get and where.

With our continuing need for more nurses, you'll find such organizations co-operative.

Likewise the more training you receive, the more money you earn.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you think a boy should see his mother undressed? My aunt was raised her son to let him enter the bathroom often when she is in the tub. She believed it is better to let a boy know than to be curious. What is your opinion? — J. G.

Maybe I'm old fashioned, but I still think there is a place for modesty at our house, if the bathroom door is closed it means somebody is using it, so stay out.

On the other hand if a youngster happens inadvertantly to walk in on an adult, we've never felt it right to fuss, scold, or indeed, make anything of it. This simply makes curiosity like a youngster or (worse) makes him think he has done something "bad."

Just be casual about it, no harm has been done. But I see no benefit in encouraging any such thing.

Dear Dr. Molner: The doctor has diagnosed my daughter's problem as swimmer's ear. At times it is very painful. Is it contagious? — Mrs. H. S.

This is usually a fungus infection acquired in lake, rivers or streams. Not in salt water. It is also unlikely to be acquired in a chlorinated swimming pool. No, it is not contagious in the sense of being passed from one person to another.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard of an egg diet — nothing but eggs — that I would like to try. What is your opinion of it? I thought that while on any kind of a diet it might be wise to have a vitamin supplement. Do you agree? — Miss A. M.

I don't think that any diet of only one thing is either logical or useful. If you go on a diet (for reducing, I presume) choose one that gives you adequate amounts of everything, with variety of taste and appearance — from vitamins and minerals to calories — and you will not have to buy vitamins to make up for what you are missing. Fad diets are for the birds.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for the booklet "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures" enclosing with your request 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Moon Dust Falls on Us

Ottawa Journal

If anyone other than the venerable National Geographic Society had announced it, we would say it was so much moonshine. But there it is in the Geographic's own official news bulletin: the world is littered with moon dust.

Scientists, not bulletin says, are spending millions of dollars on rockets to explore the moon. But all they need do is simply step outside their laboratory door and scoop up bits of the moon for testing.

The catch is the scientists don't know what to look for. They can't tell parts of the moon from plain old earthy dirt.

There's how they explain the moon dust. The moon has no atmosphere to shield it from meteors which smash unhindered into its surface. The collisions displace huge chunks of moon as they create craters.

Some fragments of moon are hurled off so fast they escape its gravity which is only one-sixth that of the earth. Captured by the earth's gravity, the fragments fall gently all around us.

Scientific sense of the National Geographic may think moon particles are pretty exciting things. But not those of the poor housewife. She has enough to do keeping up the debris left by her children and husband, taking on the moon too. The thought must have her exhausted and depressed.

THE PACKSACK

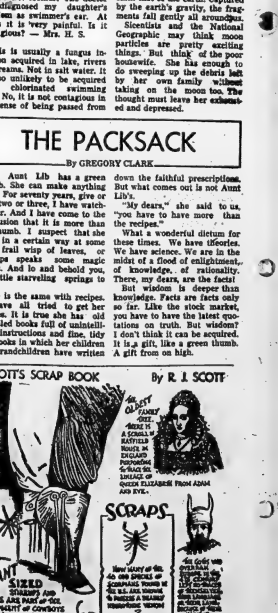
By GREGORY CLARK



My Aunt Lib has a green thumb. She can make anything grow. For several years, she'd take two or three, I have watched her. And I have come to the conclusion that it is more than her thumb. I suspect that she puts in a certain way at some little fruit with all leaves, or perhaps speaks some magic words. And lo and behold you, there is a beautiful specimen to live.

She is the same with recipes. We have all tried to get her recipes. It is true she has old scribbled books full of unintelligible instructions and fine, lacy notebooks in which her children and grandchildren have written down the faithful prescriptions. But what comes out is not Aunt Lib's.

"My dears," she said to us, "you have to have more than the recipes."

What a wonderful dictum for these times. We have theories. We have grandiose plans in the midst of a flood of enlightment, of knowledge, of rationality. There, my dears, is the secret.

But wisdom is deeper than knowledge. Facts are facts only so far. Like the stock market, you have to have the latest quotations on truth. But wisdom? I don't think it can be received. It is a gift, like a green thumb. A gift from on high.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons, who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Department

When a child has been raised by foster parents, foster parents eventually become dependent on the child in later years. When this occurs the taxpayer is often at a loss as to how his foster parents should be claim ed, particularly so when they have a different name from him.

If the taxpayer is single, and the foster parents are wholly dependent on him, he may claim the equivalent to married status ($1000) on one and $550 on the other. To avoid trouble with the income tax office, he should attach a note to his return giving an outline of the circumstances pertaining to his claim.

It has been ruled by the Income Tax Department that these foster parents need not be of different sexes. This applies where two aunts had raised a nephew. One of them working to pay expenses, while the other kept the house and looked after the child. In such cases the taxpayer would not claim them as aunts but as foster parents.

If the taxpayer is married and his foster parents are dependent on him, his claim would be $550 for each of them.

Should the taxpayer be single and not residing with his foster parents, yet fully supporting them in a dwelling which he maintains by paying all expenses connected therein, he may claim the equivalent to married status on one of them as outlined above, if he does board or keep in a home or institution does not qualify for the married status. If he does not maintain a dwelling for them, he may only claim $550 each.

Any inquiries received will be answered if a self-addressed and stamped (only) envelope is enclosed.

Question 1—I am an orphan and was raised in a private home by people who were not related to me. I am not legally adopted. These people are now dependent on me. Can I claim them? I am single.

Answer—If you fully support them in a dwelling which you maintain, claim $1000 on one and $550 on the other. Show them on your return as foster parents.

Question 2—I was an orphan, raised by my aunt. I am married and she now lives with us. The Income Tax Office says I can't claim an aunt. Why?

Answer—There is no provision in the Income Tax Act whereby an aunt may be allowed as a dependent. But in particular case, you would be allowed a claim of $550 for her as a foster mother.

Youth Threw Match at Me Says Burned Boy

KINGSTON (CP) — Detectives are hoping they'll be able to question today an eight-year-old boy who is in hospital with burns to 50 per cent of his body. He was found with his clothes ablaze early Sunday.

Bradley Burton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nell Murphy of Kingston, told a nurse "a teen-ager threw a match at me."

Chief surgeon Dr. W. R. Ghent said the boy will be in hospital for at least three months. He suffered first, second and third-degree burns to his body.

The boy was seen by Major Robert McKerracher of the Salvation Army as he drove along a downtown street. He was running and screaming with his clothes flaming around him.

"Another man got to him first and began pounding out the flames with his hands," said Major McKerracher. "Then I wrapped a coat around him and got him down to the hospital."

Kennedy Phones Minister's Wife

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy telephoned the wife of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. Monday to reassure her that the justice department is looking out for the safety of her husband, arrested Friday during anti-segregation demonstrations in Birmingham, Ala.

Kennedy phoned Mrs. King after returning from an afternoon yachting cruise and was responding to a call she placed to the president late Sunday, the White House said.

Mrs. King was concerned because she had been unable to get in touch with her husband, a leader in the Negro civil rights fight in the south, since his arrest.

It was understood the president told the justice department was keeping a close watch on the Birmingham situation and had no immediate fears for the safety of her husband.

South Hastings Vote 84% Final Election Returns Show

Just over 86.4 per cent of the eligible civilian voters in South Hastings turned out at the polls on April 8th to exercise their franchise, returning Officer William A. Van-Tassel who today announced the final count following the official count of ballots.

The official count showed a total of 12,219 persons including the service vote, cast their ballots. The service vote totalled 1194.

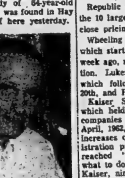
The total number of eligible civilian voters was 14,139.

And of the 12,219 persons who went to the polls there were 287 who might just as well have stayed at home.

This was the number of ballots spoiled by their having been accordingly rejected when the count was made. Twenty seven of the spoiled ballots were cast in the armed services vote.

The official count gave Liberal candidate Robert Temple a plurality of 637 votes over Progressive Conservative candidate Lee Girlis. Total votes polled by the four candidates, including the service vote, was as follows: Robert Temple, 15,498; Lee Grills, 14,859; Leslie Bilby 13325, and Rev. Donald Mallory 265.

The service vote gave Mr. Temple 924; Mr. Grills 234, Mr. Digby 25, and Mr. Mallory 11 votes.



On election night Mr. Grills had a plurality of 71 votes over Mr. Temple. The service vote was sufficient to overcome this small lead and give Mr. Temple his 637 vote plurality.

Body of Watchman Drowned In Nov. Found in Hay Bay

NAPANEE (Special) — Nearly five months to the day when he disappeared during a ship watch at Belleville dock, the body of 64-year-old Alex Weddell was found in Hay Bay, south of here yesterday.

ALEXANDER WEDDELL

Mr. Weddell's body was first spotted off the Hay Bay shore-line by two local youths playing in the bay. They contacted provincial police at Napanee and OPP Sergeant J. A. Morden with special local boatmen took the body inshore. Mr. Weddell was identified on the spot from papers found in his pocket and Belleville city police were contacted. A relative of the dead man was taken to Napanee by city detectives to make positive identification.

Mr. Weddell's disappearance had puzzled Belleville city police since mid-November. A watchman on the Bay Quinte coal freighter while the ship wintered in the city, he was last missing the night of November 16. His dog, which shared the watch with him returned alone to his home at 48 Queen Street. The following morning, with still no sign of Mr. Weddell, his family reported his disappearance to police and a search was launched.

Detectives found his hat on the dockside — but no other trace of the missing watchman. For days, police, firemen and skin-divers poured the city dock area without finding any other clues to the man's whereabouts. The search was called off as bad weather closed in, eventually freezing over the Bay of Quinte.

LOST FROM SHIP

Lost from the ship Bay Quinte in Belleville harbor on Nov. 16, 1962, Alexander MacLellan (Alex) Weddell of 48 Queen St., Belleville, accidentally died by drowning on that date. He was in his 65th year.

The search was called off as bad weather closed in, eventually freezing over the Bay of Quinte.

Mrs. Alexander Weddell of Trenton, he had moved to Belleville from Deseronto Porcupine about 15 years ago. He worked as a watchman on the Bay Quinte, and was a member of Bridge St. United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Marion Bruein, his daughter (Margaret Anne) Mrs. George Aldworth, of Don Mills, and by two grandchildren.

Douglas said hearings will start next week. Douglas is a former professor of economics at the University of Chicago.

Republic was the first among the 10 largest producers to disclose pricing plans.

Wheeling Steel Corporation, which started the ball rolling a week ago, ranks 11th in production. Lukens Steel Company, which followed Sunday, ranks 20th, and Pittsburgh Steel 14th. Kaiser Steel Corporation, which held back when other companies advanced prices in April, 1962, only to rescind the increases quickly under administration pressure, said it had reached "no conclusion" on what to do this time. Last fall, Kaiser, ninth largest producer, cut its prices sharply.

PRODUCTION SOARS

While most companies stayed on the fence as far as prices were concerned, industry-wide production continued to soar, registering its 11th consecutive gain last week.

The output of 2,464,000 ingot tons last week was the highest in three years, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported.

Demand is an important factor in price decisions, and Republic stressed that ordering was heavy as deliveries lengthened. Sheet, strip, galvanized products and plates.

Generally, there were the same items covered in announcements of the other price-raising companies.

Republic also emphasized that its price level, like those of the industry generally, had remained stationary, or declined a bit, since 1958.

It increased the labor costs hour since 1958, and said profits dipped in 13 per cent of sales in 1962 when earnings dropped to a 15-year low.

Pittsburgh's figure on price increases as averaging $5.50 a ton, or slightly higher than Republic's. Wheeling's boost averaged $6 a ton. Lukens marked up carbon steel plates $5 a ton to $111 and Alloy Steel Plates $7 a ton to $157.

Using top of double boiler soak the gelatine in the cold water for 5 minutes. Add the vinegar and lavender flowers. Place over boiling water and heat until gelatine is dissolved. Highly recommended for its beauty and flavor, especially for a buffet table.

Iranian Women In Full Cry to Gain Equal Rights

TEHRAN (Reuters)—Iranian women are out in full cry to gain equal rights with men in jobs, education and divorce.

Their recent triumph gained them the right to vote in parliamentary elections and run as candidates.

The women's emancipation campaign has gone on unremittingly for at least two decades. Barred from Parliament, or even a choice in its members, women complained bitterly they were being bracketed with such other voiceless Iranians as criminals, the insane and bankrupts.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi and the government of Premier Assadollah Alam agreed in March to a decree to amend the electoral law. The decree stipulates that "all Iranian citizens," men and women alike, may vote and stand as candidates in parliamentary elections.

SHAH HAD TROUBLE

Iranian Moslem leaders have always been one of the stumbling blocks to the emancipation ow women, labelling women's emancipation "unreligious" and against Islamic principles.

Even Iran's late Reza Shah, founder of modern Iran and father of the present shah, encountered opposition from the mullahs (priests) to his plans for women's emancipation. But he outmanoeuvered the mullahs and crushed their authority.

In 1934, Reza Shah ordered the discarding of the traditional veil and in 1936, accompanied by his unveiled wife and two daughters, the shah attended a cultural function in Tehran.

Until then women traditionally wore the black "chador," the long flowing Persian veil, which obscured them from head to toe.

PRESS FOR MORE

Inspired by their new social freedom, women entered more and more into the life of their country. Schools, universities, hospitals, government and private offices were thrown open to them.

Now that they have won the vote fighters for women's rights are pressing for more.

The husband's right to divorce seems to be the next target the women are out to demolish.

They demand the abolition of polygamy and concubinage, transfer of divorce rights to a court of justice, a court decision regarding guardianship of children in the case of divorce, equal pay for men and women for equal work and compulsory education for both boys and girls.

SCRAPES A BUS

MONTE CARO, (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill's car scraped its bumper against the side of a tourist bus on a narrow, winding road near Monaco Monday while he was taking an afternoon drive.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I'd appreciate any information you can give me concerning the duties of the best man in a wedding. — M.S., Hanover, Conn.

Answer: The duties of a best man are numerous and he starts shouldering them the minute he accepts the groom's invitation to participate in the wedding.

First, he has to provide, at his own expense, the wedding attire designated by the groom. If the wedding is formal, the groom supplies the gloves and spats for the best man and ushers.

Naturally the best man attends all pre-nuptial parties, as well as the rehearsal and rehearsal dinner. In the meantime, he helps the groom make arrangements for the honeymoon, sends luggage ahead if necessary and makes sure that other luggage is packed and conveniently at hand when the bride and groom leave the reception.

On the day of the wedding, the best man makes sure the groom is properly attired, complete with boutonniere and that his going-away suit is laid out and ready. He should arrive with the groom a half-hour before the ceremony, check to make sure the groom has the marriage license (the best man will witness it) and that he, himself, has the wedding ring either in his pocket or on his pinky. He also should have the clergyman's fee ready in a white envelope to present discreetly before or after the ceremony. The groom, of course, gives this to the best man before they leave for the church.

At the reception, the best man does not stand in the receiving line. In some cases, he's asked to announce the guests as they go through the receiving line, but usually he circulates among the guests and makes a last-minute check on luggage and other going-away preparations.

The best man offers the first toast to the bride and groom. After the toasting is over, he often reads congratulatory telegrams that have arrived in the meantime. He dances with the bride after she's had the first dance with her new husband. He then dances with the mother of the bride and groom and with the maid of honor, and finally with the bridesmaids.

When it's time for the bride and groom to leave, the best man helps the groom to dress, puts the luggage in the car or taxi and assists the couple in making their get-away. As a final duty, before leaving the reception, himself, the best man packs the groom's wedding outfit and sees that it's returned either to his home or, if it's rented, to the agency the next day.

Question: I'm going on a trip soon and will be staying in a hotel. I don't like to keep too much cash in my purse. When I order from room service, may I ask that the charge be added to my bill? Should the waiter be tipped in cash? What is the customary amount given as a tip for this service? — Mrs. V. Y., Babylon, N.Y.

Answer: Guests are permitted to sign room-service checks. The amount of the tip may be noted at the bottom. It does not have to be given in cash. Fifteen percent of the bill is the usual amount given.

RETIRED BUT STILL ACTIVE — Internationally known geologist Dr. Alice Wilson, 81, retired last fall but still finds time for occasional field trip near Ottawa. A native of Cobourg, Ont., she joined the Geological Survey of Canada in 1908. In 1936 she was awarded an MBE and in 1939 became the first woman fellow of the Royal Society of Canada.

81-Year-Old Geologist With Many Honors Was Born in Cobourg, Ont.

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—"Oh, I could tell you many stories," said Dr. Alice Wilson, sitting with her head erect and her back ramrod straight on a straight-backed chair in her Ottawa apartment.

Her eyes crinkled mischievously, adding more wrinkles to a face already deeply lined.

The internationally known 81-year-old geologist talked about the early days when "there was no way for women but teaching."

"I belonged to a generation where educated people were supposed to have the classics."

She got around this "by stealing some science lectures" while attending the University of Toronto.

"I got no credits but I picked up a great many things."

She became a museum assistant working with the university's mineral collection, but the $ - - - month salary "just wouldn't do," so she came to Ottawa and joined the staff of the Geological Survey of Canada in 1909 at $800 a year.

Her first director was a broad - minded man but subsequent directors didn't always take kindly to a woman member on their staff.

NOT BITTER

She harbors no bitterness about past injustices, passing them off as "a matter of evolution."

At one point Alice Wilson won a University Women's Club scholarship providing the opportunity to take a doctorate degree at Chicago. Her director, after giving her permission to enter the competition, refused her time off to take the course. Later, club members lobbied on her behalf and permission was granted.

Dr. Wilson's independence of spirit was reflected in another incident. One director who didn't think women should drive cars issued her a bicycle for her field trips. She promptly went out and bought a model-T Ford without telling anyone, fastened the bike to the side and drove off to her job.

Over the years she has walked hundreds of miles exploring and mapping the Ottawa St. Lawrence area Her main interest is in paleontology, the study of fossils.

DRESSED FOR JOB

Dressed in specially tailored trousers suits and heavy knee-length boots, she prowled the countryside, crawling under and over fences. Once she was bitten by a dog and when she complained to the owner he said:

"If you dressed like a woman you wouldn't have been bitten."

As she grew older she found the boots too heavy and switched to slacks and brogues.

During the Second World War she was mistaken for a spy on one of her field trips and was investigated by the police.

"Even the school children ran away and that I couldn't stand. I love children."

Her interest in youngsters is illustrated by the fact that she has been host for them, The Earth Beneath Our Feet.

Dr. Wilson officially retired in 1946 but continued to work in an office provided by the department "until last November when I finally stopped."

STILL BUSY

"That doesn't mean she isn't busy—"I don't even have time to mend my stockings." Last winter she gave a series of lectures.

Much of her writing has been published since her retirement and two manuscripts are awaiting publication.

She lectured at Carleton University here from 1948 to 1958 and was given an honorary degree in 1960.

She has received other honors. In 1934 she was made a member of the Order of the British Empire and in 1955 became the first woman fellow of the Royal Society of Canada.

Alice Wilson was born in Cobourg, Ont., and suggests her own family background is one reason she dared to pioneer in a field once limited to men. She grew up with two brothers in a family "where there never ever was a feeling that a woman shouldn't do things."

Parkdale L.M.F. Hears Talk on Mothers' Influence

The Parkdale Baptist Ladies' Missionary Fellowship group recently enjoyed a tour of the Bell Telephone Exchange. Employees conducted the ladies through the Exchange in two groups and made the tour most interesting, particularly fascinating to see all the mechanisms that are brought into play when a call is placed.

The tour was followed by a time of fellowship at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burton. Plans were made to send parcels of clothes to missionaries in Africa.

Mrs. Ann Breaton led the devotions, speaking on the "Responsibilities of Christian Mothers". As an example, she chose Jochebed, the mother of Moses. Although little is known about Jochebed, her influence upon Moses, during the early years before entering the king's palace, was never forgotten. It was under the leadership of Moses that the children of Israel were released from slavery. Jochebed, much that mothers do is inconspicuous but, vitally important, for the Bible says "Train up a child in the way that he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 22:6.

The guard of honor dressed in white were: Sisters Isobel Good, Marion Carter, Helen Thompson, Pat Merrill, Beverley St. Pierre and Ileen Woodcox.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

By pegg rogers

BLACK IS SAFE — BUT SOMETIMES SORRY

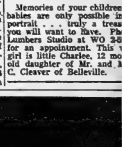
Black, as a costume color, may be safe, but it can be dull, drab and unbecoming. It has long been the accepted theory that the woman with the limited fashion budget, should buy one good costume — dress or suit in black and, we quote: "dress it up or down". This may make good fashion sense, for the woman under thirty whose skin and hair still glow with youth. For women whose appearance is more mature, it is generally agreed, that black should only be worn if the neck line is cut away from the face, or a colored-blouse is used as a contrast. A colored hat is thought to break the "all black" look.

Canadian women are frequently accused and scolded for their drabness and lack of imagination in fashion. We defend ourselves because of our climate. The severity of our winters forces us to wear heavy boots and warm coats. It is true that this year's "style" boots seem to have been designed for Canadians and that our winter coats are improving, both in warmth and design. However, we have considered it difficult to live in a climate such as ours and present a colorful picture.

We believed this, until just recently. Now we think that perhaps we have been wrong — very wrong. Last month, we met a most interesting, international businesswoman, who lives at a hectic pace. She arrived in Quebec City, where the temperature was a chilly ten degrees, having flown from a mild and sunny New Orleans. She stepped off the plane, wearing a white, wool, suit dress, with a green and white checked coat, a little fedora to match the jacket and a brown Alaska, seal coat slung over her shoulders. All during her stay in Quebec City and later in Montreal, the temperature swung from ten to twenty-five degrees. Our guest varied her wardrobe between wool, linen dress of blue, turquoise, shrimp and apricot tones. For evening wear, she blossomed out in pink and peach shades. She presented a charming colorful appearance at all times. Her costumes did look out of place, but one beautifully elegant against winter background.

We gave a thought to cleanabilities, because these light shades do soil, although we never saw our guest with a dingy cuff or a spotted skirt. (It appears that she carries a spot remover, a cream form and uses it liberally.)



We welcomed the opportunity to observe at close quarters fashion philosophy, which combines the clever use of coal and a common sense approach to the business of being a man with a sense of elegance.

Does our new good dress have to be black?

eneral organization to pro- le information and research school design was suggested, F. E. Nicol of Toronto, associate technical adviser to the education department, as a means of avoiding duplication and waste.

Some school boards hire ex- perts to investigate new school designs, he said, but their find- ings are not passed on to other boards seeking similar informa- tion.

Mr. Nicol predicted that multi-storey schools in down- town areas will help overcome high land costs in the future. Playgrounds on the roof and elevators would be among their features.

Delegates to the Ontario Sep- arate School Trustees Associa- tion heard Rev. J. M. Kelly, president of St. Michael's Col- lege in Toronto, hold out the prospect of separate high schools and universities in On- tario in the future although the Ontario government recently re- jected the first steps in such a plan when they were proposed by the province's Roman Cath- olic bishops.

"In the immediate future, it seems to be impossible to effec- tively give all Catholics will have a Catholic secondary school or university to attend," Father Kelly said. But the Ro- man Catholic population of Tor- onto was expected to reach more than 50 per cent by 1980 and "by that time we may be able to consider other alterna- tives than those we have now ."

But delegates rejected a bid to exclude non-Catholic teach- ers from separate schools after several trustees protested that there aren't enough Catholic teachers now and academic standards might suffer.

Prime Minister

Mr. Pearson seemed awed by photographers, and said: "Don't crowd."

TALK ON EXCHANGES

"I have nothing to say except that we had a pleasant talk on the exchanges that would be in- volved if I am asked to form a government."

When a reporter noted the "if" in his statement, Mr. Pear- son was asked whether he was expecting a call.

"I wouldn't be surprised," he said with a laugh, "but there have to be certain constitutional proprieties to be observed."

Basic to them is the Gover- nor - General's prerogative to choose the Queen's first minis- ter in Canada, though it would create a constitutional furore if he did not pick the leader of the largest group in the Commons.

The process of changeover starts with the outgoing prime minister submitting his resig- nation. Without accepting it im- mediately, the Governor - Gen- eral asks the retiring prime minister to remain in office a few days while he considers it.

The Governor - General then invites the new man to Govern- ment House and asks him to consider forming a government. Some time later, the new man returns to Government House to suggest a suggested cabinet list. When it is approved, he and his ministers are sworn into office and the resignations of the old "until I know exactly when I'm starting to work—if I'm called."

Mr. Pearson said Monday he would not be able to announce the date Parliament will meet- tiring prime minister and his ministry become effective.

MUST KNOW EXACTLY

He promised in the campaign to call Parliament May 16. The 15-nation North Atlantic coun- cil, however, is to meet May 8-10, and it was planned that it should use the Parliament Buildings.

The Liberal leader has most of his cabinet appointments lined up. A spokesman said that all of the ministers will be sworn immediately except for those who will head the still-to- be-created ministries of indus- try and eastern agriculture. Legislation will be required to create those portfolios, as prom- ised by Mr. Pearson in the campaign.

He told reporters also that he may announce the appointment of parliamentary secretaries to the new ministers immediately. Normally, these aren't announced not made until the eve of a par- liamentary session, but "we want to do as much as we can at once."

devise the best.

The brief is the first of seven to be presented to the six-man commission this week—all con- taining general views on Cana- dian tax problems—before the commission begins regional hearings in Montreal next week. The briefs are designed to raise questions, not answer them.

WANT LOWER TAXES

The commission, headed by Toronto chartered accountant Kenneth Carter, was told by the foundation that many people consider the lowering of mar- ginal personal and corporate in- come tax rates as the main job of the commissioners.

These high marginal rates which affect relatively few in- dividuals and corporations "are not very significant from a rev- enue standpoint," the brief said, and any changes would not result in major innovations."

The vast majority of income tax problems in Canada were caused by the mixing of the various tax systems—the cor- porate tax with its capitaliz- come problems and the grad- uated rate schedules for indi- viduals.

Another basic issue before the commission, said the founda- tion, is to decide how taxes can be used for purposes other than raising revenue. How they should be used to influence in- vestment, regional develop- ment, wealth disparities or own- ership of Canadian industry?

Ann Landers

Growing Beard Not Proof Of Genuine Achievement

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I am almost 18 years old and I want to keep my beard. My mother says "Get rid of it or else." She can give me no other reason except that she doesn't like it.

Parents have the power to make kids do certain things. But do they have the right? Is a family a dictatorship where the kids have no liberties?

Many famous men have had beards and didn't do them any harm. Take for example Lincoln, Shaw, Hemmingway, Mitch Miller and The Smith Brothers. Please don't tell me to wait until I am famous. This line is so worn- out I am sick of hearing it.

I admit I like my beard because it makes me different. So, what's wrong with that? Must we all be Orwellian conform- ists? What would happen to progress if everybody did only what had been done before him? Help. Please. — MR. Z.

DEAR MR. Z—I've seen a few bearded gentlemen who look very distinguished. But about 85% of the fur-bear- ing males look as if they need a bath and some flea powder.

What is so special about the "individualism" of a beard? It doesn't take either brains or talent to grow hair. If this is the best you can do to stand out from the crowd I feel sorry for you. (P.S. How are you fixed for blades, Buddy Boy?)

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Two years ago I fell in love. Shad was separated from his wife and asked me to marry him when he was legally free. I said yes.

December 1st he got his divorce. I wanted a ring for Christmas but was disappointed. When I asked him to set a date he said, "New Year's Day." Then he changed it to "the end of January." I was all set when he asked me to postpone it until Valentine's Day because he didn't feel well. A week before Valentine's Day he said St. Patrick's Day would be great because his mother was Irish.

I was just about to phone the family when he said we'd better wait until May because he has some bills he wants to get out of the way.

My birthday is next month and he knows I want a ring more than anything in the world, but instead he is giving me an expensive set of golf clubs. I'm getting frustrated and madder by the day. Please tell me what you think of all this. I am—NOT SPECULATING.

DEAR NOT—Get with it, Honey. This man doesn't want to marry you. He wants to play golf with you.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your prob- lems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

'Flushes Out' San Francisco City Hall

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mail carrier Noel Volz, 22, broke into city hall Sunday and turned on firehoses on all four floors.

In half an hour he had created three inches of water four inches deep and had sent water cascading down an elevator shaft to the base- ment from the fourth floor, police said.

In addition, he made shat- bles of a few restrooms, broke a dozen windows, overturned lobby displays and stripped trees in the city hall plaza and threw the limbs into the fountain pool.

It took four policemen to make the arrest.

Volz said he chose Easter Sunday because: "If any- thing, it's the proper time. I've been wanting to do this for a long time. I though city hall needed a flushing out."

He was booked on charges of suspicion of burglary, re- sisting arrest, assaulting a police officer and malicious mischief.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

During my newspaper sojourn in Halifax (a cottage on the North West Arm, canoe trips to the Dingle, rowing for the Jubilee Club, swimming in the freshwater Dartmouth Lakes, buying "imported" Ilsland Dew from a St. Pierre et Michelon "pleasure cruiser," among other pleasant things), I met a lot of interesting people.

Covering the waterfront was an enjoyable and interesting experience. Four trans-Atlantic crossings brought no sea-sickness but that violent attack of maide-sur on the heaving deck of the gallant "Bluenose" as she swept close-hauled to victory over a doughty Yankee "banker" is a memory milestone.

Fishing for cod aboard a pilot boat that rocked and rolled in the swells off Sambro was another memorable experience. A seven-pound cod was good for a flagon of liverwurst aboard the next incoming ocean liner. I always got a warm welcome from the editorial staff reception committee at the end of such an assignment.

The "bluenoses" are a proud people. They are proud of their ancestry, their tartans, their lobster and clam, their cod and mackerel. I came from "Upper Canada." I got to like them so much I forgave them for walking on the wrong side of the pavement and driving on the wrong side of the highway.

I enjoyed boarding the Lunenburg bankers converted into merchant "cargo" ships out of St. Pierre, and watching customs check their $200,000 cargoes, and the "auxiliary" that was out of action.

I almost took a ticket of leave once to take a job as super-cargo aboard one of these converted luggers and sail southerly towards New York where the "saucy ships" would unload cases of "old rope" to waiting boats at $126 the container. Twelve miles out, that is.

Saturdays I sailed as a crew member aboard the yawl "Vagrant" on weekly races to Bedford across the basin and the Saturday night dance at the Bedford clubhouse. One year we vacationed aboard the "Vagrant" on a coastal cruise, taking everything but rumors. In St. Margaret's Bay we were stopped and examined by a Canadian government boat. A coastal inhabitant had reported us as being one of the rum-running queens of the day.

But, as I said, I met some very interesting people. One ship's mate on he came from the "Island." I inquired "What Island?" and was promptly squelched with "Spod Island, what t'ell other Island is there."

I had news for him. With me was a Newfoundlander who also had ideas about a certain island. The "Newfies" are a somewhat clannish but extremely loyal people, who love their cod, potatoes and the national mixture dish of "brulse."

Give the Newfoundlanders a home town hero and he has the whole island behind him. From bankers, and business tycoons to the "fire-starter" (domestics), they'll back their hero to the last "alewife."

Right now the "Newfies" sports-wise are riding Cloud Nine. For haven't they got a native son in the National Hockey League, at present making a hero of himself with the Detroit Red Wings?

Alex Faulkner, the blonde young centre of the Wings, is not only a National Leaguer, but has blossomed into stardom after playing only one major league game this season. The other night he scored two of the Wings' three goals—and even the cod of Fog Grand Banks wiggled dorsal fins in salute to their hero.

Win or lose, young Mr. Faulkner will receive the greatest Newfie welcome since their gallant troops came home from the great overseas campaigns. He is the first Newfoundlander to make the big time in professional hockey.

If the Maple Leafs win the Stanley Cup, Yonge Street, Bay Street, and whatnot will be corridors of massed humanity paying tribute to their heroes. They'll yell for Kelly, Keon, Bower and other individual favorites. 'Twill be a great day for the Irish and others of the Leafian clan of pockchasers.

But keep your eye on Bishops Falls, Newfoundland the day young Master Faulkner ends that 500-mile railroad jaunt across the island or steps off a plane.

"Brother, you ain't seen nuthin yet." They'll give the youngster a reception that will jolt the rock-ribbed old colony to its wave-scarred shorelines. They'll come from one end of the "island to t'other." For Faulkner is one of the W's and don't you forget it. I'm sure Faulkner won't.

Sawchuk Wing Problem; Bassen Ready

Frontenacs Blank Wolves 4-0

SUDBURY (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs finally ended Hull Ottawa Canadiens' domination of the Eastern Professional Hockey League this year, unseating the Canadiens from first place after three years.

Kingston now is sitting in the driver's seat to take the league playoff also, ending another Hull-Ottawa three-year reign.

The Frontenacs shut out Sudbury Wolves 4-0 here Monday night before 3,800 fans, to take a 3-1 stranglehold lead in the best-of-seven league final.

What could be the final game of the series is scheduled for Kingston Wednesday night.

Pat (Whitey) Stapleton, chunky defenceman sent down by Boston Bruins of the National League earlier this season, scored the only goal of the first period, the only goal Kingston needed.

Dick Cherry and Jeannot Gilbert scored for the win with goals within 74 seconds, at 3:03 and 6:17, in the third period. SEWS IT UP

The final goal was scored by playing coach Harry Sinden late in the period after Sudbury opened up the play in an effort to ruin Kingston goalie Bruce Gamble's shutout. Gamble had 26 saves, compared with 30 by Jerry Cheevers in the Sudbury goal.

Canadians Leave for Sao Paulo

TORONTO (CP) — A contingent of 134 athletes, a few who have proven themselves in international competition and the majority a bunch of promising youngsters, leave today for the April 20-May 5 Pan-American Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Word from the top is: Don't expect a bushel of medals.

Before competition stars, the Pan-American Sports Organization is expected to decide on venue of the 1967 Games.

"We mustn't expect a bunch of medals," said Bob Osborne of Vancouver, team general manager, in an interview Monday. "We aren't predicting anything.

"The Pan-American Games is a good training ground for our young athletes and we might discover some with great potential and likely candidates for the 1964 Olympic games in Tokyo. If the older athletes on the team don't take the gold medals in Brazil they won't be worthy of consideration for Tokyo."

CONSIST 13 SPORTS

Canada's athletes will participate in 13 sports, ranging from gymnastics to tennis and volleyball.

The first internationally tested athletes making the trip include Mary Stewart, 18-year-old Vancouver swimmer who holds the world record for the 110-yard and 100-metre butterfly with a time of one minute 7.3 seconds and some members of the 12-man shooting team.

These include Barney Hartman of Ottawa, 1962 world skeet champion; Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., Olympic gold medal winner; Gary McMahon of Dartmouth, N.S., a veteran of world, Olympic and Pan-Am Games competition, and Bob West of London, Ont., another old-timer in world shooting.

The Canadian men's senior champion Lethbridge Nationals form the nucleus of the basketball team. A few days after the Games, the Nationals will compete in the world championships at Rio de Janeiro.

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

DETROIT (CP) — How would you feel if you wee Hank Bassen?

You're the second-string goaltender for Detroit Red Wings and everybody is talking about the elbow injury of first-stringer Terry Sawchuck.

Tonight is the fourth game of the Stanley Cup final and your team is trailing 2-1 in the best-of-seven series to the league champion Toronto Maple Leafs.

Sawchuk says he's okay — maybe there's a bone chip, but he'll be ready to play tonight. But nobody knows for sure, certainly not Bassen.

This is a big one for the Wings. The team lost the first two games, both by 4-2 scores at Toronto, but managed to win 3-2 at home Sunday night.

THOUGHT IS RIGHT

"Without a win tonight that one Sunday doesn't mean anything," says veteran Detroit defenceman Marcel Pronovost.

The fifth game is at Toronto Thursday. A sixth, if necessary, is back here next Sunday and a possible seventh at Toronto next Tuesday.

Bassen, who hasn't played a National Hockey League game in more than a month, is familiar with the situation. He also knows a goaltender can't stay sharp by just practising.

The Leafs held a brisk workout at noon Monday at the Detroit Olympia. But most of the Wings, who feel rest is their most valuable weapon, took advantage of a summer weather at a Toledo golf course.

Only nine dressed players, including Bassen, held a light skating practice.

"You've got to keep talking to yourself all the time in practices," said Bassen after the workout. "You've got to push yourself to stay sharp."

HAS TO PRETEND

What he meant was that a goaltender has to pretend he's playing in a game—fall to block rebounds and clear out the crease. It's easy to become relaxed in practices.

Sawchuk's injury came late in Sunday's game when he fell heavily on his elbow.

"I think there must be a bone chip in there," Sawchuk said. "I hurt it two weeks ago in the Chicago series but I'll put a little bit stuff on it tonight and it'll be all right."

Even before Sawchuk's injury speculation was that Detroit manager-coach Sid Abel might make a goaltending switch.

But Bassen, 30, and a widely-travelled minor league star, doesn't expect to see any action. "Terry'll be okay," he said. "They've given me my chances up here."

HOPE FRANK'S HOT

The Leafs, favored again in tonight's game, are hoping Frank Mahovlich will bust loose. He was knocked out of the lineup early in the first game of the series on a check by Bill Gadsby.

He returned to the lineup Sunday and looked sharp. In Monday's workout he was skating with his old exuberance. Detroit's Floyd Smith, Bill Mahovlich hard Sunday night but the Leaf scoring ace bounced back.

Centre Alex Faulkner is the toast of Detroit after scoring his fourth and fifth playoff goals in the Wings' win Sunday. And his friends from Newfoundland have been showing their appreciation.

The native of Bishop's Falls, Nfld., Newfoundlander to play in the NHL, has been swamped with telegrams from his proud Atlantic province.

"He's sure a hero in Newfoundland," commented Pronovost. "But no bigger a hero than he is to us."

ARE MAJOR EXPORTS

Rock lobsters are South Africa's fourth largest export to the United States, exceeded only by gold, uranium and diamonds.

Oust Moncton Hawks 4-1

Dogs Win Eastern Canada Title

By JIM McKAY
Canadian Press Correspondent

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — For the first time in the history of Canadian hockey playoffs a Windsor team has reached the final round.

Windsor Bulldogs turned the trick here Monday night by downing Moncton Hawks 4-2 and claiming their best - of - seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup series 4-1.

Never before has a Windsor hockey club ever gone as far as a Canadian final.

Bulldogs now meet Winnipeg Maroons in a best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior championship, starting here Friday night. All games will be played in Windsor.

The Maritimes champion Hawks, in their best effort of the series in Monday night's game, but still lost.

Said playing coach Doug McPhee of Moncton: "The Hawks were a bit tired. Bulldogs still topped us."

Harry Watson, the former NHL star in his rookie season as a senior hockey coach, said: "This is quite a thrill for me. I've never been associated with a senior team before and these guys have shown me something. Winnipeg will have to be an exceptionally good team to knock us off. I'm telling you."

Watson paid special tribute to Jerry Servius, his defenceman-turned-centre, who again scored two goals to pace the Windsor win.

"He's really skating out there. Jerry has given us the lift we needed in the last two games," Servius also scored twice in the fourth game of the series, won by Windsor 6-3.

Captain Lou Bendo and scoring star Bob Brown scored the other Windsor goals. Doug Watt and Jacques Allard scored for Moncton.

The work of Wayne Rutledge a former Niagara Falls Flyer junior, in the Windsor goal was a key factor in the win.

Clay, Cooper Fight 'In the Air'

LONDON (AP) — A boxing row that could knock out the proposed Cassius Clay - Henry Cooper heavyweight title fight in London June 18 zoomed in Britain Monday.

Promoter Jack Solomons has been given the go-ahead by Clay's handlers to arrange an exhibition fight against British champion Cooper.

But a rival promotion has planned a bill for Empire Royal Albert Hall June 13—only seven days before Solomons' proposed fight.

British Boxing Board of Control rules state that there should be 14 days between major promotions.

— All Games In East

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Arrows are fondly called the Wreckers by their hometown fans. And Saturday night they proved why.

A conglomeration of old pros and former juniors, the only senior hockey team in Manitoba battled back from a 3-1 deficit in the best-of-seven Allan Cup western final to take the series 4-3 with a 9-3 win over the favored Saskatoon Quakers in Saskatoon.

The Maroons have no league in which to play regularly so this year entered the Saskatchewan Senior League for a 12-game partial schedule, of which they won nine games.

This was conceded as possibly one reason for the reversal of form during the series as it was believed the Maroons played themselves into shape in the first three games and started to hit their stride as it drew to a close.

The Quakers, playing their 26th game of the season, appeared to run out of legs toward the end.

WAS IN NEW.

The oldest of the old Maroon professionals is playing coach Bill Juzda, who at 43 works a midnight shift as a train engineer for the CPR. Juzda, 43 years, was on Toronto Maple Leafs' defensive corps in the National League.

The only other former professional defenceman on the team is Jim Shoman, who opened in the American League and now serves, with Juzda, in bolster Gord Simpson, Shorty Melanchuk and Tom Marshall.

The Maroons clash with Windsor Bulldogs for the Allan Cup and Canadian senior title. All games in the best-of-seven set, which opens Friday, will be in Windsor, Ont. The Bulldogs defeated Moncton Hawks 4-2 Monday night to take their best-of-seven Eastern final 4-1.

On the forward line, the former professionals include centre Reg Abbott, who worked a number of years with Victoria in the Western League, Aggie Kukulowicz, also a former WHL veteran, Chuck Lumsden, back from the AHL, and Gay Aldcorn, who switched to the University of Manitoba to finish his pre-medical studies after a tour with AHL teams—Toronto, Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings.

Braves' Homer In Ninth Did It

Casey's Mets Led After Eight-They Lost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets lost again Monday.

The Mets moved forward for 8 2-3 innings plus two strikes, then Lee Maye shoved them backward by shoving his bat in front of a fat pitch for a two-run homer that gave Milwaukee Braves a 4-3 victory in the only game played in the majors.

From 72-year-old Casey Stengel, the grizzled, backward-speaking manager, to 18-year-old Ed Kranepool, the rookie outfielder, the loss was a nomad-mauler, bringing back the memory of last year's dismal start that never ended.

Of the four teams — Los Angeles Angels, Houston Colts, Washington Senators and Mets —crated out of a grab bag in player drafts, only the Mets seemed to have picked the bag. But this year the brakes were going to be applied on the backward trend.

Against the Braves, the Mets massed their heaviest artillery and boomed out 12 hits, they committed only one error, they led going into the ninth, they were one strike away from victory when Tracy Stallard fired to Maye.

The defeat left the Mets with an 0-6 record, dropping them 4½ games back of the National League leaders.

STILL CHASE WIN

They're still three defeats away from duplicating last year's opening nine-game losing string and they're still 11 defeats from matching their record 17-game losing streak, but they won't come any closer to digesting victory without tasting it.

Shut out for six innings by Bob Shaw, the Mets struck back in the seventh—and everything worked. Tim Harkness, the first baseman from Lachine, then Hl, and Ted Schreiber started off with singles.

Stengel went to his bench. Mary Throneberry came up—and singled. Cliff Cook came up —and singled. Each pinch hit drove in a run.

In the eighth, the Mets snapped the tie on singles by Kranepool and Duke Snider, a walk to Jim Hickman and a sacrifice fly by Harkness.

Unfortunately they had to play the ninth and Stallard, working in relief of starter Al Jackson, threw his fatal pitch to Maye.

The victory went to Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., his first of the season. Raymond worked only the ninth inning, giving up a hit and a walk and striking out one man.

Suspend Two From Hockey Broadcasts

EDMONTON (CP) — The rights of two Saskatchewan men to broadcast Canadian Amateur Hockey Association games have been suspended indefinitely, Art Potter of Edmonton, CAHA president, announced Monday.

In a prepared statement Potter said:

"The rights of Ken Newans of Moose Jaw and Lions Westerberg of Yorkton to broadcast CAHA games have been suspended indefinitely by the CAHA.

"These suspensions were brought about by improper use of broadcast privileges in the junior hockey game in Edmonton Saturday by continuously and severely criticizing officials, thereby giving an erroneous picture of the game as played."

The CAHA owns all broadcast and television rights of its playoffs.

In Ottawa, T. J. Allard, executive vice-president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, expressed surprise at the CAHA move.

He said the C.A.B., representing most of the privately-owned radio and TV stations in Canada, will issue a statement later after examining the facts and the implications.

Hibbard-Callow Combines held off a last-ditch stand by the determined Belch Construction crew last night to pull out a 5-4 victory and with it the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League championship.

Last night's thriller ended a most successful season in which Belch's nosed out Hibbard-Callow by one point for the league title only to have the Combines come back to take the playoff championship four games to two.

Mr. Jerry O'Connor presented the O'Connor Trophy to Combine team captain Wally Istead following the final whistle.

The league's presentation dinner, slated for the Albury Church this Saturday night, will ring down the curtain on the 1962-63 season.

Hibbard-Callow appeared to have last night's game well in hand when they took a 3-0 lead in the first and made it 4-1 after two beats. The losers fought back gamely, scoring late goals at 18:46 and 19:38, then lifting the goalie for a sixth attacker in the last 60 seconds. Goalie Chuck Rissington, who played another strong game for the winners, and his mates held on for the narrow victory.

Belch's outshot the champions 25-19 in the especially hard-fought but clean contest. There were only five minor penalties assessed, three going to the Combines.

Pete Cowes was the big scoring gun for Hibbard-Callow, firing three goals, each one assisted by Jack Calnan. Ab Belch also collected one goal and one assist while Bob Wannamaker had the other goal. Ray Hicks and Larry Westfall each earned a single helper.

Hibbard-Plane, playing with a cast on a broken hand, and Doug Hallam,.each scored two goals and helped on another for Belch's. Gordie Young picked up one assist.

Job Shortage Forces Move

Irish Soccer Stars Come Here

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — A job shortage in Northern Ireland is driving some of Ulster's finest football players to Canada.

Next on the list to leave is 26-year-old Roy Rea, agile goalkeeper of Glentoran in the Irish League.

Now a clerical officer at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast, Rea is emigrating with his wife and child. He flies to Toronto April 16. Friends will be on hand to meet them.

Another Irish player, Ken Beattie, left Northern Ireland some weeks ago for Canada and has been given permission to play for Hamilton Steelers.

Fred Patterson, 26-year-old inside forward of Ards, also has decided to cut ties with Ulster and is awaiting a sailing date. He is expected to settle in Toronto.

MAYBE MORE

The exodus may not be over yet. Gilgy MacKenzie, coach and manager of Portadown, said by telephone from his Belfast home that he knows of several other Irish players who are "seriously considering" offers from Canada.

And MacKenzie himself is leaving shortly to take up a coaching job in Port Elizabeth, South Africa.

Unemployment is running around the 10-per-cent mark in Northern Ireland and Irish sport editors agreed that there isn't much here for the boys."

One paper published a roundup showing that up to a dozen players are emigration-minded.

PITCHER SIDELINED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Angels pitcher Dean Osinski will be out of action for two weeks because he broke the little finger of his right hand in deflecting a line drive, the club said Monday. The right-handed reliever was hurt Saturday when a ball came whizzing at his head and he threw his hand up. It caromed off and teammates grabbed it and made a double play.

Adopt New 'Safe' Rules For Boxing

NEW YORK (AP) — New safety rules adopted by the New York state athletic commission, including shortening rounds in preliminary fights, a fourth ring rope, 10-ounce gloves and a doctor at each corner when a man is in the fight, will be used for the first time tonight at Sunnyside Garden here.

The rules were adopted—on a trial basis—by the commission on the recommendation of a legislative committee that made a study of boxing. The committee was appointed after the death a year ago of world welterweight champion Benny Paret in New York.

The four-round preliminaries on the card will be fought in two-minute rounds. The scheduled eight-round main event matching welterweights Joey Archibaldo and Carl Anderson will have standard three-minute rounds. The heavier gloves, instead of the standard eight-ounncers, will be used in all bouts.

The fourth rope is designed to prevent injuries such as the fatal injury to featherweight champion Davey Moore in Los Angeles last month.

A doctor will be stationed at the corner of each boxer in all bouts. He will be accompanied by a deputy commissioner who can stop the fight for an examination of a boxer by turning on a red light. The lights will be mounted on all four ring posts.

Int. League Under Way Tonight

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The International League, expanded to 10 teams for the first time since 1961, launches its Midget baseball season tonight with defending champion Jacksonville and the veteran Toronto Maple Leafs regarded as favorites in the Eastern and Southern and Northern Divisions of the AAA League.

New cities for 1963 in the oldest minor league are Little Rock, which will perform as the Arkansas Travelers, and the Indianapolis White Sox, winner of the 1962 American Association pennant by 11 games. Expansion came about when the American Association folded and its members were absorbed into the International and the Pacific Coast League.

Five cities feature Syracuse at Atlanta, Toronto at Jacksonville, Rochester at Little Rock, Buffalo at Indianapolis and Columbus at Richmond.

Jacksonville, Atlanta, Little Rock, Indianapolis and Columbus form the league's Southern Division. Rochester, Syracuse, Richmond, Buffalo and Rochester make up the northern tier. Division winners will play the Governors' Cup.

Toronto Shades Flyers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Niagara Falls Flyers had three goals by winger Wayne Maxner and an assist by goaltender George Gardner Monday night, but it wasn't enough to stop Toronto Neil McNeil Maroons. The Maroons won 4-3.

Mike Corbett scored with little over three minutes to play to break a 3-3 tie and even up their best-of-seven Eastern Canada junior semi-final at two games each.

Maxner, who won the Ontario Hockey Association's provincial group scoring championship, scored the winning goal in the playoffs. He led the Flyers to nine consecutive victories before Neil McNeil came back to win the last two.

He gave the Flyers a short-lived lead in the second - period and an assist by goaltender George Gardner Monday night, but scored two more goals in the third to wipe out a 3-1 Maroon lead. Gardner received the lone assist on Maxner's third goal. He fed the puck to Maxner, who carried it the length of the ice.

Gary Dineen scored Neil McNeil's second-period marker, and Andre Champagna and Mike Walton opened the third period with two goals.

Less than two minutes after Maxner tied the score at 14:37 of the third period, Corbett stickhandled through the Flyers' defence to score the winner.

A SYMBOL OF QUALITY

Surroundings of Artist Have Not Improved But His Reputation Has Soared

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — When wee Scottie Wilson decided to become an artist he was eking out a living as a junk dealer in downtown Toronto. That was before the war.

Today he lives in a damp eight-by-10 bedroom in a north London slum. He's 73 now and his surroundings haven't improved but his artistic reputation has soared.

His works are part of the permanent exhibitions at London's Tate Gallery and the museums of modern art in New York and Paris. He was asked to exhibit at the Brussels World's Fair in 1958, has had a mural commissioned by a leading Swiss bank and is frequently shown in some of the top English galleries.

Money doesn't mean much to Scottie; neither does yesterday. A few faces from Toronto days, tranquil recollections of timeless childhood images, the memory of a clown's face he painted in a dream and wants to see again—these are the things he'll summon up from times past. He can't or won't remember details.

PAINTS ON PLATES

Most important to him is the work he is doing now and will do tomorrow. Scottie has moved on from working with pen and ink on paper to china plates — a series of meticulous circular designs strokes he uses a infinite variety of vivid patterns, a harmony of eclectic complexity.

He recalls that he first tried oils on canvas but found it too awkward for his style. Then he worked with pen and ink augmented by brush strokes and sometimes even a match. But, he says, "china is what I've always wanted to do."

He says five of his designs have been accepted by the Royal Worcester china firm and figures they may bring him about £300 a year.

The style is part primitive, part visionary. The same symbols recur in an evolving pastoral motif—exotic birds, rainbow fish, gothic dream castles, fairyland trees and flowers nursed into bloom by a tender imagination.

"Aye, birds, trees and flowers," rumbled Scottie in a thick burr. "That's me. Don't ask me what they mean. If you don't know I can't tell you. Some people can feel it; were born with it."

"It's all in me. I was born with these things. I've had them as long as I can remember. I don't need anything else."

VISION OF TRUTH

A prominent British art critic, visiting Scottie's shabby room and seeing his cluttered work table filled by a smudgy eastern window, was compelled to ask:

"How big is the kingdom of heaven? How small? How little a compass can embrace its infinite expective? A room in Kilburn? I have known Scottie's work since the flood, it seems. It is the vision of truth."

Such Keatsian paeans only elicit a deep, dry chuckle from Scottie. He is a small man, Glasgow-born and tough. His face is milled and mischievous behind a cheerfully bibulous nose. "I'm a glutton, lad, when they give me liquor. A real glutton."

FROM JUNK DEALER TO ARTIST — Scottie Wilson, a Toronto junk dealer in the 1930s, has won wide acclaim as an artist in Great Britain, Wilson, 73, has pen and ink drawings in a permanent exhibition at the Tate Gallery in London and at the museums of modern art in New York and Paris. (CP Photo)

newspapers as a boy and later joined the army. In 1938 he emigrated to Canada and landed in Toronto where he set up a junk stall outside the public market at the foot of Yonge Street. He also served a store nearby and began painting.

In 1942 he moved to Vancouver and three years later, in a borrowed store on Granville Street, put hundreds of his paintings on display. Many came to look but no one bought. He then returned to Toronto and there art dealer Douglas Duncan took him in hand and his work began to sell.

Just as suddenly as he had arrived, he left. For years he wandered around the country side of Europe, returning to London now and then to paint. He has been living in Kilburn for the last six years, virtually a recluse.

MAKES OWN MEALS

He works in the early morning when the light is best for his weakening eyes. The rest of the day he spends listening to radio music, chain - smoking cheap cigarettes, drinking coffee in a local cafe and cooking his own meals on a two-ring gas stove.

He likes his hermit's cave but may move soon because the dampness damages the paint on his plates. Some of his recent work, framed and protected by cellophane, brightens one wall. More china, carefully propped up in a newspaper, is stacked in the cupboard.

"At my last show a three-piece set like this went for £100. But it's not the money. I'd rather give them away than sell. It's the work and pleasure to go to waste."

Scottie's art is the whole expression of his attitude to life. He is inclined to indulge in mock tirades if you question him about politics, religion or the state of the world. He seems to have a particular hatred for television and recently refused to appear as the subject of a BBC Monitor Life programme.

"You can tell them, laddie, that when the world comes to its senses and people learn the meaning of truth and beauty, then I'll go on television. You can tell them that."

But there was a twinkle in his eye and he added: "That will make a good story for you."

WENT BAREFOOT

At times Scottie seems to be consciously acting a role from literature just for the fun of it. He blends the mysticism of William Blake with the sordid, rambling background of Joyce Cary's Gulley Jimson.

He once told a credulous reporter that he first began to escape into his own private world of form and color when poverty forced him to run barefoot through the city streets of Glasgow.

"All nonsense, of course," he confessed in an interview. "Every boy went barefoot in those days. I had enough money to go to music halls and real music halls they were then. And I can remember a shining clear fountain. . . ."

Scottie was strayed to the work table where the fountain, formalized within a minute design, appeared afresh.

Scottie doesn't read much. He says his mind is full of books. But he looks occasionally at the first page of Evelyn Waugh's new novel The Loved One. An expatriate Hollywood Englishman is asked whom intellectuals are talking about in London. The conversation, centres on Scottie Wilson.

Merv Griffin Will Be Host On Talent Scouts This Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There's more than meets the eye to CBS' signing Merv Griffin as host on Talent Scouts this summer.

Michael H. Dann, television network vice - president in charge of programs, revealed that efforts are underway to develop an hour-long variety show around Griffin, to go on the air as soon as a hole in the schedule appears.

Dann said that he had never experienced "so much pressure from behind a performer—from the public, from the agents, from the press and from other performers" as he had received on Griffin's behalf when NBC announced the cancellation of the daytime Merv Griffin show a couple of months ago.

Dann leaves soon for Hollywood to confer with Judy Garland about her projected series of one-hour variety shows next fall. The staff for the show is almost complete—and includes a lot of behind-the-scenes talent from the Perry Como show, which will be on an occasional basis next season.

The Judy Garland Show will be a big-budget entertainment, with each show costing $160,000 or more.

By BILL MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Allan Stanley is pushing what's considered old age for a hockey player and doesn't like to be reminded of it.

The way he's been playing lately, it would be easy to forget it.

Stay off that 'old' stuff," the Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman said to a reporter as Leafs began the stretch start of their Stanley Cup final against Detroit Red Wings. They had eliminated Montreal Canadiens four games to one, and when they beat Detroit 4-2 in the first game of the finals last Thursday Stanley contributed two assists.

"I get tired of reading that 'old' stuff," said Stanley, who turned 37 on March 1.

Any thoughts of retiring are so far from his mind he hasn't even decided what he might do when Leafs either retire his No. 25 or put it in storage.

"I don't give a darn about ages when they play like that," said Leaf manager-coach Punch Imlach.

STILL SKATES FAST

Stanley's record during the NHL schedule, four goals and 15 assists, was one of the poorer years of his career but it doesn't show the way he's been skating like a 21-year-old and breaking up opposition plays with the best of them. In the semi - final against Montreal he scored one goal and had two assists to make it fifth among Leaf point-getters. For a while early in the season there was talk of the Timmins, Ont., native's legs giving out and rookie Kent Douglas was tabbed by many as a certain replacement. The energy Douglas exhibited late in the season "and in the playoffs was the gloom-mongers eating their words.

Imlach doesn't find anything unusual in the way Stanley has helped the Leafs keep Canadiens off balance in Toronto's favor in the best-of-seven semi-final.

"He's just playing the way he can play," he said.

The amiable Stanley shrugged off questions of why he was skating and checking like a young man.

"Look, a while, you get to know how the other guy is skating and what he is doing," he said. "Then it's mere explanation of how playoff hockey affects him and other players: Hockey is a rough business, and you have to come up with something a little extra during the playoffs. You just take a little longer than others."

NOT FOR MINORS

The question of retirement hasn't bothered him yet.

"I'll play as long as I produce, but of course that's up to management too. If I let down, that will be the end. As for the minors, if I'm too old for this league, I'm too old for the minors too."

As for "aiding my time" in deciding what to do when his hockey career is just a memory, he's interested in politics—he lost out for the Progressive Conservative nomination in Timmins riding in the 1957 federal election—but has given no serious thought to entering politics on a full-time basis in the future.

Asked what his political platform would be if he entered politics and whether he'd work to bolster sagging Leaf athletics, the lanky, sharp - featured Stanley said:

"Leave the statements to Kelly."

He was referring to Red Kelly, Leaf forward who on April 8 was re-elected Liberal for York West.

For the time being, Stanley is concerned only with playing hockey well.

Injuries Hitting Top Stars

Arms, Legs Popping In Majors

NEW YORK (AP) — The way things have been popping in major league baseball these days you not only need an ace card to tell who's playing, you have to have the latest medical bulletin.

The popping has been arms and legs and has hit such stars as Harmon Killebrew, Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris, Frank Lary, Jim Grant, Bob Purkey, Vern Law and Maury Wills.

Killebrew, who led the American League with 48 home runs last season, was operated on for bench Monday by Minnesota Twins until his ailing right knee is strong again. He twisted the knee in spring training.

The word from the New York Yankees' camp was that Maris was coursging. Manager Ralph Houk said both Mantle and Maris along with pitcher Bill Stafford will miss a two-game series with Detroit Tigers starting tonight.

Mantle pulled a rib muscle Saturday. Maris has been out with a pulled leg muscle and Stafford has a strained arm.

Lary is the Tigers' No. 1 problem. The ace righthander's arm is free of pain but still weak from lack of work. Lary pitched only 80 innings last season after developing shoulder trouble.

Wills, out since the opening game of the National League season with a wrenched ankle, is expected back at shortstop for the Dodgers when Chicago Cubs invade Los Angeles tonight.

"DIAMOND HEAD"
in Color

The lush, lovely island of Hawaii has never before been dramatised so spectacularly as in "Diamond Head," the Jerry Bressler production which opened yesterday at the Park Theatre for a limited engagement.

A Columbia Pictures release in Panavision and Eastman Color, "Diamond Head" stars Charlton Heston, Yvette Mimieux, George Chakiris, France Nuyen and James Darren. Allie MacKenzie and Elizabeth Allen co-star.

Hawaii itself is a vital ingredient in the entertainment and excitement of "Diamond Head." Its history, its people, its problems loom large in this giant screen story of a ruthless empire builder who, while discriminating against discrimination, challenges his defiant younger sister's romance with a full-blooded Hawaiian boy. Unconscious of his own hypocrisy, he simultaneously carries on a flowing, heart-warming romance with a lovely Chinese girl.

"Diamond Head" essentially is a bitter, revealing struggle between two self-willed people, the dominant Heston and the less-obvious but equally ruthless Mimieux. Within this framework are other conflicts. They include the romance in which France Nuyen as Mei Chen accepts her role in Heston's life, with a pride that commands her own in time. They include the antagonism between Heston and George Chakiris, the young half-Swedish doctor who also loves Miss Mimieux. They include the fight to meet Heston's violent determination with an understanding of himself and of the surrounding land. They include the unexpected death of James Darren, Yvette Mimieux's fiancé, and finally the issue staged to announce their engagement, when the two lovers between Heston and George Chakiris, the young half-Swedish doctor who also loves Miss Mimieux. They include the fight to meet Heston's violent determination with an understanding of himself and of the surrounding land. They include the unexpected death of James Darren, Yvette Mimieux's fiancé, and finally the issue staged to announce their engagement, when the two lovers

"Diamond Head" is a powerful motion picture, a disturbing, entertaining and explosive drama of love and hate, of struggle and defeat on triumph on a romantic island paradise. It is a picture that should be seen.

Not only the players are superb. Credit, too, for the applause "Diamond Head" wins from its audiences must also go to director Guy Green, producer Jerry Bresler, screenplay writer Marguerite Roberts, novelist Peter Gilbert upon whose novel the film is based, and everyone else involved in the making of the film.

Complete shows are shown at 7.18 and 9.23.

You Can't Always Be Right Says Tiny Imogene Coca

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television comedienne Imogene Coca was once offered the role of a comedy maid in a Paramount movie.

"No, thanks," she answered. "Maids aren't funny."

Today she is playing Jack Lemmon's maid-housekeeper in Under the Yum Yum Tree. As soon as she finishes, she begins her new television series, Grifed, in which she will play a maid.

"Oh, well," she shrugs, "you can't always be right."

Miss Coca's own life seems akin to the wistful, at-odds-with-the-world characters she has long played on television, making her debut in a feature movie, she was bewildered by the erratic shooting schedule.

"I worked one day and then they wasn't called for 10 days," she related. "I got very upset and thought perhaps I had done something wrong. But when I came back I thought I should call the studio, but then I told myself, 'If they don't want me any more, that would only embarrass them.' So I just waited."

FINALLY CALLED

Columbia finally called, of course, and she received her role in the film. It's her first feature, but not her first movie, she admitted.

"The company was making educational films, if you can imagine that," she recalled. "The first short was a musical revue and the second had something of a story line. Hans Heinz played my boy friend, and Danny Kaye and June Allyson were also in the cast. I saw it on television not long ago. Oh, my goodness."

Miss Coca's return to the film world came at the behest of David Swift, director of Under the Yum Yum Tree. It will serve as a break-in for the television series, which Swift created.

Ten Pin Bowlers Win Tourney At Watertown

Ten pin bowlers from this city have entered the Bowling Hall of Fame in this sport during the 1962-63 season. The Fitzgibbon Construction team of Bob Fitzgibbon and Austin Wakin, Larry Hedges, Jim Rutherford and Wally Lavergne have won the Watertown invitational tournament run annually at Watertown's Ten Pin Bowling Lanes. Today Mr. Lavergne, captain of the team received word that the team had won the tournament and that the time would receive the trophy and $500 in cash.

"There were over 300 teams rolling in the event" said Mr. Lavergne in a letter sent to competitors on three weekends in March. On the 24th of March the Belleville team rolled and had a pin fall of 3249 for three games. This is a distinct honor for the city for three of the team have been bowling ten pins for only one year and two others for two years.

Bay of Pigs Invasion Two Years Ago Tarnished Image Of U. S. and Was Costly

Wednesday, April 17, marks the second anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion. Here is the story behind all that is known of the operation by Associated Press specialist in military and Latin American affairs.

and
THEODORE A. EDIGER

For the watchful Cuban troops of Premier Fidel Castro, the sudden appearance of the U.S. warship in the Bay of Pigs southeast of Havana was the final tip-off.

The long - awaited invasion was about to begin. Cuban radios began drumming out the alert order in Morse code:

"Place yourself on a work status. Urgent."

And so the invasion by 1,500 armed Castro opponents on April 17, 1961, was doomed.

Facts now known indicate it was a failure from the outset.

Survivors of the invasion attempt, claiming betrayal by the United States, assert:

A U.S. aircraft carrier code named Santiago was within 20 miles of the invasion beach with jets and propeller-driven fighters aboard painted with the blue stripe of the anti-Castro brigade.

While some of these airplanes were airborne during the critical assault phase, none attacked. Qualified sources in Washington identify this carrier as the Boxer.

GUNFIRE UNUSED

There was ample, though unused, gunfire support available among the U.S. warships within sight of the landing beach. These ships—a cruiser, at least .ie frigate and several destroyer—had escorted the invaders' convoy from Nicaragua to Cuba.

Until the landing craft actually started ashore there had been no final selection of a beachhead area—and no reconnaissance either.

Neither the invaders' mission nor immediate objectives had been defined. They just hoped the United States would straighten things out once they got ashore.

The attempt cost the lives of 91 of the invaders, not including four American flyers who piloted two B-26 light bombers, and resulted in the wounding of 60.

It cost $45,000,000 to execute, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, is reported to have told a Senate committee.

It cost upwards of $53,000,000 to pay the fines of the invasion survivors and release them from Cuban prisons.

It has cost $75,000,000 to date to support 200,000 Cuban refugees whose homeland now is closed to them because the invasion failed.

REPUTATION DROPS

It cost the Central Intelligence Agency, which masterminded the operation, a good deal of its reputation for competence. And it tarnished the image of the United States.

The invasion scheme apparently began germinating sometime early in 1960.

A year later anti-Castro refugees were training in Guatemala. During January 1961, unmarked planes began carrying volunteers from Clewiston and Opa-Locka, Fla., to Guatemala.

And it was in January that four members of the Alabama National Guard, all former B-26 bombers pilots of the Second World War, were recruited.

In all, apparently, about 21 pilots were hired to train Cubans. Governor Orval Faubus of Arkansas said most came out of his state's Air National Guard.

TRAIN INFANTRY

The infantry was being trained under the over-all direction of a man identified by the refugees as a Filipino who went by the name of Col. Vallejo.

There were U.S. officers, too; men known by the cover names of Frank Jimmie and Charles.

From May 1960 to November, the anti-Castro Cubans were given guerrilla training. In November the training was shifted to straight Second World War infantry tactics.

After the invasion Lemnitzer and Eisenhower said the operation was intended primarily as a guerrilla reinforcement. Eisenhower said that when he left office Jan. 20, 1961, no firm plan for the employment of the refugee Cuban force had been determined.

This fact goes to the heart of the mission, what the invaders were supposed to accomplish and how.

Guerrillas would need neither air cover nor tanks, trucks nor jeeps. Regular troops for a pitched battle with Castro would.

SAW IT COMING

On April 13, 1961, Castro concentrated 45,000 heavily-armed troops in Pinar Del Rio province. It was apparent Castro knew an invasion was about to take place, though uncertain as to precisely where or when.

On April 15 three rocket-firing B26s struck at three Cuban air bases, two just outside Havana and the third at Santiago de Cuba.

The planes were to have knocked out Castro's air force, consisting of U.S.-made T-33 jet trainers, British Sea Furies and B-26 bombers.

They failed. There was no follow-up air strike April 16—and no news either.

Diplomats and correspondents from the Iron Curtain countries reported April 19 that Cuba had been attacked by planes and troop-carrying ships.

Late that same day, Havana radio said Castro had reported an invasion attempt and was now mopping up survivors. This was followed by the announcement that two Americans and seven Cubans had been executed as U.S. agents.

On April 20 Havana radio announced the invasion attempt had been crushed. Meanwhile, a dragnet was out for anyone suspected of harboring the slightest anti-Castro sentiments in Havana alone 200,000 were rounded up.

CRUSHES UPRISING

Any possible sympathy uprising was thus crushed at the outset.

What had happened?

On April 10-11 the brigade had sailed from Puerto Cabezas on Great Corn Island, Nicaragua, a tiny port to which they had been ferried from Guatemala.

Dagoberto Dariza, 49, once wealthy Cuban businessman and a coffee expert, was chief officer of the Rio Escondido, one of the ships in the invasion force. In an interview in Miami, Darias said:

"We left Puerto Cabezas on April 12. Five Liberty - type transport vessels, the Rio Escondido, Atlantico, Caribe, Houston and Lake Charles. The Lake Charles was the 'Operation 40' (code name for the command ship) ship. It remained behind and was to land later for mopup operations.

"Aboard the transports were two small boats, the Blagar with 14 machine-guns and the Barbara J. with nine. These were small converted coasters.

"Seven landing craft were present for the invasion — three LCU's (landing craft, utility) and four LCVP's (landing craft, vehicle-personnel). Also 30 outboard motor communication launches, six aboard each (Liberty) ship. Also five tanks.

ESCORT LANDING CRAFT

"The landing craft with the tanks aboard were escorted to a point near the Cuban coast by an American-type ship. That was the evening of April 16.

"By the time the small landing beach was decided upon, the enemy had time to get ready for us. I don't know why the spot wasn't selected beforehand.

"The Houston went in first. It was received by artillery fire (shells) from the Bay of Pigs airfield. There was a cross-fire which was marvelous . . . .

"The Houston with the communications gear aboard was damaged and beached).

"When disembarkation began it was under an aerial battle between our planes and Fidel's.

"Then Sea Furies hit the wooden bridge of the Rio Escondido. Our ship blew up and sank in five minutes. . . . We swam to the Blagar.

'PROMISED PLANES'

"On April 18 we received a radiogram from the American aircraft carrier Santiago, telling us that at 2:30 p.m. that day we would get air support from six P-51 planes (Second World War fighters) . . .

"At 2:30 we saw two planes cross. A minute later two others flew towards Cuba. Immediately afterward the first six planes returned. . . . the others followed.

"From that moment we knew the war was lost for us and that we had been the victims of a great betrayal.

"We had 16 planes. It took them three hours to fly from Puerto Cabezas. They would fight for about three-quarters of an hour and then fly back for refueling. Then they would come back. It was most gruelling. I had a friend, Joaquin Varela, who was 46 hours without rest.

"On April 19 when the Cuban pilots were played out, four Americans stepped in to relieve some of them. The Americans in two B-26s were the ones from Alabama who were shot down. They were killed."

As for the paratroopers, there were 185 of them, Darias said, and they captured the Bay of Pigs airstrip, but couldn't hold it because of strafing from Castro's aircraft.

KENNEDY SAYS NO

Were the Cuban invaders ever promised air cover? Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, brother to the president, said in a magazine interview this year that at no time had the United States ever promised military air support.

The key word is "military," that is, uniformed pilots in U.S. marked planes.

Dr. Enrique Llaca, one of those captured and later released, said, "we were told there would be air cover. Not officially, but it might as well have been official. We all knew the United States had a hand in the matter. We were transported to the training area in U.S. planes. We were trained by Americans. Our weapons and planes were American. What else could our conclusion be?"

The invading troops were landed on Giron Beach, which is approached by land via a single road, flanked on both sides by impassable marshes and mangrove swamps. There was only one way to attack and that was straight ahead into Castro's 45,000 men.

By the morning of the 19th, the men were given up the hopeless fight. They were out of ammunition and Castro's planes dominated the air.

Of the 16 planes in anti-Castro operation, eight were shot down and the remainders arrived back in Nicaragua full of holes.

Llaca reported that the invaders managed only to progress from the beachhead to a road junction designated as "central America." This was 10 to 12 miles inland.

That was that. It was a total disaster.

Teen-Agers Follow the Crowd

DEAR DORIS—I plan to be married in June. Due to my mother's heath, I'm not planning on having a trousseau. It would not be convenient to display the wedding gifts at the reception. What would a person do about showing them? Is it essential.—BRIDE-TO-BE

DORIS CLAXE

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE—Not essential. Sometimes a bride has a hone warming later with gifts on display. This shows gratitude which as already, of course, been expressed to the givers in thank-you notes.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NO TURING BACK—The social workers call your trouble a "cessation of roles." Your husband shuts his mind to the busy load you carry, chiefly because you are helping out so much. TV helps him lapse into oblivion. If you cry for garter he snaps back to shut you up. Both of you need new perspective. Either you quit your job or your home for a time. And unload to a counsellor. You'll find one at the Children's Aid Society, 83 West Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

DEAR DORIS—I am engaged to a 23-year-old guy. He's the greatest, but when it comes to dressing he's very old fashioned. He wears wide slacks, and if you didn't know him you'd think he was color blind. How can I set him on the right road? Please help me.—HELPLESS.

DEAR HELPLESS—Search men's magazines in the library for men's fashions. When you find the one that carries the message, go to a magazine stand and buy it. (Three or four percent of Candian men are color blind. If he is, he might be quite grateful if you offered to help him pick out his clothes.)

DEAR DORIS—We are a group of senior matrics and we are flunking all our classes because of liquor. We began going to a friend's place Friday afternoons for a few drinks and it has now become a habit.

Also, it is taking all our spending money. Have you any suggestions as to what we should do?—INTOXICATED AND SORRY.

DEAR INTOXICATED—Break the jinx by inviting your pals for tea at the precise hour you've been guzzling. Somebody has to take a stand against the nasty stuff. Dare to be a Daniel!

(Ask Doris about the helpful way to handle that sticky situation. A five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope should accompany your question).

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bonter entertained Miss Hattie Peck, and Mrs. Miller on Sunday. Hattie had been in hospital for several weeks and is convalescing in a nursing home in Belleville. # Diefenbaker Gives Vanier Resignation

Liberal Leader Has Cabinet All Lined Up

Now Awaiting Word From Governor-General

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he has given his resignation to Governor-General Vanier effective Monday, April 22, at noon EST.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters after a 20-minute meeting with Gen. Vanier that he informed him of the results of the April 8 general election and "I gave him my resignation effective Monday noon."

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, the next prime minister, was working in his Parliament Hill office, ready to go to Government House should he be called by Gen. Vanier.

"He has to assume he may get called at any time," said a spokesman for the Liberal leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker, commenting on his plans for the future, said:

"I intend to carry on. I'll be available when the House opens as leader of the opposition.

"I look forward with considerable interest to being leader of the opposition."

He said he believes he is the eighth of Canada's 13 prime ministers who, having occupied that office, served as opposition leader afterwards.

MAY TRY AGAIN

"While you can never tell the future, two of them—I believe Macdonald and King—became prime minister again.

"I intend to endeavor to follow their example."

Asked whether he had made any recommendation to Gen. Vanier, Mr. Diefenbaker replied that what passes between a Governor-General and his prime minister cannot be revealed. However, there was no necessity for that since three Social Credit MPs had determined to give their vote to Mr. Pearson "to give and provide him with a majority."

Mr. Diefenbaker met the Governor-General in private in a second-floor bedroom at Government House.

Gen. Vanier, recovering from a heart attack suffered April 9, rested in one of the bedroom's twin beds. The room was named after Lord Willingdon, a former Governor - General to whom Gen. Vanier was once an aide-de-camp.

The Governor-General will be in bed for another four or five days but his doctors have said he is making good progress.

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson, waiting in the wings to become Canada's 14th prime minister, has left but completed the task of lining up his cabinet and awaits the all - important invitation which may come late today from Governor-General Vanier.

Meanwhile the movers have been called to cart personal effects out of the Diefenbaker offices and official residence, and his and Mr. Pearson's staffs are discussing changes in office accommodation.

A spokesman for the Liberal leader said Mr. Pearson had "quite a heavy schedule of personal interviews."

APPOINTMENTS COMING

In addition to his cabinet list, he has indicated he is working on appointment of parliamentary secretaries. He also has key appointments to make in his own office, and a number of vacancies to fill in the Senate, House of Commons office judiciary and diplomatic corps.

Though in 1957 when the Conservatives succeeded the Liberals in office the party leaders kept their old offices, merely changing the brass plates on their doors, there has been talk of them switching the physical location of their suites this time.

This would give Mr. Diefenbaker as opposition leader more office space in the Centre Block than he had before becoming prime minister. In addition to the main third floor suite Pearson had as prime minister, he had space formerly used by the late W. L. Mackenzie King for a private hide-away close to the Commons chamber.

Mr. Pearson's cabinet list will likely remain secret until it has been approved by the Governor-General. He has said it would be, improper for him to discuss it with anyone until he has been sworn in by General Vanier to produce it.

MAY FOLLOW PATTERN

Observers have suggested that it will follow traditional patterns, representative of all areas and balanced as closely as he can make it to racial and religious backgrounds of Canada.

Province - by - provinces however it will draw a blank in Commons representation from Saskatchewan where all 17 constituencies elected Conservatives in April 8. Conservatives also won both the far northern territorial ridings of Yukon and Mackenzie River.

Premier Khrushchev is 69 today. He doesn't exactly mellow with age.

But if he died tomorrow the West would have to say—but for the opposite reason—what Sir Winston Church ill said of Stalin's death in 1953: That it was a milestone in Russian history."

Khrushchev is no Santa Claus. But he's a vast improvement over Stalin, a brutal dictator. In short, there could be more than Khrushchev as the West will realize with regret if his successor tries to turn the clock back.

Stalin, with his bad judgment, caused a world war with the Korean conflict and the Berlin blockade. Khrushchev took chances, but not as Stalin, with the Berlin wall and slipping missiles into Cuba.

Khrushchev has done four things above all since Stalin's death 10 years ago:

1. He has given the Russian

STORM RISING IN U.K. OVER SECRET LEAKS

Macmillan Takes Personal Hand

LONDON (CP)—The threatening storm over the Soviet archaistic ban-the-bombers and civil authority during the nominally passive Aldermaston march is likely to have serious repercussions.

The government, faced with a blatant breach of the official secrets act, is intent on tracing the leak of information contained in a widely-distributed pamphlet naming the sites of regional government survival shelters.

In fact, Prime Minister Macmillan took a personal hand Tuesday in the search for the so-called "spies for peace"—the extremists who made public the civil defence secrets.

Angered by the breach in security, the prime minister cut his Easter holiday short and hurried back to London from his country home in Sussex. He met with Home Secretary Henry Brooke to discuss the problem, bound to create a storm in Parliament.

Meanwhile, police, many disguised as beatniks complete with blue jeans, beards and musical instruments, pressed a search for those responsible for preparing and distributing the pamphlet, persons Brooke has called "traitors."

More fundamental is the effect the pamphlet and the ensuing skirmishes with police is likely to have on public opinion and the whole campaign for nuclear disarmament.

BELIEVED FADING

When this year's Aldermaston march began Friday it was generally believed the anti-nuclear movement in Britain, devoid of many of its founding lights, was fading into a mildly muddled protest movement. Many thought the march an empty Easter ritual drained of much of its original sincerity of conscience.

Teacher-Student Ratio Said Below Safety Level

TORONTO (CP) — Growing use of machines and the unprecedented numbers of children attending schools and universities is reducing the teacher-student ratio to below the safety level, says a university official.

A. E. C. Duncan, dean of arts and science at Queen's University, Kingston, told the annual meeting of the Ontario Education Association Tuesday that the teacher must have time to make personal contact with his pupils.

Mr. Duncan said the education level of the whole community would suffer if large numbers of people with only learning levels got into educational institutions.

Society today is in danger of forgetting that education is a "personal business," he said.

Dr. Marshall McLuhan, professor of English literature at St. Michael's College, University of Toronto, told delegates complete revision of existing education procedures would be demanded by the "TV generation" which has come into being during the last 10 years.

The previous machine age lived and perceived analytically; the TV generation lives and perceives mythically and embraces, learning as a total way of life, Dr. McLuhan said.

He said education tended to linger far behind the commercial needs and developments of the time.

A Toronto high school principal, William McLauchlin told the convention Ontario must soon consider extending the compulsory school-leaving age from 16 to 18.

One-third of the labor force in the next five years will have only elementary school education and this won't be good enough, Mr. McLauchlin said.

He suggested new schools with a different kind of program—a broad program plus a specific skill to sell to some prospective employer—to alleviate the situation.

A resolution suggesting immigrants, night classes should be in both French and English was opposed by W. J. Miller, trustee from Bognor near Owen Sound.

"I can't see the point. Allow French and after a while you'll let in Japanese, Chinese, Italian and what have you," said Mr. Miller.

He suggested Gaelic, "the angels tongue" as an alternative to French but rural delegates attending the convention politely voted this down.

Rural trustees approved a resolution calling for amalga-

SUBWAY TUNNEL FIRE IN BROOKLYN TRAPS HUNDREDS

Some 200 Treated For Smoke Effects

NEW YORK (AP)—Hundreds of persons, some on the verge of panic were evacuated from a Brooklyn subway tunnel Tuesday when a fire sent dense smoke billowing through two passenger trains.

An estimated 600 persons were trapped on the stalled trains between stations. At least 100 were treated at the scene for smoke inhalation. Nearly 200 others were sent to hospitals for treatment.

Police said the fire started about 3 p.m. in the motors of a work train near a station under the tunnel. The work train stopped. Immediately following were two four-car passenger trains. They stalled and their lights went out.

Acrid smoke reached the passengers.

Fire Commissioner Edward Thompson said after surveying the scene: "Thank God this didn't happen at the height of the rush hour."

SOCREDS' QUEBEC WING STAGES LENGTHY CAUCUS

Manning Wants To Dump Caouette

OTTAWA (CP)—The Quebec wing of the Social Credit party resumes its marathon caucus here today after meeting for more than eight hours Tuesday to hammer out a common policy for the next Parliament. The caucus originally was scheduled for last two days.

Meanwhile, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson met Premier E. C. Manning and most members of the Alberta cabinet in Edmonton. He then met western Social Credit MPs and organizers in Red Deer Tuesday night.

Mr. Thompson said no official statement would come out of the Ottawa caucus, but Gilles Gregoire, caucus chairman-designate, told reporters here that a statement will be issued about noon today.

Party spokesmen said here they have no intention to expel from their ranks or penalize the six Quebec MPs who signed a statement promising support to the minority government expected to be formed by Liberal Leader Pearson.

"We have perfect unity in our party and it will be made clear when our statement is published," one said.

BOTH CRITICIZE

Mr. Thompson and Dr. Guy Mercier, caucus leader for Quebec-Montmorency, have both criticized Mr. Caouette for sending their statement to the Governor-General Friday without consulting party leaders. They said they heard reports that Liberal agents were offering "handsome remuneration" to any Social Credit MP who would support the Pearson government. The report was denied by Real Caouette, Social Credit deputy leader, and several Liberal spokesmen.

Not all those coming out of the caucus spoke of unity.

David E. Hartman of Toronto, unsuccessful candidate in Peterborough in the last election, told reporters there is "a

Glassco Report Fourth Edition Is Made Public

Integration of Services Strongly Recommended

OTTAWA (CP)—Sharp criticism of the CBC's management structure and proposals for sweeping changes in the administration of the defence department highlight the fourth report of the Glassco royal commission on government organization, made public today.

While heaping praise on the quality and balance of CBC programs, the three-man commission proposed that the publicly-owned broadcasting corporation revamp its management setup to set clear lines of authority and end what it called "incoherence" and "organizational disarray."

On defence, it recommended integration of services common to the three armed forces. It was uneconomic for the navy, army and air force to maintain separate organizations for such things as accounting, supply, construction, engineering, telecommunications, transportation, medical services and general administration.

The 80,000-word report, smallest of the four issued by the commission since it began its series last September, is entitled Special Areas of Administration. It has five sections devoted to the CBC, national defence, external affairs, northern affairs and scientific research and development.

GIVEN BIG TASK

The Glassco royal commission was appointed in September, 1960, to study every facet of the federal government's $60,000,000,000-a-year operation and recommend ways to economize. It was asked to weed out duplication and overlapping, propose steps to eliminate unnecessary or uneconomic operations and generally streamline the management system.

Chairman of the commission is J. Grant Glassco, 63, Toronto accountant and business executive. Commissioners are Eugene Therrien, 56, Montreal lawyer and insurance company executive, and Walter Gordon, 48, of Ottawa, retired auditor-general of Canada.

In two years of research the commission recruited a team of 197 specialists who dug into about $3,000,000 worth of data.

In each section of the reports, however, the commissioners stress that their conclusions are theirs alone.

Main proposals in today's five.

CANADA AIMING SALES PITCH AT PHILADELPHIA

Trade Fair Will Be Held in City

OTTAWA (CP)—The trade department is aiming a major sales pitch at Philadelphia, the fourth-largest retail market in the United States but one that has hardly been tapped by Canadian exporters.

A "solo" trade fair—Canadians only—is being planned for the week of Nov. 11-16 to introduce and promote Canadian goods in the centre of a rich industrial area where cash income is greater than Canada's gross national product.

The area within a 100-mile radius of the city contains a population greater than Canada's, with a cash income estimated at $53,000,000,000.

The Canadian trade commissioner in Philadelphia, W. J. Millyard, says there are two main reasons for Canadian exporters missing out on sales there.

The city isn't on a direct air route from Canada, and many salesmen get no farther than New York City, he said in an interview here. Moreover, too many firms look to their New York agents can sell adequately in Pennsylvania and the rich five-state area centering around the Delaware River estuary.

Many Canadians are missing the boat by not appointing a local agent in Philadelphia," he said.

TO START PROMOTION

A big promotional effort is being lined up to make Philadelphians Canada-conscious next November.

The mayor will proclaim Canada Week and the city will receive a 60-foot Canadian Christmas tree. Displays for events include a visit by Canadian Mary ships, twice-daily exhibitions by championship Canadian skaters, and demonstrations by an Eskimo stone carver and French-Canadian weaver.

Leading Soviet Concert Pianist And Wife Are Hiding in England

LONDON (AP) — Vladimir Ashkenazy, the Soviet Union's leading concert pianist, and his wife were hiding somewhere in England today after announcing they had left Russia indefinitely to live in Britain.

Ashkenazy, 25, said in an interview he was not seeking political asylum, saying "I am a Russian and I love my country." But the impression here was that he had defected, as Leningrad ballet star Rudolf Nureyev did in Paris in 1961.

Ashkenazy came to Britain on a concert tour last month and brought his wife and year-old son, Vladimir. He said the Soviet government had granted permission for an indefinite stay. Neither he nor British authorities because we did not know when the Russian permission allowing us to stay in England might be revoked."

The home office said Ashkenazy's wife, Dodia, a native of Iceland, was a resident of Britain for 17 years before she married and had asked to be allowed to take up residence in Britain again. A home office spokesman said this was granted and, in accordance with normal custom, the same privilege was extended to her husband. The spokesman emphasized that political asylum was not involved.

Mrs. Ashkenazy told a correspondent of the Icelandic newspaper Morgunbladid she had "never liked Russia. Russian habits or their way of life."

Ashkenazy's pre - conference among young Soviet pianists was underlined last year when the Soviet government picked him to enter the second Tchaikovsky competition. The first Tchaikovsky prize was won in 1958 by an American, Van Cliburn, and the Russians wanted a Russian to get it. Ashkenazy divided the first prize with John Ogdon, a Britain.

Ashkenazy, who is Jewish, made his debut in Moscow at 15, placed second in the Chopin competition in Brussels, the West's top musical prize.

He toured the United States in 1958 and in 1962, winning rave notices. His recordings also have been circulated widely in the West.

Quell David Electric Fire But Water Damage Is Heavy

Fire loss estimated at upwards of $5,000 to the building along with heavy smoke and water damage to store contents, was caused at the David Electric Store on Upper Front Street last evening as result of fire in a second floor storage room.

City firemen confined the blaze to the second floor ceiling, but water and smoke damage was heavy, particularly to furniture stored on the second floor of the building.

Five inches of water seeped down through the main store and into the basement, but firemen minimized loss as much as possible by covering main floor stock with tarpaulins.

FRAISES FIREMEN

Store manager Douglas Shaw credited the action of firemen with preventing much greater loss to store furnishings.

He said the blaze apparently started in the ceiling of the second floor near the front of the building. It is believed that electric wiring may have been the cause of the blaze.

A 2nd driver parked on Front Street opposite the store reported the blaze about 7:15. He radioed his office, which in turn phoned in the alarm.

Firemen remained on the job until after 10 o'clock.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance estimated the fire loss between $4,000 and $5,000, not counting smoke and water damage to the store furniture.

Council Hears Complaints on Roads, Lights

The poor condition of some sections of the Belleville suburban roads system and the lack of lights in certain sections of the city came up for discussion yesterday at city council.

Alderman Stuart Robb said that parts of the road to Wallbridge and Station Street at the city limits, where they joined with the suburban roads system were in terrible condition.

And Alderman Ross Ballard said there were no lights at the approach to the city on West Moira Street (the road to Wallbridge).

Also Alderman J. Raycroft said he had received complaints of lack of lights along Church Street south of St. Paul.

Alderman Jack Ireland, chairman of traffic and lights, replied that lighting of the city was being carried out on a scheduled program which would eventually extend to all parts of the city. Some of last year's schedule was not yet completed, he said.

It was suggested, however, that in instances where street lighting was exceptionally poor, some minor change in the schedule might be entertained.

"The trouble is," Ald. Ireland said, "that when new lights are installed along one street, the residents on interlinking streets immediately want new lights also."

False Alarm

A false alarm brought three vehicles from the Belleville Fire Department to the Park Theatre, on Front Street, in Belleville, at about 10.15 a.m. today.

Overheard among spectators watching the firemen: "we need a good fire around here—it would give us some more parking space."

Special Meeting On April 24 to Set Tax Rate

Belleville residents will in all probability learn the 1963 tax rate at a meeting a special council meeting on April 24th.

This was indicated yesterday by Alderman Ross Ballcy, chairman of the city council finance committee, who said a special budget meeting would be called for April 24th following receipt of revised budgets from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, the Belleville Public School Board and the city health department.

He noted that the 1963 budgets of the above three departments have been sent back last week for reconsideration.

Alderman Bailey said that striking the 1963 tax rate as soon as possible was important to allow tax bills to go out in time for payment of the first regular installment

"Frozen" Lights Cause Motorists Annoyance

Downtown traffic along Bridge Street had the green light for five consecutive period shortly before noon today; much to the annoyance of north and south bound drivers.

Just what went wrong police were unable to say, but a hurry up call was forwarded for the traffic light maintenance man to make a check on things.

Fortunately the noon rush hour had not commenced and north and south bound drivers becoming fed up with being held up at the bridge across against the red light during lulls in traffic.

Bookies Pay Off on the Wrong Horse

LONDON (AP)—A big racing row rocked Britain today as hundreds of bookmakers tried to recover thousands of pounds they paid out on the wrong horse.

What happened was this:

In the Tuntney Maiden Stakes at Newmarket, Perkin Warbeck and Rodolphus were joint favorites at odds of 5 to 2.

Racing fans at the track—and thousands throughout this land where betting shops are legal—backed both horses.

The two crossed the finish line together in a photo finish.

But—while the judges were deciding which horse won, an announcement went over the track loudspeakers:

"Perkin Warbeck, the winner, Rodolphus second, Cradle of The Deep third."

A news agency that carries results from the tracks flashed the same news.

EIGHT MAD MINUTES

For eight mad minutes, the bookies paid out on Perkin Warbeck.

Then, at Newmarket:

"A correction," said the loudspeakers. "Rodolphus won. Perkin Warbeck was second, Cradle of The Deep third."

Pandemonium broke out in the betting shops.

One irate bookie chased a man into the street. The man escaped with winnings collected on Perkin Warbeck.

In hundreds of shops men and women tore up their brown away winning tickets on Rodolphus scrambled on hands and knees to find the losers.

Those who had collected on Perkin Warbeck quickly disappeared.

A spokesman for the Bookmakers Protection Association said: "This has cost our members a small fortune."

Zoning Plan Is Approved By Council

City council yesterday approved of "restricted commercial" zoning for the west side of Wellington Street between Bridge and Campbell streets.

Permissible uses under the approved zoning would be a commercial parking lot, a clinic, funeral parlor, beauty shop and a restaurant, tourist, in addition to any use permitted in an "A" district which comprise for all practicions.

Planning committee representative E. Digby said residents of the area would be prepared to allow a full scale commercial zoning for the area but would go along with "restricted commercial" usage.

Council Delays Bus Purchase Authorization

A by-law authorizing the purchase of a bus for the Belleville Transit Commission, at a cost of $18,000, ran into a snag at city council yesterday with members asking for a full report to substantiate the need for the bus.

The by-law called for issuing of debentures to pay for the bus in an amount not exceeding $18,000.

Council wondered whether the bus to be purchased was a "large" vehicle or one of the small ones and also wanted to know whether the bus would be an additional vehicle or whether a present bus would be traded in.

The matter was referred to the city manager for a full report.

Ameliasburg Home Owners Hold Gathering

TRENTON — The National Hockey League playoffs did not stop some 30 members of the Ameliasburg Home Owner's Association from attending a social evening at Ameliasburg township hall Tuesday night.

Association president S. Downing welcomed the residents and introduced and guest speaker Edward P. Edson of Napanee, from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. Mr. Edson outlined the advantages of planting trees as a means of cutting down on fuel bills on the farm, conserving precipitation on dry land and protecting buildings and crops from high winds. Prince Edward County would also profit from more trees as a means of attracting tourists, he said.

Mr. Downing also introduced three films, one of which was also concerned with the advantages of trees, and demonstrated the vacation trip of a United States family on the Trent Waterway called "A thrill to tain Is a Garden," produced by the British Travel Association, presented a colorful picture of modern landscape gardening in the Old Country.

Mr. Downing told the audience the township's proposed Official Plan was submitted to the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs and the date set for public meeting. Further hearing on the subject will be advertised in local newspapers when information is all in hand.

In hundreds of shops men and women tore up their brown away winning tickets on Rodolphus scrambled on hands and knees to find the losers.

Those who had collected on Perkin Warbeck quickly disappeared.

A spokesman for the Bookmakers Protection Association said: "This has cost our members a small fortune."

Grandfather Backs Truck Over Baby Boy

A 21-month-old baby boy was instantly killed north of Shannonville this morning as his grandfather unwittingly backed a pickup truck out of a barn yard.

Killed was Joseph Francis Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Walsh, R. R. 1, Shannonville.

Provincial police said the boy, unknown to his parents, got out in the yard and beneath the truck, parked beside the barn.

Minutes later, the child's grandfather, 76-year-old Joseph Walsh, went to move the truck.

The rear wheel passed over the child's head and Mr. Walsh stopped the truck when he felt the impact.

The young victim was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by the family's physician, Dr. J. D. Empson, of Belleville.

Dr. Empson said, however, the child probably died within minutes of the accident.

The victim was the youngest of eight other children in the Walsh family, resident on Tyendinaga's fifth concession, near Read.

OPP Constable Jack Fuller ton, Belleville headquarters, investigated.

Asks Council For Land to Put Business

Ex-Mayor R. E. "Roly" Whitney came before Trenton council Monday night to ask that land be provided where a client of his, Maurice Minecvitch, could operate a used car parts lot. When Trenton's new bridge is built, the "junk" yard, on Front Street, owned by Mr. Minevitch will be removed; hence, he is looking for a new location.

One suggestion, that the town planning board be asked to rezone a two-acre area on North Murray Street, between Sidney and Byron Streets, for the purpose met with very little enthusiasm from council. The area is now zoned residential.

Another suggestion that a three-to-four-acre area near the CNR tracks, on the west side of Sidney Street and close to Highway 2, be rezoned to facilitate council stated and Councillor Gerald Weaver, as head of the industrial sub-committee of the Development Committee, will look at the land along with the town engineer, Eric Ashbourne, and report back to council. This land is zoned industrial and if, as Mr. Whitley suggested, a right-of-way high board fence were built to enclose the operation, it might not be objectionable in the area. Failing this, low land on the east side of the river, (Councillor Ross Burtch when the old dump used to be,") will be explored.

HAD HAPPY ENDING

On Monday, Ted Snider, Trenton manager of radio station CJBQ, received a phone call asking for help in locating the foster daughter of an 88-year-old man from Swift Current, Sask.

"Mr. Neddfeld" had come to Trenton in search of a girl he and his wife had brought up and along the route had lost a paper on which he had written her married name. All he knew was that his foster daughter, whose name Mr. Neddfeld also was Dorothy Fossom, lived in the Trenton area.

The information available was broadcast and heard by a relative of the former Miss Fossom who saw a Mrs. Perry. CJBQ was called and Mr. Neddfeld was reunited with his former foster child.

The happy ending to the story is that Mr. Neddfeld will now return to Swift Current, sell his property and return to Trenton to live with his "folks."

On the take-in side, the town will collect $1,444,455 in taxes, with the remaining revenue needed to run the corporation coming from such sources as government grants, including an unconditional grant from the province of $49,436.25.

Merely Wanted Moral Support For PSI Plan

TRENTON—Trenton council Monday night endorsed, "in principle," the idea of the Physicians' Services Incorporated type of insurance being sold to individuals in Trenton PSI, or what is commonly known as the "doctors' Own Plan," was represented in council chambers by Gerald Lynch. Mr. Lynch stressed the fact that he didn't want council to endorse PSI as a product, but merely wanted moral support.

Will Discuss Paying Macs Back Salaries

The question has been turned down on at least two occasions in recent months but city council will again discuss whether or not back salaries will be paid to members of the world champion Belleville McFarlands hockey team.

Alderman Ross Ballard at Tuesday's council session, introduced a notice of motion that he would bring in a motion to pay the back salaries claimed owing by the hockey players.

In accordance with council regulations, there was no discussion on the notice of motion.

Liberals Strengthen Grasp On Urban Vote While PCs Extrenched in Rural Areas

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The pronounced political cleavage between town and country produced by results of the 1962 general election widened in the April 8 balloting.

The Liberals strengthened their grasp on the urban vote while the voting base of the Progressive Conservatives became even more solidly entrenched in rural Canada.

This adds spice to the overdue redistribution of Canada's 263 electoral ridings. The new Parliament—made up of 129 Liberals, 94 Conservatives, 24 Social Crediters and 17 New Democratic Party MPs—is expected to give priority to this task. Two constituencies — Queens in Prince Edward Island and Halifax—have two members each.

Put simply, it now takes fewer rural votes to elect a member of Parliament than it does in the cities or suburbs, especially after the movement from country to city in the last 10 years.

One example is that there were 162,277 names on the voters' list in York-Scarborough in the Toronto area for the April 8 election compared with 42,227 in Iles-de-la-Madeleine in Quebec.

On the basis of the designations used in post-1961 electoral divisions across the country as urban or rural, this picture emerges:

Forty-four ridings are wholly rural and another 75 are mainly rural. There are 67 completely urban in nature and 43 decisively so.

MOSTLY ARE RURAL

Thus, rural votes predominate in 119 constituencies and urban ones in 105, with the remaining 39 of mixed nature.

On April 8, the Liberals gained in all three categories and the Conservatives fell off.

The Liberals won 72 of the 105 urban ridings against 53 a year earlier and the Conservatives fell to 20 urban seats from 33.

Rurally, the Liberals gained eight seats for a total of 37 against the Conservative total of 61, five less than in 1962.

In the mixed category the Liberals won 22, or five more, and the Conservatives dropped four for a total of 16.

To a lesser extent, the same pattern was reflected in the sources of support for Social Credit and NDP.

SOCREDS HAVE FIVE

Social Credit, with 20 of their 24 seats in Quebec, now have only five in urban ridings and 14 in the country. The NDP, with 17 seats of which nine are in British Columbia, has 10 city seats and five rural.

The tag "rural" is a misleading one as many ridings insofar as it indicates a farming economy.

Northern Ontario areas like Port Arthur or Skeena in B.C., for example, are classed as rural when they are predominantly industrial through mining, forestry, railroading or fishing and trapping.

But the rural-urban classification holds true in the weight in two areas where the Liberals had sought to make some inroads.

One is the 46-seat block comprising the two prairie provinces, where the party actually lost its only rural spokesman with the defeat of Hazen Argue in Saskatchewan's Assiniboia constituency.

Gerry O'Connor New President Sales, Ad Club

Members of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club elected their 1963-64 slate of officers at last night's meeting, when approximately 100 members attended, at Columbus Hall.

Officers elected were: president — Gerry O'Connor; immediate past-president — Jim Walker; 1st vice-president — W. Partridge; 2nd vice-president — G. B. Hyde; directors — Don Boyle, Fred Deacon, Armand Duffy, "Bud" Gill, Bill McBride and William Slade.

Guest speaker for the evening was Arthur W. Woodhouse from Montreal who gave an inspiring talk on selling. Mr. Woodhouse was born and educated in Montreal and is manager of the Lee-Cliff Division of Pfizer Canada, in Montreal.

In his opening remarks, the speaker stressed the fact that all salesmen should do a great deal of planning the week before calling on a customer. He said unless a salesman plans his calls carefully, results will not be what he had hoped for. Planning, he stated, is the key to selling.

Mr. Woodhouse said many salesmen lose a sale simply because they forget to ask the customer for an order. He said they get so involved in telling the customer all about the product they leave and forget to ask for the order.

He added that usually the customer wants to know why he should buy the product and what it will do for him or his customers. The speaker said a good salesman can tell him why and obtain an order.

The speaker was introduced by Ed Thomsett and was thanked on behalf of the club members by John Trafford.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk on Communications

A large number of Kiwanians attended the regular dinner meeting at the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday, with Neil Davidson from Northern Electric as the guest speaker.

Mr. Davidson's address was a classification talk on the communication industry. He explained to members how modern day communications started going back to the days of Alexander Graham Bell when he chartered in 1940 and now employs over 7,000 people with yearly sales totalling 30 million dollars.

N.E. CANADIAN

The speaker said that Northern Electric is one hundred per cent Canadian and supplies various kinds of electronic equipment, not only to the Bell Telephone Company of Canada but to telephone companies, large and small, across the Dominion.

Mr. Davidson said the company in the near future hoped to be able to carry every possible means of data, instead of the present voice communication.

He said the country's future will depend on space communication.

"Only through research and communication have we been able to see the other side of the moon or transmit TV around the globe," he said.

A vote of thanks was introduced by Leo McFee and was thanked by Glenn Trafford. President Ralph Graham conducted the meeting.

RED LEADER QUITS

LONDON (AP)—William Gallacher told the British Communist party congress in London Monday that he was giving up the presidency of the party. Gallacher, 81, was a member of Parliament for West Fife, Scotland, from 1935 to 1950. He began his career as a leader of a union committee in the Clyde shipyards during the First World War.

REPORT INCOME DROP

E. I. du Pont de Nemours Tuesday reported net income of $34,000,000 for the first three months of 1963, equal to $2 a share of common stock. This compared with $105,000,000 or $2.23 a share for the corresponding period of 1962. The big chemicals company said $1.60 of the first quarter earnings resulted from operating activities, and 40 cents from General Motors dividends.

Car Skids 300 Feet, Hits Pole

A Belleville Chinese resident escaped injury when his car skidded 300 feet and clipped out a hydro pole on Highway 14, just north of Belleville yesterday.

Han John Eng was heading north behind a truck, followed in another automobile by a Chinese friend, Yet Ming Leong, also of Belleville.

Police say Eng pulled out to pass the truck when Leong apparently also decided to pass both vehicles. Eng's automobile skidded along the shoulder of the road, took to the ditch and hit the pole. Property damage was estimated at $800.

Teacher Wins Fellowship At University

Ontario Education Minister W. G. Davis, through a release to the Toronto Globe and Mail, April 13th edition, announced that Miss Judith Ann Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Davidson of 65 Hunewood Drive, Belleville, is listed among the award winners of a graduate fellowship under the new Province of Ontario Graduate Fellowship Program. The fellowships, which will enable the successful candidates to study for master's and doctor's degrees, mainly in the humanities, social sciences and mathematics, are designed to encourage men and women of outstanding promise to become university teachers, Mr. Davis said.

Judy graduated with first class honors from Chamby County High School, St. Lambert, Que., in 1958 and received her B.A. from Mount Allison University in 1962 and at the same time won the coveted Frances S. Allison Award for outstanding qualities of scholarship, personality, character and leadership. She is presently on the teaching staff of the Chambly County School Board in Quebec.

Judy will enter Queen's University in September where she will take post graduate study in the field of psychology.

Road Allowance To Be 60 Feet In Park Dale

The city is going to be satisfied with a 60-foot road allowance for a new street between Gilbert and Lemoine Streets in the Park Dale district.

Two weeks ago council voted to provide a 66-foot roadway instead of the walkway asked by residents of the area.

Since then it has been found that purchase of the 66-foot right of way would leave building lots of less than 50 feet frontage.

The 60-foot roadway width would leave the two building lots with the required 50-foot frontage.

Does Not Always Pay to Accept Lowest Tender

It doesn't always pay to accept the lowest tender.

That's the attitude being taken this year by the city in its tender call for the supply of gravel for use on city streets and sidewalks.

Council accepted the tender of D. J. Mitchell Construction Company for the supply of gravel at $1.10 per ton, despite the fact there were two lower tenders, one at 73c and the other at 90c.

Last year the delivered price paid for sand was 75c per ton, but city officials felt the supply contained too much foreign material, including clay.

One alderman commented that residents were asking for garden seeds to go with the clay.

Council was told that the McFarland tender this year was lowest big submitted for suitable materials.

Youth Charged With Failure To Yield Road

A 24-year-old Belleville man was charged with failing to yield after an automobile struck a hydro pole on Highway 2 just west of Belleville last night.

Charged was David Makarowski, 54 Sidney street.

Provincial police say the driver of the second car, 19-year-old Ray Bush, R.R. 5, Belleville — was driving east when he saw a car heading towards him on the wrong side of the road.

Bush's automobile struck the pole as he took to the shoulder fearing an accident.

Damage to the Bush car was $200.

5 Sentenced To Be Hanged

ACCRA, Ghana (reuters)—A special court today sentenced five men to be hanged for treason and attempts to assassinate President Kwame Nkrumah.

The five are Teiko Tagoe, Joseph Quaye Mensah, Joseph Adotei Addo, Malam Mamo Tuta—a Nigerian who has lived in Ghana all his life—and Anum Yemoh.

Mensah, a farmer, admitted in court he wrote a letter to Nkrumah signed "Silent Warrior" saying "security or no security, I will jump on you in your so-called Flagstaff House (the official residence) and have you killed."

on one of the stalled trains, said: "I spoke to the passengers. I said that if they would follow me, I would lead them out to a station along the tracks. . . . I took three groups out."

A conductor, Harold Johnson, 27, related:

"I took a flashlight and had about 20 people follow me along the tracks. . . . I made several trips and took three groups out."

The transit authority shut off power on the line at 2:05 p.m. Service was resumed at 6:41 p.m.

WOMEN 'HYSTERICAL'

Ralph Parness, 24, a passenger on one stalled train, gave this account:

"We were in there for at least 20 minutes. There were no lights. Everybody was choking. Nobody came to help us. The women were hysterical."

Another passenger, Daniel Dillon, 52, said:

"At first we lay on the floor so that we could breathe, but we had to get out.

"I forced open a door and led these people out," he said, gesturing toward a frightened group, many of them women and children.

Rosario Raduazzo, 18, told this story:

"I was scared. Some lady fainted. A lot of the women were crying. . . .

"Some lady had rosary beads. She was praying and crying. She said it was the end of the world. . . .

"There were some little kids in the car and they were screaming."

60 Employees At Port Hope To Be Laid Off

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP)—About 50 hourly-rated employees at the Bidgrads Mining and Refining Limited plant at this town 40 miles east of Oshawa will be laid off June 28, an official statement said Tuesday.

J. C. Burger, vice-president in charge of refining at the Crown corporation, said the move is designed to keep the plant operating until the end of 1966.

He said the delivery of oxide as part of the Canadian uranium supplied to the United States Atomic Energy Commission would have been completed early in 1964.

"However, the commission has recently agreed to an arrangement by which outlining deliveries can be stretched over a much longer period, with the result that the refinery can be kept going on a lesser scale with fewer employees until Dec. 31, 1966," Mr. Burger said.

There now are 200 hourly-rated employees at the plant.

SKED CUBAN UPRISING?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An uprising against Cuba's Fidel Castro is scheduled for May 1, a leader of Cuban exiles said Tuesday. Jose Norman, who says he revealed the location of Russian missiles in Cuba two days prior to President Kennedy's announcement, said the uprising would be planned and executed exclusively by Cubans.

A "Swing" Riding

There are many people who say that South Hastings is basically a Conservative riding. Most of them, we suspect, are old residents of the district, or the young offspring of old residents.

The announcement of the results of the servicemen's vote, and the resultant election of Liberal candidate Robert Temple, ought to result in a reappraisal of this view of South Hastings as a Conservative stronghold. For six consecutive elections its choice of a member has coincided with the political views of Canada as a whole. Three times it has elected a Liberal, Frank Foltwell for two terms and, now Robert Temple, when the Liberals won the largest group of seats in the House of Commons. Three times, when the Conservatives were the largest group in the House, it has returned a Conservative, Lee E. Grills.

This riding ought to be ranked as a bellwether, a "swing" riding which reveals the trend across the nation. Particularly is this true when we remember that, in refusing a fourth term to Mr. Grills, the riding defeated one of the most energetic members any riding could hope to have representing its interests at Ottawa, a man whose outward hostility was matched by his willingness to assist any resident, no matter what his political beliefs, in any undertaking beneficial to the district.

To Mr. Temple go our congratulations and our confidence that he will serve the riding in the same spirit as his predecessor; to Mr. Grills our thanks for a job well done.

No Need for Soul-Searching

"A time of painful soul-searching now lies ahead for the New Democratic Party," says the Toronto Star, a newspaper which is always sympathetic towards the cause of socialism except at election time.

This view of the fortunes of the NDP will be shared by many, including a great number of NDP supporters.

There was a widespread belief amongst people of the left that the rechristening of the CCF and its endowment with the money bags of organized labor would give the movement sprout like corn in the summer sun.

It was a naive belief, which would only have been justified if Canadian voters were also naive. They have proven they are not.

There is little difference between the NDP and the CCF and what difference there is is not the product of a revolutionary new birth but of an evolutionary development dictated by economic circumstances.

The Toronto Star refers to the NDP as "having alienated its prairie farmer support when it became allied with the trade unions." Nonsense. The prairie support faded because the spirit of agrarian revolt has departed from the West and is departed because the economic climate has made the prairie farmer a contented man.

Most of the union leaders who are now prominent in the NDP were long ago hard-working supporters of the CCF. The impact of automation would have brought the CCF increased urban support, even if organized labor had not officially linked itself to the movement by acting as midwife at the birth of the NDP.

The loss of prairie support and the growth of labor support may have been speeded by the reorganization, but no more than that, and not even greatly by that.

Those who doubt this analysis are invited to look at the results of the last election in Quebec. The labor backing for the NDP is from the Canadian Congress of Labor and much of the Quebec working force belongs to independent Catholic unions. Yet the NDP vote increased this last election. Why? Because Quebec is in an intellectual ferment, questioning all its old standards. There is even a possibility that in that province the NDP may become a middle-class party—with the Socreds capturing the farm and labor vote in all but the bigger centres.

The NDP needs to make no "agonizing reappraisal" of its role. It remains the same as that played by the CCF for years—to keep prodding the old parties so that they can winnow out the chaff and in the proper season, sow whatever grain they may recover.

Roads in Hong Kong are built with sharp angles in them, according to a recent report in The Ontario Intelligencer, in deference to the Chinese belief that evil spirits cannot turn abrupt corners. The homes on the outside of those abrupt angles, one assumes, can be purchased for bargain prices.

Law Not Yet Perfect

The Times of London

The Vassall spy case, which led to the jailing of two British newspapermen for refusing to disclose their sources of information, has led to a crisis of public confidence in the British Press. The Times comments.

The predominant not in the letters The Times has received about the two imprisoned journalists has been that of hostility to the press.

The predominant note in the beyond what could be justified by a reasonable reading of the published proceedings of the Vassall tribunal. It has overflowed and at times sought to sweep away the principle at stake in these cases.

They have broken the dam to a long pent-up, ever rising, flood of resentment against the practices of newspapermen. Intrusion, triviality, distortion, muck-raking, the inversion of values—the list of offences is long.

They are real offences. The newspapers have learned years ago that if they went on the way they were going they would end by alienating those very sections of society upon whose good will the freedom and the working conventions of the press depend.

This has now happened.

What makes the business so grave is the degree of ignorance, complacency and apathy towards the particular dangers perpetually threatening every society that now stands revealed.

There really are people who believe that the encroachments of authority, the corruption of society, and maladministration can safely be left to the powers-that-be to put right.

There seem to be even more who are content to think that what evidence is not clear, that after centuries of questioning, evolution and experiment, the Law has at last reached so perfect a state that it must no longer, even on a matter of the utmost conscience, be defied.

There is a further assertion that such defiance can never be right. There are denials that our liberties have to be preserved or enlarged by such means.

And all this is taking place in a society that is supposed to be the most widely educated British has yet known, in a society the means to be the best informed about the story of its past, and to which the whole meaning of freedom among so many peoples during the last half-century should have taught inescapable lessons.

Grant all this—so runs a strong line of thought that all does not matter. Our present position or competence to put things right.

Who are journalists to regard themselves as the censors of power?

Whatever may have been the role of newspapers in the past, they have long since forfeited any right to confidence or respect.

Newspapers are now run to make money. New means of expression and communication have arrived that are more effective.

Even if there used to be a convention that the sources of information were preserved from disclosure it is now unnecessary and has gone by the board.

The answers to these arguments are what they have always been.

Journalists have no authority beyond that of other citizens. They do have it their hands as instrument which, when courageously and responsibly used, has so far proved a check on abuses to be the most effective in informing the promoting discussion, in exposing error and malpractice, and in preserving liberties.

Acting responsibly, however, is not a matter of obeying authority or accepting unchallenged what the lawyers say.

It is to put first things first and to have a declarable reason for any challenge.

Admittedly newspapers have to make money. Parliament was concerned not so long ago lest some of them could not make enough to survive.

That should not obscure the fact that the greater part of journalism does have an active conception of public service, and that is sometimes true even among those who have the oddest way of showing it.

The lesson of the events of the past month is that, in the final analysis, the only people who can preserve the freedom of the press are the journalists themselves.

It will not be done by the law or by government; it cannot be done by parliament. It is mistaken escapism to believe the responsibility can be concentrated in a press council.

Neither taste nor ethics can be authoritarianly laid down. They way journalists behave, the spirit in which they go about their business, and the kind of business they go about are what will be decisive.

This does not mean they can never be brash but must always be genteel, never rebellious but always docile.

It does mean their seeming excesses should be for some discernible reason of the public le good, and their manners be at least tolerable.

This is in essence one side of the contract a free society makes with its journalists. There is also the other.

This is the recognition that the effective discharge of their duties, however self-chosen, depends upon certain freedoms or conventions, and among the most important of these is that journalists shall receive information from sources which they will withhold from all questioning because if there were ever the slightest doubt of it many other sources also would dry up.

Far more serious than anything that has been uncovered about the behavior of any journalist in the Vassall case is the inability of so many people to see this need, or to accept it as valid even when it is recognized.

From the incredibly naive, who say that any source that will not bear disclosure is untrustworthy, to the ultra-sophisticated, who assert that it would be quite easy to pick and choose among the sources whose sources should or should not be revealed, there is all too wide a strand of opinion that cannot or will not acknowledge what is at stake.

This is the preservation of the rights of every individual citizen against the usurpation of every form of authority, the ensuring of efficient and beneficent administration of every government and the defence of society against those forces that would corrupt it.

It is not an arrogant claim on the part of the press that its role to play on this stage.

Traditionally, and by the means at its disposal and the nature of its responsibilities, it has.

Large sections of opinion would now apparently deny this, or would wish so to hobble the press as to make it ineffective.

If some things that have happened here shown that a part of the press is sick, this desire, and so much acquiescence in it, shows much of public opinion is bemused.

Never is a nation so vulnerable as when those sections of it which should be well informed and are inherently progressive lose their way because of the weeds.

Foreign Aid Record Poor

Winnipeg Free Press

Canada's foreign aid record, when compared with that of some countries, is not one of which we can be proud. Our contributions have not changed substantially since 1960 except for last year's contribution; in 1960, our capital foreign assistance equalled 0.19 per cent of gross national product. Figures for some other nations were: United States, 0.53; Britain, 0.56; 48; West Germany, 0.38; Japan, .52; France, 1.38; Italy, .17; United Kingdom, .52. Even when our long-term export loans (to countries like Communist China and Czechoslovakia) are taken as part of our foreign aid contribution, the percentage of the G.N.P. spent on foreign aid is no more than one-third of one per cent.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

April 17th, 1933

Tribute to fallen comrades and recognition to a glorious Canadian victory of the First Great War was paid by the local Canadian National Railway War Veterans at the Quinte Hotel on Friday evening, when at their regular monthly smoker the battle of Vimy Ridge was commemorated.

Memories of the glorious Canadian victory over nine divisions of the German army were recalled during the evening when pictures of Vimy Ridge, together with a running commentary, were shown by Albert Jones. The battle of Vimy Ridge, Easter Monday morning, April 9th, 1917, marked the first time that four Canadian Divisions had gone "over the top" together.

Plans are under way for a Boys' Camp at the Y.M.C.A. on the evening of April 26th, when the members and fathers of the campers are being invited. Movies of the camp taken the last two seasons, will be shown and a number of special features are being arranged. It is hoped that Mr. Hamilton, who gave such a splendid archery display to the anglers recently will be on hand to demonstrate to the campers just how it should be done.

Strictly Personal

Childish Perception Undiffused

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some weeks ago, I wrote a little piece of fluff about the peculiar feather light beaten at Concentration by his five-year-old daughter. The letters began to pour in and are still arriving, about all the fiendish little children who delight in humiliating their parents at cards, games, puzzles and other contests of perception and memory.

The most interesting letter, however came from a man in Florida who is a retired magician of considerable professional standing. He wrote in part:

"When I was performing sleight-of-hand and similar feats, it was always easy to fool the adults — in fact, the more intelligent and educated the adult, the easier he was to fool. Medical professors were my favorites.

"But any child under 12 is hard to fool by sleight-of-hand means. The child is not distracted by patter, the way an adult is. He sees the whole thing with perfect right and the right hand, and the slightest hesitation or fumbling is immediately evident to him. Growing up seems to be largely a matter of dulling our attention, and dulling our perceptions".

As we grow up, our field of attention expands, our minds fan out (as it were), and many peripheral objects claim our attention. The quantity of our comprehension increase, but the quality goes down. Very little of what our sophistication has trained us to see, not what is really there.

This is why the intelligent and educated spectator is so easily taken in by sleight-of-hand. He has taught himself to look for subtleties, for shadings of difference, for a certain, patterning of expressions and gestures and reactions.

The child, unsophisticated in this regard, looks only for the obvious — and the obvious, of course, is most hidden from sophistication. Poe's classic little tale "The Purloined Letter", in which a letter hidden in full view of letters in the first place a child would look for a hidden letter, and the last place an investigating adult would look.

We laugh at our children's simplistic solutions of war and peace, and we say that the children do not understand the complexities of the world situation. But we are the ones who are disturbed by superficial facies, and it is the child who concentrates on the death and

To Your Good Health

De-Sensitization Shots Help Overcome Allergies

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What will stop hay fever? My son, now 24, sometimes nearly smothers to death in damp weather. If he has a cold, his head seems to close completely. Even when he is normal, he coughs and sneezes and his eyes water and swell.

He went to go to a specialist. Can you suggest something that will help him? — Mrs. R. D.

I'm not sure from the letter whether this condition is only hay fever, or whether it is an allergy which occurs other than in the autumn.

The answers, however, are the same. There are three things that can be done:

1. De-sensitization shots. (for real hay fever, these are injections to help the person tolerate various pollens in the air. For other allergies, different committing materials must be added.)

2. Taking antihistamines to ease the symptoms while an attack is in progress.

3. Going to some other climate when the attacks occur. This isn't always practical, of course. In addition, you have to find a place where the offending pollen or other exciting materials are not present.

There are two main methods of de-sensitization. One is to give a series of injections, starting about a month before the allergy season begins, and gradually increasing the dose.

The other is year-round, giving the injections about once a month to keep tolerance up permanently.

In some instances a single injection is used, containing materials which cause gradual and slow absorption of the de-sensitizing agents.

You will have to leave it to your doctor to decide whether to use this method in the case at hand.

It's a puzzle to me why a young man suffering so severely from allergy should refuse to go to a specialist (an allergist, in this instance.)

If the sheer personal misery isn't enough to make him want some relief, he should be told that his constant sneezing and coughing could be harmful to the lungs, helping to cause emphysema, which can be ultimately disabling.

Asthma may also develop at this end of the allergy attack, interfering with breathing and threatening in time to affect the heart and lungs.

Likewise it is not unusual for such persons to have sinus trouble.

Controlling (even if not total, by stopping) these severe hay fever and allergy conditions is insurance for future good health. Indeed, the importance of this often is not recognized until after a great deal of harm has been done.

Safety lies in starting early and keeping at treatment.

Head-Hunters Nicest People

BBC London Letter

There was a hint of nostalgia in the voice of Hector Nichol, an education officer in Borneo, when heard in a BBC "Woman's Hour" broadcast saying head-hunting was a thing of the past. All who had lived with head-hunters, he said, would agree that they were the kindest, nicest of people. That practice of taking off heads, smoking them and hanging them in the long houses where they lived was done in a spirit of deep spirits and secure increase for perhaps hundreds of families. It made no difference whether the beheaded person had been good or evil in his lifetime, the spirit was a benevolent influence.

Certainly the practice seems to have had a strong "back" humor judging by a Dyak story Nichol related. A boy was passionately in love with a girl, but she would not consider his suit until he brought her a head. "Further," said the girl, "this girl's widowed mother was a harridan who placed every obstacle in the way of their meeting. The boy went into the jungle, and took the head of an orang-outang. As the girl rejected it saying, 'Take it away, it is the gentlest of animals' — which indeed it seemed. The boy went back to the jungle, and took the head of a bear. But when he brought it back, the girl said, 'Take it away, though ferocious, it is an animal.' Leaving the bear, the despairing boy encountered the harridan mother. In a moment of inspiration, he removed her head, and took it back to the girl, who threw her arms around his neck, saying: 'From this day forth, and forever, I am yours'."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At one of the political meetings held recently before last I was interested in the performance of the disturbers, mostly young people of the kind who are always looking for excitement. Coaching them was a frizzle-faced older man whom I have known as a Communist for years past.

I suppose the frozen-faced man dreams — having lost all other dreams long ago — of being the local Khrushchev, the big man, should ever the Communist get control hereabouts. But what do these disturbers? Have they not enough common sense to realize that if the party has ever recruited for ever got control, they would be squashed like ants? The very spirit of disturbance and revolt which they were displaying at the political gathering is what made the most hated and most brutally quelled of all impluses in the Communist world.

The iron curtain is not, as we suppose, designed to prevent the Russian people from finding out about the world. It is chiefly to prevent the dupes in our world from finding out about Russia.

800 Acres Reclaimed Marsh Now Wild Waterfowl Haven On Tyendinaga Reserve

The wildfowl-hunting red man of the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve will have one strike at the paleface brother this autumn.

He will have his own private hunting preserve within the confines of the reservation where no white man will be permitted to pull a trigger.

Some 800 acres of dried-out, turtle-infested marshland has been reclaimed through the media of a new $20,000 concrete dam. Ducks Unlimited, the Lands and Forests Department and Chief Melville Hill, head of the Quinte Mohawk Band.

Chief Hill detailed the story of the new wildfowl preserve at the regular meeting of the Belleville Fish and Game Club last night.

The marshland, now the home of hundreds of nesting, breeding mallards, blacks and other duck varieties, is situated two miles south of Shannonville. The dam is constructed at the mouth of Mud Creek which drains the marshland. It stretches across the six-foot width of the creek mouth.

The chain-operated stop-logged dam has been in operation for some time. The result, the marshland is now under water to the required depth. Potholes have been created and shorelines sloped, and the grazer part of narrow-leaf cat-tails destroyed.

The water in the marsh is now three and one-half feet above the bay level and under full control through the operation of the dam.

"We have the water under control and our next step is to obtain control of the hunters. This will be done by Mohawk Band Council by-law," said Chief Hill.

None but members of the band will be permitted to hunt on the new preserve, Chief Hill said. "We have nine hundred members on the reserve, while the rest of or the band have membership of 1,900 is scattered from New York to California, from Canada to Florida and Mexico."

A building has been moved to the damsite and will be used as a check-point for hunters. Present restriction plans call for two days' hunting a week. A totally-restricted area of twenty-five acres will be located under the required one-half mile from the regular hunting location regulation.

The two-week hunting, chief Hill said, will be in the best interests of the preserve and the ducks. "Ducks shot at continuously will not return. If given three or four days immunity they will come back."

FLEW OVER MARSH

Chief Hill flew over the reclaimed marshland a short time ago and was well pleased with what he saw. "There were hundreds of ducks, mallards and blacks nesting," he said. "The new potholes and increased shoreline created by the marsh flooding are just what the ducks ordered."

The dam was completed last October. The water was "let out" later to allow a winter work project that resulted in pothole construction and planned destruction of the cat-tails. After the spring run-off this year the water was held at the desired level.

The wild-life preserve is the realization of a ten-year dream of Chief Hill. He wanted to work on it in 1952 but older council members outvoted him. He was also deprived of his position as chief.

Re-elected in 1959 with "younger blood" on the council he again took up the marshland plan.

He sought advice from Ducks Unlimited going to Winnipeg to outline his project. The result was Ducks Unlimited sent investigators here with the ultimate result that the organization footed the entire bill of $20,000 for the dam construction.

Furthermore, Chief Hill said, Ducks Unlimited will provide for the maintenance of the preserve as long as it exists; will conduct periodical surveys and if necessary will bring in various types of natural food and other items deprived of its proper upkeep of the marshland.

A winter project was carried out as mentioned before with some $2,000 being granted by the Economic Development Branch, Ottawa.

PLANNED TO SPEND $4,000

Previously, Chief Hill said, the band planned to spend $1,000 a year with a maximum of four years in an effort to do something about the marshland reclamation. "Then came Ducks Unlimited and the Lands and Forests" he smiled.

"We intend to maintain a rigid control at the check-point" he said. "Hunters will be given special permits and will be checked going in and coming out. Special attention will be made to ducks shot, their breed and number."

Ducks Unlimited will conduct periodical inspections during the hunting season to estimate the duck population and the number to be cropped. Its biologists will check food and sources of food.

A big problem is the snapping turtle population, Chief Hill said. "Ducks Unlimited sent a man here last summer and he took out a ton of the duck-killers. The largest weighed 45 pounds while the rest averaged 15-16 pounds. It is expected some three tons of turtle will be taken from the preserve this summer.

The Tyendinaga Reserve reclaimed marshland is the only project of its kind sponsored by Ducks Unlimited in Ontario. Chief Hill was given a fine ovation by fish and game members after his address. He was presented with a life-membership in the club and two wildlife plaques as a memento.

Three entertaining motion picture films were shown and the "big prize" of the evening a "Camper's Special" went to Roy Vance of Roslin.

Ottawa Motion Is Endorsed

Belleville city council yesterday endorsed a city of Ottawa resolution requesting proposed Legislative amendment permitting municipalities to control the rental up of city streets by gas utilities.

At the same time, however, the city will advise Ottawa officials that the city has already covered this problem in their franchise agreement with Lake and Natural Gas.

Picton Brick Residence Damaged by Fire, Smoke

PICTON — Fire, smoke and water rendered a Picton home uninhabitable yesterday afternoon. The brick residence on Union Street was occupied by Regent Dubois and family.

The fire started at the rear and spread inside the walls into the roof. Firemen chopped holes in the roof to get at the fire which was in the partitions. Downstairs section was flooded by water and blacken ed by smoke. Cause of the outbreak is not known. The house is owned by Jack Wallers.

Section's general store with apartment on second floor and residence of Leslie Adams, which adjoins, both brick buildings, suffered some smoke damage.

Fire departments at Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington have been busy fighting grass fires in the past few days. The marsh between Big Island and Demorestville made a spectacular blaze. Two fields on Talbot Street in Picton were burned over. At Wellington, fields were burned over on the Taylor farm, and bales of fur in a cellar way at the home on the A. C. Hall farm caught fire. Roadsides and fields are dry and danger of fire is high.

Merchants Want More Parking In Corporation

PICTON — Picton Retail Merchants Association held a meeting yesterday, the Association named president Allan Anderson, secretary Dave Taylor, Fred Stafford, Gerry Morrison and Colin Carter as special committee.

Plans for a special business promotional week to be held during the summer were discussed.

Co-operation was offered the chamber of commerce committee in connection with the Pickerel Derby May 3, 4 and 5.

Pledge New Arab State To Socialism, Democracy

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt, Syria and Iraq have pledged to form a new United Arab Republic based economically on Arab socialism and politically on western parliamentary institutions.

Announced aims are to wipe out feudalism, capitalism, reaction and imperialism, and to "liberate" Palestine, where the Jewish state of Israel has been established.

A communique signed early today by President Nasser and 30 others from the three countries indicated the new federal union of 38,000,000 people will be at least two years taking shape.

A plebiscite will be held by Sept. 17 to approve a still unwritten constitution and elect a president, expected to be Nasser. Then a 20-month transitional period is planned during which the president will rule with the help of the three revolutionary councils now in power.

The communique, issued after 10 days of negotiations, said the union will have a two-house legislature. One will be chosen according to population. In the other, each state will have equal representation.

The legislature will be chosen during the 20-month changeover. Elections will be held in the three countries. Although freedom of religion was promised, Islam will be the state religion.

Bleecker Wood Access Road Is Opposed

Opposition to a proposed access road through Bleecker's Woods, to connect up with Harris Crescent, was voiced yesterday at city council by a delegation of residents from that area.

Spokesman for the delegation, Mr. Reginald Nix, said the access road would promote industrial and commercial traffic in what is normally a strictly residential district, and would endanger playing children.

Council referred the matter to the Belleville Suburban Planning Board, with Mr. Nix also being advised to place his objection before that body.

The proposed access road would run from North Front Street through what is now known as the Elliott property and would come up with Harris Crescent.

Long range plans also call for the eventual opening of Fahey Street, north to Tracey Street and Harris Crescent and it is along this route which the College Street sanitary sewer will be extended to serve the North Front Street area south of 401 Highway and the residential area to the west.

Commission Told Canada Has the Best Tax Structure

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The new royal commission on taxation held its first public sitting Tuesday and heard, among other things, that Canada has one of the best tax structures in the world, that this commission should make an extensive study of foreign taxes, and that the Canadian government is too quick on the trigger with tax changes.

Opening a week of hearings that are designed to raise questions instead of answering them the 6-man commission was told by the Canadian Tax Foundation that despite the imperfections in the existing system, Canada's tax structure "ranks with the best in the world."

Foundation Director Ronald Robertson said the commission now has a unique opportunity to make it "the very best".

Mr. Robertson, Foundation Chairman A. D. Russell and Chairman John Marlor presented a 24-page brief to the commission, headed by Toronto chartered accountant Kenneth Carter, pointing out the things it should look for when it begins regional hearings in Montreal next week.

The commission also heard from seven members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce who appeared as individuals prior to the presentation of a formal brief by the chamber later in the year.

HAS SIX MEMBERS

The five other commissioners are Donald G. Grant, Halifax; Emile Beauvais, Quebec City; J. Harvey Perry, Toronto; Charles E. S. Walls, Victoria and Mrs. S. M. Milne, Winnipeg.

The foundation's brief said the high level of taxes is "at the root of the concern about taxation in this country" and that because government expenditures are growing faster than the economy, taxes likely will increase rather than decrease. This would occur particularly at the provincial and municipal level.

Mr. Marlor said that the government should allow more time for study before introducing tax changes.

"The changes should be less precipitant than they have in the past," he said, and suggested the formation of a committee to study proposed changes, and their effects, before they are passed as law.

The brief presented by the foundation, a private research organization supported by a wide membership of chartered accountants and lawyers, said most Canadian income tax problems were caused by the "confluence of the corporate with the capital-income concept and the graduated rate scheduled."

LOOK AT OTHERS

The foundation suggested that the commission take a close look at taxation in other countries, particularly those countries that compete with Canada in trade, with emphasis on determining the proportion of direct and indirect taxation, the capital cost allowances provided for companies, and the rates and spreads of taxation scales.

Mr. Russell said the commission might also consider issuing a separate report on taxation problems involving the retained profits of companies. The distribution of these profits—otherwise known as corporate surplus—has several times been pinpointed as one of the most complex taxation problems.

Eric Hamilton, a Montreal industrialist and chartered accountant who also appeared with the group, said the basic investigation should concern the incidence of taxation on individuals. Ultimately, they pay the tax.

"You don't tax things, you tax people," he said.

The resolution said only large administrative units could economically provide psychological guidance counselling and medical and dental services.

A York Township proposal that bursaries for needy high school students be subsidized by provincial grants was also approved.

struggle for power" in Social Credit ranks between Premier Manning and Mr. Caouette.

"You can quote me. Manning is no damn Caouette."

Mr. Hartman said Mr. Thompson is a puppet of Premier Manning. The party should choose a new national leader and Mr. Manning should restrict himself to provincial affairs, he added.

Mr. Caouette repeated Tuesday his criticism of Mr. Thompson for bypassing him when the national leader asked Dr. Marcoux to investigate the circumstances of the surprise statement by the six.

SIX ATTEND CAUCUS

The six MPs in question—Gerard Perron (Beauce), Gilbert Rondeau (Chauffetz), Raymond Langlois (Megantic), Florence-Andre Boutin (Dorchester), Lucien Pigeon (Quebec West) and Robert Beaule (Quebec East)—all attended the caucus Monday night at other Social Credit members from Quebec.

Mr. Boutin, Mr. Beaule and Mr. Rondeau said after the weekend they did not know their statement would be made public when it went to Governor-General Vanier and asked that their names be struck from it.

Mr. Thompson said the statement his followers were holding two separate meetings simply to save travel expenses. He said there were disagreements within the party but no division.

Calgary Mayor May Be Next Farm Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—The incoming Liberal government has an agricultural policy which twice within a year—in terms of political realities—has brought reaction ranging from lukewarm support to outright rejection.

One upshot is that the choice for agriculture minister, traditionally drawn from the Prairies, seems limited to one man.

He is Harry Hays from the urban constituency of Calgary South, a rancher and mayor of Calgary and one of only three Liberals elected in the 46-seat Prairie bloc. Mr. Hays is a newcomer to Parliament.

A key plank in the Liberal farm platform is reduction of the fat butter surplus of more than 200,000,000 pounds, This was to be done by slashing price supports to encourage more production of cheese and skim milk powder, it was stated.

Cheese has a good export market. Milk powder, however, is itself prone to surpluses and output ran far ahead of demand a few years ago until the support price level was changed.

PROMISE FREE MILK

The Liberals also promised a program of free milk for school children in co-operation with provinces. But a report made two years ago by experts in the federal agriculture department —based on recent experiences in Canada and the United States —indicates such a program would have little impact on the milk surplus behind the dairy problem.

Main Liberal program for the Prairies is a two - pronged pledge on wheat.

Under one, farmers would get two prices on a fixed quantity of wheat. The export price would be competitive but there would be a higher payment designed to bring the domestic price up without raising the cost of bread.

The other is a possibly-costly minimum price of $2 a bushel for No. 1 wheat, scaled down as the grade drops.

Other promises include federal aid for provinces in handling risk under the fledgling crop insurance program, plus continued freight - rate assistance on Crowsnesting western feed grains to the East.

FIRE TRAPS 600

NEW YORK (AP) — Fire erupted on a stalled subway work train Tuesday, spewing dense smoke along miles of underground tracks and trapping 600 persons on two trains. More than 100 passengers, overcome by smoke, were treated at the scene. Some 79 others were sent to hospitals for treatment of smoke inhalation and other injuries.

Ann Landers

Trust Husband—Platonic Hug Not An Impossibility

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Is there anything wrong with a wife who wants her husband to save his hugs and kisses for her alone?

I am married to a man who is the warm, out-going type. He says he often has an impulse to hug and kiss women friends or relatives and it is purely platonic—no sexual implications whatever. I don't believe there is such a thing as a platonic hug or kiss between members of the opposite sex—even if it's only a peck on the cheek.

ANN LANDERS

When my sister-in-law (or a friend or neighbor) greets my husband with a kiss, or hugs him on parting, I flame up inside. I've told him how I feel but it does no good. I've watched him carefully and usually the women kiss him first, but he is so responsive I'm sure he encourages it. If he pushed them away once or twice they would stop.

I would be very happy to hear your views on the subject.—HANDS OFF.

DEAR OFF—When you hear what my views are you won't be so happy.

A woman who doesn't believe in a platonic hug or kiss has a mighty sick approach to life in general and to sex in particular. My best wishes for a speedy recovery.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I am 17 and pregnant. The baby is expected in September. I can't marry the baby's father for reasons which I won't go into here. After several days of soul-searching I've decided to give the baby for adoption.

My mother passed away 10 years ago and my father is going to remarry in July. I like his future wife very much and am happy for them both. The problem is this: They want to take my baby until I marry and can give the child a home. They promise to give the baby back when the time comes.

It's a great temptation because I'd give anything to see my child grow up. But I believe the baby would get a better break if he could start life away from me.

My relatives have filled me with so many stories about how I'll regret it if I give my baby away that my head is bursting.—OLD WOMAN OF 17.

DEAR 17—Your thinking is right. Don't let anyone change your mind.

It's easy to say, "We'll give up the baby when the times comes" but it's not so easy to live up to the promise after the baby has become part of the family.

Your father and his future wife undoubtedly believe they would be doing you a favor, but I hope you will declare their kind offer and do what you feel is best for the baby.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I disagree violently with your words to the unhappy divorcee. She criticized the "weeping widows" and claimed divorcees have a much tougher time because they don't get the moral support and sympathy of their family and friends. You told her, "One thing is certain—the widow didn't have a choice."

Some divorcees don't have a choice either. When a husband in his middle 40's goes off his rocker for a younger and more attractive woman the wife is helpless. I know because it happened to me.

Perhaps some wives have the strength to take the insults and the slaps and punches, and present a smiling face to the world but I wasn't equal to it.

The only choice I had was to let him go or end up in a mental institution. If you are fair you'll print this. My name is—LEGION.

DEAR LEGION—No woman should put up with slaps and punches. I recommend separation when there is physical abuse and I have said so repeatedly. Divorce is a different matter.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

people a far better life than they have had since the Bolshevik revolution of 1917. They have more freedom, although far from full freedom. And the terroristic secret police system has been modernized.

2. He has destroyed the Stalin myth by his 1956 denunciation of the dictator. This not only had a liberating effect on Russian thinking but on communism in the satellites and around the world.

3. By showing more reason, although not Stalin he has eased East-West tensions and made war less likely, not necessarily because he wouldn't try it if he thought he could win but because he realizes he might not.

4. By trying to avoid war, through a policy less aggressive than Stalin's, Khrushchev has precipitated a split with his Communist Chinese allies. Such a split seemed inevitable eventually. He hastened it.

MAKES THEM THINK

While the freedom of the Russian people is not complete—a good recent example is Khrushchev's quarrels with writers and artists—they are becoming better educated every day. With the education comes thinking.

With that comes critical examination of the Russian Communist party's leadership policies at home and abroad. Because in time this will affect the policies, It will make the leadership more responsive to the people's will.

This could be reversed for a while—another Stalin would set it back—but the higher the intellectual level of the Russian people the more inevitable it seems the dictatorship in time must melt away.

More local administration by northern affairs officers in the north in place of central control from Ottawa.

Integration within the northern affairs department of many federal services in the north now being handled by a wide variety of departments and agencies.

Transfer of the Northern Transportation Company, which runs freight service in the Mackenzie River, from the trade department to northern affairs.

Today, thanks to the efforts of a militant minority, the CND movement finds itself resurrected in a blaze of publicity. Some observers say the heat may be strong enough to kill it for good.

John Connell, writing in The Evening Standard, says the committee of 100 has "introduced into British politics a reckless element of mass lawlessness and violence."

Both The Times and The Daily Telegraph editorially condemn the publishers of the pamphlet and the marchers who tangled with police. They charge that the CND is a cloak for a radical and subversive element whose aim is to challenge authority and the force of law.

The element responsible for the pamphlet appears to be a fragment of a fragment within the movement—a section of the Committee of 100 who want to stand up and fight rather than sit down and silently disobey.

CND leaders, under Canon John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral, have dissociated themselves from this group. But the problem is they seem unable to control the company they keep.

The movement is a mosaic of multi - colored political principles and emotional idealism. In what The Telegraph calls a boring "torrent of beards and banners." Mayfair Bluebloods march side by side with Communists from Coventry.

St. Joseph's Parish Guild Hears Talk on 'Oblate Life'

Miss Teresa Hayes, an Oblate Missionary of Mary Immaculate was the guest speaker at the annual Communion breakfast of St. Joseph's Parish Council of the C.W.L. Miss Hayes was introduced by Mrs. A. W. Salonen.

Born in Shoenboro, Quebec, she made a career for herself in nursing and later joined the Oblate Missionaries of Mary Immaculate, the development of which may turn out to be one of the marvels of this century. Founded by Father L. M. Parent, O.M.I. in 1902 the group, which is now a secular institute in formation, increased from seven members to 1,000 in 1960.

Miss Hayes has worked among the Indians in Alberta and British Columbia and is presently in charge of a Retreat House recently opened in Port Credit, Ontario.

At the head table were: Mrs. Helena Clarke, the spiritual convener and convener of the breakfast; Mrs. Salonen, Mrs. Yvonne Murphy, Mrs. Zita Muldoon; president, Miss Marie Gotrey, an Oblate Missionary; Miss Hayes and her mother.

OBLATE WAY OF LIFE

Little is known generally of the Oblate way of life. What is the rule? What are the qualities necessary to become a member of a secular institute? What is a secular institute? How does it compare with Religious Orders?

This movement is based on the Apostolic Constitution. Provida Mater Ecclesia issued by the late Pius XII in 1947 and is built along a family type of life, under modern means both for its apostolic activity and for the formation of its members.

St. Joseph's Parish Council

Miss Hayes pointed out, as Christ said two thousand years ago, "To be in the world, but not of it."

The essence of religious life is the complete dedication. When one consecrates herself to God, she returns to Him the greatest gifts which He has given her: life, mind, heart and goods.

It does not matter whether this gift is offered by promise, oath or vow. All that matters is that it is done freely, validly in a group that is recognized officially by the Church.

"Secular Institutes, even though their members live in the world, still by reason of their full dedication to God are rightly and properly numbered among the states of perfection which are juridically constituted and recognized by the Church".

"This perfection in secular Institutes is to be exercised and professed in the world."

S.S.S.

Miss Hayes explained the Rule by which the Oblate Missionaries of Mary Immaculate live. It is called S.S.S. It consists of three divisions: the preparation; the field of action and reparation. The first "S" consists of spiritual exercises; the second "S" includes five points of charity that must be lived each day and the third "S" consists in making five acts of charity among themselves each day with the intention of repairing for slips and failures.

Miss Hayes mentioned that all Oblates do not leave the world to live a community life. They are never separated from the world even for a period of novitiate.

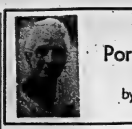
Spiritual and professional training are given during the course of the apostolic life itself. An intern Oblate does not leave the world; she is simply transferred from one environment to another.

"Not all Oblates leave their home. Although the interns do penetrate into places where religious are not wanted, the mission of sowing grace in the very midst of it all is fulfilled by these Oblates. Both interns and externs take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. They have the same rule to live, the difference lying in their field of apostolate."

Miss Hayes explained that there are two other divisions — lay missionaries and auxiliaries whose dedication is neither total nor permanent.

In 1945 the need was recognized for a society that would be capable of penetrating into those environments that were inaccessible to priests and religions. By 1952 plans had been outlined for a prospectus secular institute, which flourishes today.

"There are no bargains in apostolic life — the cost is the highest — one's complete self. But if the cost is great, the fruits are worth infinitely more, for they are immortal souls who will praise God eternally."



A question and answer period followed Miss Hayes' talk.

Mrs. M. Reid thanked the guest speaker and presented her with a token of appreciation.

The breakfast, which was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, was provided by McAvoy Caterers.

WARNS HOUSEWIVES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. A. A. Boucher, chairman of the British Columbia safety council's home and family section, warned housewives against mixing household bleach and caustic types of toilet bowl cleaner. Two deaths occurred in the United States through chlorine gas produced by the mixture, she said.

Pork Purchases

by Mary Moore

Worrying about what meat to buy for weekday meals seems to be the indoor pastime of legions of housewives.

Scrutinizing the meat counter seems to have become one of my weekly duties. Unsmiling mothers with shopping carts containing stacks of groceries stop at the meat counter and invariably pick up a big package of hamburg, a chicken in a cello bag and a package of pork chops or a whole loin. If these pork purchases which interest me today, I am giving you recipes for chops "country-style" and a way to roast a loin of pork with a new and zesty glaze.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Scotch Broth, Cold Sliced Roast Lamb, Mint Jelly, Hard-Cooked Egg Ring on Watercress, Cole Slaw (or Tuesday) Mayonnaise, Cole Slaw, Hot Rolls, Hot Mince Pie, Cheese, Tea.

COUNTRY-STYLE PORK CHOPS

6 loin or rib pork chops, 1" thick, ½ cup finely diced carrot (1 small), ½ cup finely diced celery, ¾ cup water, ¼ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce.

Lightly grease bottom of large frying pan with a little fat trimmed from chops. Sear chops on both sides with salt and pepper. Brown chops well on both sides over medium heat — about 15 minutes. Meanwhile, sprinkle chopped carrots and celery in bottom of 2-quart shallow casserole. Arrange browned chops on top. Pour excess fat from frying pan and in it mix water, catsup, minced onion, prepared mustard, and Worcestershire sauce. Blend together. Pour mixture over chops. Cover. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. Remove cover. Continue baking for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

ROAST PORK LOIN:

4 or 5-lb. pork loin, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon sage, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon onion salt.

Wipe roast with damp cloth. Combine salt, pepper and sage. Rub mixture into surface of roast and between loosened backbone and ribs (cracked with cleaver by butcher). Place roast, fat side up, on a rack in an open pan. Roast at 325 deg. Fahr. approximately 35 minutes per pound or until meat is well done. Pork should be gray with no tinge of pink. Twenty minutes before roast is finished, spread top and sides with glaze made by blending together the mustard, catsup, Worcestershire sauce and onion salt. Finish baking. Serve on hot platter.

BUY ME THOSE — Like most girls her age, nine-year-old Lonnie Barreca is enthralled by pointed-toed shoes in a Toronto department store. Foot specialists say children's shoes should be shaped like their feet — wide at the toes and narrow at the heel — and not modelled after adult styles. (CP Photo)

The Experts Say

Children's Shoes Should Have Shape of Foot

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — "Children's feet don't need to be dressed—they just need to be protected."

That's the word of an orthopedic specialist here who says that often children are brought into his office wearing shoes modelled like their mother's. "But the only style that children's shoes should have is the shape of the foot — and that hasn't changed since Adam and Eve."

A child's foot is triangular—wide at the toes and narrow at the heel. Shoes should also be this shape to allow free movement of the foot while protecting it from bangs, slivers, cuts.

Each time we step, the bones of the foot naturally move sideways and up and down and it is this suppleness which enables a person to walk over uneven surfaces without pain, the doctor explained.

The shock of walking should be absorbed evenly by all five toes as they spread. "If this is not allowed, callouses develop on the underside of the foot."

SQUEEZING HARMFUL

And normally the toes of the foot grow in a straight line from their base. Improperly fitting shoes, and especially those with sharp pointed toes, squeeze or direct the toes toward a line in the centre of the foot.

Wearing such shoes, children can develop bunions and callouses on the sides of the toes as short a time as from two to three months, the doctor said.

"If a small child grew up wearing such restricting shoes, he would require operative correction by the time he was 13 or 14 years old."

Mothers have a tendency to provide infants with too-rigid footwear, the doctor has discovered.

"The only time restrictive footwear should be worn by children is when it is being used to correct some deformity."

Running shoes and sandals are good in the summer because they give more freedom to the foot.

When a child is first learning to walk, run and jump around a light boot will help him along. But by the age of 2½ or three, when the child has acquired a bit of poise, boots are unnecessary for the normal foot, the doctor said.

TURNED-IN TOES

When a child has turned-in toes or flat-looking feet, parents often feel the child must have corrective shoes. But these are not always necessary.

"Most children are born with their toes turned in. Eighty-five per cent of these respond on their own by the time they are about 18 months old. Small weights can be put in the shoes of the other 15 per cent to help them correct the deformity."

Another common fault with the feet of young children is that they are "hypermobile" — the ligaments in the foot are not yet strong enough to support the arch and the child will walk on the inside of the foot, making him look flat-footed.

When this happens, some small elevation on the inner side of the heel in the shoe will correct the deformity.

The doctor says he has 10 times as many women as men patients with foot trouble. He attributes the difference to women's high heels which jam the feet as far as possible into the front of the shoes.

"When you wear high heels, the foot is constantly downhill."

About five of every seven women have some form of foot trouble often caused by ill-fitting shoes in childhood.

Moslem Women Get Break in Divorce Laws

CAIRO (Reuters)—A law due next October dealing with wedlock among Egypt's Moslems is regarded as one of the biggest legislative innovations in the country's judicial history.

The law deals with marriage, divorce, alimony and the custody of children in cases of divorce.

Under present law, husbands can force their wives to live with them—even by force.

The new law will end this but permits the wife to refuse to cohabit with her husband only if she forfeits her claim to alimony.

The husband in such a case may ask the court for permission to resume his normal conjugal life for a maximum of six months, during which the wife will be entitled to financial support. At the end of this period, the wife can appeal to the court for a divorce.

If a man already married takes a second wife, under the draft law the first wife can apply for a divorce on the ground that his second marriage is degrading to her dignity.

VIOLENCE IS CAUSE

The second wife can also apply for a divorce if the husband has concealed that he is already married. A wife can also seek a divorce if the husband uses defamatory language or resorts to physical violence.

Divorce will not become effective unless it is sanctioned by the civil court. Under Moslem canon law at present, a man can divorce his wife, or wives (he is allowed four at any one time), by merely declaring three times: "I divorce thee."

If either party in a marriage applies for divorce, the judge will endeavor to bring about a reconciliation, failing which he will call for mediation by two delegates — one representing each party.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question A man in our office is in the hospital and a notice was sent around suggesting that we all send him cards. The notice gave the address of the hospital and his room number. Most of the people sent sympathy cards. Some even banded together and sent one card signed with four or five names. I know that hospitalized persons like to be remembered, but I think a personal note should be sent, not just a card. Wouldn't this be more correct?

A. M., New York City.

Answer A personal note is always more appropriate, but that doesn't mean that get-well cards shouldn't be sent at all. Happily, they're not all as dull as they used to be. Some are extremely clever and amusing and give the patient a healthy chuckle. A hand-made card can be just as personal as a hand-written note. When my husband was in the hospital a few years ago, an artist at his office concocted an extremely witty card that was signed by a large group of his co-workers. It was imaginative and very skillfully worked out in cartoon form. We've had it framed and it now occupies a very important spot over his desk.

Question: My son is getting married in two months, and his fiancee's mother has informed me that I may invite only 20 guests to the reception. This puts me in a very embarrassing position, since this means I may only ask a few relatives in addition to our immediate family. Close friends who have known my son since he was a baby will have to be excluded, and I know many will feel hurt about it. I'd gladly pay for any additional expense if I could invite all those I'd like to. Would it be proper to put such a proposition to the bride's mother?

Conn.

Answer: No. The bride's family traditionally pays for the reception and to offer to pay for guests over your quota would be overstepping your bounds as an honored guest. If you make a point of it, the bride's mother might feel she should invite the others, but at her own expense, which might be well over her wedding budget. Instead, it would be wiser for you to give a special reception for the young couple and her family to meet your relatives and friends. This may be done shortly before the wedding, or when they return from their wedding trip.

Springbrook UCW Present Easter Topic

Springbrook United Church Women met on the evening, of April 4th at the church with an attendance of 37 members and 11 visitors. The president, Mrs. B. Wellman opened the meeting.

Mrs. E. Bateman was in charge of the worship and Mrs. J. Thompson read the Scripture from John 12: 1-8 with Mrs. E. Bateman giving the meditation.

The topic "Easter" was given in a two-part play. First part, "A Love To Bless All Nations," taking part were: Mrs. H. Pilkie, Mrs. M. Mason, and Mrs. G. Bailey. Second part was, "He That Loses His Life," taking part were: Mrs. D. Fleming, and Mrs. R. McKeown.

A thank-you card was read from the Thompson family. Springbrook U.C.W. were invited to the Rylstone U.C.W. meeting, April 10th.

The sick and visiting committee composed of Mrs. R. McKeown and Mrs. G. Thompson, made several calls to the sick and shut-ins. The fruit and flower committee gave its report, and requested to get flowers for the church for Easter Sunday. The social function committee's report was given by Mrs. M. Mason reporting that they have their committees appointed with splendid activities for the women for the coming months.

The program consisted of three readings, "The Green and Lovely Spring," by Mrs. J. Rathwell; "The Oldest Easter Message," by Mrs. E. Reid; "Great Was The Faith," by Mrs. R. Thompson.

Mrs. H Mumby put on a contest of jumbled words, "Women of the Bible." The ladies all took part in a sing-song led by Mrs. .. Thompson.

The president thanked the women, Mrs. G. Williams and Mrs. C. Spry and committee for acting as hostesses for the lunch. Mrs. R. Wellman closed the meeting.

Princess Will Meet Namesake In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—When Crown Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands comes to Ottawa April 28 for a three-day visit she will meet her namesake, Beatrix Claire Smith, infant daughter of host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. T. Bradbrooke Smith.

The child will be just 15 days old when the princess, who is 24, arrives in Ottawa by car after flying from New York to Montreal on a scheduled commercial flight.

The Canadian visit is part of a round-the-world trip interrupted last year by the death of the princess' grandmother, Queen Wilhelmina.

Her Ottawa hostess, formerly Baroness Renee Roell, is a childhood friend who came to Ottawa as a Second World War refugee with the Dutch royal family. She remained in Canada after the war when her mother, a Dutch war widow, married H. F. Fraver, a Canadian.

Fourth

section report:

CBC

The CBC's management and form of organization "have proved unequal to the task of securing the orderly conduct of operations in the face of pressures brought about by rapid expansion." It had failed to develop positive goals.

Recommended are greater decentralization of operations, higher salaries for top executives, a more qualified board of directors with increased responsibilities, a long-term plan of financing and policy direction from the government. A more aggressive sales promotion section was needed to halt the slip in commercial revenues caused by new private-network competition.

DEFENCE

Integration of services would bring about sharp economies in operation of the three services. Another $20,000,000 a year could be saved by employing civilians in 16,000 jobs now handled by service personnel. Almost half of the total strength of the forces is occupied with non-combatant duties—60,000 physically-fit personnel.

On integration, the report stopped short, however, of proposing a single, one-uniform service. But it urged that the deputy defence minister and the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee be given powers to implement common supporting services. More civilians should be moved to top positions in the department.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

Significant economies could be achieved by placing the heads of overseas missions in charge of all Canadian government activity in the foreign capitals. "The proliferation of small departmental units abroad is wasteful alike of manpower and money."

More foreign service officers should be bilingual, issuance of passports should be taken out of external affairs and shifted to the immigration department which was better equipped to do the job. More women university graduates should be brought into the department and greater stress laid on hiring local personnel at overseas offices.

Administrative and political work should be split into distinct sections, each with separate heads.

NORTHERN AFFAIRS

Both Eskimo and Indian affairs in the far north should be run by the northern affairs department, removing Indians from control of the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship and immigration department. It was only natural to treat the two native races on the same basis in the north.

More senior men should be placed in field posts and given power to make decisions at the local level rather than relying on direction from Ottawa. Regulations should be axed to allow northern inhabitants easier access to government jobs, now plagued by the difficulties of recruiting southerners and the resultant high turnover.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Establishment of a "high command" to co-ordinate defence engineering and eliminate "undue overlapping and even duplication of development programs" is given top priority.

A new senior cabinet post suggested in an earlier report—president of the treasury board—should be designated as the ministry responsible for overseeing all federal research work, now broken into a wide variety of departmental activity.

A national scientific advisory council should be set up to review national scientific policy and advise the government on new policy.

Water Levels On Great Lakes Below Average

DETROIT (AP)—Great Lakes levels are below average—and, except on Ontario, they're expected to stay that way for at least the next six months and probably longer.

All are on normal spring rises, but Michigan, Huron and Erie are expected to add only a fraction more than half a foot to their levels of April 1 before they start falling in mid-summer. The same goes for St. Clair.

Superior is expected to edge up a little more than a foot before hitting a level-off in September, and it is anticipated Ontario will shoot up 2½ feet, tipping both its 10-year and long-term average levels in June and then start falling in August.

The forecasts are those of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which keeps tab on fluctuations through its lake survey headquarters here.

As recently as 1952, owners of pleasure and fishing boats were complaining they had to walk through water ankle-deep atop their docks. All the lakes were at record or near-record levels last year.

Some docks now must be extended to reach water deep enough to float even a skiff. A drop of 18 inches will expose yards of bottom along shallow shores.

Especially on Michigan, some port officials fear they may have to extend piers to accommodate ocean-going freighters coming in via the St. Lawrence Seaway this season.

LAKERS DISTURBED

The Lake Carriers Association is perturbed about levels. Its members figure that for every inch of depth above guaranteed 27-foot channels they can load an extra 100 tons of cargo a ship—a financial bonanza in high-water seasons.

Why are levels down (as much as 1.6 feet below average for the last 10 years on Michigan and Huron)?

The annual precipitation over all five basins as a whole averaged 31.55 inches for the 1952-61 decade, compared with 32.96 for 1943-52. In 1961 the average was only 31.27, and in 1962 it fell off to 28.51 inches.

BEAM SENDS PHOTOS

NEW YORK (AP) — International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation said today it has developed a new way to transmit facsimile photographs via beam of light. It said the process was developed as part of the firm's research in "lasers"—light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation. The photograph transmissions employ a device called a gallium arsenide diode, about the size of a pencil, the firm said.

Pearson to Give New Heart To Civil Service Says Paper

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—British newspapers are still blossoming forth with "profiles" and editorial comments on Liberal Leader Lester Pearson, soon to become Canadian prime minister.

The Manchester Guardian, in a story by David Holden, says that Pearson as prime minister will give new heart to Canada's civil service, "many of whose senior members know and trust him as they never either knew or trusted Mr. Diefenbaker."

Holden says Canada's problems are not all of Diefenbaker's creation, but are inherent in Canada's structure.

"No doubt Mike Pearson, with his intellectual honesty, is well aware of that. If he can show he can deal with some of them . . . he will have struck a satisfying blow for the reasonable man in politics."

Holden says he is convinced Pearson is "as honest, both morally and intellectually, as any politician can ever be—and possibly too much so for his own good as a party leader."

PROFESSIONALS RETURN

The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial, says that with Pearson "professionalism returns to Parliament Hill." It adds that in Canada, where "a parochial outlook has sometimes been the bane of politics, he is outstandingly a citizen of the world."

But The Daily Telegraph, like the Guardian, sees Pearson confronting a plateful of problems.

"There are lions in his path. . . . It is to be hoped nonetheless that he will be spared captious opposition in Parliament."

The Sunday Times publishes an article by Canadian newspaper man Bruce Hutchison on Canada's search for unity. It ends:

"British friends of Canada should understand from the start that Mr. Pearson is not the man they usually take him for. His public image, the cheerful boyish extrovert in a bow tie, is a caricature of this lonely, mysterious and often tortured person with hopes, fears and a tough inner drive that make his future and Canada's incalculable."

TO INCREASE FARES

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Transit Commission Tuesday formally approved a Metropolitan Toronto-wide fare increase, effective May 1. Fares will increase to six tokens for a dollar from seven for a dollar. The TTC's current estimated operating loss is $3,500,000.

Taxes Are Not Responsible For Slowdown of Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — Professor David W. Slater, a noted taxation expert from Queen's University, said today it is difficult to accept any argument that taxes are responsible for a slowdown in Canada's economic progress.

It has been considered popular to blame taxation for economic difficulties, he told the royal commission on taxation, but "the most that can be argued is that Canada could have a slightly better economic performance . . . with a different set of levels and structures of taxation."

Prof. Slater, associated with the tax study group of Queen's, appeared before the commission's preliminary hearings here to outline his views on its terms of reference before regional hearings begin in Montreal Monday. Six national organizations also have appeared or are appearing during the week.

NEEDS UNDERSTANDING

Prof. Slater told the commission, headed by Toronto chartered accountant Kenneth Carter, that one of the greatest contributions that the commission can make is toward an improvement in the understanding of the trends in government tax operation.

Most Canadians don't realize what they pay to the government and what they get in return, he said in his brief. There would be enormous difficulty in establishing figures for this, the "half the truth would be but than one-quarter."

He urged the commission to plunge into the question of whether Canada is living beyond her means—"meaningless jingoism"—and to establish the facts of the situation once and for all. The claim that the country is living beyond her means, he said, is "one of the most pervasive and persistent ideas of recent years" and it has become a method of explaining away Canada's problems.

ASSAILS STALIN

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg published more of his memoirs assailing Stalin last week. But they appeared two weeks late and in short form, arousing speculation they had been cut by censors over his protest. The voice of Soviet artists and writers in revolt against Communist cultural dictation, Ehrenburg heard his memoirs denounced by Premier Khrushchev last month as painting too dark a picture of the Stalin era.

Management Reorganization Needed to Obtain Efficiency, Economy in CBC Operation

OTTAWA (CP) — Extensive management reorganization is needed to obtain efficiency and economy in the operations of the publicly - owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Glassco royal commission on government organization said today.

"The CBC, in spite of many praiseworthy accomplishments, has failed to develop positive goals," the commission said.

"For this and other reasons, its management and form of organization have proved unequal to the task of securing the orderly conduct of operations in the face of the pressures brought about by rapid expansion."

The commission, which does not suggest a blueprint for future CBC organization, said the CBC has been in "desperate need" of general leadership at the main policy lines as the broadcasting field has expanded.

The commission attributes what it terms "incoherence" of the CBC organization to failure to analyze complex CBC activities and to provide for their coordination on "tried and established principles."

WOULD RAISE PAY

It advocates greater decentralization, higher salaries for top CBC executives, increased responsibility for a carefully-chosen, qualified board of directors, early enunciation of the CBC's commercial policy, a definite pattern of financing of the corporation, and policy direction from the government.

"The corporation badly needs a clear definition of its task and the limits of its responsibility. Only on such a basis can long-term objectives be established and management aggressively devoted to their achievement."

The commission also notes that, particularly in the light of the emergence of a competitive private television network, the possible conflict between the powers of the Board of Broadcast Governors and the regulatory terms of reference of the CBC is assuming "serious proportions."

It observes "that a clear definition of the authority and responsibility of each body is one of the requisites for the development of clear policy goals by the respective bodies."

The three-member commission bases its conclusions on a detailed investigation by a special project group directed by G. H. Carpenter-Smith of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company, Toronto.

The commission proposes guidelines and criteria which, subject to government decisions on policy, would permit the CBC to adjust its internal organization and operations to management and performance needs, with the aid of such advice, from within the government or elsewhere, as it may consider necessary."

Since its founding in 1936 the CBC has had a simple directive to carry on a "national broadcasting service" but in the absence of any statutory or authoritative definition of that phrase, it made its own interpretations and carried out the service it deemed appropriate.

DIRECTIVE NEEDED

The CBC's commercial policy developed in a haphazard manner. Advertising revenues are more than $38,000,000 a year were built up without any aggressive effort to bring long-term private broadcasting seriously threatened such revenue a firm decision on future policy was essential.

"No evidence exists of any weighing of cost against need and the impression gained is that, generally, the pursuit of high quality (programming and production) has been carried on without taking into consideration what the country can afford."

Potential sale of cultural programs to prestige advertisers was not being fully explored.

A private Hamilton station—not identified — had a larger sales staff in Toronto than the CBC had for national and local sales in the entire Toronto area. CBC sales were unbalanced and lacked the incentive provided by way of commissions or compensation based on effort.

"A pattern of sales control on a national basis is slowly being developed, but nobody at headquarters in Ottawa has any real authority over the sales organization in the field, and instructions are too frequently flouted with impunity."

It was necessary to build a strong sales organization from Ottawa to coast — by divorcing sales from regional and network management, and appointing a professional sales manager.

SUBSIDY INCREASE SEEN

In the meantime, uncertainties as to the future of commercial revenues indicated the possible need for substantial future increases in amounts voted by Parliament if CBC activities continued at the present level.

The CBC's decision-making would be immeasurably strengthened if a definite pattern of financing were developed, whether by a parliamentary grant or one based upon Canada-wide "population."

The commission says the CBC should have great independence but that ultimate power in its day-to-day affairs but this does not mean it should be given a blank cheque.

"In matters of broad policy government the shape and nature of the broadcasting development, there is an inescapable responsibility on the government to provide for their coordination on "tried and established principles."

Premier Robarts Non-Committal On Election Date

TORONTO (CP)—As the Ontario legislature resumes its twice - recessed fourth session today, the question uppermost in the minds of many members is whether they will have to break out the election posters in June or October—or in June, 1964.

The man with the answer is Premier John Robarts. But the leader of the province's Progressive Conservative government, while willing to tease opposition members with oblique its and maybes about the possibility of a general provincial vote this year, has known no inclination to give away the date.

Pressed frequently through out the 59 days of the session that is to close by the election night come, Mr. Robarts has generally reminded his questioners that his administration has a mandate valid until June, 1964.

Before they hear the date when they will next face the ballot boxes, the sitting politicians have at least another week to 10 days of legislative business to conduct, including debate of at least two major government measures.

Confirmation has been promised to correct weaknesses in the province's law enforcement system revealed in the Beach royal commission report on organized crime in Ontario. No details of the proposed measures have been revealed.

Another bill, expected but not yet introduced, is an amendment to the Ontario Securities Act which will, if adopted, give the Ontario Securities Commission power to refuse registration to a broker or dealer if the commission is not satisfied that the applicant is financially responsible and has sufficient working capital.

And the speech from the throne, opening the session Nov. 27, promised to establish an Ontario Council for the Arts.

Another promised move—though not one which will likely be debated this session—would set out the guide lines for an independent committee study of medical health insurance.

The government has said it will introduce a draft bill this session on which the committee can base its evaluation of public representations and write a final bill to be introduced for the legislature's endorsement as law.

Supreme Court Awards Cooke $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court judgment against Ottawa radio station CKOY Tuesday awarded $100,000 to Jack Cooke, former Toronto radio station owner and present owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League.

Among evidence was a letter written by Ottawa lawyer Duncan MacTavish inviting Mr. Cooke to become a consultant in the purchase of the station's gross operating profits.

Mr. Cooke, the letter stated, would continue as a consultant unless the station went bankrupt or lost its licence or lost profits below a certain amount.

Mr. Justice S. N. Schatz, in a written judgment, said none of the dismissal conditions had been exercised.

Watched Youth Pull Knife From Throat

TORONTO (CP)—A 20-year-old butcher's apprentice testified Tuesday he watched Patrick Garrity, 17, pull a knife from the throat of Gary Wayne Graham, 17, during a fight at a dance at Danfort Technical School last year.

Vergus Robert O'Connell said Garrity and Graham were fighting intermittently when a knife, He said Garrity either struck Graham with the knife or Graham fell against it.

Garrity is being tried on a charge of non-capital murder.

Defence counsel David Humphrey said an analysis of the dead youth's blood showed he had consumed about 10 ounces of alcohol.

The trial continues.

Third of External Affairs Men Do Not Speak French

OTTAWA (CP) — Too many officers in the external affairs department don't speak French, the Glassco royal commission on government organization said today.

It said the officers of the department have a reasonably good command of French but another 172 admit encompetence. "Clearly this latter figure is too high," the commission said.

In the fourth volume of its report on government services, which also recommends creation of the operation of the passport office to the immigration department, it says that women as career officers and the splitting of diplomatic and administrative officers in external affairs, the commission said:

"It should be a condition of permanent appointment (in external affairs) that the probationer equip himself with a sound working knowledge of both French and English languages.

"While this department has the best claim to the existing policy of making an appropriate balance between French- and non-French-speaking officers, the present unworking language of the department in English and the culture in which the French-speaking officer is required to work and live is largely unilingual.

"How to develop himself technically and professionally in an unilingual milieu, or in a bilingual milieu while yet retaining his French-Canadian roots and contributing to the development as a representative of the French-speaking culture remains a vital and unsolved problem.

"Quite apart from the general development of having a foreign service that reflects the bicultural character of Canada, there is undoubtedly a need for increasing proficiency in the use of the French language.

BILINGUALISM ESSENTIAL

"For many years French and English have been the principal languages of diplomacy. At the international community on a larger with the emergence of new states, a large number of them French is used. Even if French continues to be the second language it may not. French countries, the use of French as a working language is increasing. In this context bilingualism becomes a practical necessity."

The commission said the granting of Canadian passports based on fraudulent representations occurs frequently enough to call for a change in the method of issuing them.

The immigration department, with offices across Canada, could be entrusted with the check of the bona fides of guarantors for those applying for passports. Consequently the public would be served through the opening of passport offices in Canada's main centres.

The commission recommended that more women university graduates be hired for senior research and secretarial work and that the number of women hired increased at over seas posts be increased.

The report questioned the employment of foreign service officers in administrative posts. But it 'cautioned against the diplomatic corps "becoming too in-bred."

The commission said the average level of persons entering the external affairs department is high "but is no longer able to attract the quantity of service with the intellectual standards that once characterized the department."

Personnel frequently displayed a lack of understanding of other government departments and the U.S. government, "particularly where these programs often involved Canadian interests abroad."

HITS PAPERWORK

The commission said the flood of paperwork—"a real disease —it referred to the department as one point as "paper-breeding"—could be equal those who have to read and digest them.

A study of 11 missions showed an increase from 6,000 telegraphic messages in 1954 to 12,000 messages in 1961. The Canadian mission at The Hague sent a large volume of material dealing with Laos.

"Frequent lack of responsibility by officers-in-charge tended to frustrate offices concerned. This clearly reflected the inadequate delegation of authorities and staffing of various divisions at Ottawa.

DAMAGES REJECTED

These are charges the state department hastily rejected, the commission said. Canada is angered because the U.S. government won't give him money to pay for damages to ships and give him a position of trust in any new government plans for Cuban exiles.

Two years ago Kennedy planned to separate Castro from the Cuban people. Now all that appears to have developed is a split between Kennedy and the exiles.

Two years ago there were reports after the invasion collapsed that Castro had been shot; that he had been incapacitated that he was mentally deranged; that the Cuban economy had collapsed; that the people were in revolt.

Now there are reports Castro is still very much in control; that he has established a pretty strenuous exhibition ball team that he has been invited to Moscow to play; that Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Only a year ago Kennedy warned Khrushchev not to intervene militarily in Cuba. Now there are reports that he has more Soviet troops in Cuba, accompanied by a huge array of military equipment, including jets, rockets, tanks, artillery pieces and patrol boats.

The state department says that the exiles were betrayed or that they proudly promised any new invasion. If, however, he has that U.S. would want to co-exist with any Communist regime in the western hemisphere.

Yet there is no doubt that there were promises under standings. Kennedy publicly raised the hopes of the exiles. Then, after the Cuban invasion failed, he vowed he never would abandon Cuba to the Communists.

He urged Cuban exiles to join the U.S. armed forces for proper training. He did not intend to prevent early hit-and-run raids against Cuba. And he spoke repeatedly of the need to eliminate Castroism from Cuba.

All this, again Miro Cardona, occurred before the Soviet-U.S. nuclear missile showdown last October. Moreover, he has noted a decided change in Kennedy's relations with the exiles.

test and a comment from Mr. Diefenbaker that the proposal was "unacceptable."

Volume No. 4 today advocates a reorganization of the management of government-owned enterprises in the north and creation of a "northern development" department with the responsibility for the territorial administration.

Volume No. 2 today advocates changes in the financial operations to handle all federal purchasing and property management, another radical departure from present practice.

Major item in the third volume was a plan to have the government withdraw from the operation of veterans' hospitals, now a $50,000,000 annual outlay, and gradually shift veterans to community hospitals.

This aroused a storm of protest.

Cuban Exiles' Anger Becomes Political Issue

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Were the exiles betrayed?

That question echoes over the U.S. political arena as the administration observes the second anniversary of its most embarrassing operation — masterminding the famous Bay of Pigs invasion fiasco that began under the cover of darkness on April 17, 1961.

All sorts of conflicting, confusing and misleading statements emerged immediately after that debacle. The U.S. administration at first maintained it was not directly involved; that it had not intervened militarily in the attempts by Cuban exiles to unseat Fidel Castro.

Later, the administration admitted it had financed and trained the exiles; supplied the necessary arms and even some of the pilots who flew old B-26 bombers over the invasion area. The U.S. left some of its own dead in Cuba.

Now, Jose Miro Cardona, head of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, has resigned. President Kennedy pledged to mount a new and better invasion attempt. Meanwhile, the ranks of the exiled leader maintains has been broken. Moreover, he charges publicly that there is a "peaceful co-existence" with the Castro regime.

CHARGES REJECTED

New Liberal Cabinet Faces Decision on Glassco Report

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the decisions a new Liberal cabinet will face in the next few months is what to do about the 1,000,000 word report by the Glassco royal commission on government organization, set up 2½ years ago to find ways to eliminate waste and economize on federal operations.

During the last Parliament and in the election campaign Liberal Leader Pearson gave no indication of how he and top Liberals look upon the mass of Glassco proposals — some of them involving drastic shakeups in the federal structure.

The fourth volume of the commission's report was released today by Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office. The final volume is expected within a month.

Last November Mr. Diefenbaker said his government was prepared to adopt most of the Glassco suggestions and said Trade Minister McCutcheon would direct the job.

George Davidson, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration was shifted to Senator McCutcheon's department to work with the work and a staff of senior civil servants was recruited to set up the organization.

Some of the ideas for streamlining civil service job-training, reducing the red tape in financial management and simplifying paperwork procedures have already been put into practice.

But Mr. Diefenbaker said the royal commission's investigations are going down the central control of the Treasury Board, Commission and the treasury board, the watchdogs of the entire civil service.

The first volume of the Glassco report, out last September, said the Civil Service Commission's role as a central hiring agency ought to be removed from the civil service departments and agencies do their own hiring in the same manner as private corporations.

Civil service staff organizations have been critical of this idea.

The same volume said the treasury board now wastes too much time and manpower on detailed scrutiny of spending. It said it ought to be given power to approve long - term spending programs, allowing department chiefs more freedom in individual items.

Volume No. 2 urged drastic changes in the financial operations to handle all federal purchasing and property management, another radical departure from present practice.

Major item in the third volume was a plan to have the government withdraw from the operation of veterans' hospitals, now a $50,000,000 annual outlay, and gradually shift veterans to community hospitals.

This aroused a storm of protest.

Sweeping Administration Changes in Defence Dept. Needed Says Commission

OTTAWA (CP)—The Glassco royal commission on government organization today recommended sweeping changes in administration of the defence department.

It did not go so far, however, as to recommend a single, one-uniform service.

The recommendations may not go far enough to please a new Liberal government. Liberal Leader Pearson on Jan. 12 urged that "the three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated for maximum efficiency and economy."

The commission, in the fourth volume of its report on government services, said it is unreasonable for the armed forces to maintain separate organizations for accounting, supply, construction, engineering, telecommunications, transportation and general administration. Such common functions should be integrated.

It said that about 60,000 physically fit military personnel, half the total strength of the armed forces, are engaged in support or non-combat activities.

Some $20,000,000 a year could be saved by employing 10,000 civilians in jobs now performed by uniformed personnel.

The commission urged an unsuccessful attempt in 1950 to develop an integrated teletype relay system for the defence department. The result had been development of "three wasteful and incompatible inadequate networks."

It blamed such occurrences on lack of executive authority over the chiefs of staff committee. "Over and over again—there are more than 200 standing committees — per service "procrastination."

The commission said recommendations and decisions of the chiefs of staff committee must be unanimous and that in case of disagreement the chairman should report the opposing views to the defence minister.

The commission recommended that the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee (now Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller), exercise "ministerial power of direction" over the chiefs of staff committee as defined by the minister and be given control and administration of headquarters amounts to at least two of the services.

As a consequence, the commission said, the chairman should be designated "chief of Canadian defence staffs."

The commission also recommended that the deputy defence minister (now Elgin Armstrong) be given greater responsibility in reviewing the organization and administrative

Wider Control Over Federal Activity in Far North Urged By Glassco Enquiry Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Measures to give the department of northern affairs and natural resources wider control over federal activity in the far north were recommended today by the Glassco royal commission.

The commission, in the commission's report on government services devotes a 9,600-word section to territorial operations in the north and concludes that the northern affairs department be enabled and required to look to leave northern affairs and Eskimo programs.

The commission said it can see no reason for maintaining two native races in matters of federal administration, arguing that "the administrative problems of the two races in the north are indistinguishable."

It says local administrators should be given wider powers, and tight central control from Ottawa, to deal with crisis situations. "General regulations are more appropriate to federal administration in northern Canada may be prepostero*us in, say, Tuktoyaktuk."

Other proposals are that northern affairs be put in charge of all federal purchasing and supply for the north and the operation of common warehousing facilities. The commission noted, as an example, that nine federal departments now

The commission said it can see no reason for maintaining two native races in matters of federal administration, arguing that "the administrative problems of the two races in the north are indistinguishable."

It says local administrators should be given wider powers, and tight central control from Ottawa, to deal with crisis situations. "General regulations are more appropriate to federal administration in northern Canada may be prepostero*us in, say, Tuktoyaktuk."

Other proposals are that northern affairs be put in charge of all federal purchasing and supply for the north and the operation of common warehousing facilities. The commission noted, as an example, that nine federal departments now methods of the services.

There was a need for a strong civilian and integrated under the deputy minister to advise the minister.

Other recommendations:

1. Consideration of the "early compulsory retirement policy of the services—at age 55 for the most senior officers—and the possibility of creating employment opportunities in the public service for military personnel retired at early ages.

2. A comprehensive and independent review of the military and civilian manpower needs of the armed forces.

3. Improved career opportunities for civilian technical and administrative personnel employed in the armed forces. About 50,000 civilians work for the defence department.

4. Greater interchange of service and civilian officers, especially of senior and intermediate rank between the headquarters staffs of the armed forces and the deputy minister.

The commission said the traditional system of three services and the "rigidities" in the defence establishment meant, for example, that in finding signallers for the United Nations Congo force, the Canadian Army could draw on its own resources and not have an access to the "large reservoir" of signalling personnel in the navy and RCAF.

"Regardless of whether or not this is the basis for unification," the commission said, "there are strong reasons for unification of the administration of those functions common to the three services."

Moreover, the commission put these questions:

Why does the RCAF require 58 per cent of its headquarters establishment in uniform and the navy 32 per cent while the navy gets a higher pay per cent?

What is the rationale for the decision that the staff of the military historian should consist of nine civilians and 23 servicemen?

What considerations determine the ratio of military personnel acting as executive secretaries of 152 of the 350 committees at headquarters?

Is it consistent for the RCAF to fill all of positions in its accounting staff with officers—men while in its statistics branch all the positions are held by civilians?

What circumstances dictate that 45 per cent of the RCAF's air materiel command should be in uniform when the navy manages the similar function with approximately five per cent?

Sweeping Administration Changes in Defence Dept. Needed Says Commission

OTTAWA (CP)—The Glassco royal commission on government organization today recommended sweeping changes in administration of the defence department.

It did not go so far, however, as to recommend a single, one-uniform service.

The recommendations may not go far enough to please a new Liberal government. Liberal Leader Pearson on Jan. 12 urged that "the three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated for maximum efficiency and economy."

The commission, in the fourth volume of its report on government services, said it is unreasonable for the armed forces to maintain separate organizations for accounting, supply, construction, engineering, telecommunications, transportation and general administration. Such common functions should be integrated.

It said that about 60,000 physically fit military personnel, half the total strength of the armed forces, are engaged in support or non-combat activities.

Some $20,000,000 a year could be saved by employing 10,000 civilians in jobs now performed by uniformed personnel.

The commission urged an unsuccessful attempt in 1950 to develop an integrated teletype relay system for the defence department. The result had been development of "three wasteful and incompatible inadequate networks."

It blamed such occurrences on lack of executive authority over the chiefs of staff committee. "Over and over again—there are more than 200 standing committees — per service "procrastination."

The commission said recommendations and decisions of the chiefs of staff committee must be unanimous and that in case of disagreement the chairman should report the opposing views to the defence minister.

The commission recommended that the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee (now Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller), exercise "ministerial power of direction" over the chiefs of staff committee as defined by the minister and be given control and administration of headquarters amounts to at least two of the services.

As a consequence, the commission said, the chairman should be designated "chief of Canadian defence staffs."

The commission also recommended that the deputy defence minister (now Elgin Armstrong) be given greater responsibility in reviewing the organization and administrative

Trust Company Manager's Body Not Yet Found

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A trust company manager who police believe was swept to his death over Niagara Falls Monday was to have testified in Vancouver Friday in connection with an $837,000 bond theft in 1959 from the company he managed.

The man, William George Dales, 56, manager of the Fraser Trust Company office at St. Catharines, was reported missing earlier in the day by his wife after failing to return home from a service station. The body has not yet been found.

Mr. Dales' car was found near a parapet overlooking the falls, after hundreds of tourists watched a man jump into the Niagara River and be carried over the falls.

Mr. Dales was to have flown to Vancouver Monday to be a witness at the assize court trial of David Wilson, 32, of Victoria, charged with two counts of possessing coupons from stolen government bonds.

It was erroneously reported earlier that Mr. Dales was to testify in Vancouver at the preliminary hearing of Daniel Henry Derkson, 33, charged with possession of stolen property after a bank accepted $7,000 in government bonds as collateral for a loan.

(Police in St. Catharines denied that Mr. Dales' trip to Vancouver was in connection with the trial. They said the trust company handles a number of estates and that the Vancouver trip was to have been on probate business.)

Wilson's trial was adjourned Monday until April 18 after two witnesses had been heard. No mention was made of Dales' death but police said it was one reason for the adjournment.

The St. Catharines office of Fraser Trust was broken into Feb. 1, 1959. Thieves using acetylene equipment looted vaults and safety deposit boxes.

NEED EXPERIMENT

HALIFAX (CP) — Dr. R. M. Taylor of Toronto, executive vice-president of the Canadian Cancer Society, says the simple cause-and-effect proof that lung cancer in human beings could be caused by smoking is impossible to obtain without an experiment using human beings. Dr. Taylor said Monday in an interview "obviously, this is not the question. Apart from the fact that we do not treat people in this fashion, there is the time factor."

Pipe Smoking Is Becoming More Popular in Canada Says Toronto Pipe-Maker

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP)—A measure of succor for the man beset by rocket-age stress may well lie in the gnarled bole of a Mediterranean shrub, the tail of an African gourd or a snow-white mineral fom the plain of Eskishehr in Turkey.

So suggest those who engage in the ritual of pipe smoking, a breed that views the habit as both pleasure and tension-easer. This group is growing in Canada, say the men who make and sell pipes of Mediterranean briar, calabash gourds or Turkish meerschaum.

Roy Brigham, who has been making, smoking and selling pipes in Toronto on and off for more than half a century, is understandably eager to compose paeans to pipe smoking, its pleasures and benefits. The 72-year-old craftsman calls on his son Herb to support his contention that pipe smoking is becoming more popular.

"Our trade went up by 26 per cent in 1961 and about 20 per cent last year," says Herb, who manages the business his father founded in 1906.

SEE PIPES A WEEK

"We've just had to rent 2,700 square feet of floor space around the corner because we're getting too crowded back there," and he gestures towards a workshop cluttered with sacks of Greek and Spanish briar blocks, yellowing meerschaums and Austrian calabashes in for repairs, boxes of pipes in various stages through the 147 operations from natural briar to finished pipe.

Eighteen craftsmen—many of them newcomers who brought skills in dyes and polishing from Europe—turn out about 600 pipes in myriad shapes and finishes every week—some 30,000 of an estimated 75,000 pipes produced annually in Canada.

Figures on domestic production and imports indicate the upswing in pipe smoking, although official government statistics are clouded by lumping pipes with other smokers' supplies in some tables. The dollar value of pipes made in Canada multiplied about four times to $90,000 in the last decade while the import category that includes pipes climbed 20 per cent to almost $600,000 in 1961 over 1960.

CANCER FEAR HELPS

Spokesmen for the pipe department of Alfred Dunhill of London, Eaton's and the Robert Simpson Company express the belief that sales are increasing, although all say they keep no records of the number of pipes sold. Toronto importer Edward Dworkin reports "demand is more brisk" recently despite a jump in retail prices caused by the 15-per-cent import surcharge imposed last year. The surcharge has since been reduced to 10 per cent and finally removed on March 31.

Herb Brigham, a bustling young executive who personally belies the traditional picture of the pipe smoker as a languid type, suggests part of the reason for increased popularity may be found in reports linking smoking and lung cancer. The reports indicate pipe smoking is much less risky than use of cigars or cigarettes.

Roy Brigham, who founded his present business on a spare cot he named the Brigham Health Pipe, still extols its use by doctor friends although the "health" part has been dropped from the name.

PATENTED DESIGN

Starting out as a boy helper in a Toronto smoke shop, Roy set up operations on his own as a repairman until he went into house-building in Windsor, Ont., after the First World War.

He "lost everything" at the start of the Depression and returned to Toronto in 1933 to make and repair pipes in a tiny place on Victoria Street. Working at a bench in the shop window, Roy became a well-known figure to downtown Torontonians.

He recalls that "a bit of heart trouble" in the 1930s led him to design a pipe aimed at subverting doctor's orders against smoking while strengthening the pipe at its weakest point—the junction of shank and stem.

He inserted a tube of reinforcing aluminum from bowl to mouthpiece and lined the aluminum with a replaceable hardwood tube that absorbed harmful tars from the smoke as it passed from bowl to mouth. He says doctor friends and science professors among his clients found the design effective and he patented it in 1938.

WARTIME SHORTAGE

The Second World War dried up the supply of raw materials—a shrub related to Scottish heather that the French call bruyere, hence the English briar—and Herb went to Europe in the army.

Roy Brigham, long girls and standby Wally Watson, who has been with the firm 25 years, made what they could with California mission briar, maple, birch and compressed shavings from leftover European briar. ("We have half a basement full of infector briar from the war," says Herb. "You never know, we might need it in another war.")

Herb spent much of his spare time in England during the war visiting British pipe makers, studying their methods. At the end of the war he arranged to buy part of a shipload of England-bound briar that had been impounded in 1939 in a Portuguese port and released, aged an extra six years, in 1945.

PIPES FOR LADIES

Eight years ago, the Brighams moved to larger premises on King Street and now stock "everything useful to the pipe smoker," from a lazy susan pipe rack at $2.50 to a leather pipe holster for the outdoorsman. Pipes on sale include Turkish - style hookahs from Italy — "some customers use wine instead of water in the bottle"—and miniature briars set with rhinestones for ladies. ("We sell a few at Christmas").

From a one-shop operation a few years ago, Herb has expanded to supplying 100 retail outlets across Canada.

During an interview he opened letters bearing distant postmarks — orders from customers in Pierrefonds, Que., and Cobden, Ont., from a retailer in Whitehorse and a merchant in Iqaluit, Que., requesting a Brigham franchise.

The Brighams are convinced pipe smoking is in for a boom. Health considerations and faddism may be factors. But Herb prefers to believe that men are rediscovering the leisure pleasures their grandfathers knew, the ancient practice first recorded in the fifth century BC by the Greek historian Herodotus who found the Scythians of southeast Europe inhaling the smoke of burning hemp until "they grow drunk with the fumes as Greeks do with wine."

CANCER SCARE HELPS — Dollar value of pipes made in Canada has increased fourfold to $360,000 in the last 10 years. Spokesmen for the pipe-making trade attribute the boost to surcharges on imported pipes and to reports linking lung cancer to cigarette smoking. Cashing in on the trend is Toronto pipe-maker Roy Brigham. His sales climbed 26 per cent in 1961 and 30 per cent last year. (CP Photo)

Friend Is Semi-Social

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—A good friend of mine who works in the same office seems to be leading a very semi-social life.

It may not be any of my business but I have tried to arrange a date or two for her with some nice fellows, but she does not seem to want to have anything to do with men.

We went to an office party once and she would not even accept a dance. She is thirty years old and must be very lonely as she just seems to work all day and stay at home with her parents.

Is there anything I can do to help her?—OFFICE GAL.

DEAR OFFICE GIRL—Perhaps she can't dance. Perhaps she's shy of the boys. Perhaps she's had a tragic love affair and plans to stay in her virginal shell all her life.

Some time ever coffee offer to double date her again. If not, find out why not. Coax a little and see if your stick-in-the-mud could be made to blossom, after all.

DEAR DORIS—I am going to a town on business where a very good old boy friend lives. I'll have an afternoon off and I wanted to know if I should phone him. I just want to talk to him—ask how he is, what he has been doing lately, and the usual.

Is this proper, or will he think I am trying to catch him?—CONFUSED BUT FRIENDLY.

DEAR CONFUSED, BUT—One phone call only — until you find out about present entanglements.

DEAR DORIS—I am a 14-year-old girl. My problem is a woman. I am president of a club and this woman is always butting in with something that doesn't concern the meeting.

Is this allowed? Do I have permission to tell her something like this: "This does not concern our meeting," and then continue with the meeting? Everybody seems to be afraid of her in the neighborhood.—WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING—You do indeed. What's more, as president officer, that's part of the job. Think of all the others whose time she is wasting.

To be tactful but firm is the ticket. Find a book on conducting meetings or write me for the name of one Thousands have been in your shoes and extricated themselves admirably by knowing just how to handle it.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

SPRING VOICES

Those of us with musical ears have a decided advantage over our birdwatching friends who cannot keep a tune. This is especially true in spring and early summer when the songs are undoubtedly extremely helpful for bird identification. It might be argued that as the songsters are predominately males, and males are generally more brightly dressed than females, there should be little difficulty in seeing the singers. However, even they are much more frequently heard than seen first.

The fox sparrow, for instance, is a red-brown bird breeding in our north that scratches the ground for a living, uncovering small animal life beneath the leaf litter. In the few days that he is here on a stop-over ticket from the southern states we would hardly notice him were he to keep silent. His rich, clear song makes him one of our top artists, for many people the greatest of his family. The short song is somewhat variable; nevertheless, once known it is unmistakable. Look for the soloist on the top of a bush during the last half of April.

TINY SINGER

Kinglets are so tiny that even when we hear them it is sometimes hard to see them. The golden-crowned, but four inches long, has the nervous habit of opening and closing its wings as it moves rapidly from branch to branch. When we hear the song (three to five high-pitched notes followed by a series of less musical though louder, sharp, chattery notes) we crane our necks to find the singer. But he is probably invisible, high up in the tree, his olive plumage blending with the newly-formed, tiny green leaves. But if you live in southern Ontario you may have had the privilege of seeing him before the foliage began to sprout, because golden-crowns often remain there all winter. And remember that name is deceiving, actually describing the female. The male's crown is scarlet, bordered by gold.

The ruby-crowned, ¼ inch longer, is even more difficult to spy, as his only bright color, the red on the top of his head (and, by the way, absent in the female) is generally hidden from view. Only when excited does he erect the small crown patch, and it stands up in a diminutive limp. But this little bird's song is much more attractive than his brother's. It is unbelievably loud, especially in the closing phrases. Starting with several thin, high notes, the song continues with several low, pitched ones, then ends with a series of groups of three quick, ascending notes extremely loud and absolutely distinct.

Only One 'Missing Person' Baffled Him in 13 Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—Duncan Smith has been a policeman since 1938. For the last 13 years he has operated the missing persons bureau.

And in all that time, Detective Smith has come across only one truly "strange disappearance" in Vancouver.

He has run across some strange cases—such as that of the man who loves his wife so deeply he disappears when she has a baby because he can't stand the thought of her suffering in childbirth.

But only the case of Mrs. Leolo Dullman baffles him.

"That, to me, is a mystery," Det. Smith says.

Mrs. Dullman, 58, a stenographer, worked for the same firm for 14 years and lived as regular and as normal a life as possible.

When she went for lunch on Oct. 4, 1955, she complained of a headache. She was never seen again.

Det. Smith handles an average of 1,000 reports and 500 inquiries annually. He explains that reports are about people who disappear and inquiries are about people who aren't missing but just can't be located. He admits there's a fine line there.

There were 2,038 persons missing last year and of these 2,083 turned up.

KIDS USUALLY FOUND

"With kids it's just a matter of time. I have just one boy under my care at the moment because I took over the bureau. Maybe even they will turn up eventually."

Det. Smith says the amount of time police spend on a case is dictated by concern.

"If your wife didn't come home all night, nobody would give much of a damn. But if your little boy didn't come home all night we would move heaven and earth to find him."

His most heart-warming case occurred a couple of months ago when a girl walked into his office and said "I want to find my father."

She had been born out of wedlock and raised by an aunt. As she grew up she heard scraps of information about her father, his name and occupation and what he looked like. She learned that he had moved to Vancouver.

But, she told Det. Smith: "I've never seen him."

It took a while, but the policeman found the father and left him alone with the girl. He returned to find them both crying, holding each other tightly.

"This has changed my whole life," the father said.

"I'm taking my daughter to dinner."

Danes Worry Over Means to Enforce Limits

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Denmark is gravely worried over means for enforcing its new fishery limit, due to be extended to 12 from three miles June 1, along Greenland's 25,000-mile coastline.

Denmark does not have enough ships to police the enlarged area and the three available navy cutters lack the required radar and navigational equipment to detect "poachers."

Rear-Admiral J. T. S. Munter, the top Danish naval officer in Greenland, says enforcement of the new limit is "problematical."

The inspection problem was one of the main factors which caused the government to delay the new limits two months. The 12-mile limit was originally planned for April 1.

For a seven-year period, until 1970, trawlers from nations with "historic rights" to fish in Greenland waters will be allowed to fish the six- to 12-mile zone. These nations, according to a bill put before the Danish parliament recently, include Britain, France, West Germany, Spain, Portugal, Norway and Iceland.

Denmark's move to widen the limits has been welcomed by Greenland which depends mainly on fisheries for its income.

Well-equipped foreign vessels at present take the major share of the total catch in Greenland waters. While Greenlanders brought home about 45,000 tons of fish in 1961, the foreign ships caught 414,000 tons.

Creeping Inflation in U.S. Could Spread to Canada

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

As more U.S. Steel companies join the parade towards higher prices on selected products, the problem confronting the U.S. government is how to prevent creeping inflation from spreading throughout the economy and into export markets where it can affect the economies of other countries.

Industrial prices have been fairly steady in the United States for the last six years and a few scattered price increases in the steel industry might not cause any major change.

But steel is basic to the economy—a trend-maker in prices—and it is unlikely that the success or failure of the steel industry's new price pattern will go unnoticed by other industry —and labor as well.

President Kennedy used all the weapons at his command last year to prevent a general steel industry price boost and the announced 96-a-ton increase was rescinded. The biggest Kennedy advisers maintain it would be difficult to prove collusion in the current price increases, since they are selective, gradual and unilateral.

In all likelihood, the steel industry's price increases will stick. Kennedy appears to be trying to avoid a new battle, perhaps because of the heated political repercussions of his fight last year and perhaps because of an earnest desire to remain popular as he seeks a second term in 1964.

THE BIG OUTCRY

The big political outcry against Kennedy is that he has not made good his promise to move the U.S. economy out of threatened stagnation. He has proposed income tax cuts as one way of stimulating the economy. But Congress is showing no enthusiasm for quick action on his proposals.

A mild dose of inflation possibly could also stir the economy as manufacturers buy up more supplies of basic materials as hedge against still higher prices in the future. Steelmakers and others are likely to increase their profits. And organized labor is unlikely to restrain higher wage demands in the face of higher earnings by management.

Kennedy's own economic advisers recognized the problem earlier this year when they stated that if the 1962 price increase had not been rescinded "it would have caused and invited other price increases throughout the economy. It would have led organized labor to adopt a new militancy in its wage demands; and it would have seriously weakened the forces working toward the restoration of our international competitive position."

CAN EXPORT INFLATION

The problem for Canada in facing U.S. inflationary and deflationary trends is that they are not contained. Because it is the world's most powerful economy and the greatest international trader, the U.S. is able to export inflation just as it is able to export unemployment.

If U.S. markets sag, Canadians feel the drag on their exports. If prices on key U.S. commodities rise, Canadian importers also feel the burden on their wallets.

Canada has a growing steel industry of its own but still depends on the United States for part of its steel needs, including heavy machinery and other products not made in Canada. If prices of these commodities rise in the United States, it is difficult to keep them from rising in Canada.

Any general increase in U.S. domestic prices—reducing U.S. competitiveness with suppliers in other countries — may also give way to increased U.S. demands for protection against imports.

It is not likely that Kennedy would yield easily on such demands. His publicized drive is towards lower transatlantic tariffs and increased trade. But it is a question of whether he would risk antagonizing any major block of voters at home if it came to a major test before a presidential election in 1964.

The venerable joints of Windsor's hockey "dog house" are creaking groans of appreciation these sunset days of the hockey season.

The senior "A" Bulldogs have been aboard the Gravy Train continuously since they copped their league championship and proceeded to sweep aside Eastern Canada opposition en route to Allan Cup glory and gold.

Not since the "good old days" when the Belleville McFarlands bussed from this city to Chatham, from Chatham to Kitchener and from Kitchener to Windsor on a weekend puck safari has the Bulldogs "Barn" echoed to the cheers of thousands.

When senior hockey in Ontario and other parts of the country for that matter slipped to the brink of oblivion, the Bulldogs with the rest took it on the financial chin.

As a matter of fact the situation is not too healthy yet. Western Ontario optimists backed by the Ontario Hockey Association brass took the plunge back into the stormy waters of salaried players.

Reports from that part of Ontario had it that Windsor and Chatham were the only clubs to have a modicum of success. The rest, including Sarnia, which folded midway through the season, ran into financial roadblocks.

Be that as it may. The Bulldogs apparently hit a financial upsurgence when they entered the loop playoffs with the Chatham Maroons. Both clubs played to good crowds which should have had some effect on the proper side of the ledgers.

Returns were reported good from the Kenora-Nor anda series with the Windsor fans rallying to the box office call of a club reported the best since the battle days of the late fifties.

Despite the hockey glut of the Border cities with the Detroit Red Wings in the throes of National Hockey League playoffs, the Bulldogs pulled in a goodly share of the fan fare.

In the Moncton Hawks Eastern Canada finals the Dogs pranced to their first Eastern Canada championship before crowds reported to be in the vicinity of 3,000 plus.

The current Bulldogs are the first Windsor team to ever advance to the Dominion hockey final and they claim the club hasn't lost three games in a row all season nor have they lost three straight at home to the same team in years.

They meet the Winnipeg Maroons in the seven-game Allan Cup finals with all games being played in Windsor.

Coach Harry Watson, highly optimistic over the showing of his "kennel" in all series thus far and particularly against the powerful Maritime champions, feels that his charges stand an excellent chance of giving the time-honored Dominion bauble its first Windsor resting place in history.

He has a sturdy goalie in Rutledge and a strong behind-the-blueline corps in Mitchell, Begin, Hillman, Micallef and Foster. His up-front shock troops form a high scoring aggregation with such snipers and passers as Tommy Walker, Irvin Gresse, Jerry Serviss, Captain Lou Beado, Costello, Joe Klukay, Josephson, Pawlyshyn and Asselin rounding out a highly-efficient offensive brigade.

The Winnipeg Maroons, dubbed by their fans the "Red Wreckers," roared back to defeat the Saskatoon Quakers for the western title and the other Allan Cup berth. They are the only senior club in Manitoba and are said to be a "conglomeration of old pros and former juniors."

They are mentored by playing coach and former Maple Leaf Bill Juzda, and boast such former pros as Reg Abbott, Aggie Kukulowicz, Chuck Lamadeo, back from the American Hockey League and Gary Aldcorn who had a tour with Toronto, Boston and Detroit.

The Cup series opens in Windsor on Friday night and the fickle crystal ball foretells the Dogs to take the series, the gold and the glory in six games.

Int. League Curtain Raised

Toronto Loses Opener 2-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Opening night does not a season make, but International League baseball inaugurals may indicate that a lot of the reorganized circuit's strength resides in the Southern Division.

Teams forming the Southern tier scored a sweep of the first set of games Tuesday night when Atlanta shaded Syracuse 2-1, Jacksonville edged Toronto 3-2 in 11 innings, Little Rock topped Rochester 4-2, Indianapolis whipped Buffalo 9-6 and Columbus beat Richmond 9-2.

Veterans played major roles as the oldest league in the manors began its 80th campaign.

Joe Morgan's pitchoff single in the last of the ninth delivered pinch-runner Lou Vickery with Atlanta's winning run against Syracuse. Rookie Jeoff Long, a highly regarded St. Louis farmhand, drove in the first Crackerjack singles.

run with a single, and his triple opened the ninth.

Jacksonville's veteran Tony Washington, who hadn't hit one out of the infield in four previous turns at bat, lashed a double in the 11th inning to give defending champion Jacksonville its margin over Toronto. A ninth-inning home run by Buddy Barker enabled the Suns to get the Iidlifter into overtime.

Billy Smith, who won his last seven decisions at Buffalo in 1962, picked up where he left off with a dazzling four-hitter for Little Rock in the Travelers' victory over Rochester.

Indianapolis, the other new IL entry and 1962 American Association champions, cuffed six Buffalo pitchers for 11 hits. Buffalo veteran Ed Bouchee drove in four runs with three singles.

Imlach 'On Limb'; Take Cup Thursday

By BILL MacDOUGALL

DETROIT (CP) — Punch Imlach, a notorious advocate of playing hockey one game at a time, has finally crawled out on a limb.

After his Toronto Maple Leafs belted Detroit Red Wings 4-2 Tuesday night, the manager-coach predicted they will wrap up their second straight Stanley Cup Thursday.

"If they don't, they're a bunch of doughheads."

Since the Leafs enjoy a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven series and Thursday's hostilities take place in the friendly confines of Maple Leaf Gardens, Imlach deserves few medals for bravery. But he could hardly be blamed for crowing.

The Wings gave it their all—some Detroit players admitted it quietly in their dressing room after the game. Gordie Howe, the always dependable right winger who, in his words, "was lousy" in the first three games, was a standout.

"Sure it hurt us," said Detroit manager-coach Sid Abel of the loss before 13,971 fans at Detroit Olympia.

OLD JOHN SHINES

The Leaf who did most to frustrate the Wings was the old pest player in the National Hockey League — goaltender Johnny Bower. The veteran netminder, listed by the record books as 38 and by many observers as more than 40, made 38 saves in stalling a spirited Detroit attack.

Bower's only miscue came on the first goal, a shot by Howe from just inside the Toronto blueline. The Leaf goaltender tried to get his glove on it, but missed.

Howe also had an assist on the Wings' second goal, by rookie Ed Joyal. Red Kelly, a former Red Wing, scored two goals for Leafs. George Armstrong and Dave Keon, the latter with an assist from Detroit centre Norm Ullman, were the other Toronto marksmen.

Keon's goal, at 9:42, of the third period, proved to be the winner. Ullman's skate happened to be in the right place at the right time to deflect the puck into the net after the Leaf centre had dipsy-doodled among several Red Wings.

TWO ERRORS COSTLY

Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby had one of his best games of the playoffs — except on two plays. Each one cost the Wings a goal.

Gadsby fell to his knees trying to stop Kelly's shot on the redhead's first goal, at 17:41 of the first period. Joyal, closely screened Detroit goaltender Terry Sawchuk and the puck whizzed by him.

In the third period, Leaf centre Bob Pulford was about to break through the Wings' defence, but Gadsby grabbed him. While he was off for a holding penalty, Kelly got his second goal. That was at 17:45 and boosted the score to 4-2 out of reach for Detroit.

Keon was instrumental in Armstrong's goal. He dug the puck from behind the Detroit net and passed from the corner in front of the goal. The Leaf captain whacked it past Sawchuk at 1:17 of the second period.

PUNCH PRAISES KEON

Imlach had nothing but praise for Keon after the game. He called him Leafs' most valuable player and added:

"If I was asked to pick one, I'd have to take him. I wouldn't trade him for Gordie Howe. He's young—23—and can do everything."

Joyal helped set up his own goal at 2:38 of the second period He zig-zagged within shooting distance, but Bower stopped the puck. Seconds later it came to the rookie behind the net and with Bower flat on the ice well out of the goal, Joyal whipped his stick around the side of the net and neatly jucked the puck in.

If the Leafs fail to justify Imlach's optimism Thursday, the sixth game of the series will be played here Sunday night. A seventh game would be played in Toronto next Tuesday.

Badminton Club 62-3 Champs

The Garrison Badminton Club came down the curtain on another highly successful season last week.

Champions in three divisions were declared, trophies awarded and a new slate of officers elected.

A club spokesman said that the calibre of play in both "A" and "B" classes was exceptionally good with some surprising upsets being noted.

A highlight of the season was the play of two "freshmen", Pat Wanamaker and Sharon Morton, who in their first year captured the "B" Class ladies' doubles.

"They showed remarkable adaptibility to the sport and came up with real competitive spirit," said the spokesman.

The championship matches were keenly contested and productive of close exciting play.

Two veterans of the club, Bill Bonnell and Herb Grew, captured the "A" Class men's doubles with former champions Billie Waldron and Loreen Potts winning the ladies' doubles.

Miss Waldron teamed with Herb Grew to take the mixed doubles honors of the class while Helen Law and Bob Emmerson took the consolation award.

As was mentioned the Misses Wanamaker and Morton won the "B" Class ladies' doubles with Ted Laidley and Jim Jones taking home the men's doubles award.

Mr. Laidley repeated in the mixed doubles teaming with Lois Spencer to take the title. Mary Jo and Leo Fortin won the consolation honors.

At the subsequent general meeting new ideas were considered for improving the club. These will be tried out next season.

While membership in the club has been good, a full slate facilities are such that 25 new members can be accommodated next year.

The election of officers for the coming year saw Doug Law taking over the presidency with Merv Potts the vice-president. The treasurer is Fred Wanamaker and secretary Eve Lacy. Directors are Alwyn Geen, Billie Waldon and Betty Walmsley.

The closing dance of the season will be held in the Bridge Street Armouries Officers' Mess early in May when the presentation of trophies will be made.

Cups, Paper And Firecrackers

Irate Detroit Fans Pelt Leafs

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

DETROIT (CP)—Even Red Kelly, once one of their favorite sons, wasn't spared abuse in a wild demonstration by name-calling Detroit hockey fans Tuesday-night.

Kelly, one of the mildest mannered players in the National Hockey League—and a Detroit Red Wing for 12½ years before joining Toronto Maple Leafs in 1960—shared the taunts as the Leafs went to their dressing room.

Toronto had just handed Detroit a 4-2 loss to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

As Leafs left the ice, someone in the stands hurled a giant firecracker in their direction. But that was only a start.

The crowd closed in around the walkway to the Toronto dressing room and pelted the Leafs with paper cups, balls of paper and programs. Defenceman Carl Brewer was hit in the face with a cup. Eddie Shack was hit dangerously near the eye with a hard ball of paper.

RAISES STICK

Brewer raised his stick in defiance and the crowd fell back. Then Frank Mahovlich chased Leaf trainer Punch Imlach into the dressing room before anything serious happened.

A punch could well have turned the scene into a riot. Kelly, Liberal member of Parliament for York West when he isn't centring Mahovlich and Dan Stewart, stopped to enter the verbal battle.

Later, when Leaf trainer Punch Imlach tried to conduct a press conference in the lobby, a husky youth tried to pick a fight with a Toronto reporter.

The fans interfered with reporters trying to question Imlach over the din. A reporter and a fan nearly came to blows.

"You've seen your last game of the season," yelled Imlach, suggesting Toronto will win the series Thursday night in Toronto. "Why don't you go home?"

Nine Hits In Nine Years

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — "Nine hits in nine years. Not bad. I'm hitting 1.000."

Hank Aguirre smiled as he talked to the press Tuesday. He had just broken a hitless string that stretched back to last Aug. 23 and had sent his lifetime average soaring to .067. The hit was minuscule-sized, a swinging bunt that travelled about 10 feet. But the bases were loaded and three runs scored when Clete Boyer threw the ball wildly past first.

"Why did you stop at first?" a fellow asked the Tigers' pitcher, who went the route to a 7-2 victory over New York Yankees.

"I got so interested watching the men score I forgot," he said. Actually he lost track of the ball after he threw and decided to scamper back to first.

"That was my second hit off Whitey Ford. The other was in 1960. I really hit him good."

Aguirre had two hits last year, one against the Yanks' Jim Bouton and a three-run left-handed for the first-and last time. Two days later the Yanks sent Reniff to the minors.

"You can draw your own conclusions," Aguirre remarked at the time.

'Poor Time To Quit'

Blake Back in Old Spot

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

DETROIT, Mich. (CP)—Toe Blake will definitely be back as coach of Montreal Canadiens next season but only because the team made a poor showing in this year's Stanley Cup semi-final.

Here to watch the final series between Toronto Maple Leafs, who eliminated Montreal four games to one, and Detroit Red Wings, Blake said in an interview:

"Mr. Selke (Frank Selke, managing director of the Canadiens) said this would be a poor time to quit."

Blake said after the semi-finals he didn't feel he was getting through to the players.

"I still don't feel I was getting through to the players," said Blake Tuesday. "When you coach so long it's hard to reach them. I don't think I was a good coach this year."

Blake said if he had quit coaching it wouldn't necessarily have meant the end to his hockey career.

UPSTAIRS JOB?

"I might have gone into another line in the business," he said, but he didn't say whether this would be an upstairs job with the Canadiens or with another National Hockey League team.

"I don't see any management openings on the other clubs," he said. "Maybe with some minor league team, who knows?"

One story here said Blake wants to go out a winner and that if Montreal should win the Stanley Cup next season, he would definitely quit.

"That's silly," said Blake, "I would never tell my players I'm coaching for only one year."

Three-Way Top Tie

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Even for a pitcher, Hank Aguirre of Detroit Tigers is a feeble hitter.

Last year he hit .027.

Against New York Yankees Tuesday, Aguirre got his first hit of the new season, and his ninth in nine years in the majors.

It went about 10 feet down the third base line, but it came with the bases loaded. Yankee third baseman Clete Boyer, apparently startled by this offensive display, picked the ball up and threw it wild past first base. Before the dust had settled three runs were home.

The Tigers went on to whip the Yankees 7-2 and move into a three-way tie for first place in the American League.

Kansas City Athletics gained a share of the lead with the Tigers and Yankees by winning their fourth straight, 7-4 over Chicago White Sox. All three teams have 4-2 records.

TWIRLS TWO-HITTER

In other American League games, Cleveland Indians shut out Washington Senators 3-0 on Sam McDowell's two - hitter, Boston Red Sox set back Baltimore Orioles 6-1 and Minnesota Twins won a weird one from Los Angeles Angels, 11-10 in 13 innings.

Whitey Ford was the victim of Aguirre's "blast," and took his second defeat of the year without a victory. He is the only Yankee pitcher to lose so far.

After two unearned runs in his first inning, the Tigers loaded the bases in the third with two out on singles by Rocky Colavito and Bubba Phillips, plus a walk. Then Boyer threw Aguirre's topped roller away.

Doubles by Jake Wood and Billy Bruton completed a five-run inning.

The injured Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle both were missing from the Yankee line-up.

BOWSFIELD WINS FIRST

Gino Cimoli carried the big bat for the Athletics with three RBI, and left Ted Bowsfield of Penticton, B.C. scored his first victory, with ninth inning relief from John Wyatt.

McDowell pitched his first complete game in the major, striking out 13. The 20-year-old left - hander was matched by Claude Osteen for the Senators until Woodie Held hit a leadoff homer in the seventh.

Dick Stuart made his Boston debut, and immediately made friends with the crazy left field wall. His three-run homer off Robin Roberts in the sixth inning was the big blow behind Bill Monbouquette's five-hitter.

At Minnesota, the Angels and the Twins struggled for four hours and 47 minutes. The Angels used nine pitchers, the Twins eight, for a major league record of 17. There were nine errors, six by the Angels, and 33 hits.

Five times the Twins overcame Angel leads. Eli Grba, the ninth Angel hurler, walked home the winning run with the bases full in the 13th.

Seven Called In National Yesterday

Balk-Happy Umpires Top Base-Stealers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

National League umpires are bellowing "balk" with such frequency they're advancing base runners as consistently as are the batters.

Seven balks were called in the National League Tuesday, bringing the total to 30 in 32 games. For the same period of the 1962 season there were only four. Not one balk has been called in the American League.

The scorecard showed five balk calls at San Francisco, where the Giants whipped Houston Colts 7-0 behind Billy Pierce's six-hitter. Two were called at Pittsburgh as St. Louis Cardinals edged the Pirates 4-3.

Chicago Cubs handed Los Angeles Dodgers their fourth setback in the last five games, 2-1 in 12 innings. Warren Spahn's four - hitter gave Milwaukee Braves an 8-0 decision over Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati Reds made it seven straight losses for New York Mets, 7-4.

Houston Manager Harry Craft and pitching coach Cot Deal suggested that umpire Augie Donatelli make a stop watch part of his standard equipment when they questioned the third balk call against Colt pitchers. The suggestion was not well taken, and Craft and Deal were thrown out.

AUGIE'S TEAM TOPS

Donatelli called seven balks last Saturday when Pittsburgh played at Cincinnati. The Donatelli team has called 14 of the 30 balks in the NL so far. The NHL and major leagues record for balks is 76 set in 1950.

Said Craft:

"It all comes down to the interpretation of what is one second. They don't have stop watches."

Pierce, called for two balks, and no complaints. He remained unbeaten at Candlestick Park, with his 14th straight regular season victory. The 37-year-old left-hander struck out six while walking three before 40,782 attending the home opener of the National League champs. The Giants put it out of reach with four runs in the first inning, two coming home on a double by Felipe Alou.

The Cardinals came up with two runs in the last of the ninth to give rookie Harry Fanok his first major league victory. Dick Carmel's first major league homer, a pitch-hit off loser Ernie Face, tied the score before the clincher came across on a double by Curt Flood and an error. Stan Musial accounted for his 6,000th total base, — a record—with an eighth inning single.

DROPS FLY BALL

The Cubs scored the tie breaker against Ed Roebuck on a two-base error by Willie Davis on Billy Williams' fly, an infield hit by Ron Santo and a sacrifice fly by Ernie Banks. Banks accounted for Chicago's first run with a fifth inning homer.

Spahn won his 329th game and posted his 56th career shutout while Eddie Mathews reached one of baseball's highest plateaus with his 400th major league homer.

The Reds struck for five runs on five hits, including a key double by Gordy Coleman, in the fifth inning to take a lead they never lose against the Mets. Duke Snider, who collected his 2,000th hit in the second inning, hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

Baseball Common Leveller

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) Governor Orval Faubus of Arkansas threw out the first ball Tuesday night at the first desegregated baseball game ever played in Little Rock.

Seven hundred Negroes were among the estimated 7,000 fans at the game, the first International League game here. There were no incidents.

Little Rock' joined the enlarged minor league this season. Several other teams in the league insisted on desegregated seating at Little Rock. The league has many Negro players.

Faubus was the centre of the Little Rock school desegregation controversy in 1957.

Little Rock, called the Arkansas Travelers, beat Rochester Red Wings 4-2.

Criticize Airwaves Bans

OTTAWA (CP) — The indefinite suspension by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association of the rights of two Saskatchewan sportscasters to broadcast CAHA games was criticized Tuesday by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

The criticism was contained in a statement issued by T. J. Allard, executive vice - president, following the suspension ordered Monday by Art Potter of Edmonton, CAHA president.

The two broadcasters are Ken Newans of radio station CHAB in Moose Jaw and Linus Westberg of CKOS-TV in Yorkton.

Potter said in a statement that the suspensions were brought about by improper use of broadcast privileges in the junior hockey game in Edmonton Saturday by continously and severely criticizing officials, thereby giving an erroneous picture of the game as played."

Mr. Allard's statement:

"In our view any reporter has the right and the duty to report a game as he sees it and any commentator, whether acting for a newspaper, a broadcasting station or as an individual citizen, has the right to comment freely on any public spectacle as he sees it.

"We do not see that Mr. Potter, however well intentioned, is in any position to 'suspend' these fundamental rights. Moreover, the two gentlemen named in his statement are employees of broadcasting stations—not of the CAHA.

"It is difficult, therefore, to see just what authority anyone other than the two broadcasting stations possesses. It would, we believe, be a most unfortunate development if any loss of the right to report events and to comment freely on them, as long as these comments are within the law of the land, was in any way curtailed or even threatened by anyone."

3 Million Suit Faces Promoters

NEW YORK (AP)—Two representatives of a Nevada concern filed a $3,000,000 suit Tuesday against Championship Sports Incorporated alleging irregularities in funds used to help promote last year's heavyweight title fight between Floyd Patterson and Sonny Liston.

Martin W. Smith and David J. Reiner claimed Championship Sports caused the plaintiffs' assets to be wasted and diverted.

The suit was filed in federal court in behalf of the two men individually and also for Graff, Reiner and Smith Enterprises Incorporated, a Nevada corporation which had a contract covering television rights.

Named as defendants were Championship Sports, Thomas A. Bolan, Roy M. Cohn, Frederic H. Brooks and Graff, Reiner and Smith Enterprises.

According to the complaint, Smith and Reiner, with Sheldon Graff, obtained exploitation rights for radio, films and closed - circuit television from Championship Sports, which promoted the Sept. 25 fight in Chicago.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Ontario youngsters, skating heart and lung out in a bid to capture top honors in the annual Young Canada Week peewee hockey tourna ment, continued in close, hard-fought play Tuesday that has become the country's tradem ark since competition got under way last Friday.

Typical of the fight action which has seen 28 of the first 29 games settled by three goals or less was Leamington's 3-1 victory over Renfrew in a series play launched Tuesday.

Also highlighting Tuesday's play were victories by Delhi and Hespeler in the B series and Lindsay in the A round.

Delhi, runnerup in for the OMHA B title, beat Elmira on shots on goal of 18-13 after tying 2-2, then clamped down on Stoney Creek for a 9-4 win.

Lindsay defeated Preston 7-3 and later wrenched a 3-1 victory out of Brampton.

Brampton whipped St. Thomas 7-1 and Tillsonburg edged Goderich 3-1 in other A series games.

King of the Hill

Horace Ormshaw of Trenton, is still King and he retained his title the hard way by outscoring a field of 26 top calibre bowlers from Belleville and district.

Ormshaw's 5-game total was 1415 with games of 281 - 302 - 329 - 292 and 213. His closest competitor was Ron Saylor with 1340. Saylor was the most recent king.

The closest effort to the slight jackpot of gold was the seven strikes put in by Leo St. Louis. The eight in a row pot now stands at $24.75.

Third, fourth and fifth positions were taken by Joe Charrand, (Cobourg) 1272; Cecil Gerow, (Brighton) 1223; and Leo St. Louis 1201.

300 games were rolled by Joe DeGenova 311, Leo St. Louis 308 and Horace Ormshaw 302 - 323.

GET SENDOFF

TORONTO (CP)—A crowd of about 150 persons gathered at Malton Airport Tuesday to wave off Canada's Pan-American Games team as it left for the Games in Sao Paulo, Brazil, Wednesday night and 35 athletes and officials boarded the flight. Another 65 are either on their way or will soon follow.

At The Park

"Diamond Head" In Color Starts Friday

When Charlton Heston closed the book on the last page of "Diamond Head," Peter Gibson's best-selling novel of racial conflict in Hawaii, he promptly phoned waiting producer Jerry Bresler and agreed to play the character of "King" Howland in Bresler's planned screen production of the giant story. A Columbia Pictures release in Panavision and Eastman Color, "Diamond Head" is now at the Park Theatre starring Heston, Yvette Mimieux, George Chakiris who won the Academy Award for his work in "West Side Story," France Nuyen as Mei Chen, James Darren and co-stars Allyn Mac-Mahon and Elizabeth Allen.

What especially pleased Heston about the Howland role in "Diamond Head" was the fact that, after being bearded and costumed through "The Ten Commandments," "Ben - Hur" and "El Cid," it offered him a welcome chance to play a modern-day giant in riding boots and a Manahiki hat. As "King" Howland, he is a domineering empire-builder unable to control either his family or his emotions; he can sustain a romantic liaison with Mei Chen but he challenges the young owner sister's love affairs with Darren and, later, with Chakiris; they play brothers of Hawaian descent.

Heston starred in school plays at Northwestern University and emerged with an all-consuming ambition, je maker himself a talented professional actor. His record of accomplishment includes work in radio, TV, the stage and motion pictures — in the best and most dramatic tradition of determination. He won the Academy Award as best actor of the year for his performance as "Ben-Hur," then added his time for months until the right story with the right role came along. That story was "El Cid." Now, for Heston, the "right" story is "Diamond Head."

Guy Green directed "Diamond Head" from the screen play by Marguerite Roberts.

Steve and Eydie Solve Career, Family Conflicts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Lawrence is a popular singer, much in demand for television guest shots. Eydie Gorme is a popular singer, much in demand for television guest shots. Steve and Eydie also are married couple with two children, a state of affairs which presents real problems in logistics and bookings for two young people who want to pursue two separate careers.

"Neither one of us wants to be identified just as half of a team," says Steve. "But there are problems when we play the night clubs."

The Lawrences have solved their career and family conflicts by a simple device: They appear as soloists on television; they sign as a team for night-club appearances.

"Works out pretty well," says Steve. "We're away from home—New York City—about half the time, and then we take the children with us. We've found people in nightclubs are happy to see us together because we don't — very often — appear together on television. And when we go, it's like moving a small army—a nurse and all the paraphernalia for two small boys, aged three and 11 months."

Lawrence will appear—solo—next Tuesday on the Garry Moore variety show and will turn up a month hence on the Ed Sullivan Show.

At the Belle

Presley's "Girls! Girls! Girls!" sparkles with Fine Entertainment

Tuneful music plus a fine romantic story brings Elvis Presley to the Belle Theatre in a romantic entertainment melange that should please all moviegoers, as witness the highly appreciative audience that greeted the singing star on Monday and Tuesday of his latest 20th Century Fox production for Paramount release, "Girls! Girls! Girls!" Norman Taurog deserves plaudits for his expert direction of the film in which Presley's Frenchnicolor, which enhances the many outdoor scenes and musical numbers adding extra zest to the motion picture.

Presley portrays the role of the easy-going fisherman boat who, to earn money to purchase the sea craft gets a job singing in a night club and his day's work on the water. Stella Stevens, svelte film charmer, carries the torch for Presley who's true love is in his boat. However, love takes a twist when a charming newcomer, Laurel Goodwin comes on the scene, and the lovelight goes in both their faces, to the chagrin of Miss Stevens.

There's action, romance and humor before the situation resolves to the intimation of Presley's marriage to Miss Goodwin. Let it be said here and now that Miss Goodwin is the most appealing and talented young performer (she makes her screen debut in "Girls! Girls! Girls!") to come from Hollywood in many a screen moon. Also entertaining in the film with Presley, is Jeremy Slate, who owns the boat Presley is in love with, and Jack Mullaney, the villain of the film.

Taurog, who directed Presley in two previous highly successful Wallis-Presley productions, "G. I. Blues" and Blue Hawaii" and "Girls! Girls! Girls!" with finesse and insight to bring out the best of the people cast which also includes Benson Fong, Robert Strauss, Guy Lee, Frank Puglia and the Tiu family (Ginny, the young china doll who makes her film debut; Elizabeth, and Alexander the latter appearing in the finale with his sisters). And of course, there is a bevy of beauties in the cast for added appeal.

Oblath's Eatery Remains Homey, Unpretentious Place

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—French film workers at the Bologne studios were puzzled recently when the American trade papers on Paris When It Sizzles laughed about a sign on the studio cafe.

It read: "Oblath's de Bologne."

This sort of thing has been going on for years. When Cecil B. DeMille was shooting The 10 Commandments in Egypt, a Hollywood crew member turned up with a sandwich board advertising: Eat your Thanksgiving dinner at Oblath's.

And once on the Emperor Waltz location at Banff, Alta., the local tavern turned up with a sign Chateau d'Oblath.

While the Oblath legend is ubiquitous, Oblath's has stayed in place. Two, really. Joe Oblath started his eatery opposite the old Famous Players-Lasky studio at Vine and Sunset just 40 years ago. In 1926, he moved to the site at Gower Street where the studio relocated and became Paramount.

The faces change, but Oblath's doesn't. It remains a homey, unpretentious place where studio workers can get a quick bite or belt before going back to the movie grind.

Joe Oblath now is 85. He and his wife recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. They have eased into retirement and the place now is operated by their sons, George and Joe. I dropped by after the lunch crush to learn more about their landmark.

In these transitional days of Hollywood, it is pleasant to find a local institution with a degree of stability.

"Some of our waitresses have been here since 1928," says George.

Eastern Bowlers Confident

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Eastern keglers, leading in three of five presets going into today's annual Canadian Presets bowling championship finals, are optimistic about their chances of capturing the Tommy Ryan grand aggregate trophy.

The West holds a one-point advantage over the East, having walked off with the trophy three times since it was established in 1959.

Dick Thompson of Fort William carries the West's hopes in the men's singles. He rolled up a 33-point lead over Cec Crane of Ingersoll, Ont., Tuesday.

In mixed play, Vancouver led Hamilton 6,370-6,042.

The men's team series wound up its first five games with Don McLean's Toronto group leading the Vancouver entry 6,328-6,197. The East also led in the women's team, with Hamilton counting 5,924 to Edmonton's 5,712.

Astrological Forecasts

By SIDNEY OMARR

FOR APRIL 18

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Day when disagreements, disputes flare into open. Be diplomatic. Refuse to take sides. Wait for dust to settle, especially where family differences arise. Be conservative, understanding.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Temptation is to speed, to act on impulse. Act on reason, not emotion. Too much chance to make costly errors. Analyze situations, persons, motives. Postpone legal steps.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Necessary to give of yourself. Bring creative forces to fore. Self-expression essential. Let others know your opinions, thoughts. Display talents, abilities. Place yourself in picture.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): If you are resentful about recent money arrangement, get it off your chest today. Don't permit it to "smoulder." Intelligent discussion much better than hidden resentment, frustration.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Hold back on claims, boasts, threats, promises. Cycle retrograde. Which means better for thinking, planning, than for direct action. Listen to way public reacts. Welcome legal counsel.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Regard love and truth as more than mere words, especially where family members are concerned. Make strong effort to straighten out any misunderstandings. Aim for harmony.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Do more listening than talking. Others have point to make. Tendency to discard caution should be overcome. Delay final decisions. Conditions subject to change.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Look up facts. Check sources. Don't be satisfied with half-truths. Get complete story. Be there in person. No day to trust second-hand reports. Be thorough. Some associates are apt to be superficial, careless today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Check correspondence, notes, instructions. Be watchful of typographical errors. Make sure your own meaning is clear. Take responsibility for personal actions. But don't bear too-large burden of others today.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Very good for business, social, family meeting. Don't try to "buy" your way into favor. Be cautious with money matters. Adhere to resolutions, promises.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Read Taurus message. Much in your favor if you "call your shots." Take the initiative. Don't let others push you into corner. Avoid associates with axe to grind who may try to involve you.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Extra-curricular activity pays off. Means take time to visit, pay respects, offer help, congratulations and co-operation. Time on your side. Don't be rushed, pushed or bullied.

If Today Is Your Birthday . . . you would make excellent nurse, doctor, architect, author. Your feelings toward actions are universal.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. Special word to Leo: Losing temper today could be very costly.

"Well, I see nobody forgot that today is payday."

Canada's Output Up 8 Per Cent, Best Since 1956

Higher Prices Account For Quarter of Rise

OTTAWA (CP)—The value of Canada's national output rose eight per cent last year in the largest annual advance since the boom year of 1956, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The bureau's summing up of 1962 economic progress put gross national product—value of all goods and services produced—at $40,401,000,000 compared with the revised 1961 figure of $37,421,000,000.

Higher prices accounted for about one-quarter of the increase. The volume of production rose 6.2 per cent, with gross national product measured in constant 1957 dollars rising to $37,186,000,000 from $35,023,000,000.

Last year's economic growth compares with the rise of 2.5 per cent in gross national product in 1956—sparked largely by a huge capital investment—when the volume of production rose 8.6 per cent.

Today's report showed a slowing down in the rate of growth in the final quarter of last year, indicating that the business upswing that began in the spring of 1961 was levelling out.

Gross national product advanced 1.2 per cent in the last three months of 1962 to an annual rate, seasonally adjusted, of $41,252,000,000 compared with $40,756,000,000 in the second quarter.

Half of that final quarter gain was due to higher prices, with the volume of output rising half of one per cent. The bureau said this was the smallest volume rise since the upswing began in 1961.

UPHOLD PREDICTIONS

Today's report bore out predictions by the Progressive Conservative government that GNP last year gained eight per cent. But government spokesmen said over-estimated the volume gain. Former trade minister George Hees, in a year-end statement, had put the gain in volume of production at seven per cent.

Consumer spending was the major factor behind the 1962 expansion, rising 5.2 per cent. Personal disposable income after taxes rose eight per cent and the volume of personal savings jumped by more than 50 per cent.

Capital investment advanced 4.8 per cent. Exports of goods and services rose 7.8 per cent, outstripping a 3.7-per-cent rise in imports.

Government spending was another expansive factor, rising 7.2 per cent, mainly reflecting larger outlays by provincial and municipal governments.

UNEMPLOYMENT UP JUST 4,000 OVER FEBRUARY

Mid-March Figures Below Those of '62

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada stood at 549,000 in mid-March, barely changed from the previous month, the bureau of statistics and labor department said today in a joint statement.

The mid-March jobless count was 4,000 higher than the mid-February total. The statement said the change between the two months followed the usual pattern.

The total was 11,000 lower than the 560,000 unemployed in March last year.

It represented 8.4 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.7 per cent in March, 1962, and 11.1 per cent in March, 1961. There was no change in the 8.4-per-cent unemployment rate between February and March.

The statement said that farm employment increased by 24,000 with the approach of spring, but this was offset by a slight decline in employment in non-farm industries, mainly because of reduced work in forestry during the spring break-up.

The result was that employment remained relatively stable at 5,963,000, compared with 5,951,000 in February and 5,894,000 in March, 1962.

LABOR FORCE HIGHER

The labor force stood at 6,512,000, compared with 6,496,000 a month earlier and 6,454,000 a year earlier. The year-to-year increase in the labor force was under one per cent, which is less than half the average annual rate of increase in the last decade. In contrast, employment rose over the year by 1.2 per cent.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

| | Mar-Feb. Mar. | 1962 Mar. |
|---|---|---|
| Labor force | 5,512 | 6,496 6,454 |
| Employed | 5,963 | 5,951 5,894 |
| Unemployed | 549 | 545 560 |

The report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across

TO FORM GOVERNMENT — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson announces he has been asked by the governor-general to form a government. ## GAMBLING CLUBS HARD HIT BY LEGISLATION

Crackdown Bill Is Introduced

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation enabling Provincial Secretary Yaremko to crackdown on organized gambling in Ontario has been introduced in the legislature.

Mr. Yaremko said Wednesday the measures will enable his department to cancel the charter of any club "used for illegal purposes."

Commenting outside the House, Mr. Yaremko said the amendments to the Corporations Act and the Corporations Information Act "might not close up all the loopholes for gamblers, but they leave him very little ground within which he can operate."

His recommendations followed a report by Mr. Justice W. B. Roach following a one-man royal commission into organized crime in the province.

Mr. Justice Roach said there had been an "alarming upsurge in organized gambling" since the 1940s and this was "carried on in premises ostensibly occupied and operated by incorporated social clubs."

CAN CANCEL CHARTERS

Mr. Yaremko said the "bars and bolts" clause, in effect since 1950, which permits cancellation of any charter of a club equipped with barricades to prevent police entry, will be written into every charter, regardless of date of issue.

The amendments also give him the power to initiate hearings to which he can subpoena witnesses and documents and increase the time limit in which

Pearson Plans No Major Cabinet-Forming Reforms

OTTAWA (CP)—All indications point to Lester Pearson's new Liberal party cabinet following traditional Canadian lines of geographic, racial and religious representation, with no major reform in its organization.

Suggestions that, the Liberal party leader, when he becomes prime minister next Monday, might adopt some cabinet-making ideas from British practice now are being discounted by sources close to Mr. Pearson.

Prime ministers have had difficulty with drawing up cabinet lists from the days of Canada's first prime minister, Conservative Sir John Macdonald, who once signed a blank book as "John Macdonald, cabinet maker."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker followed generally the pattern of earlier prime ministers in 1957. As far as possible, every province must be represented with weight given to the more populous ones. English and French membership must be in fair balance, and recognition given to minorities, such as Canadians speaking residents of Quebec and French - speaking residents of Ontario. And the total number must be kept to two dozen.

As Canada becomes more complex, so does the task of cabinet making. Some critics have suggested that prime ministers are required to pay much attention to ticklish political situations that they cannot put the best candidate into the porfolios they would best suit.

In addition, as government at

CAQUETTE SAYS FINIS TO CASE OF SOCRED SIX

Says Members Have Retracted Offer

OTTAWA (CP)—The case of the Social Credit six is closed. Or is it?

A caucus of the party's Quebec wing issued a statement here Wednesday saying the six Social Credit MPs who pledged their support to the incoming Liberal government last Friday now have "retracted" their signatures.

"The incident is closed," the statement said.

But in Red Deer, Alta., Party Leader Robert Thompson came out of a western Social Credit strategy session and said a final decision will be made by a full party caucus before Parliament meets.

When Deputy Leader Real Caouette heard about that in Ottawa, he told reporters:

"That's not true. Nothing more will happen after today's caucus."

CAOUETTE AGREES

Meanwhile, Mr. Caouette agreed with Mr. Thompson's other statement from Red Deer on Wednesday saying Social Credit MPs will "lend their constructive support" to any sound Liberal legislative program, including a budget.

The statement added:

"Canada's most urgent immediate need is for Parliament to function effectively without any specific demands or conditions attached.

"We believe it is the responsibility of the new government to carry on the work of Parliamentary business."

Labor Congress Advocates Cut in Personal Income Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—Temporary cuts in personal income tax and increased government spending were advocated today by the Canadian Labor Congress as a means of promoting full employment and economic growth.

What is needed now is an increased demand for goods and services, said the 1,050,000-member CLC in a brief to the Carter royal commission on taxation.

The tax reductions should apply in the lower income brackets "since such persons have a much higher propensity to spend additional income than those in higher income brackets."

The brief predicted that public spending, in relation to the gross national product, will continue to rise in the future. "Old concepts of a limited role for governments, and 'the more limited the better', are anachronistic."

There was greater need for public spending in the fields of education, health, science, urban redevelopment and conservation of resources, and the demand for social welfare will continue to grow.

Under the existing conditions, the brief added, there appear to be various loopholes that allow tax avoidance at the high marginal rates. "Were these loopholes abolished, it is conceivable that tax rates applying to lower income levels might be reduced, without affecting the size of tax revenues collected."

The CLC is one of seven organizations appearing before the six-man royal commission this week, outlining general views on taxation problems before the commission begins regional hearings in Montreal Monday.

Think Castro May Use Frustration Of Exiles for Propaganda Play

MIAMI (AP) — No bread is more bitter than "the bread eaten in exile. . ."

Because of that, grave concern is being expressed today in Miami at the possibility that current U.S. policy toward Cuba may backfire. The result, say some observers, could be a bitter fight for the United States and painful embarrassment before Latin America and the world.

Miami has at least 150,000 Cuban refugees today. Only a tiny percentage of those is actively engaged in harassing the Cuban Communist regime or attempting to fight it in various ways. But practically every adult Cuban in exile expressed the hope that Fidel Castro will be overthrown.

Many Cuban refugees say that while they can consider their exile temporary, they can find it bearable. Many show signs now of going through an agony of doubt, fear and anger in wake of U.S. crackdowns on raids against Cuba or ostensible supply missions to underground anti-Castro fighters on the island.

Many are willing to concede that President Kennedy had good reasons for forbidding such attacks, for being concerned about the threat of a monumental Soviet-American crisis which might result from them.

The U.S. government gives the attacks in reality provide Castro with additional excuses to crack down against internal Cuban resistance. Some Cuban exiles will admit even that may be true.

But, up to a few weeks ago, at least something was going

Three Children Die After Drinking Water

MISSION, Tex. (AP)—Three children died and five other persons were admitted to hospital today after apparently drinking water suspected of containing a pesticide.

The dead are children of Mr. and Mrs. Herminio Lopez Vega, Mexican citizens who lived near Mission since 1945. In hospital are the father; his wife, a son, a daughter and a granddaughter.

A Roman Catholic priest who asked not to be identified said the poison could be an insecticide used on cotton, which may have gotten into an irrigation canal. The family uses the canal for its primary water supply. Autopsies have been ordered.

The truck loudspeaker announcing Perkin Warbeck had won. A news agency relayed the same result to betting shops through the private wire.

Bookies had paid out thousands of pounds on Perkin Warbeck when the announcement was flashed to betting shops —Rodolphus first Perkin Warbeck second.

In thousands of betting shops, pandemonium broke loose as bookmakers sought to recover the money they'd paid out on the wrong horse.

Hundreds of Honest Race Fans Repay Bets Won on Wrong Horse

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of honest British race fans have gone the decent thing—they've repaid to their bookies money they won on the wrong horse.

But other bookmakers throughout the country today were still thousands of pounds down the drain through a wrong call in a race result.

The mistake was made Tuesday after the finish of the Stuntney Maiden Stakes at Newmarket. Two nags—Perkin Warbeck and Rodolphus, joint 5 to 2 favorites—crossed the line together and a photo was called.

Liberal Leader Given Task To Form New Govt.

Called by Vanier After Diefenbaker Resigns

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his cabinet meet today in their caretaker capacity and Liberal Leader Pearson, confirmed as Canada's next prime minister, prepares for his "60 days of decision."

Mr. Diefenbaker tendered the resignation to Governor-General Vanier at noon Wednesday, and Mr. Pearson later Mr. Pearson was called to Government House to take on the task of forming a new government. It will be sworn in next Monday.

Mr. Diefenbaker and his cabinet, busy clearing out their departmental offices and personal files, meet primarily to handle routine matters and special business connected with the changeover. Included is approval of payrolls for those civil servants who follow the retiring ministers into their new jobs as opposition MPs.

The retiring prime minister and what is in effect a lame-duck Conservative administration would not be expected to make any major decisions without the approval of the prime minister designate.

Mr. Pearson, almost but not quite prime minister, said after the Government House visit that his "60 days of decision" will begin Monday when he is sworn into office.

PROMISED DECISIONS

He promised the "60 days of decision" in the election campaign, saying in Kingston his government would produce more constructive proposals than any government in history, and adding in a prepared statement two days after the April 8 election that the party's program included a set of measures which would be designed to meet "the requirements of our time."

His cabinet list now is virtually complete, he has sought meetings with President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan, and work has started on the budget, Mr. Pearson told reporters at Government House Wednesday.

The governor - general received the two leaders in separate private audiences at his bedside in the Willingdon Room of Government House, where he is recovering from a mild heart attack he had on April 3.

Mr. Diefenbaker's meeting lasted 20 minutes. Mr. Pearson was in Government House for nearly an hour, including in his

Youth Steals Armored Car To Smash Wall

BERLIN (AP)—An East German youth who smashed through the Berlin Wall in an East German Army armored car Wednesday was reported in satisfactory condition today despite a bullet wound in his chest.

A doctor said if everything goes well, he will be out of the hospital in three weeks.

Wolfgang Engels suffered wounds in his chest and hand and multiple cuts and abrasions.

The 19-year-old's daring escape was the talk of West Berlin today.

Engels took the Soviet-made armored car out of the East German Army garage where he worked as a civilian mechanic.

Shortly before 8 p.m. he careered down the east side of Eisenstrasse toward the wall, shouting: "I am going over . . . who wants to go with me?"

HIT BY BULLETS

Communist border guards fired their sub-machine-guns as the nine-ton vehicle plowed into the first concrete barrier. The impact sprung the rear armor-plated doors and two bullets hit Engels.

The car got stuck in the second wall, which forms the border with West Berlin.

Unable to crawl through the hole because the car was blocking it, the wounded youth started atop the seven - foot wall, shouting for help.

As the East Berlin guards kept firing, the youth got tangled in the barbed wire atop the wall, then pitched forward and fell unconscious in the West Berlin district of Neukoelln, in the American sector.

There a West Berlin policeman, on patrol near the scene, fired several shots into the East sector in an attempt to give the youth cover. The officer was slightly injured by congrete fragments splintered from the wall by the East German bullets.

Camel, Water Buffalo and Mule Poor Combination Pulling Troika

TOKYO (AP)—The new crisis in Laos indicates that even though on rare occasions a camel and a water buffalo will pull the same plow, adding a mule of the stubborn Communist variety just doesn't work.

Last July, 14 nations with such diverse political tendencies as Communist China, Communist Russia and China, the United States and Britain approved a troika-style government for the little Southeast Asian kingdom of Laos.

This unlikely coalition is undergoing its greatest test, a Communist attempt to wreck the neutralist faction's outnumbered army. It may be a prelude to dissolution of the government.

Premier Laotian plow, under the Geneva arrangement, is led by the neutralist camel driven by Premier Souvanna Phouma. The right-wing water buffalo is represented by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, and the mule is furnished by Prince Souphanouvong, Souvanna's half-brother who heads the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

Each faction has its own army, and the government cannot take no major decision without agreement of all three leaders. As a result the government has been stagnant.

The Western powers closed their eyes to the dismal failures since the end of the Second World War of popular front governments in which Communists participated. They hoped Souvanna Phouma would keep the troika in step and that Russia and China would keep peace in Laos and would curb the Pathet Lao.

The Communist powers presumably never did regard the troika arrangement as permanent. It is Communist doctrine to use every conceivable weapon, the other partners preparatory to a Red takeover. This was the acknowledged design behind Communist China's efforts to achieve a coalition with Chiang Kai-shek in 1946. The same blueprint was applied in Eastern Europe.

Thus, the Pathet Lao is following the Communist pattern in attacking the former ally, neutralist Gen. Kong Le, and seeking to flush him out of the mountain - ringed Plaine des Jarres. This would give the Communists control of northern Laos.

Expense Money For Trustees Not Too Big

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of Toronto's board of school trustees said Wednesday some trustees have been paid expenses of up to $50 for attending the three-day annual convention here of the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association.

Trustee Andrew Barker said trustees who indicated they planned to attend the convention received cheques for $15 daily and the $5 registration fee. Trustees to out-of-town conventions receive $30 a day.

Trustees were expected to return any unused money, said D. W. Mewhort, co-ordinator of auxiliary services for the board. Mrs. Sharker said such returns depend on the trustees' conscience.

"Retreat to Middle Ages" Charges Catholic Press So College Comes Back

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—What was widely viewed as a "closed door" at the Catholic University of America appears to be opening — under insistence of much of the faculty and of the church press across the country.

A veto by the university administration against some proposed guest speakers — all of them eminent theologians—has been followed, in one case, by an invitation.

"I think you could say the situation is easing up," a professor said.

The university, in Washington, D.C. with enrolment of about 5,000, is the only pontifical institution in the United States and is under the auspices of all the country's Roman Catholic bishops.

CHARGED MUZZLING

Charges of censorship and muzzling discussion had come from several diocesan weeklies.

The 171-member faculty of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the 13-member theological faculty called for an inquiry. Students also voted a resolution asking a review of the matter.

It arose in February when the administration turned down four theologians on a list of 13 persons proposed by the graduate student council as possible guest speakers and submitted for routine administration clearance.

Msgr. William J. McDonald, the university's rector, says the council was advised "not to include" the four because they "hold a similar, definite view on certain pivotal ecclesiastical issues and policies being debated by the bishops in the ecumenical council."

He said i na statement the action was a "prudential judgment intended to uphold the university's impartiality."

The four were among the country's most widely known Catholic scholars, and have favored moves for church adjustments made at the second Vatican council. They are:

Rev. John Courtney Murray, professor of philosophy at Woodstock College Md., and a foremost Roman Catholic expert on church-state relations.

Rev. Godfrey Diekmann of St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., a noted Benedictine liturgical scholar.

Rev. Gustave A. Weigel, a Woodstock College theologian, and leading church authority on the ecumenical (Christian unity) movement.

Dr. Hans Kung, a theologian of the University of Tubingen, Germany, and author of the much — discussed book, The Council Reform and Reunion.

CALLED RETREAT

News that the four had been stricken from the list of suggested speakers brought a volley of criticism from official diocesan weeklies.

"A retreat to the middle ages," said the St. Louis Review.

"Stifling free discussion," said the Oklahoma Courier.

"Things are getting stuffy," said The Criterion, of Indianapolis.

"The decision is difficult to understand," said the Catholic Messenger of Davenport, Iowa, noting that the three Americans had been called "small elite" of theologians who have made "national and international contributions to church scholarship.

A check of 10 diocesan editorials or comments by Catholic columnists showed nine against the action, and one supporting it — the Criterion, of Indianapolis Catholic Standard.

It claimed reports of the affair "exaggerate the implications," and said:

"The archdiocese not only welcomes these eminent scholars but has frequently invited two of them to speak in the archdiocese (Fathers Weigel and Murray)."

CAMPUS LUNCH

Meanwhile, Father Weigel, a member of the Vatican's secretariat for Christian Unity, coordinated a controlled class at Catholic University, and had lunch with the administrative head, Msgr. McDonald.

To reporters, he said the whole thing has been "blown up out of proportion."

Although Msgr. McDonald, in his announced statement apparently held the action concerning the public lecture series, a university spokesman has since confirmed he had invited Father Weigel to be the university's commencement speaker in June.

Father Weigel's heavy speaking schedule, however, may prevent it.

A university spokesman said no reflection whatever on the four men is implied, intended, and the aim had simply been to avoid the appearance of taking sides in issues before the Vatican council.

Protests Envoy Naming Cat Mohammed

LAHORE, Pakistan (Reuters) — A Moslem religious leader today called for a public protest against the United States ambassador to India, John K. Galbraith, who allegedly named his pet cat after the prophet Mohammed.

Religious leaders of various sects planned a public meeting Friday to protest the "insult" to the founder of the Moslem religion after Maulana Kausar Jameel an appeal for public pressure to get government action.

Galbraith, who is retiring as ambassador, was born near St. Thomas, Ont.

Welfare List Here Reduced From Year Ago

The number of persons receiving general welfare assistance in Belleville during January of this year was down 11.7 per cent from the same month a year ago, with 126 fewer persons on the welfare list.

The number of persons on the welfare list during January also, this month by 3.14 per cent of the city's population.

The amount paid out during January in welfare assistance was $30,037 as compared with $30,820 a year ago.

The above figures are supplied from the Ontario Department of Welfare study by Toronto, the figures indicating that Belleville's position with respect to the number of persons on welfare was considerably better than the provincial average.

Provincially the number of persons on welfare increased by about 3,000 per month during January as compared to the number a year ago. Costs were 10 to 15 per cent higher in higher proportion chiefly due to more generous allowances.

Generally, many of the larger industrial centres had fewer people on relief in the current year.

Unemployment statistics showed that 3.5 percent of Ontario's labor force was unemployed during February as compared with 6.6 percent a year ago.

The all-Canada average given was 8.4 percent of the labor force out of work in February as compared with 9.1 per cent a year ago.

Board of Health Seeking Permission to Show Films

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Health "thoroughly endorses" the recent statement made by Trenton's MOH, Dr. E. W. Dow that smoking, and particularly cigarette smoking is harmful and a more-than-possible cause of lung cancer.

The board will seek permission from the Trenton school board to have films, highlighting the harmful effects of smoking shown in Trenton schools next fall.

At yesterday's meeting of the health board, Dr. Dow said that it had been established that harmful effects occurred in direct ratio with the length of time the patient had smoked and the quantity smoked daily. He said that it had been established that pipe and cigar smoking was less harmful than cigarette smoking.

Board member Miss Marjorie Gothard said it would be hard for an adult to break off smoking entirely, but publicity might result in people cutting down on smoking, which Dr. Dow agreed, would be all to the good. As a case in point, Miss Gothard remarked that during the discussion, board chairman, H. S. Pane and board member, E. D. Topping, both chain-smokers had only smoked one cigarette.

And still on the subject of smoke, Miss Gothard deplored the stand taken by last years council on bonfires throughout the town. Two years ago the board was instrumental in getting an air pollution by-law passed for the town by the terms of which it was illegal to burn such things as leaves or rubbish. Last year council fared with paying the cost of having leaves picked up, amended the by-law to permit small fires, providing the fire department was notified in advance.

SMOKE POURS IN

Yesterday, Miss Gothard claimed that people living on the east side of the river were choking, two to three feet high, at points less than eight feet away from residences. She said that smoke poured into houses adjacent to the fires.

Chairman Pane said that he thought such fires were permitted on every day of the week except Monday — wash day—and Sunday. Miss Gothard said that fires were being lit even on those taboo days and that the fire department wouldn't do a thing about it when called.

"We have the same high tax rate on the east side of the river and we have no fire protection," Miss Gothard stated.

"Council has tied our hands" said Mr. Pane.

"I've had it slung at me that we should have stood up for our rights with council," said Miss Gothard. "We're a weak board. Everything we try to do, council smashes."

Mr. Pane was wished "bon voyage" by his fellow board members. He left last night for a seven weeks' trip to England. Mr. Topping will act as board chairman while Mr. Pane is away and Miss Gothard will assist him.

New Pumper Tenders Soon To Be Called

Larry and Councillors Duncan McDonald, C. V. Graham and James Duncan watched the demonstration of a King-Seagrave pumper with the chief.

WILL COLLECT TROPHIES

Trenton's curling champs will collect their trophies tomorrow night at the Trenton Country Club.

Meantime, the golf season got underway three weeks ago. May 4 will see the Ladies' Opening Golf Day and the annual Mr. and Mrs. Golf Day will be held June 15.

BUY GUIANA RICE

Senior Citizens Honor Members On Anniversary

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens' Club was held on Wednesday evening in the Recreation Rooms on Pinnacle St.

The president, Mr. Charles L. Hyde opened the meeting with singing of the "Queen" followed by the Club theme song and several old time tunes with Mrs. Sharrett at the piano. A moment of silence was observed out of respect for the passing of Mrs. Harry Abbott and Mr. Barnhardt and the president made some announcements re coming events.

The main feature of the evening was the fact that the members of the Club wished to celebrate with two members, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Smith the 50th anniversary of their marriage and a special program had been arranged for the auspicious occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were called to the dais by singing, "Here Comes the Bride," and the happy couple were presented by Mr. Lloyd Doran, in his useful genial manner, with a suitably engraved silver tray. The Rev. D. W. Sinclair, B.A., assistant curate of St. Thomas' Anglican Church very kindly brought greetings and expression of best wishes and congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, members of his congregation.

His Worship, Mayor A. M. Haig also on behalf of himself and Mrs. Haig in his usual gracious manner, and a sprinkling of Irish humor, extended felicitations and best wishes for many happy anniversaries of the occasion. Mr. James Doyle, a mere only a year ago had celebrated with Mrs. Doyle, a similar event echoed the best regards. Mr. Smith made a suitable reply with sincere thanks to everyone.

Instrumental trio by Kafka Bros. with Eddie taking the solo part, accordion solo, Henry Kafka. Ballet dance by Jacqueline Keegan, with accompanist, Mr. Geo. Gulliver. Concertina solo, by Geo. # Oldsters Test Memories And Smile at Youngsters

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the things the old feel sorry for the young about is that they have so few memories.

And you can hold your own in the nostalgia derby if you can remember when:

A nightcap was something a man wore to bed—not a quick fling from a bottle to wind up a party.

This newspaper feature section on Sunday carried visionary predictions that everyman would be able to fly nonstop in an airplane from coast to coast.

The height of elegance was to be able to afford an iron stag in your front lawn.

FEW SKIERS

Only Norwegians and kids on barrel staves ever went skiing.

If a man had gold in his teeth, it was pretty safe bet he either was a banker or had a steady job with a rail-road.

The ambition of many a housewife was to have her husband take her out to dinner at one of those newfangled cafeterias.

A small boy whose mother made him carry a handkerchief to school in winter was the envy of many. (After all, what were the sleeves on sweaters for?)

Almost every town had a family in which one of the children chewed tobacco at an early age.

WHITTLING KNIVES

Nobody felt unsafe because every boy in town carried a jackknife, usually attached to his pants belt loop by an old shoestring.

Most city dwellers dreamed of saving enough money to retire to the country in their old age and run a chicken farm.

Everybody knew the policeman on the beat by his first name and on cold days invited him in for a cup of hot coffee.

One of the most hated chores of childhood was emptying the clammy pan of water under the family icebox.

Remember?

Research Ship Towed to Port, Rammed Reef

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—An American research vessel was towed into port today after she rammed a Bahamian reef and began leaking.

Five pumps worked to keep the 83-foot Dead Sea Queen afloat in Nassau harbor after her arrival in the wake of the tug Mako.

Dr. Ralph E. Baney, director-general of the Christian Approach Mission of Kansas City, Missouri, head of the expedition, said his crew was prevented from making repairs at sea by darkening skies.

According to Baney, the Dead Sea Queen crew caught sharks for dissection. Crew - member divers carried equipment to photograph undersea life and record ocean floor noises.

The mishap occurred in moderate seas Wednesday night when "a new line (on an anchor) parted in the middle and we ran on a reef before we could get another anchor down," Baney said in an interview.

The ship carried electronic gear for undersea work and a cage in which divers enclosed themselves to fend off sharks.

Hope to Prove Seized Lobsters Were Pregnant

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—"Love among the lobsters" or "sex on the high seas" might well be title of the case scheduled to come up in First District Court Friday.

It may sound silly to landlubbers but the courtroom drama will be of great interest to fishermen.

Carl H. Borby, 36, of Mattapoisett, Mass., skipper of New England's newest fishing vessel, the stern trawler Narragansett, is charged with possessing 44 female egg-bearing lobsters.

Conservation technicians from the University of Rhode Island are preparing evidence in the case brought by the state fish and game department.

Capt. Robert Lowry, head of the state enforcement division, says he hopes to establish that the seized lobsters were brushed while at sea.

Game wardens say some fishermen brush the eggs off female lobsters rather than toss-ing pregnant ones back as required by law.

The legislature hope to prove that the eggs found still adhering to the lobsters were not ripe and ready to come off naturally. Wardens say some fishermen in the past have escaped conviction because juries convinced judges that the few eggs found on seized lobsters were left after the lobster had been fished at sea.

Conviction carries a fine of $5 a lobster plus seizure of the illegal part of the catch.

Five Destroys Thurlow Home

Fire late this morning destroyed a Thurlow township home, leaving a family of five homeless.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. High, 3rd concession, and their three small children were able to save only a few articles of clothing from the burning house.

The High home was the former Union Cheese Factory, which had been converted into living quarters.

Belleville firemen answered the alarm shortly after eleven o'clock, but were unable to save the dwelling.

At press time it was unknown what had started the blaze.

Harry Pound, former township reeve, said that a bundle of clothes, which he carried in his arms, was the only thing saved from the fire. The High children are all of preschool age.

Scout Show 'Hi-Jinx-'63' Riot of Color, Comedy

By ANNE M. McDONALD

"Hi-Jinx — '63" a riot of fun and color proved that the Scouting Movement of Belleville District has unlimited talent. From curtain time to the finale the enthusiastic audience was treated to a program with originality of script, choral singing, and a fashion show. Starring Cubs, Scouts, Rovers and Leaders this Scouting show, the first of its kind to be presented by the Belleville Scouting movement made its debut last evening at Moira Secondary School.

After a welcome by District Show Chairman, Ruth Howard, the program got underway with chorus singing "Forward in Scouting," "Hey Look Me Over," and "Marching Along Together."

A takeoff of a popular T.V. program "You've Got A Secret" was a specialty of 9th Rovers consisting of Bob Bailey, Dennis Whittle, Vernon Whittle, Jim Pickering, Murray Angus, Barry Sickels, Jack Perry, Fraser Ritchie, Dave Hannah. Hilarious art.

Now for a change of pace a trio made up of soloist Phil Squire, Ronald Chaplin and Gordon Lockhart delighted the audience with "Let The Rest Of The World Go By," and "Without A Song".

The 1890 era was brought back in the "Mister America Contest." Eight Cubs competed in old fashion bathing suits with vintage mustaches gave a riotous account of that period. The announcer was Frank Sherriff; Scouters Adam Ray Denton, McBride, Charles Pattison, Brian Berry, Bill Ridley, Jim Berry, Norm Gerow, Jim Boyd; Judges (Old Maids): Dean Stockwell, David Boate, Norman Hough, Ron Hedgeduck, Ken Richardson, Brian Cleary and Ken Monteith.

Scouter Bill Ridley announced that arrangements were being made for the transfer of the Provincial Quartette" which included the melodious voices of John Wilson, Dennis Gibbons, Norm Wilcox and Ray Deacon.

Western Party included three numbers (a) Saskatoon Cassidy; Tim Bradshaw, Ronald Chaplin, Jim Cochrane, Sandy Cunningham, Kenny Heydock, Jerry Hyde, Eddie Christopher, Peter Mills, Ken Monteith, Morley Shaw, Barry Sharp, Gordon Pelow. Dancer, Michael Bradshaw; (b) "Strawberry Roan," soloist and accompanist Cassidy; guitar, Norm Wilcox; (c) Square Dance: caller, Norm Wilcox; Jamie Allen, Wayne Jacobs, Gordon Locklin, Paul Hunter, Tarmo Herjduck, Kenneth Richardson, Bill Ridley, Denton McBride.

Some quiet humor was added to the program by Scouter Commissioner Murray Maw and ADC Gordon Russell in "All in a Day's Work."

Belleville's own Ozarks was reincarnated in "Hill-Billy Springtime." Those taking part were: Norm Gerow, Denton McBride, Allan Hay, Dean Stockwell, Terry Gerow, Jim Boyd, Norm Heydock, Brian Cleary.

The finale singing "Up Girls and At 'Em," upheld the pride of 'Juicy Lucy's Seminary' even when accompanied by no hair and bricks. This was one of the chorus's highlights of the show.

The showing proved to be the background of the show with its many fine renditions including "Hail Hail Scouting," "Scout Hymn," and "The Happy Wanderer."

"Carnival of Fashions" with commentator Anne McDonald, turned back the pages of time to show us the fashions brought conscious ladies wore at the turn of the century. Hilarious in every respect it brought side-splitting laughter to all. Models included Jim Pickering, Murray Angus, Sandy Cunningham, Jerry Hyde, Fraser Ritchie, Peter Mills, Morley Shaw, Bob Bailey, Bill Stewart and Barry Sickle.

The chorus took part in a street scene, singing three numbers, "Local Boy Makes Good," "Dear Hearts and Gentle People," and "Standing on the Corner."

The beatnik aspect was not overlooked in the presentation of "Abstract Interview". Actors taking part included Paul Hunter, Paul Black, Bill Ridley, David Boate, Stephen Hunter and Jimmy Cochrane.

The favorite medieval program was enjoyed with Hi Jinx's own "The Nervous Surgeon." The cast constituting their skills consisted of announcer Bill Stewart, Doctor Crayne (Jim Pickering); nurse, Miss Needles (Ruth Howard); Stephen Hunter and Claude Hennessy.

Against a background of colorful flags and centred by a high Scout crest, the chorus in full uniform looked most impressive as they sang three numbers for the finale. "It's a Big, Wide, Wonderful World," "Call It Scouting" and "Forward in Scouting."

FINE COMMITTEE

Much of the success of the show is due not to the very able direction of musical director Donald Squire, and pianist Jimmy Corrado.

The exceptionally fine committee who have devoted their time and talents to make "Hi Jinx—'63" the success it is consisted of District Show chairman, producer and director, Ruth Howard; assistant chairman and secretary, Frank Stockwell; secretary and public relations chairman, Anne McDonald; assistant secretary and publicity, Cecil Heard; costume director, June Hutchinson; assistants, Mrs. Ken Weaver, Miriam Russell; make-up directors, Gladys Barton, Irene Nellisser; assistants, Phyllis Berry, Ethel Adams; props director, George Gibbons; stage director, John Dodge; Biologist director, Marion Gelthorpe; assistants, Ron Buskard, Kenny Russell.

"Hi-Jinx—'63" will be shown again tonight. Curtain time 8:00 p.m. Tickets available at the door.

Frankford May Rejoin LODA

FRANKFORD — The village council last night decided to consider renewing membership in the Lake of the Days Development Association, cancelled about one year ago. The organization was formed to attract as a tourist area through advertising and sportsmen's shows, co-operates with local chambers, of commerce to attract industry in the area.

John Lawson of Peterborough and Doug Maybee of Frankford represented the Frankford council meeting, as representatives of the L.O.D.A. said that they expect to spend more than one million tourists visited the Lake Ontario district this year, an increase of 200,000 over the year before. They suggested the L.O.D.A. is responsible for the increase.

Membership in the organization costs each municipality seven cents per head of population — about $112 for a village of this size. Frankford's association is given a provincial grant equal to membership fees collected from municipalities.

Today's Teenagers Seek Answers - - to Everything

VANCOUVER (CP)—Son columnist Jack Scott draws one firm conclusion from his "columnist for a day" experiment:

"Teen-agers may not know all the right answers; they certainly know all the right questions."

Scott admits he didn't know what would result when he invited high school students to submit columns to him.

"I thought I might get as many as two or three hundred entries. Instead they came in mailbag lots."

There were 2,500 entries and the best were run in Scott's space. The winners were paid $30 and given an all-expenses-paid week at Scott's island cottage.

"Many were pure essays on particular topics—my dog, my summer at camp, and the rest. Yet by far the majority of these manuscripts contained frank, sincere and always outspoken thoughts on a very wide variety of subjects."

Five of the top eight were girls. Winners included a 16-year-old student discussion star in free verse and a girl of 15 who wrote on a teen-ager's desire to escape from the unagreeable aspects of a purely adult world.

BEATNIK POEM

John Kelsey intitled his beatnik poem I Say I care a Lot. It goes:

They ask me man are you MAD?
I say no
they say are you out of your mind man?
I say no!
This woman is not for you Damn Fool she's a Good Kid a Sweet Young Thing she doesn't think like us — skoal—
she's a people eiet a PEOPLE
I say hey that's right
she's a conformist man
CHRISTIAN even
I say I care a lot . . .
Fran Horsford wrote:

"The only honorable war is to help people rid themselves of their poverty, illiteracy and misery. Just imagine if we contributed some of our armament money to this cause and if the other countries followed our lead. What a different world this wohld be."

TEEN-AGE INSANITA

Paulette Terlinden is a Grade 9 student. Scott found her column "simple, musing—a stream-of consciousness . . . a pure expression of every young person's longing for happiness."

She mused:

"Tangled wires overhead, sirens, noisy engines and the noisy dust and dust of the town—this is more like an uncontrolled circus than one' quiet, peaceful earth. Where is the old 'terra firma' I once beheld? This, to me, is more like 'terra incognita.'"

Writes Scott:

"Human figures very strongly in the majority of contributions, yet, taken as a whole, these 2,500 manuscripts are memorable mainly for their assessment of the life young people lead and the life they anticipate. . . .

"They are caustic, critical, angry, challenging, sometimes afraid, but remarkably knowledgeable and intelligent.

"The up-country high-school principal who wrote me 'don't be surprised to find these teenagers capable of taking over as commentators — and perhaps showing us a thing or two, wasn't exaggerating."

Redistribution Problem

Now the federal election is over, The Canadian Press has called attention to a bother-some political problem, the necessity for a re-distribution of parliamentary seats. Some big city newspapers are pointing out the gross in-equalities which existed in the value of votes at the last election. One NDP candidate, for example, lost his deposit, although he polled 10,000 votes more than Prime Minister Diefen-baker and 16,000 more than Lester Pearson.

This is not a new situation. It has existed for years. What is new, however, is that this imbalance has been at least partially corrected by events as far as the residents of the hearts of big cities are concerned. While the population of big city ridings has remained stationary, or even declined, as the result of the rush to the suburbs, populations have risen in ridings which are partially urban and partially rural, like South Hastings.

The ridings where votes have the least power to elect a member to the House of Commons are those which embrace the suburbs of the largest cities. It is they which should receive additional representation—which will involve enlarging rural ridings and perhaps even ridings in the hearts of the larger cities. The net result would be to give greater voting power to urban and suburban residents.

In the past, parties have shyed away from such action, fearing the effect on the farm vote. But in this next House things may be changed. The Liberals, the largest group, received much of their backing from the big cities. The NDP, no longer possessing a rural stronghold in Sas-katchewan, would probably be delighted to back a Liberal proposal giving urban voters a greater say in the selection of the next House.

It is extremely unlikely, though, that any action taken will provide a permanent remedy. If present trends continue, the proportion of the Canadian population residing in the suburbs will have increased considerably by the time the next election is held. It seems unlikely that any party would have the temerity to anticipate this trend, by redistributing seats so that the now under-represented suburbs acquire more members than they are entitled to on a population basis. So any readjustment will soon prove inadequate.

Canada's Tax Structure

The Canadian Tax Foundation says it is "probable that in coming months taxes will increase rather than decrease."

Do we need a Foundation to tell us that?

That initial reaction, however, requires some modification, since the Foundation's observation was made in a brief to the royal commission on taxation and was but one of several pertinent observations, some of which will prove more surprising to the average citizen.

For instance, the Foundation declares that the Canadian tax structure, despite its imperfec-tions, ranks with the best in the world. This is truly amazing when we remember that in this country we have three levels of government, one more than the number with which many countries are burdened, and that the tax struc-ture is kind of a whole by some amazing conspir-acy of subsidies. It is an achievement of no mean proportions if those in authority over us have managed to manipulate this intricate profusion of tax levies and grants so that the net result approaches an equitable system.

As might be expected, the Foundation com-plains about the high level of taxation and says that government expenditures in relation to the gross national product "have no peacetime pre-cedent." A perusal of the news report, however, does not indicate that the Foundation laid stress on an equally pertinent fact—that the level of taxation needs to be raised unless a drastic cur-tailment of expenditures is made. High though the tax level may be, it is not high enough to enable us to pay our way. As a nation we are living beyond our income at a time of relative prosperity.

The Foundation made recommendations for certain tax changes, but it also called to the attention of the commission another basic prob-lem before it. This was to recommend ways in which taxes can be used for purposes other than those of raising revenue. This is a dan-gerous field. The use of taxes to influence in-vestment, regional development, wealth dispari-ties and ownership of Canadian industry, to list fields specifically mentioned, compels the unec-onomic use of our resources. But the commis-sion cannot avoid this field, for the very good reason that taxes have long been used in this manner. It would appear reasonable to sug-gest, though, that the commission should at-tempt to analyse the effects of present taxes in this field, before attempting to undertaking to recommend any extension of their use in this manner.

Too Good for Own Good
Howard Green Defeated

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Former External Affairs Minister Howard Green was a real sweet guy.

Too sweet for his own good, and especially his party's good.

His defeat now in his British Columbia constituency of Vancouver-Quadra, after 26 years in the Commons, came just six years too late.

It was Howard Green, warm human being, full of all the good and kindly impulses, and with a true instinct for the right and decent thing, who aroused more consternation and disturbance within the Conservative High Command than just about anybody else.

And man, that covers a lot of ground!

Howard Green did all the right things — but they turned out wrong.

And his party's decline from power dated from the first day it gained it, more precisely from the moment that dear old sweet Howard Green was sworn in as Minister of Public Works.

AMBUSH

In retrospect, he was the hap-less victim of what the news business likes to call dreads as a dull or dead day.

He had been a giant in Op-position.

He carried the ball for the Conservatives on the Liberal Government's scandals, and asking interminable questions on every conceivable point, he could drive anybody up the C.D. "Trader" Howe up the Peace Tower wall.

Except for his appointment, the day he was named Public Works Minister things were all on fruitful course.

So when he ran into the Press — as it happened it was this correspondent — with some attention was given to the problem of giving the national capital, which, as "at single," to make it more than just the simple report of another Cabinet appointment.

What, as Public Works Min-ister, would be his policy?

"What do you suggest?" he asked.

Well, he was informed, it would be a swell switch if anybody, anybody, old party pro Howard Green were to say that as Public Works Minister he was outlawing political patron-age, abolishing partisan favor-ites.

"You mean," he said, "no jobs for people just because they are Tories, no contracts simply because people are party supporters?"

That was it, he was told.

"Good idea," he said, "I'll do it."

And he did.

NEVER BUDGED

It made quite a story: Vet-eran Tory Sets Style for Politi-cal Rectitude — No Jobs, No Contracts on Patronage.

Trouble was, Howard Green took his publicity to heart.

Conservative Parliamentar-ians were furious when he re-fused jobs to deserving constitu-ents and refused to award con-tracts on a strictly non-partisan basis — and when their pro-saw old Liberal campaign or-ganizers being given good, $12,-000 to $15,000 appointments and contracts awarded Liberal construction firms.

But Howard Green would not budge an inch.

It got so that some highly-placed Conservatives, who by-would not listen to political rea-son and made sport of pushing unbending Parliamentarians around, safe int he knowledge that Howard Green would not touch a hair of their head.

There was a time, before Howard Green was switched from his beat as Minister of External Affairs, that a Conservative MP could not get even the time of day from some members of the Bureaucracy.

You could hear the screams of agonized political frustration all over town.

In External Affairs, good, kindly old Howard Green's ideas did even more political damage.

Stubborn as ever, he dug in his heels on the issue of nuclear arms; and rise the Conservative Cabinet in revolt against an unbending Prime Minister who backed him, he stood his ground with the Government fell to pieces around them, and a campaign and an election — all over — were lost.

Seems you can be too good and true — beyond all the bounds of reason.

More or Less

The British home secretary the other day was asked how much the exchequer would con-tribute to increases of pay for the British Bobby. He replied, "Upwards of" rather below the figure of 10,000 pounds." He could, of course, have replied something to the effect that it would be not necessarily 10,-000 pounds.

Alcatraz Famous Jail

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

When the last inmates were taken from Alcatraz a few days ago for transfer to other places of detention, the island's history as a penal centre was ended.

"The Rock," as the outcrop-ping in San Francisco Bay is known to readers of detective stories all over the continent, has been used as a fortress and prison ever since the Civil War. In 1933, federal authorities established a maximum security penitentiary on the twelve-acre island. Now thirty years later, abandonment has followed in the wake of deterioration which makes economical repair of the buildings no longer feasible.

The use to which Alcatraz may be put is not clear. Certain-ly, there is no market for sec-ond-hand jails, and those who would like to see the site become a bird sanctuary and wilderness area. That is a particularly significant suggestion for the name itself derives from the Spanish meaning "pelli-can."

As noteworthy thought con-cerns the extent to which Alcat-traz has captured the imagina-tions of people everywhere. With the possible exception of New York State's Sing Sing, no other prison on this continent is so widely known.

The peculiar attraction Alca-traz assumed in the public mind was due to several factors. Opened at a time when the names of prominent gangsters occupied an inordinate amount of newspaper space, it was nat-ural that "The Rock" should have become known as the "home" of such notorious crim-inals as Al Capone and Machine Gun Kelly, and of such latter-day celebrities as Robert Stroud, the "Bird Man of Alcatraz."

Its reputation as being escape-proof also contributed to its fas-cination. Until 1963, no inmate ever successfully negotiated the treacherous currents of the Bay to reach shore nearly two miles away. And the one who made it last year was quickly captured.

Space Shave Difficult

Wichita Falls Times

Those long trips in space, as-suming that they will take place in the future, will present the en-vironment so different from what they now experience there will hardly have any resemblance.

So simple but onerous a task as the shave in which mere beardless men must indulge presents a problem of magni-tude. Any man who has vacation plan in detail all those things which have an effect upon hu-man life away from the earth planet. Here again, the assump-tion is that the first space trav-elers, at least, will be male as-tronauts.

A space scientist recently pointed out that astronauts on long trips, to the moon or other planets, will have to use specially designed shaving equipment.

Out in space, where the lack of gravity produces weightless-ness, a shave with an electric razor would be out of the ques-tion. The whiskers would float around and if the cut whiskers might not bother the astronaut they would gum up the electric equipment. A new method of shaving in space must be devis-ed. It seems that bearded faces are not advisable inside the space suits, which seem the only alternative of just letting whisk-ers grow, and the lather and razor method is impossible.

Every little thing which the human does throughout his day becomes a magnified problem when it is transplanted into existence in space.

Thinking along these lines leads to many perplexities, even to the thought that the equip-ment for getting man to the moon and back may be, in the final analysis, less formidable a task than adapting man for interplanetary travel.

Easy to Scorn That Which We Do Not Know

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: It is easier for us to believe, with Donne, that no man is an island; but each of us privately believ-es at the same time that he ought to be a peninsula, jutting out ahead of the rest of the mainland.

No person has a right to scorn the pomp of the world until he has tasted it and rejected it; the premature cynicism of the young is as unattractive because it has not yet been exposed to the temptations it dismisses with such arrogant idealism.

The only trouble with "en-lightened self-interest" as a guiding rule of personal con-duct is that in any real crisis the self-interest extinguishes the enlightenment.

How blessed are the comfort-able bromides of the ignorant after listening to the strident pronouncements of the half-educated!

When we are forced to ask about a man, "What does he really believe in his heart of hearts?" it is conceivable that he has no heart of hearts, that he cut it out and threw it away early in life. For while we can-not live without a heart, many find a heart of hearts an embar-rassing encumbrance as they trudge up the mountain path of success.

Nothing gives one such genu-ine satisfaction as the sense of not having that other's needs; the one who does not need stat-us or good will from others is basically freer and higher than those who desperately covet such things; and is not what we call "sainthood" precisely the without what the rest of us so anxiously contend for?

You're not really middle-aged until the prospect of a good short midday nap is more en-ticing than that of a long night's sleep.

The greatest (and last) skill in playing bridge is knowing when to pass; only the experts have mastered the art of saying nothing at the right time; and so it is in every human rela-tionship — for the dif-ficulty of knowing when to say nothing fails by neglect-ing the rule of silence.

One of the basic flaws in our national temper was succinctly expressed by Santayana when he remarked, "The American looks upon life as a feast or a spectacle; he has not yet begun to regard it as a predicament." (Even the nations seem to be exact-ly changed this view.)

The older I get, the more I become convinced that every-body is either an egg or a chick-en — that is, the world is div-ided into those who are still encased in the shell they were born in, and those who have painfully pecked their way out and look at the world with their own eyes, unhurred by an ac-cestral enemy.

Too Much Heart Strain Can Bring on Angina Pectoris

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(This is The First of a Series On Angina Pectoris

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about the heart ailment, an-gina pectoris. What causes it, how serious is it, and what are its symptoms?

How careful does one have to be to prevent attacks? — Mrs. D. M.

That's a bigger order than you may have thought. Angina pec-toris is featured by severe pain in the mid-chest region — tight-ness, burning, fullness or a sense of pressure there. It may also radiate to neck, shoulder and arms.

Indeed, it resembles the feel-ing of a heart attack in many cases; yet it can occur without an electro-cardiogram showing any sign of abnormality.

Or again the angina may be accompanied by known heart disorders. You see, therefore, that angina pectoris is not a single disease; it can, with the same apparent symptoms, come from a variety of causes.

The simplest to understand is a narrowing of the arteries which serve the heart muscle. If the muscle is not getting enough circulation, even the labor demanded of it, the re-sult is pain. It resembles an acute muscular spasm or cramp-ing anywhere else.

As you might easily guess, too much heart strain can bring on an attack. This need not mean vigorous or prolonged activity, but only such activity which exceeds the ability of the heart to fulfill its function with adequate ease. For one person this may mean walking up a flight of stairs, or strolling several blocks. For another a walk of half a block may trig-ger an attack. Or, a person often may have to learn how much he can eat at a sitting without suffering.

Exertion also adds up. A heavy meal, plus some walk-ing, plus perhaps going up stairs, or carrying a burden — all of these together amount to more strain on the heart than had been allowed to rest be-tween efforts.

Other physical conditions may play a role. Hyperthyroidism, anemia and disorders of the aorta are known to cause or contribute to many cases. An-gina is relatively common among people with diabetes. And in some cases no physical cause for the attacks can be found at all. This, as you may well imagine, is the subject of some intense study.

I'll continue tomorrow with treatment of angina pectoris.

Dear Dr. Molner: How long can a person live with leuke-mia — cancer of the blood? I know a woman who was operat-ed to cure from it in 1961, but she is still alive and drives her car. Could this be a miracle, or could she be fooling us to get self pity? — R.J.H.

She might fool you; she couldn't fool the doctor who is treating her. Who "expected" her to die in 1961? Keep in mind that there is acute leuke-mia, which usually attacks children, and chronic leuke-mia, more common in adults and the latter may con-tinue for a long time. Lympha-tic leukemia, properly treated goes on for years.

Dear Dr. Molner: What tests are necessary to determine if I have osteoarthritis? Why do bones in my arms, neck and legs crack? I am 30. — B. N.

You're young to have osteo-arthritis, which is mainly a mat-ter of wear and tear on the joints. (But rheumatoid arthri-tis, which can strike at any age, may be associated with osteo-arthritis.)

X-rays are your best answer.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet, How To Heal Peptic Ulcers And Keep Them Healed. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chi-cago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 310, Peoria, Ill., enclosing a long self-addressed stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the interesting conse-quences of the infusion of fairly solid communities of Europeans in Canada in the past twenty years has been the introduction of European food into what is merely rather stereotyped Cana-dian diet. All sorts of delicates-sen stores have bounced into prosperous life. German, Polish, Italian restaurants have intro-duced Canadians to the tradi-tional fodder of the mainland of Europe. And much of it is exciting.

When I was laying in a fresh supply of Polish sausage, salami and other goodies at the deli-catessen shop which enjoys my patronage lately, I mentioned to the lady who waits on me that the last time I was there her wa a little dry, a little chewy.

"Ah!" she explained, "that is the way it is supposed to be. Here in Canada, most of you eat to swallow. With us we eat to chew, to enjoy the flavor, to ex-perience something more than the swallowing.

On her advice I took a piece of sausage that was as hard as wood.

"It will take you a long time to chew," she assured me, "but you will enjoy every minute."

The walkout came as negotiators for the company and the United Rubber Workers of America (CLC) continued efforts to reach a new contract for the New Toronto plant and a plant at Bowmanville, Ont.

Ann Landers

Father Inviting Trouble Stressing Teenage Mistakes

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—If I have a nervous breakdown I am going to mail the doctor bills to you because it will be your fault.

My father reads your columns every day like it was the Bible. In fact, if he paid half as much attention to the Bible as he does your column we would all be better off.

Every evening he calls me into the living room and says: "Here, I want you to see this." Then he hands me your column and I have to read some crummy letter about a teenage girl who got into trouble.

He begins to yell his head off that I should behave myself or the same thing will happen to me.

I haven't done anything I am ashamed of and I don't plan to. I've never written to you for advice and I'm sure I never will. Why don't you write about old ladies and pets and lay off teen-age problems so I can get some rest? —MISS STEUBENVILLE.

DEAR MISS STEUBENVILLE—Sorry I've been causing you trouble, but I deal with the problems I get.

Pointing out "horrible examples," to teenagers serves no useful purpose. If kids are old enough to read they will see what they want to see in their newspaper and draw their own conclusions.

I hope your dad will stop shoving my column in your face. He may mean well, but continuous harping would get on anyone's nerves. If he doesn't happen to see this one, be sure to point it out to him.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I refer to your reply to "Delta" who wrote about her cold, undemonstrative daughter. The mother said she tried to be affectionate but the little girl pushed her away. You told her the child had probably been rejected and was returning the cold treatment.

Have you ever heard of "autistic" children? They are in a shell and do not respond to warmth or affection. These children are happiest when left alone.

If you say to an autistic child (age 4) "Tell the lady your name," he will reply, "Tell the lady your name," since he does not relate himself to others in the normal sense.

Parents who have cold, unaffectionate children are usually miserable and filled with guilt. It helps to know that some children are born that way. So why not say so?—MRS. H. L.

DEAR MRS. H. L.—There is no rule for which an exception cannot be found. Advice, regardless of how sound, cannot apply to every human and to every situation.

The autistic child is an emotionally disturbed child. A lack of warmth is only one symptom of his illness. When a child speaks and behaves as if others are not present, the parents should recognize this as an illness and that professional help is needed.

The overwhelming majority of cold, unresponsive children are not autistic, but rejected.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—For Christmas, Bobby gave me a watch and an identification bracelet. I gave him a sweater. We were going steady at the time.

Now that we have broken up he says he wants his watch and the I.D. bracelet back. He says he would be happy to return the sweater I gave him.

I have no use for the sweater and as far as I'm concerned he can keep it. I don't know what good the watch or bracelet will be to him since my initials are engraved on both. Please tell me what to do.—KITTY CAT.

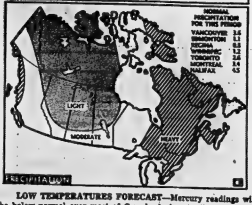
DEAR CAT—Return the loot and let him figure out what to do with it. If he wants to return the sweater you gave him—take it.



The idea is this, Toots: He wants to unwind completely. Be a lady and don't fight it.

LOW TEMPERATURES FORECAST—Mercury readings will be below normal over most of Canada during April. Only southern parts of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia will enjoy normal temperatures, according to the United States weather bureau's 30-day forecast.

The forecast, based on long range predictions and subject to error, calls for heavy precipitation over Eastern Canada. Table gives normal precipitation in inches of rain with 10 inches of snow equalling an inch of rain. (CP Newsmap)

Unemployment

Canada during the week ended March 23.

The report noted that employment for men continued to be strong, reflecting an improvement in goods-producing industries. However, new job opportunities for women slackened off, due chiefly to a slowdown in the growth of the service-producing industries.

Employment of men increased by 58,000 to 4,366,000 over the year, while employment of women rose only 11,000 to 1,667,000.

CONSTRUCTION HIGHER

Non - farm employment increased over the year by 1.7 per cent, a relatively small jump. However, in some goods-producing industries there were substantial gains — construction employment was up by an average of 42,000 in the first quarter of 1963 and manufacturing work showed a 31,000 increase.

Of the 549,000 jobless last month, about half — 265,000 — were married men. The breakdown was 485,000 men, 64,000 women.

Some 220,000 persons, close to 40 per cent of the total, had been unemployed for four to six months and 68,000 for seven months or more.

Regionally, unemployment rates were somewhat lower than last year in the Ontario and Atlantic regions and slightly higher in British Columbia and Quebec, while the Prairies remained stable.

Unemployment totals by regions at mid-March, with mid-February figures in brackets: Atlantic 89,000 (87,000); Quebec 201,000 (200,000); Ontario 138,000 00); Pacific 51,000 (52,0).

Jobless rates for February, with January figures in brackets: Atlantic 15.3 per cent (14.9); Quebec 11 (11); Ontario 5.8 (5.6); Prairies 6.3 (6.5); Pacific 8.5 (8.8).

Pearson Plans

the national level becomes more involved in daily operation of business and the private lives of individuals, new departments are established, each headed by a new minister.

One suggestion which has been studied by Mr. Pearson and was considered by Mr. Diefenbaker is adoption of the current British system of appointing a large number of ministers to head departments and government services, but retain only a comparative few of them in the cabinet.

Mr. Pearson considered increasing the overall size of the government to perhaps 30 or 35 members, but reducing the size of the working cabinet to more workable proportions. The difficulty was to draw a line between candidates he regarded as worthy of cabinet appointment for inner circle positions, and those he would have to leave out on the fringes.

opened Wednesday the honest punters began to troop in to pay their winnings back.

They were under no legal obligation to do so.

A spokesman for Coral's said the firm had got back all but £50 of the £500 it had paid out on Perkin Warbeck.

"It shows," he beamed, "just how wonderfully honest people can be."

In the north of England, many bookmakers declared an amnesty.

In Doncaster, notices went up telling punters they could keep the money.

And on a blackboard in one betting shop went this announcement:

"We don't expect anyone to return the money paid to them on the wrong result. Treat the wife with it."

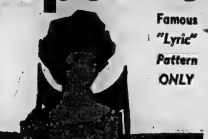
on, they say — sudden raids against vastly superior forces—the gestures of defiance. It was a way of letting off steam.

Then the United States intervened.



"I might as well go back to Cuba," a young student exile said bitterly. "If I can't fight them, if I must submit, it might as well be in my own country."

Informants suggest it is possible that Castro, playing on frustrations of the exiles, will make a grandstand play and invite back to Cuba those who might want to go home. Any success in such an enterprise, however small, would provide potent propaganda for Castro to use in Latin America.

ment and the administration of the nation as if they had a working majority."

Mr. Thompson said in an interview in Edmonton Tuesday that reporters are intentionally seeking out differences between him and the Quebec Social Credit MPs in an attempt to paint a picture of national disunity in the party.

He also said Mr. Caouette has no ambition to become national party leader, and blamed the press for trying to create a threat to his leadership by calling Mr. Caouette co-leader.

IS DEPUTY

Mr. Caouette was the adjutant or deputy leader "not he may have, in a moment of overexuberance, said he was the co-leader."

"All the Quebec members are solidly behind me and our party," said Mr. Thompson. "I have more support in Quebec than any one of the other leaders. I understand French Canadians. I am as at home in Quebec as I am here."

The Quebec MPs who signed the statement of Liberal support a week ago were Gerard Perron (Beauce), Gilbert Rondeau (St-Jefferson), Raymond Langlois (Megantic), Pierre-Andre Boutin (Dorchester), Lucien Fleurdes (Quebec West) and Robert Beaule (Quebec East).

The latter three repudiated the pledge during the weekend. The others followed suit Wednesday.

Mr. Thompson indicated he had no objection to the position taken by the six, but objected strongly to the way they had bypassed their leaders and the caucus.

Earlier, Mr. Thompson had referred to a "handsome remuneration" offered to the six to support the Liberals. But on Wednesday he said he is satisfied that no money changed hands between provincial Liberal organizers in Quebec and the Social Credit party.

More Than Fur May Fly As Nutria Poses Problems

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The destructiveness of the nutria as a wild animal and its value as a farmed fur-bearer will be the subject of one of the papers to be read at the federal-provincial wildlife conference to be held here April 18-19.

Prepared by Darrell Eagles, head of the Canadian Wildlife Service's fur industry department, the paper is the result of numerous inquiries received by the government agency from persons who have gone into the business of raising the furry rodent for its pelt.

In most cases, the letter writers confess that raising nutrias isn't quite as easy as they thought it would be. They are seeking solutions to problems they have run into.

A member of the rat family and not unlike the beaver in appearance, the nutria is not found in the wild in Canada. But thousands of the species have been imported into the country from the United States by persons hoping that wider markets will develop here and abroad for garments made from their pelts.

In 1961 the wildlife conference passed a resolution expressing concern about the promotion of the nutria industry in Canada and recommended that the justice department inquire into advertising methods used by some of its promoters.

SOME MAY ESCAPE

Delegates then felt that misleading advertising was prompting inexperienced people to raise nutria as a "get rich quick" scheme.

Since then, the number of the animals entering Canada has greatly increased. Many provinces don't keep count of the number of nutria within their boundaries but from those that do, it has been ascertained that the population on fur farms has reached 7,000.

W. W. Mair, head of the Wildlife Service, says his officials fear that persons taking up nutria farming for a quick profit will become discouraged by the quality of the fur, and the limited demand for it.

The danger then arises that they will become careless with the animals and allow them to escape.

Bulletins issued by the National Better Business Bureau in the United States have told of farmers in Louisiana—where nutrias abound — being eaten right off their land by the rodent which is noted for its voracious appetite.

Mr. Mair stresses there are some successful, responsible nutria ranchers in Canada who went into the business with their eyes wide open.

Those who rushed in unaware of the risks and hazards of raising the animals are causing the concern among his officials.

READY WITH ADVICE

The Wildlife Service sees its role mainly as assuring the maintenance of wildlife as an important natural resource and normally wouldn't become involved with the nutria until the animal became established in the wild.

However, it now feels it has been put into the picture by the letters it has received and by the facts uncovered by Mr. Eagles' study.

By discussing the nutria at the Ottawa conference, the service hopes to bring provincial wildlife officials up to date on developments. They thus will be in a position to give the best possible advice if asked for their opinions.

The Ottawa meeting is the 26th annual conference of federal and provincial wildlife authorities and, as usual, the latest developments in waterfowl management and migratory bird regulations will be on the agenda.

Delegates also will hear a paper on a proposed bylaw affecting the Blackfoot Indians of Gleichen, Alta., and another on the propagation and shooting of mallard ducks.

Liberal Leader

visit a social call on Mme. Vanier and a briefing session on Monday's swearing-in ceremony with Roland Michener, the Governor-General's secretary.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters he intends to remain in Parliament as leader of the opposition, a post eight of Conservative cabinet ministers took up after being defeated in a general election.

The Conservative leader noted that two of the eight—Conservative Sir John A. Macdonald, and Liberal W. L. Mackenzie King—won elections later and returned as prime minister.

WILL TRY COMEBACK

"I intend to endeavor to follow their example," Mr. Diefenbaker said, and added with apparent relish: "I look forward with considerable interest to being leader of the opposition."

Mr. Pearson said that until meeting and accepting the vice-regal invitation to form a government, he could not proceed formally with his cabinet or other plans. However, he now expects to have the list of ministers ready Friday. It will not be announced until the new ministers are sworn, according to custom.

The Liberal leader said that after meeting Mr. Diefenbaker privately on Monday, when they agreed on the steps to be taken in turn over the reigns of government, he sent informal messages to Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy suggesting conferences.

"I hope that will be done by the end of this month or the very beginning of next month," he said. "I am going to London first and then when I come back I hope to have a meeting with President Kennedy . . . sometime early in May, depending on the president's arrangements."

ASK RE BUDGET

Asked if work has started on a budget, to be presented to Parliament early in its first session, Mr. Pearson said:

"I wouldn't be surprised if there are some Liberal members of Parliament in corners working on legislation and a budget, and things like that, in the hope they will be given responsibilities before long for that work."

While official announcement of the date of opening the first session of Canada's newly-elected 26th Parliament must await the formal constitution of the new government, Mr. Pearson again said he hopes it will be May 16. A meeting of the 15-nation North Atlantic Council here May 23-24 will not be a barrier since the NATO meeting will be held in the newly reconstructed West Block on Parliament Hill.

In the new Commons, Mr. Pearson's Liberals will number 135, just three short of an absolute majority in the 265-seat House.

The other party standings are 94 Conservatives, 24 Social Credit-ers, and 17 New Democratic Party members.

he is allowed to prosecute from six months after the alleged offence is brought to his attention.

The legislature resumed sitting Wednesday after a 12-day Easter holiday adjournment.

New legislation requiring Ontario Securities Commission approval before issue of any advertisement soliciting investment deposits in corporations was introduced.

Tilted the Deposits Regulation Act, it states that "no person or corporation shall solicit deposits in any manner that is false, misleading, deceptive or likely to create an erroneous impression."

It requires corporations affected to set aside 60 per cent of the total deposits in cash or in deposits with chartered banks as security for depositors. A convicted corporation would be liable for a $25,000 fine and an individual for a $5,000 fine or two years' imprisonment, or both.

The act does not apply to banks under the Federal Bank Act, corporations under the Loan and Trust Corporations Act, credit unions, issuers of investment contracts, post office savings banks, provincial savings offices, registered insurance companies or mortgage brokers.

Labor Minister Rowntree introduced legislation which will remove the age limit of 21 for persons entering apprenticeship in any of the designed trades, one of the recommendations made by the Legislature's select committee on manpower.

He said it was the government's "confident expectation" that the amendment would encourage unskilled workers aged 21 or over to learn a trade.

William Jenovese, president of the Toronto and District Labor Council and a member of the Ontario Advisory Board on Apprenticeship commented in an interview that would serve only as a source of cheap labor. He foresaw persons over 21 dropping their apprenticeships because of poor wages and then drifting into industry as "self-styled" journeymen.

New Bathing Suits Aptly Called 'Next-to-Nothing'

By JEAI SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — As temperatures rise, mercurial and otherwise, a new beach and bathwear item looking surprisingly like Brigitte Bardot's famous towel is popping up with the frequency of freckles.

Tying securely across the bosom, spanning the middle, and ending all too shortly thereafter, the garment is aptly called next-to-nothing. At first glance this brief style fad (along with "barely-there" bodices on cocktail dresses, skin midriff evening costumes, and "solely-sole" shoes) promises a great summer for mosquitoes and girl watchers.

But this spare apparel is only one side of a style war of fashion extremes in which the industry is currently divided. On the other side is a distinguished lineup of creators who advocate more anatomical mystery through modesty.

Chief among the espousers of calculated exposure is California designer Rudi Gernreich, who points out that in all good design, architectural or fashion, space plays an important part.

PREDICTS BARE BREASTS

Not only does he allow plenty of space between fabric with some of his swim suit designs, he prophesies a less prudish era in which ladies' bathing suits will lack tops. That North American have belatedly come to accept the skimpy bikinis, long appreciated by Europeans, is part of Gernreich's defence for his prediction. Yet in St. Tropez, Brigitte Bardot's former playground on the French Riviera and birthplace of the bikini and low-slung sailor pants, beach beauties are beginning to cover up, knocking holes through Gernreich's arguments.

Reading these signs on the sand, Gaston Berthelot, designer for New York's Christian Dior House, says the one-piece suit, generous in fabric, is the trend of today as well as tomorrow. Certain U.S. swimsuit houses already have taken heed by adding much more yardage, even sleeves to their beachwear.

Sleeves are also playing a big part in the modest cover-up scheme by Paris designers this season.

But in preparing their last collections they apparently decided en masse that the best time to swathe the female in fabric from chin to shin and all the way down to her diamond rings is when she least needs it, in summer. Fashion for women is not supposed to make sense.

Red Cross Soc. Discusses Home Nursing Course

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of Deseronto branch of the Red Cross Society was held recently at the home of the president, Mrs. Gordon Walker.

The members discussed the idea of entering a quilt in the provincial contest as part of the Red Cross centenary program. The quilts will be judged at the semi-annual central council meeting in Toronto in November.

The members also discussed the organization of a home nursing course on Tyendinaga Reserve and decided to consult Miss McAlpine, on the need of such a course.

Mrs. M. Ryan, Senior Citizen chairman, was commended by the provincial chairman, Miss Hope Holmstead, for her outstanding work. Mrs. Ryan is to represent the local branch at a Senior Citizen conference in Toronto this month.

A box of used clothing was received from Miss Joan Cross of Toronto, and the branch purchased several blankets for distribution in case of disaster. Mrs. Harold Transue, chairman of the fund campaign, reported a total of $408 collected.

Mr., Mrs. Robert J. Fergusson Celebrate 35th Anniversary

A surprise party was held at the home of Mrs. George Stolker, Byron St., R.R. 6, Belleville, on Saturday evening, when she entertained friends and relatives in honor of the 35th wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Fergusson, of 22 Brassey Street, Belleville.

On April 17, 1928, Keitha Lorane Long and Robert John Fergusson were married at the home of the bride's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Arthurs, 247 Station St., Belleville, by the Rev. E. McCutcheon, B.A., B.D., minister of Tabernacle United Church.

They have four children: Mrs. George (Doreen) Stolker, Belleville; Mr. Bruce Fergusson, Belleville; Mrs. Dale (Jean) Cross, Toronto, and Mrs. Joe (Betty) Pougere, Belleville, also nine grandchildren.

Mrs. Fergusson's sister, Mrs F. J. Wood of Stirling, and brother, Mr. Harold Long, of Belleville, were among those present.

Mr. Fergusson is a retired C.N.R. conductor and has been enjoying his pension for two years.

The evening was spent in playing euchre, the winners being: ladies, Mrs. Archie Longhurst, Belleville; Mrs. F. J. Wood, Stirling; men, Dale Cross, Toronto, and Rayburn Wood, Stirling, and the travelling prize, Mrs. A. Longhurst.

The happy couple were presented with many lovely gifts for which they thanked those present.

Their family gave them a living-room rug and the grandchildren gave them flowers.

A delicious lunch was enjoyed. The beautiful anniversary cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Stoliker, was the centre of attraction.

After a most pleasant evening the guests departed wishing Keitha and Bob many more happy anniversaries.

For Honest To-Goodness Reducers

by Mary Moore

NUMBER 2

Today's column gives you the third installment of low-calorie menus for reducers.

These have all been tested by me and the other reducers in our family and we can attest to their validity. If you eat 1 orange and 1 coddled or poached or boiled egg and 1 or 2 cups of clear coffee for breakfast (no toast if you are over 50); and salad of cottage cheese and lettuce and 1 slice lean meat and 1 glass skim or buttermilk for lunch and the following menu for dinner, you are on the royal road to reduction.

REDUCERS' DINNER MENU:
Deviled Sweetbreads
Potato Spinach Nests

British Dish: Raw Asparagus Tips, Raw Tiny Cauliflowerets and Julienne Carrot Strips
Banana Cocoanut Cream

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Country-Style Pork Chops (see Wednesday), Scalloped Potatoes, Broccoli or Cauliflower, Lettuce and Radish Salad with Italian Dressing, Lemon Jelly Roll, Tea.

SUNDAY (Guests)

Roast Ribs of Beef (see Monday for low-slow method — 6 lb. roast will serve 8 but reduce roasting time given), Spiced Currants (see Monday); Whole Potatoes with Parsley White Sauce; Raw Vegetables with Almonds (see Tuesday); Unfrosted Angel Food (see Friday) with Whipped Cream with Glace Pineapple and Shaved Brazils. Coffee.

DEVILLED SWEETBREADS

(Note: For these I bought a 12-oz. box of frozen New Zealand sweetbreads for 89c. To serve 3 but I should have had 1 pound. So if you intend to serve this dish, order fresh sweetbreads in advance from your butcher.)

Cover sweetbreads with cold water, add 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons vinegar, bring to boil. Cover and turn off heat and allow to cool in cooking liquid. Rinse in cold water and cut into ¾" cubes. Mix togetver ¾ teaspoon curry powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ cup tomato juice and 2 teaspoons soy sauce. Pour over the prepared sweetbreads and stir. To make this look attractive when served to those on reduced rations, I divided them into individual baking shells and baked them at 300 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. These are good.

POTATO SPINACH NESTS:

—One lb. spinach, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, 3 medium potatoes cooked and riced 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion or chives, paprika. Wash spinach well and drain well. Pile into a large pan and sprinkle lightly with salt. Cover. Heat quickly and then steam until leaves wilt, turning over once. Drain well and chop and toss lightly with lemon juice. Spoon spinach on to 3 heated plates. Top with hot riced potatoes to which you have added salt and chopped green onion or chives, if desired, and garnish with a sprinkle of paprika.

BANANA COCOANUT CREAM:

Three eggs, separated, ½ cup skim milk, ½ cup water 1 envelope gelatine 1 teaspoon vanilla 1½ teaspoon sugar) solution, 2 bananas, peeled and sliced thin, 6 tablespoons cocoanut. Beat egg yolks with milk and water until blended in top of double boiler; stir in gelatine. Cook stirring constantly, over hot (but not boiling) water for 7 minutes. Remove from heat. Add vanilla and sugar). Chill for 30 minutes or until as thick as molasses egg whites. Beat egg whites in medium sized bowl until they form soft peaks. Gradually fold in slightly thickened gelatine mixture and 4 tablespoons of the cocoanut, until no streaks of white remain. Spoon into glass serving dishes and chill thoroughly. When ready to serve, top each serving with a ring of banana slices. Divide remaining 2 tablespoons of cocoanut between servings and garnish each dish with a sprinkling. Non-reducers like this — and it will serve 4 or 5.

DIETING HINT:

To stave off hunger pangs, take tomato juice, clear tea or coffee, or clear bouillon soup with one thin whole wheat wafer.

FREEZE FORRIDGE

A firm in Scotland deep-freezes porridge and received large export orders for its product.

C.G.I.T. Holds Candlelight Easter Service

WELLINGTON — The Wellington C.G.I.T. held their annual Easter Candlelight Service on Sunday evening April 14th in the United Church. The empty cross with lilies and fern at the foot and an open Bible on the altar table were the focal points.

The Explorer group entered from the choir room taking their places in the front pews at the east side of the church. The C.G.I.T. followed taking their places in the choir loft.

With Mrs. Jack McNeil at the organ, the usual form of worship was followed, led by the president of the C.G.I.T., Miss Velma Vanderwaker. The choir sang the anthem "Light of the World."

Four explorer girls served as ushers and received the offering.

The lesson was read from the 20th chapter of St. Matthews, using the new English Bible. The meditation, "But Now Is Christ Risen" was given by Miss Carolyn Pettingell.

After the singing of the hymn, "The Strife Is O'er".

The Explorers and C.G.I.T. repeated their purpose and the leaders lit the candles and the girl's each with her candle made their way up the middle aisles, across side rear seats and down the side to front of the church. The candle lights were extinguished and a flood-light was directed on the Cross.

Four C.G.I.T. members, Misses Sharon McNeill, Elaine Bishop, Brenda Marshall and Brenda Adams, standing by the cross sang a double duet, "Jesus Keep Me Near The Cross." They then knelt while the president read a short poem, "The Glory Way" and pronounced the benediction.

The girls retired to the choir room singing "Jesus Bids Us Shine."

Should Wives Flirt With Husbands?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I notice in your column that you advise the wives of wayward husbands to spruce up and flirt with them a little more. This I presume is based on the theory that there must be something lacking at home to make husbands wayward.

Here are my questions:

1. Assuming the above advice is correct, how do you get the wives to take it?

2. If a wife cannot choose from among all her acquaintances one whose shoes she would prefer be in, has she much to complain about?

With Mrs. Jack McNeil at the organ, the usual form of worship was followed, led by the president of the C.G.I.T., Miss Velma Vanderwaker. The choir sang the anthem "Light of the World."

Four explorer girls served as ushers and received the offering.

The lesson was read from the 20th chapter of St. Matthews, using the new English Bible. The meditation, "But Now Is Christ Risen" was given by Miss Carolyn Pettingell.

After the singing of the hymn, "The Strife Is O'er".

The Explorers and C.G.I.T. repeated their purpose and the leaders lit the candles and the girl's each with her candle made their way up the middle aisles, across side rear seats and down the side to front of the church. The candle lights were extinguished and a flood-light was directed on the Cross.

Four C.G.I.T. members, Misses Sharon McNeill, Elaine Bishop, Brenda Marshall and Brenda Adams, standing by the cross sang a double duet, "Jesus Keep Me Near The Cross." They then knelt while the president read a short poem, "The Glory Way" and pronounced the benediction.

The girls retired to the choir room singing "Jesus Bids Us Shine."

1. Assuming the above advice is correct, how do you get the wives to take it?

2. If a wife cannot choose from among all her acquaintances one whose shoes she would prefer be in, has she much to complain about?

3. Is there such a thing as justifiable jealousy?—SADDER AND WISER.

DEAR SADDER:

1. Some do and some don't. Just one taste of triumph, just one affectionate response, can hearten a woman to try some more.

2. Aren't you a bit negative? Does Successful Living mean thinking "It could be worse," or "It couldn't be better?"

3. More or less, but it's nothing to cultivate.

TO ACTRESS—Yes, there are limits to luggage when travelling by air, weight allowed depending on classification of ticket. But since you are going to need several changes of costume, remember you can take as much as you need by paying extra for any poundage which you find you just have to have, over the limit.

DEAR DORIS—There is something that we can't figure out. We are right friends. Lots of boys come to our place. They date girls, but none of them seems to be interested or ask any of us girls to marry them, or even go steady. We sure would like to know the reason for this?—MISS WORRIED.

DEAR MISS WORRIED—They've never had it so good. If your friends don't pay back hospitality they're either too young or too cold. Who wants to marry them, or even go steady, until they grow up or warm up?

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANXIOUS—A nourishing, balanced diet, combined with exercises, can assist in rounding out the figure where you'd like it rounded. There are no injections which can be obtained for this purpose. Articles on the two above subjects entitled "Know Your Groceries" and "Be Figure Perfect" could be yours for a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope. Could you not have me mail them to General Delivery where you are?

Mr., Mrs. Gerald Curry Mark Silver Anniversary

FRANKFORD — Relatives and friends recently gathered in the Masonic Temple to honor Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Curry on their 25th wedding anniversary.

The Rev. Fred Spring led in grace. A turkey dinner was served by Mrs. Evelyn French, of Ivanhoe, assisted by waitresses, Miss Kathleen Gunter, Miss Norma Cooney of Belleville and Miss Sharon Cooney of Fort Erie, all relatives of the honored couple.

Master of the ceremonies for the evening was the Rev. Stanley Grant of Bowmanville, Ontario.

The program was as follows: The singing of choruses were enjoyed and a "mock wedding" followed; a reading, "Tell Her So," by Mrs. J. M. Dafoe; prayer by Mr. Garfield Cooney, of Belleville; an instrumental duet by the guests' daughter and son, Barbara Smith and James; a reading, "The Misty Years," by Miss Linda Fisher; a vocal solo, by Mr. Floyd Cummings of Belleville; a vocal duet by Mrs. Gordon Smith and Miss Kathleen Gunter; a reading, "By Bread Alone" by Mrs. Everett Cooney of Toronto; a vocal solo by Mrs. Stanley Grant of Bowmanville; an accordion duet by Mrs. Barbara Smith and Miss Kathleen Gunter.

Mr. Stanley Grant spoke briefly and the honored couple Gerald and Marjorie opened their lovely gifts for which both responded, thanking their family, relatives and friends.

The family gave them a silver tea service. The bridegroom gave his bride of 25 years a chest of silver and the bride gave her bridegroom of 25 years a gold wedding ring.

A time of fellowship was enjoyed and the Rev. F. Spring closed the "happy gathering," in prayer.

Senora Ibarruri Still Has Hope of Establishing Communism in Spain

MADRID (Reuters) — A silver - haired grandmother who helped to set Spain on fire nearly 30 years ago has not given up hope of establishing communism in the land.

Senora Dolores Ibarruri, famed "La Pasionaria" (passion flower) of the Spanish Civil War, broadcasts almost nightly from exile in Eastern Europe.

The same urgent voice which inspired the Spanish Republicans is heard on short - wave transmissions in Spanish - language propaganda programs beamed from Moscow, Prague, Budapest and other Communist centres.

But Senora Ibarruri is no longer advocating blood as the only way in the struggle against Generalissimo Francisco Franco. She says the path to socialism can be a peaceful one.

This is the same miner's daughter and ex - cook who urged the defenders of Madrid in 1936 "to die on their feet if they did not wish to live on their knees."

To the women of Madrid, she said then: "Better to be the widow of a hero than the wife of a coward."

Now, at the age of 67, "La Pasionaria" has written her autobiography. It has not been published here because communism is outlawed in Spain. But the new, enlightened censorship allowed newspapers to publish reviews and summaries of the book.

She writes: "Formerly, the way to socialism was fundamentally through civil war and revolution. Today, although violence is not excluded, the possibility exists of a peaceful path, of a democratic way towards socialism."

One Madrid newspaper refused to believe in Senora Ibarruri's peaceful declarations. It said the 458 pages of the book "show she still believes in violence and the handing over of Spain to a foreign power."

Eighth of 11 children, she left school at 15, became a seamstress and later a cook for a private family for two years. She married a miner and had six children, four of whom died in childhood. Her surviving son, Ruben, died fighting with the Soviet army at Stalingrad in the Second World War.

U.C.W. Meeting

SALEM U.C.W.

MINTO—The April meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held on Thursday with a splendid attendance. A dinner was served at noon and a quilt completed for Mrs. Arnold Ray.

During the afternoon, the president, Mrs. Everett Sine, opened the meeting, and extended a welcome to all.

Mrs. George Sine gave financial report. Thank you notes were read from Mr. and Mrs. Will .Donald, Mrs. A. Munsby and Mrs. Arnold Ray.

Business was discussed and a committee of Mesdames, Bert Beagle, Tom Clements and Mel Wickens were appointed to make plans for catering to a banquet. Visiting committee for month to be: Mrs. Murney Johnston and Mrs. Frank McGee.

Mrs. Stanley Kellar took charge of the program reading a passage of Scripture; Mrs. Mel Wickens read the lesson appointed for the day with Mrs. Kellar reading the comments. Mrs. Tom Clements gave a reading and Mrs. Albert Twiddy read a chapter of Study Book.

Mrs. Vene Hagerman thanked the hostess, Mrs. Lorne Hagerman, and all who helped with the program.

U.C.W. Plan Rummage, Bake Sales

DESERONTO — The afternoon unit of the Deseronto U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Ross Neal, recently. The unit leader, Mrs. L. Gaylord, opened the meeting. Mrs. T. Jackson was in charge of the devotional period.

The Rev. D. Blair took the study of "Word and Way" on chapter of "Miracles." Poems were read by Mrs. R. Lawlor and a duet by Mrs. J. Gaylord and Mrs. J. Webster.

A report on the 'Father and Son' banquet to be held later in April was given by Mrs. George Cole. Plans were made for the spring rummage sale and bake table to be held early in May. Mrs. Gaylord closed the meeting with prayer.

The committee for the day, Mrs. T. Jackson, Mrs. R. Lawlor and Mrs. Luffman, served lunch.

Mrs. H. Travers won the contest for having the largest list of ladies' names in the Bible.

Thurlow-Tyendinaga C.C.E. Successful Workshop Here

The Thurlow - Tyendinaga Council of Christian Education held a successful workshop on Saturday recently at College Hill United Church.

The Rev. R. Vessey welcomed everyone to College Hill Church.

Mrs. Harry Harrison conducted a sing song.

The afternoon session was made up of three workshop groups.

Mrs. Priest introduced Mrs. Jim Ketcheson, who showed her group how to make and use puppets for the children to illustrate lessons and Bible stories.

Mr. W. Geen introduced Mr. Roger Rawlings who illustrated to his group how to make use of everyday objects and from them teach Bible truths.

Mr. H. Putman introduced the Rev. Miriam Johnson C.C.E. representative who told her group how to use the concordance, commentaries and dictionaries to teach Bible Study.

Everyone was given the opportunity to take in two classes.

A book display and superintendents meeting was held.

A delicious supper was served by College Hill U.C.W.

The evening session opened with a sing-song conducted by Mr. M. Moorcroft and the worship service was conducted by Plainfield Sunday School.

The Rev. Hutchinson of St. Columba Presbyterian Church, gave an inspiring and challenging message to all teachers and church workers. He said in part " the destiny of Canada lies with our boys and girls. Young people are always wanting to follow in the footsteps of famous or popular people whereas the one person to follow is Jesus even if it means persecution. Our material and mental needs may be satisfied but we will not have complete satisfaction unless our spiritual needs are met. We should be willing to do any task that God puts before us in order to serve".

Mother's Helper

ANT AND ALL play equipment in your yard should be safety-checked before the outdoor season begins. Test ropes for rank rpots and loose knots. Inspect metal swing sets, climbing structures for rust, and make sure all bolts are secure. A family painting session would make everything look bright, and help to preserve it.

Melrose United Church Women Enjoy Easter Film

Mrs. Earle Badgley was hostess to a well-attended meeting of the Melrose U.C.W. held at the church. The Easter theme was followed throughout the meeting. Scripture, read by Mrs. Fred Hall, was followed by the meditation read by the president, Mrs. Grant McLaren.

The verse from the Scripture, "Jesus Steadfastly Set His Face to go to Jerusalem," should be the key for us. Our intentions are good, but, we are easily swerved from our purpose. Steadfastness is a necessity for the people of the church; but God has not left us on our own. He has given us the Scriptures, Bible and the promise He can be approached."

Mrs. Kenneth McMeehan as program convener continued the Easter theme by saying: "Resurrection is associated with spring. Nature preaches a sermon at Easter. "If I live, you shall live also."

Mrs. Jack Milligan brought to the meeting an inspiring message at Easter. She said in part, that Christ is alive; He belongs to the 20th century. His message is assuring; Fear God, I was dead, I have gone into the unknown and have come back. He must be personal to us in our experience. We need to risen and returned Christ. We must thank God this is the first day of Easter. Here is a day of rejoicing. We shall live again in glory with Christ but we must be sure we are living in our hearts.

"He is our guide and friend and will abide with us. Resurrection to a new life and death to evils and fears is the message of Easter."

An interesting reading, "Customs of Easter" was read by Mrs. Clare Weese. In Mexico festivities centre around the destruction of an effigy of Judas. The Easter dawn service comes from an ancient peasant belief that those who watched the sun rise would be blessed with good fortune. Eggs, Easter bonnets, Easter rabbit are all carry-overs from early pagan festivals.

The Easter lily is a comparatively new addition to the Easter tradition. After the American Civil War, the clergy chose Easter Sunday to console those bereaved in battle. Altars were decorated with the Bermuda lily and it became known as the Easter lily.

Mrs. Lorne Weese, with an organ solo of Easter music brought this part of the program to a close.

TRAVELOGUE

The highlight of the evening was a travelogue, illustrated by colored slides of her trip to Holy Land, by Mrs. Jack Parrott. As Mrs. Parrott spoke, she took the assembly to Jerusalem, to Gethsemane, the Mount of Olives, Christ's Tomb and to many other sacred places. The Easter story was brought much closer to all present as they watched the pictures of where Christ lived, suffered, died, and rose again.

During the business plans were made for catering to a wedding in the near future. Mrs. John Milligan was appointed as convener for stewardship and development.

Lunch served and her assistants served lunch.

TIPS ON TRAIN TRAVEL

I didn't realize until someone told me the other day that there's a great deal of puzzlement about correct "procedures" on a long railroad trip.

According to my informant, far more people than we think don't know how and when to tip, what to do with their baggage, or even what to ask for in the way of travel accommodations. In the latter case, they play safe by buying a coach ticket when they would have preferred the comfort and privacy of a roomette.

Here, then, is a brief primer on railroad travel that may help point you in the right direction.

OVERNIGHT TRAVEL

Generally, railroads offer four types of overnight arrangements. The traveller must pay a higher fare, plus the charge for sleeping accommodations. From top to bottom, they are:

Drawing room or compartment: for one (if you're a movie star) to four persons.

Bedroom: for one or two persons.

Roomette: for one person (but be sure to ask the car porter to show you how to pull down the bed).

Berth: upper or lower for one person. Upper berth is cheaper, but you'll have to ask the porter to bring you a stepladder to get into bed.

At least one Eastern railroad has special "sleepercoach" cars. The passenger pays regular coach fare, plus a small amount for a roomette.

A compartment, bedroom or roomette offers complete privacy. You can take off your shoes or sit around in pyjamas all day. If you prefer to eat in solitary splendor, the porter usually is able to bring food from the dining car.

One charming custom still prevails on most sleeping cars. Leave your shoes out at night and you'll find them nicely polished the next morning.

TIPPING

Redcap in railroad stations: generally a charge of 25 cents a bag or parcel is made. Tip him a dime or 15 cents extra.

Dining-car waiter: the usual 15 to 20 per cent. The dining car steward is rarely tipped.

Train porter: 25 cents to a dollar to sleeping car porter, more if he has performed special service. The coach porter gets 25 to 50 cents if he helps with luggage.

Parlor car porter: 50 cents.

LUGGAGE

Let the train porter handle your luggage. If you're a coach passenger, he'll hoist your bags to the overhead rack or stow it away for you in a special luggage compartment. He's usually waiting at the car when you arrive and is ready to lend a hand.

He's particularly helpful when you arrive at your destination. He'll get your bags out to the platform and get a redcap for you when none is in sight.

The redcap, in turn, will bring your bags to the taxi-loading platform and see to it that you get a cab.

MAIL CALL

Question: A kind relative gave me a cheque for a wedding present and with it I bought a lovely old harvest table for the dining room. It has a beautiful finish which I keep well waxed. I hate to hide it under a cloth when we entertain, but I've been told that mats or a cloth must be used even for the sort of informal dinners we give. Would it seem to casual to set the table without any covering at all?

Mrs. R. S., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: Not at all. A bare background can make a very handsome setting as long as the table is in excellent condition and the surface, as you say, is highly polished and well cared for.

THE NEW WORLD OF COLOR

For those who have worn the basic colors, black, grey, or brown for years, the very thought of switching to a more colorful wardrobe will provoke images of financial ruin and a general feeling of uncertainty.

There is no better time to ditch a basic color than in the spring. Spring and summer suits, coats, dresses and accessories are usually lower-priced than their autumn counterparts. But still, a major step such as this, needs careful consideration. Any woman who has been a devotee of black accessories for years — an accessory color which goes well with any of the basic colors — usually has an appreciable investment in black handbags and shoes. This is hard to discard. Perhaps the best and newest of these should be kept to wear this spring's lighter colors or, better still, put the whole collection away until next fall.

Having once made up your mind to adapt colors and make them work for you, the big question still remains — which color range of colors is right for your particular combination of hair and skin tones. Then the figure must be considered. Most overweight women, even those slightly heavier than the ideal, try to reduce their silhouettes by wearing inconspicuous, basic colors. Abnormally tall women will try to shorten their height by dressing in tones of one basic color. Others with figure faults, try to play down these imperfections by using basic colors. These tricks can work, but they have a deadly dull quality.

One set of accessories, handbag and shoes, in either the tawny or deep, beige shades will do for a start. Yes, we know these are basic shades, but this is the only place in your new, colorful wardrobe for basics. To be in fashion, the new handbag should be smaller than the ones you are accustomed to carrying (Do you really need to carry four lipsticks, an extra cigarette lighter, along with last week's grocery list?)

The next step is to decide exactly what colors are best for you. This is a problem that needs experiment and research. We repeat our suggestions as outlined in our November 19th column, entitled "Colorless Canadians." Stand in front of a mirror, facing the daylight, drape fabrics over your shoulders near your chin. Experiment with make-up to bring out the right, skin tones to complement that shade. If in doubt, ask an expert cosmetologist. You will find an expert behind any quality, cosmetic bar. Your hairdresser can be helpful here, too.

As a start, you might try a deep blue, or medium green, or if you are very courageous, you might leap right into the pink family. Your deep beige shoes and handbag will go well with any of these shades, but do match them to your costume color. Check your make-up to see that your lipstick is not too orange or too blue for your new color.

This kind of research takes time, but just listen to those compliments!

Past Matrons' Club Enjoys Social Time

WELLINGTON — Mrs. William Davern entertained the Past Matrons Club at her home, Monday evening. Mrs. James Dick, the president, welcomed everyone especially Mesdames, Calnan, Sargent and Baird from Belleville, and thanked the hostess for opening her home.

She opened with "Great Easter Words," by the Rev. Archibald Alexander, and closed with an Easter prayer.

A short business session followed. It was decided the date for the annual dinner party at Maple Inn would be early in June.

Recreation later in the home of Miss Norma Foster.

After the Mizpah Benediction, Mrs. Dick presented Mrs. Elmer McFaul with a gift for her good work during her two year term as president. Doris graciously thanked the members for the lovely gift.

Three tables of Court Whist were in play for a short time. The hostess presented the prizy favors to the following lucky winners: Mrs. W. Vick, and Miss Norma Foster; low, Mrs. Fred Way and Mrs. R. Sargent.

Mrs. Earl Marvin had the lucky Easter Seal plate.

Assisted by several members, the hostess served refreshments. All heartily seconded Mrs. Vick's vote of thanks for such a nice evening at the Davern home.

WHEN YOUR CHILD answers the telephone, he should identify himself (for example: "Ed Rogers speaking"), and must merely grunt an abrupt "Hello!" If he must bring another member of the family to the phone, ask him not to stand rooted to the spot and yell. How much nicer if he puts the phone down gently and goes to find the person requested!

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

For years now some of the most widely - publicized psychiatrists and psychologist have insisted that we must offer our children love in heaping, balling, profuse amounts —and heaven help us if he temper love with forthright discipline. They have interminably reiterated the idea that love automatically makes a child good and lack of love makes a child bad. Simultaneously, they have preached that what happens to human beings after the weaning stage can do little except bring out personality traits already shaped by their parents.

Modern parents have been so brainwashed by these theories that they stand in awe, trepidation, fear and trembling before their tiny offspring, and far too many of them are walking around with feelings of guilt and inadequacy. In my view, it's time experts told parents the truths that are constantly being rediscovered — that children need a firm hand over them and that character structure does change after early childhood. If parents realized that they wouldn't tend to distort out of all proportion incidents that are normal in most homes. Nor would they be afraid that every cross word they uttered or every restraint they imposed might turn their children into neurotics or criminals or both.

Unnecessary parental tension has, I am sure, injured rather than helped youngsters, and the responsibility for at least part of the tension lies at the door of the school of psychiatric thought that trumpets that all one has to do is to name his problem, sit back and love will magically solve it. The love cult, when it suggests that love is all, leads us astray by turning our attention from other equally-impressive needs of man —the laws of ethical behaviour, the immovable moral obligations we have to society, the necessity for personal compromise. And no domain has been so thoroughly invaded by it as the home. Parents are caught in a dilemma. Many chafe under the tyranny of love but dare not admit it, for to "be modern" they must piously repeat the litanies of the New Psychology. Others, love-starved themselves, crave adoration from their children. With what result? A whole generation of family-heads has lost touch with some vital facts of life. The worship of love has blinded them to their true role as teachers, weighted them down with unearned guilt feelings, prevented them from being effective guides. Mothers are preached at, told to "relax and enjoy their children," yet are simultaneously scolded, by the same mentors, if they deny their children what they want.

PARENTHOOD

Dr. Benjamin Spock, 'one of the most-widely followed child-advisers, himself admits: "One of the reasons why being a parent has been hard in twentieth-century America is that so much psychological data has been accumulated by professional people. It has intimidated many parents, particularly the educated ones with a respect for book knowledge — made them lose confidence in their own intuition and authority."

It is high time for an Emancipation Proclamation for Parents that would fee them from the neurotic fear of not loving their children enough when, indeed, we should politely but firmly explode the myth that parents must make life pleasant for children. Children today are thought of as beneficiaries, hardly ever as benefactors. They have few duties to the home, optional rather than mandatory responsibilities to the group, and are under no obligation to earn their rewards. We seem to be convinced that all obstacles to pleasure and contentment must be removed or our offspring will grow up with scars of resentment against parents who did not protest and secure them. The facts of life often rub in the opposite direction: as they grow into the age of discernment, many youngsters begin to recognize that their parents' overconcern has made them too dependent, and they blame overindulgent parents if they lack self-confidence. When parents give too much, too soon, they unwittingly dull the child's sense by making life so easy that pain, trial and normal deprivation can never be faced realistically. The child who has been given little opportunity to build up his own inner defences has a hard time drawing on spiritual deposits he never made.

Sen. Keating Tells Editors No Substantial Cut Made Of Soviet Troops in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a direct challenge of President Kennedy's reassurances on Soviet troop withdrawals, Senator Kenneth Keating charged today there has been "no substantial reduction" of Russian military forces in Cuba since mid-November.

Keating, a New York Republican, said in a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he has information that new Soviet arrivals have about matched the departures.

"There were and are in the neighborhood of 17,000 men there," said the senator. "No functional units have been withdrawn."

Kennedy, who will address the editors' annual meeting Friday, told his April 3 press conference that some 4,000 Russian troops had left in the preceding month, in addition to the 5,000 pulled out in November.

At the height of last fall's crisis over Russian missile bases in Cuba, there were an estimated 21,000 to 22,000 Russian troops on the island. Thus the president's report indicated a remaining total of only 12,000 or 13,000.

QUOTES SOURCES

Keating, a foremost critic of Kennedy's Cuban policies, quoted the undisclosed intelligence sources with which he has been challenging the administration for months.

"Several thousand personnel have left Cuba, several thousand more have arrived," he said. "Further, they appear should not be called troops when they are on their way out and technicians when they are on their way in."

Keating also said that some U.S. Navy ships have specific orders not to play searchlights on Cuban fishing vessels which are said constantly ply Cuban and Caribbean waters at night. He mentioned "navy personnel" as his source of this information.

"None of these ships are ever searched by U.S. patrols.

"How can we hope to get evidence of support of subversion if we don't investigate these small scale but very numerous operations?"

Committee System Said Biggest Worry

OTTAWA (CP)—The bane of national defence headquarters since proliferation of committees—has caught the criticism of the fourth report of the Glassco royal commission on government organization, made public Wednesday.

The committee system has been a big worry of more than one senior officer. Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, recently retired chief of air staff, made a vigorous assault on RCAF committees at headquarters. But as quickly as he would abolish one, another would spring up behind him.

The commission says there are 350 committees at defence headquarters. It says at another point there are more than 200 tri-service committees without making clear whether this figure is included in the 350.

It says the chiefs of staff committee lacks executive authority because each member of it holds a virtual veto. The same pattern was followed throughout the co-ordinating organization which had evolved under the chiefs of staff committee.

Some officers say bluntly that committees, both tri-service and single-service, have been established merely to make responsibility collective. In this way, no one could be singled out for blame when something goes wrong.

18 Injured When Train Hits Big Truck

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP)—Three crew members and at least 15 passengers of a Grand Trunk western train were injured in a collision with a heavily loaded steel truck at a city crossing today. Many of the 85 passengers aboard the train were Canadians.

Two of the train crew, engineer Arnold Silver and fireman Jack Molette, were reported in critical condition in hospital.

The train, en route from Montreal to Chicago, smashed into the truck at a street crossing just within the city limits, spilling the truck's contents.

One of the two diesel engines of the locomotive caught fire. Firemen prevented the blaze from spreading to the rest of the train.

The truck driver, Duane Lancaster of Grand Rapids, was quoted as saying "I'm lucky to be alive."

Burned Boy Made up Story Police Believe

KINGSTON (CP) — Police and hospital officials said Wednesday they believe Bradley Murphy, 6, who was found with his clothes on fire early Sunday morning, accidentally set fire to himself.

The boy, who suffered burns to 50 per cent of his body, said at first a teen-ager had thrown a lighted match at him. He was burned on his chest, back, hands and face and is in a critical state of shock, but hospital officials said his condition is satisfactory.

"He was in a place he shouldn't have been and just made up that story about the older boy," said Dr. W. R. Ghent.

Unions Seeking White Collar Membership

OTTAWA (CP) — Organized labor takes its first major step this week in planning a way to unionize the membership in the fast-growing white collar occupations.

Senior officials of 26 unions in Canada meet here today and Thursday for private talks on how to fashion a co-ordinated, long-term organizational campaign in the white collar field.

They are attending the second session of the recently-formed white collar committee of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The committee brings together representatives of many major unions interested in the burgeoning occupations of the technological revolution — the workers in finance, insurance, real estate, trade and the service industries.

The conference will thrash out the findings of a major research study made for the CLC by Hugh A. Fruzzetti, associate professor of sociology at Carleton University.

NOT RELEASED

His report has not been released, but it is understood to delve into the characteristics and changes in the white collar work force, especially the behavior, hopes and motives of white collar workers.

The conference will also consider a plan to set up a special school to train a "task force" of labor organizers for the white collar drive.

Labor leaders believe that a new kind of labor organizer and a new approach may be necessary to bridge the gap between unions and the vast numbers of unorganized workers in white collar jobs.

Named Judge As a Payoff Says Lawyer

NEW YORK (CP) — Vernon J. Cardy, a Canadian financier and horseman, was accused in court here Tuesday of having been one of his lawyers appointed a judge in Quebec as a payoff for a divorce settlement favorable to the husband.

The accusation was made by Harry H. Lipsig, lawyer for 77-year-old Mrs. Hilda M. Cardy at the start of a court battle to get her half of her former husband's estimated $20,000,000 fortune, Both Cardy, 72, and his ex-wife were in court.

Lipsig did not name the lawyer said to have been made a Quebec judge. He elaborated later by saying that the payoff was for helping Cardy get a divorce settlement in 1950 which Mrs. Cardy now claims was fraudulent.

TENDERS RESIGNATION — Prime Minister Diefenbaker arrives at Government House in Ottawa to tender the resignation of his government to Governor-General Vanier. (CP Wirephoto)

Diefenbaker, Who Resigned As P.M. on Wednesday, Says He Will Not Fade Away

OTTAWA (CP) — Sometimes former prime ministers fade away politically. This fate does not appear in store for Rt. Hon. John George Diefenbaker, who resigned Wednesday — with a promise that he'd be back.

Six years ago John Diefenbaker roared out of the West like a prairie fire and snatched the reins of government from the Liberals for the first time in 22 years.

He was proceeded by a reawaken Canadian interest in government and politics as no man had done in decades, smashed the opposition in 1958 and poured legislation through Parliament like a river in flood.

But, gradually, this 'political express became a chugging local. The record majority of 1958 became the minority of 1962. The cabinet came apart at the seams. On April 8 this year the voters turned out their one-time hero and hurled him back into opposition.

What happened?

FIRED IMAGINATION

There is general agreement on one point: The 67-year-old prairie lawyer had fired up the political imaginations of Canadians like no one else in recent times. The huge campaign rallies of 1962 and 1963 attest to that.

In 1957 Mr. Diefenbaker called for a "renewed sense of national purpose." A nation without vision would perish.

"We must bring to Canada once a faith in their fellow Canadians and a faith in the future and destiny of this country," he cried, one hand on hip, the index finger of the other hand pointing like an arrow, the eyes aglearn.

"We must make articulate the yearnings and aspirations of the humblest of our people."

In the wake of the 1962 election, it is perhaps difficult now to recapture the electric throb of the capital in 1957 when Mr. Diefenbaker came to town to form a government. A whole generation of Canadians had grown up under Liberal rule. Who was this lean prairie lawyer who talked passionately of a Canadian vision? How would he govern? What would he do?

DIDN'T TAKE LONG

He was not long in supplying the answers.

Parliament was summoned that fall. National hospital insurance was introduced, old age pensions were increased. There were huge new farm support and acreage money. There were cash advances for farm-stored grain. Canada was taken into the North American air defence alliance.

The Liberals were in disarray. They tried to stall off another election. It was no use. Mr. Diefenbaker plucked the reins of government from their hands anyway and his 112 member minority party of 1957 became the 208-member

Still the legislative mill churned out a frantic rate producing Mr. Diefenbaker's mirage of Progressive Conservatism, sometimes called "social justice."

But in the good political years, the economy did not fare so well. Unemployment plagued Mr. Diefenbaker almost from the time he first took office. A winter works program was introduced. Public works spending increased, such as on airport development. Defence production-sharing and development-sharing with the U.S. was increased.

DIDN'T HAVE FEEL

Critics contend that, unhappily for Mr. Diefenbaker, he never seemed to have the same "feel" for the daily experiences as he did for his beloved prairies. In time, the cities turned almost unanimously against him.

In 1960, Mr. Diefenbaker achieved a long-cherished dream of putting through Parliament a Canadian Bill of Rights. He also settled with Quebec a long-standing argument over federal university grants.

But in the next year came the Coyne affair and the record peacetime deficit of $791,400,000.

By this time, too, the Liberals had revived, ile old CCF had become the New Democratic Party and Social Credit got a new leader—and deputy leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker seemed to have lost his steam in the 1962 campaign. His former magic political touch sometimes became gauche.

His Commons losses in 1962 were the greatest on record but he still managed to survive as head of a minority government.

Whatever one might say of Mr. Diefenbaker, he was no quitter. Even as he submitted his resignation, he was planning to remain as opposition leader and to wrest back the prime ministership from Lester B. Pearson in, he hoped, two years.

Crew Helps Return Stolen Yacht to Owner

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The crew of the French freighter Colorado del Sur hurled bottles and potatoes in a battle off Norfolk Island in the Pacific Wednesday and helped return a stolen yacht to its owners.

The Peter Fentons were attending a dance last Friday on Lord Howe Island while on a world cruise when two men stole the Fenton yacht, named Cythera.

She was spotted off Norfolk Island, about 550 miles southeast, and the French freighter put grappling hooks aboard her. The crewmen hurled bottles and potatoes at the thieves, who jumped overboard. They were picked up and taken along with the Cythera to Norfolk Island.

Men Descend 200 Feet in Gorge for Boy

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Two men descended 200 feet into the Niagara Gorge here Wednesday and rescued a 16-year-old boy who had slipped and fractured his right arm.

The boy, Ernie Smith of Niagara Falls, Ont., was taken to Greater Niagara Hospital for treatment.

George Lavallee, operator of Niagara Sightseeing Company, and Albert Bergan, 49, of St. Catharines went into the gorge in separate cars.

Mr. Lavallee pulled the boy while Mr. Bergan pushed and between them they worked him to the top of the gorge where a Niagara parks police constable was waiting.

Ernie had been playing in the gorge with two friends and slipped and tumbled several feet when they tried to climb out as the rain started.

The other boys made their way to the top of the gorge and asked a passing woman for help. The woman, who was not identified, told Mr. Lavallee of the Ernie's plight. He was called and Mr. Bergan joined Mr. Lavallee in the rescue.

Douglas Wants Committee to Probe RCMP

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said Wednesday he would ask the justice committee or "some Commons" to look into security investigation procedures of the RCMP.

In a statement issued from his home here, Mr. Douglas said recent statements by ex-informer C.W. Harvison of the RCMP "underline the need for a special committee of the House of Commons to look into the whole security investigations of the RCMP."

He referred to a recent issue of Maclean's magazine which reported that a Regina woman was interrogated periodically by the RCMP. Mr. Harvison had labelled the report of the incident "pure fabrication." Said Mr. Douglas:

"I am prepared to produce this woman as a witness before a parliamentary committee or any other body of competent jurisdiction."

"The tendency to label innocent people as Communists or bad security risks without any opportunity for them to be heard has gone far enough.

"Only a Parliament proceeds I shall ask the minister of justice for a select committee of the House of Commons to investigate this whole matter."

LEAVES STAR

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—William Doyle, 30, features editor of the Windsor Star, announced Wednesday he has accepted a position in the public relations department of the Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Mich. Mr. Doyle, formerly a reporter with the Chatham News, had been with the Star for 11 years. His successor at The Star has not been named.

Macaulay Asks Canadians To Take Their Money Out Of Banks, Put It to Work

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Robert Macaulay, Ontario economics and development minister said Wednesday that Canadian businessmen should "stop carping about the American economic take-over and take their money out of the bank and put it to work."

He made the suggestion at a joint luncheon meeting of the Los Angeles World Affairs Council and the Chamber of Commerce here as part of a "six-ingredient prescription for the cure of so-called anti-Americanism in Canada."

He told the group that anti-Americanism in Canada is made up of the fear of being culturally swamped; guilt about Canadians' lack of enterprise and entrepreneurship, and indignation toward the "some-office-first" attitude of some United States subsidiaries.

Mr. Macaulay said the crux of the matter is not anti-Americanism but whether or not Canada increases exports—particularly to the United States.

Americans, he said, must realize that Canada is no longer a nation of snowshoers and said U.S. companies should make their Canadian subsidiaries more autonomy in export policies.

Mr. Macaulay was invited by the World Affairs Council and the Chamber of Commerce to speak on "the truth about anti-Americanism in Canada." Previous speakers have been Indian Prime Minister Nehru, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mr. Macaulay said election campaign criticism of the United States has been "vastly exaggerated" and that even between the closest friend their are disagreements.

E. K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Limited, representing Ontario secondary manufacturers, told the group that Canadian-U.S. relationships are too strong to be seriously effected by political talk.

"The difference between being anti-American," he said, "and pro-Canadian is a very fine line indeed. You can rest assured that we are not anti-American or anti-any other country which has made such a tremendous contribution to our economy."

Texts of Mr. Macaulay's and Mr. Brownridge's speeches were released to the press in advance of delivery.

Some Would Like to See Queen Intervene in Battle

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With Europe still deadlocked there are people who would like to see royalty intervene in the battle between France and the Anglo-Saxons.

Specifically, the suggestion is that the Queen should make a state visit to West Germany in a bid to improve Anglo-German relations on the human level.

The theory is that the federal republic, clinging desperately to its new-found ties with France but reluctant to make it an exclusive one, is shutting out Britain and the United States, would respond as it looked a passing woman for help. The woman, who was not identified, told Mr. Lavallee of the Ernie's plight. He was called and Mr. Bergan joined Mr. Lavallee in the rescue.

GOOD EUROPEANS

The idea of a royal visit to Germany is an extension of Britain's de - be - beastly - to - the-Germans attitude, held by some British correspondents who have come to know the Germans well.

These journalists include R. H. C. Steed, formerly in Bonn for the London Daily Telegraph and Sarah Gainham, correspondent for British magazines.

The thought is that the Queen might be the most useful emissary is put most forcefully in a London Sunday newspaper, The Sunday Telegraph.

Peter Wrister, Peregrine Worsthorne, says the Gaulle gained an immense diplomatic and political advantage by being the first ROYAL visitor to Germany since the end of the war.

He referred to a recent issue of Maclean's magazine which reported that a Regina woman was interrogated periodically by the RCMP. Mr. Harvison had labelled the report of the incident "pure fabrication." Said Mr. Douglas:

"I am prepared to produce this woman as a witness before a parliamentary committee or any other body of competent jurisdiction."

"The tendency to label innocent people as Communists or bad security risks without any opportunity for them to be heard has gone far enough.

"Only a Parliament proceeds I shall ask the minister of justice for a select committee of the House of Commons to investigate this whole matter."

Steel Industry Completes Drive To Raise Prices

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. steel industry was in the mopup stage today of its first successful drive for significant price increase since 1958.

It left a comparative handful of steel firms had posted markups, mostly averaging three per cent or less, on a narrow range of big-tonnage products. The rearguard was falling in line rapidly.

There still was no direct word on their actions from President Kennedy beyond qualified recognition a week ago that some boosts probably were justifiable and a caution to industry against going too far.

The president was expected to be drawn out on his views at his appearance Friday before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The Democratic and Standing of the pricing move contrasted markedly with an abortive effort a year ago for an across-the-board increase.

SEE NO BITTERNESS

While the earlier episode, which flared into a bitter government-business conflict, there was no comparable bitterness or bitable lack of acrimony on both sides.

Most eight days for the initial price rise, by Wheeling Steel Corporation, to spread somewhat uneasily through the industry. The battle of April, 1962, when across-the-board increases ended in a rollback within 72 hours. It left deep scars.

That this year's would go all the way seemed assured when U.S. Steel Corporation, with roughly one-fourth of the industry's production capacity, announced increases Tuesday.

The last really big firm to follow was Kaiser Steel Corporation. Kaiser cut prices sharply last October. It balked when industry leaders tried to raise prices last year.

But like many other companies, Kaiser lost $5,200,000 in 1962, consistently has referred to a need for the industry to earn more than it has, although differing on solutions.

FULFILLS WISH

PLEASANT VALLEY, Mich. (AP)—Mrs. Mary Moyer, 100, performed her first marriage ceremony Wednesday since becoming Pleasant Valley's justice of the peace. Mrs. Moyer was elected justice of the peace April 1 after telling friends she had never been elected to a public office and had always wanted to perform a marriage ceremony.

12-Year Senior Course Advocated by H&S Assoc.

TORONTO (CP)The Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, meeting in conjunction with the annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association recommended Wednesday adoption of a 12-year senior matriculation course in Ontario.

The present course leading to university qualifications is 13 years, equivalent to 13 years in eight other provinces, British Columbia, with a 13-year course now, is in the midst of a change to 12 years.

A resolution recommending the change was passed by at least a 10 to 1 margin by the 2,000 delegates.

The recommendation will be sent to the provincial education department. The move would reduce the elementary program to seven years from eight.

The resolution was submitted by the Peterborough Home and School Council which said about 110,000 children moved from one province to another in the 1959-60 school year. The move also would eliminate some classroom overcrowding.

ASKS DRIVER EDUCATION

The meetings, which ended Wednesday, also passed a resolution that a complete driver education course be instituted by the Ontario Transport department for 16-to 19-year-olds. Anyone within those age brackets did not complete the course could be denied a driver's license.

Max Bedford of Saskatoon, national president of the Home and School Association, told the delegates Wednesday a federal government minister should be appointed to exercise control over education spending.

He said a central agency could present a clear picture to voters and members of Parliament.

The Ontario school board trustees decided at their meeting that they merit the same rate of pay as municipal councillors.

Urban area trustees now serve without pay, while rural trustees receive $5 a meeting to a maximum of $60 yearly.

Damage Caused By Hunters Will Be Paid

TORONTO (CP)—Legislation to provide compensation to farmers for property damage caused by hunters was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Agriculture Minister Stewart.

The bill would make it possible for persons having property damaged or livestock killed or injured by hunters to apply to the provincial transport department for compensation.

It would also provide that the government could take action to recover payments from the person who caused the damage if the agriculture minister said.

Compensation payments would be limited to the market value of the livestock or property involved. In the case of crops the government could appoint evaluators to appraise the damage or injury.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The annual spring check of the personal shirt situation not counting the lurid wallpaper-design sports monstrosities that arrive via the Christmas tyee, revealed that I'm short roughly three of the better garments.

Since they're the bob-tailed, short-sleeved summer variety the shortage was hard to explain. A call from Flin Chief Gerald Vance reminding me of the elaborate harness racing program of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club this summer cleared up my vestige of mystery.

To paraphrase a popular ditty "I Left My Shirts at the Door Old Fair Grounds." This summer it will be different. I'm in the market for sixteen topless and bottomless barrels, if the size is right.

Seriously, all indications at the moment point to one of the best harness racing seasons ever held in this city. Every Saturday night this summer will be "Harness Racing Night in Belleville." Sixteen meets, starting May 25th and running consecutively will be offered harness racing fans.

Topflight harness horseflesh of the district will be here. Several wintered at the Fair Grounds track and all are under heavy training at the moment.

A highlight of the spring season as far as city and district pacers and trotters are concerned is the outstanding performances of some of these horses at the Greenwood (Old Woodbine) Track in Toronto.

Tops in brilliancy of performances is Jack M. Jeffrey's "J.M.J." of this city. The seven-year-old bay gelding by Mac Abigail out of Betty May has won four of his five starts and finished second in the other. A fall sister Betty Abigail has three seconds, a fourth and a seventh to her credit. Both horses are being driven by Ken Galbraith. "J.M.J." with his last race is "19" with Betty Abigail credited with "12."

Reis Harrington, Brighton's crack lady swaer-trainer-driver is doing very well at Greenwood with Lou Attorney and Billy Sunday as is John Weeks of Belleville with Dukeville and Judge Moro.

If training and conditioning is any criterion these horses will get some tough opposition from those now being readied at the Fair Grounds.

Chief Vance and son Al after selling the "People's Choice" Buddy C Abbe, are readying Don Comet and Captain Erac for the coming track frays while Norman Lucas of Belleville, has Stormy Night and Scotty Hi going through stiff training paces.

Billy Frost of Springbrook has the popular Count Direct, Seandawn Direct and a newcomer Sadgate in training while Belleville's Phil Stewart is devoting all his attention to April Magic and Wee Dot Major, both colts.

Allen Percy of Roseneath has an imposing stable of eight horses being conditioned here. They include Win 'Em Boy; Coronation Brook; Sadie's Mac; Happy Jack; Mac Herbert; Durand Grattan and two colts by Uncle Ben and Tip Hanover.

Being trained by Bill Faulkner of the Carrying Place are: Jake; Fellow McAllum; Sandy MacDuff and The Expert. Also under rigid conditioning are Larry Zebedee's Golden Valley; Harry Barkitt's Lomaz Topsy Lee and Allan Cassidy's Captain Kidd.

And add to that "doing well at Greenwood list," Harry Inglis of Brighton who has Shady Dale Editor; Island Song and Judy Burton going fine on the big track against the cream of Ontario horses.

Driving club directors are going all out to make the 1963 harness racing season the best in the club's history. Attendance last year warranted an increase in meets and they came up with a 16-night summer program. Special races will be held on the track the Saturday night of the Belleville Fair Week.

Club directors, I am told, have made application to the Parks Board to instal lighting around the track. An answer which, it is hoped, will be favorable, is expected shortly.

The popular pari-mutuel betting system will again be in effect while a large new tote board will be erected across the track from the grandstand. It will be illuminated.

I have three two-dollar bills "stashed" away and with the expected Father's Day quota of two shirts (or barrels), I'm all set. If I can find my silver-haired goddess whose patrician nose can "smell" a winner two races ahead, all will be well in the personal shirt and petty cash departments.

Call Meeting To Organize Baseball Loop

An attempt is being made to organize a Quinte district baseball league, according to Belleville's Russ Soule.

Soule announced that a meeting has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon, at the Ellis Printing shop, at four o'clock. He said that Jack Carson, immediate past-president of the O.B.A. has been invited to the meeting.

According to Soule four teams have shown interest to date and two more will be asked to attend the meeting.

Belleville Juveniles, an RCAF team from 6 RD, Foxboro and Camilton, the latter two from the South Hastings league, Soule said, are in favor of forming the new loop. Wellington and Latta will be contacted prior to the weekend meeting.

SIGNED FOR SHERBROOKE

MONTREAL (CP) — Segar Ray Robinson, his May 14 bout with Terry Downes cancelled, has signed to appear against undetermined opponent May 4 in Sherbrooke, Que., Promoter Dick Fain of Stamford, Conn., announced Wednesday night. Fain is a business associate of Joe Louis and he said the former world heavyweight champion will referee the 10-round bout at the Sherbrooke Arena which seats 2,500 for boxing.

Detroit Lions, Five Players Fined ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Hornung, Karras Barred For Betting

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Professional football in the United States and Canada slammed doors Wednesday on two suspended stars of the National Football League and rallied behind NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle in his smashing blow at gambling influences.

A penitent Paul Hornung and an outraged Alex Karras, two of the sport's biggest names caught in the web of the latest sports scandal, were apparently left with no recourse except possible future forgiveness of the league—not earlier than 1964.

The rival American League, battling the NFL for the spectator dollar, and the Canadian League said they have no place for the two players accused of wagering on games.

"Under no circumstances will they be permitted to play in the American Football League until after suspensions are lifted," Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, said in Dallas, Tex.

Sydney Halter, commissioner of the Canadian League, said in Winnipeg: "I would refuse to register any contract submitted by a CFL club with a player suspended by an American League for betting on games."

SUSPEND INDEFINITELY

Hornung, halfback and perennial scoring leader of the champion Green Bay Packers, and Karras, 250-pound tackle with Detroit Lions, drew indefinite suspensions in a sweeping action by Rozelle that also resulted in fines for five other Detroit players and a $4,000 penalty against the Detroit club.

Hornung and Karras were accused of making bets on games, usually from $50 to $200, over a period of years. Rozelle said there was no evidence of "fixes." That they weren't found to have bet against their own club, sell information to gamblers or shave points.

The other five players, each fined $2,000 for betting $50 unless on Green Bay to beat New York Giants in the 1962 championship playoff game, were: John Gordy, guard; Gary Lowe, defensive back; Joe Schmidt, all-league middle linebacker; Wayne Walker, linebacker, and Sam Williams, defensive end, all for the Lions.

The Detroit team was fined for failing to take proper action on undesirable associations reported by police.

Rozelle, in announcing the result of extensive investigations which included 52 separate interviews, emphasized "there is no evidence that any NFL player has given less than his best in playing any game."

WILL NOT TOLERATE

He made it clear, however, that he would not tolerate gambling of any sort in the league, nor permit association of players with characters who might create public suspicion. He said he hopes his action will serve as a deterrent in the future.

In his statement, Rozelle had virtually the unanimous support of league directors.

Hornung, a handsome, 27-year-old bachelor who might double as a matinee idol, was subdued when he received the news at his home in Louisville, Ky.

"I did wrong," he said. "I should be penalized. I just have to stay with it."

He said he does not plan an appeal from the suspension. He indicated he will work toward a review of his case and ultimate reinstatement — an act which isn't possible, Rozelle said, before 1964.

The blonde former Notre Dame star, leading scorer in the NFL in 1959, 1960 and 1961 and most valuable player in 1961, said all his bets were of the sociable variety.

"They were made with friends, strictly sporting. I always gave 100 per cent of every game I played in."

Hornung said he probably made eight or nine bets, $100 and $200 each.

Rozelle said Hornung's betting habits stemmed from his acquaintance with an unidentified west coast businessman. Investigation showed Hornung placed several bets through this friend. The commissioner said the triple threat halfback made $1,800 in one year.

Rozelle said Karras made at least six bets since 1958 through a business associate. The commissioner added that the bets were for $50 until last year, when the Detroit tackle bet $100 on the Lions to beat Green Bay in a regular - season game—which they did—and also $100 on the Packers against the Giants in the title game, won by Green Bay 16-7.

Gus Triandos Hit Hero

Tigers Top Pack: Whip Yanks 4-2

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Lee, Los Angeles Angels pitching professor, seems ready to teach American League batters a thing or two.

The 30-year-old right-hander, who picked up a college degree before he picked up an education in spring training, turned on a three-hit, 4-0 shutout against his former Minnesota teammates Wednesday.

Lee was confused when he came to the Angels last May in a trade for pitcher Jim Donohue. The Twins "tried to change my delivery," says Lee, who admits "I didn't feel settled until I got with the Angels."

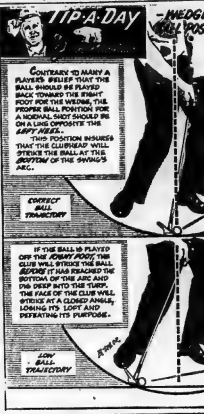
"Don was a little mixed up when we got him," says pitching coach Marv Grissom, who worked with Lee during spring training and feels "now he has the confidence that comes from pitching well."

Against the Twins, he struck out three while walking one and was touched for only three singles.

CASTOFFS SHINE

Trade acquisitions also took the spotlight in the two other AL games played.

Gus Triandos, obtained from Baltimore Orioles, drove in three runs with a tie-breaking homer and a double as Detroit Tigers took over first place by whipping New York Yankees 4-2. Castoffs Johnny Orsino, Al Smith and Stu Miller led Baltimore to a 5-4 triumph over Boston Red Sox.



The Washington - Cleveland game was rained out. Kansas City As and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

Rob Rodgers hit his second homer of the season for the Angels in the eighth inning.

Triandos, 6-for-13 going into the game, snapped a 1-1 tie with a homer off loser Ralph Terry in the seventh inning. The Tigers had just tied it on a double by Rocky Colavito, a fly ball by Norm Cash that pushed Colavito to third and Dick McAuliffe's sacrifice fly. Colavito's double added two more runs in the ninth. Hector Lopez and Elston Howard homered for Yanks.

Orsino and Miller, National League acquisitions from San Francisco, and Smith, obtained from the White Sox, got the job done for the Orioles against the

Leafs Champagne Ready For Goblet

Heavy Favorites Tonight

By PAUL RINSTEAD

TORONTO (CP) — The odds against Detroit Red Wings winning the Stanley Cup are so high no one has bothered to figure them out.

Toronto Maple Leafs are heavy favorites to wrestle it tonight.

The Leafs, who have beaten the Wings three times by identical 4-3 scores and lost 3-2 once, may have won the coveted mug Tuesday at Detroit.

The Wings, they say, have shot their bolt.

Detroit manager - coach Sid Abel and his players are realistic. It's tough to beat the Leafs at home and Detroit would have to do it twice in the next three games to pull their upset.

They played as well as they have at any time this season Tuesday but lost.

Their team spirit carried the Wings to a 4-3 win over Chicago Black Hawks in the best-of-seven semi-final and there had been speculation that the same spirit would make them tough for Toronto in the final.

PLANS NO CHANGES

Abel plans no lineup changes tonight. He said after the Tuesday game he'd have the same lineup right down to the reserves.

Meanwhile, fans in Windsor, Ont., are irked because Abel said after Tuesday's game that fans who molested the Leafs in the arena corridors were likely from Windsor, not Detroit.

Windsorites point out that the Wings have few fans in the city across the river from Detroit-people there pull for Toronto and Montreal Canadiens. They don't feel fans from Windsor would hurl paper cups and abuse at the Toronto team.

Punch Imlach, Toronto manager-coach, must also have felt Leafs wrapped it up with Tuesday's win.

"If they don't win it Thursday at home they're a bunch of dough heads," he said.

It was the nearest Imlach has come to making a prediction all season.

If a sixth game is necessary, it will be at Detroit Sunday. A seventh game would be back in Toronto next Tuesday.

Topped By Jacksonville 3-1

Toronto Loses Another

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo and Columbus expect huge turnouts tonight for their International League home openers while Atlanta, Jacksonville and Little Rock eagerly await some more of that good home cooking.

With good weather, Buffalo officials hoped to approach the 1962 opening crowd of 20,238. The forecast, however, was for cool weather and some rain. The Bisons meet the Richmond Vees.

Atlanta, Jacksonville and Little Rock, who remain at home, continued unbeaten after two games. Atlanta edged Syracuse 4-3, Jacksonville topped Toronto 3-1 and Little Rock blanked Rochester 5-0 on a two-hitter by John Boozer Wednesday night. Richmond beat Columbus 9-2 and Buffalo tapped Indianapolis 6-1 for splits of their season opening series.

Boozer struck out 11 Rochester Red Wings and walked none.

HOMERS DO IT

Homers accounted for all of the scoring as defending champion Jacksonville made it two in a row over 1962 runner-up Toronto. A two-run homer by first baseman Buddy Barker, his second in two nights, staked the Suns to a 2-0 lead. The teams exchanged bases-empty homers in the fifth. Rico Carty averted a Toronto shutout by slamming a Georges Maranda pitch 385 feet in the top of the fifth, and Tony Washington matched this for Jacksonville in the home half.

Little Schmidt limited Indianapolis to four hits for Buffalo and contributed a double to the Bisons' 10-hit attack that produced six runs off three Indian hurlers. Phil Barth slugged a two-run homer for Buffalo.

Grab 3-2 Lead

Flyers Whip Toronto 5-1

TORONTO (CP)—Both Niagara Falls Flyers and Toronto Neil McNeil Maroons have a number of outstanding individuals, but the Flyers seem to have more depth and it just may carry them to the Ontario Hockey Association championship.

They moved to within one game of that goal, that also would put them into the Memorial Cup eastern final, Wednesday night with a strong 5-1 victory in Maple Leaf Gardens to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Maroons showed their lack of depth after one of their main cogs, Mike Corbett, had to leave the game early in the second period with the score tied 1-1. Niagara Falls rapped in three goals before the period closed and coasted in the third, adding another.

Corbett became ill and was ordered out by the club doctor. In the fourth game of the series, won by Neil McNeil 4-3, Corbett played more than 50 minutes and scored the winning goal.

The Flyers showed their depth. Wayne Maxner, who scored three goals in the last game, was held off the score sheet but four other players figured in the scoring.

Ron Schock fired two, with Gary Dornhoefer, Terry Crisp and Gary Harmer scoring the others. Rod Seiling scored for Neil McNeil.

GETS GAMES BID

OTTAWA (CP) — The first act of Lester Pearson as prime minister-elect Wednesday was to accept a copy of the application to hold the 1968 winter Olympics in Banff, Alta. For tough luck with an unusual twist, you'd have to go far to beat life with the hitless wonders as experienced by Bob Miller.

Miller, who last year struggled through 12 consecutive defeats with the punchless New York Mets before winning on the next-to-last day of the season, was traded to Los Angeles National League pennant contenders.

Miller pitched 7 2-3 innings of scoreless ball against Houston in his first start and left with no score in the game. Wednesday night he made his second start and allowed only three hits as the Dodgers edged Chicago Cubs 1-0 in 10 innings on Bill Skowron's run - producing single.

Miller left for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning.

At San Francisco, the Colts engineered a triple steal on a mental miscue for one run, then beat the Giants 2-1 in the 12th inning when catcher Jim Campbell hit a homer.

BRAVES TAKE LEAD

Elsewhere, Milwaukee moved into first place with its sixth straight victory, 6-5 over Philadelphia, Cincinnati handed the winless New York Mets their eighth setback, 5-0 behind Jim O'Toole's five-hit pitching and St. Louis whipped Pittsburgh 7-3.

The Dodgers got to Dick Ellsworth for the game's lone run in the 10th on singles by Lee Walls, Frank Howard and Skowron. The victory went to Ron Perranoski, working in relief of Miller.

The Colts pushed across their first run against Billy O'Dell when the Giants' starter went to a full windup with the bases loaded in the second inning. Howe Goss slid home ahead of Tom Haller's tag. Willie McCovey's ninth inning homer off Ken Johnson tied it before Campbell hit the game-winner of Don Larsen in the 12th.

The Braves used three Phillies' errors for three runs and held on as former teammate Wes Covington hit a solo homer and Don Demeter blasted a pair, each with men on. Demeter's second homer brought on Quebec's Claude Raymond, who preserved Lew Burdette's second victory without a loss.

O'Toole, pitching the fourth shutout against the Mets this season, got all the working room he needed when Johnny Edwards hit a grand slam homer off Mets starter Carl Willey in the first inning.

The Cardinals jolted loser Don Cardwell for four runs in the second inning on consecutive homers by Stan Musial and Carl Sawatski plus Curt Flood's single. Roberto Clemente, Don Clendenon and Smoky Burgess homered for the Pirates against winner Ray Washburn.

Western Bowlers Win Main Trophy

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The West retained Canadian five-pin bowling's grand aggregate trophy Wednesday night, but the main topic of comment swirled around the records broken during the two-day championships.

Team and individual kegling marks were toppled and then toppled again as teams from West and East matched skills in what followers of the sport considered some of the finest bowling ever rolled.

The West won the mixed team, women's singles and women's team events, with the easterners taking the men's singles and men's team events.

The final score was 41,800 for the West and 41,200 for the East. The grand aggregate outcome was a record in itself, bettering the previous mark of 40,311 set by the East in Calgary in 1960.

The West has won the aggregate trophy four out of five times.

Cec Crane of Ingersoll, Ont., came through in strong, if not startling, fashion to capture the men's singles with 2,779 pins to 2,334 by Dick Thompson of Fort William, 1955 titleholder.

Sue Walker, Vancouver mother of two, set a new women's series record of 2,715, eclipsing the previous record of 2,701 set in 1958 by Helen Richards of Scarborough, Ont.

Mrs. Marjorie Summers, St. Catharines housewife, scored a 10-game total of 2,597.

Red Sox. Orsino snapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth with a two-run homer off loser Earl Wilson and Smith provided the decisive runs with a two-run homer in the eighth. Milner held the Red Sox scoreless after taking over for starter Steve Barber following Ian Clinkow's three - run homer in the bottom of the eighth.

MONTIES HOPEFUL

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Montagnards, Ottawa district junior hockey champions, still hope to become contenders for the Memorial Cup. They were told Wednesday by Secretary-Registrar Gordon Juckes of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that the CAHA is trying to arrange a series for them against the Northern Ontario champions. The winner of that series would go against the Ontario branch champions for the Eastern Canada junior title and the right to meet the West in the Memorial Cup finals.

Canadians Arrive at Sao Paulo

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—The Canadian squad and the vanguard of the huge United States squad arrived Wednesday for the Pan-American Games. Shortly afterwards a bright sun broke out over the pastel-tinted buildings of Olympic Village.

The Canadian party of more than 100 athletes and officials flew in from Toronto. The Canadians and Americans mixed freely with athletes from Cuba, Mexico, Uruguay, Venezuela, Jamaica Panama and Brazil.

Twenty-four countries are entered in the fourth Games starting Saturday and ending May 5.

There was some griping over lack of preparations in taking care of new arrivals but most of the grousing stopped when a morning rain stopped and the sun broke through the overcast.

The Brazilian officials were receiving praise from Charles Ornstein, chairman of food and housing for the U.S. Olympic committee.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks defeated Seattle Totems 3-2 Wednesday night to take a three-to-two edge in the best-of-seven series for the Northern Division title of the Western Hockey League.

In the other leg of the WHL semi-finals San Francisco Seals blanked Portland Buckaroos 3-0 at San Francisco.

In the Vancouver game, before 4,844 fans, forward Bob McCusker got the winner for Canucks in the third period.

Trent Beatty and Bob Kabel did the other Vancouver scoring and Gordie Sinclair and Jim Powers scored for Seattle.

Mo Mashaba opened the second period for Seals with an unassisted slap shot, Larry McNabb also slammed in the second Frisco goal and Ed Panagabko counted the other in the third period.

RUN SECOND, WIN

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—Two horses tied for second at Bay Meadows Wednesday and then won the race. Photo-finish camera failed to separate Lassmus and Vera's Night for second in the fourth race after Salaton crossed the finish line first. The stewards called an inquiry and, after viewing motion pictures, disqualified Salaton for ducking in and bothering Lazzeu during the race.

Frontenacs Eastern Pro Champions

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs have finally reached their goal after four years of trying.

The Frontenacs dumped Sudbury Wolves 6-3 Wednesday night to take the Eastern Professional Hockey League's final series, a best-of-seven affair, four games to one.

The EPHL is four years old and the Frontenacs were last in the first season of operation.

The sponsoring Boston Bruins of the National League made a change in Kingston personnel. Stan Blair took charge in the second season and Kingston finished fourth. Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds knocked them out of the semi-finals that year.

Last year Kingston leaped to second place and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens had to six games before ousting the Frontenacs in the finals.

EVENS SCORING

Sudbury opened the scoring Wednesday night before 4,000 fans, but Kingston tied the score within a minute and was never again headed.

Pete Panagabko had two goals. Don Blackburn, Pat Stapleton, Dick Cherry and Harry Sinden got the others.

League president Jack Urie presented the trophy — named after Ottawa sportscaster Tom Foley of Milk River, Alta., who was killed in an automobile accident three years ago—to Sinden after the game.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Fanny Brewer, with Duncan Macintosh in the sulky, put her best hoof forward in the drive to the wire and defeated Muddy Hanover to capture the featured Ward 2 Business Men's Association Pace at Greenwood Raceway Wednesday night.

Fanny Brewer returned $6.80, $3.50 and $2.70.

Jack Reid, of Orono, Ont., guided Flemington's First to victory in the opener, returning $17.10, $6.20 and $2.90 and set up a $46.20 daily-double with Dusty Brooke, favorite in the second.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Sports in Brief

TEAM NAMED

MONTREAL (CP) — A 10-member team headed by Judy Darling of Montreal will represent Canada at the 1963 Commonwealth ladies golf tournament slated for Australia in August. The announcement was made Wednesday by Mrs. W. E. Bickley, president of the Canadian Ladies Golf Union, at the annual meeting of the union's Quebec branch. Other members of the team are: Capt. Mrs. J. H. Todd, Victoria, B.C.; Marlene Stuart Streit, Toronto; Mrs. Betty Stanhope Cole, Edmonton; Rae Milligan, Calgary and Gayle Hitchens, West Vancouver, the 1962 Canadian Open Junior champion.

YCAZA SUSPENDED

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Jockey Manuel Ycaza was suspended by the stewards at Keeland Wednesday. The stewards suspended Ycaza for five days—April 20-24-for careless riding in Tuesday's third race. His mount, Tellahward, won the race but was disqualified and placed third.

FILES SUIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Jones, New York heavyweight, filed a $1,250,000 suit in State Supreme Court Wednesday, charging that an unauthorized television version of his fight with Cassius Clay was doctored to his detriment. Jones lost a disputed decision to Clay at Madison Square Garden March 13. The fight was carried only on closed circuit TV that evening but three nights later was shown on a U.S. network. Jones contends this violated his civil rights.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Hellenic Stable's All Canadian, a six-year-old son of Windfields, out of the great Canadian race mare, Canadiana, put on a determined stretch run to win Wednesday's featured Medina Purse by three lengths.

Ben Steen's Balinode was second and N. E. Rocamora's Rogue Hogue was third.

All Canadian, entered in this event as part of his preparation for next Saturday's Bold Venture handicap, was ridden by Sam McComb. The winner was a 3-5 choice with the crowd of 5,581.

All Canadian has five owners, all hotel waiters, originally from Cyprus, hence their racing nom-de-plume course — The Hellenic Stable. They are Mike and Cleiton Argyrides, Andy and Gus Charalambou and Fritz Kamaris. Their horse won $21,481 last year; and has won close to $27,000 in total since they claimed him for $2,500 in October, 1961.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Hershey Bears unleashed a pair of quick two-goal bursts in the second and third periods to defeat Cleveland Barons 5-3 Wednesday night and even the American League's Calder Cup semi-final playoff series at two wins each. The deciding match will be at Hershey tonight.

Cleveland jumped off to a 2-0 first-period lead then relaxed its defences enough in the second period for the Bears to pour through two goals within the space of 14 seconds.

Pete Conacher's marker at 17:43 of the second period put Hershey in front to stay. The Bears added two more goals within one minute at the start of the final period.

Wayne Boddy of the Barons opened the scoring at 5:02 and teammate Fred Hilts made it 2-0 with a goal at 10:49. The Bears' Yves Locas punched in a short shot at 16 seconds of the middle period and Marc Reaume tied the game with a 60-footer from just inside the blue line after a half-minute was gone.

Locas scored at 1:12 of the final period and Willie Marshall fired in another goal for the Bears at 2:12. Joe Szura scored unassisted for the Barons at 5:56.

Fisherman Saves Life of Child Knocked off Pier

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) Fast action by an early season fisherman Wednesday saved the life of a two-year-old Amherstburg girl whose stroller was accidentally knocked off a pier into the 10-foot-deep swiftly-flowing waters of the Detroit River.

Richard Girard called the incident "just sheer luck" that he was able to locate the child in her carriage after he plunged into the icy waters.

Witnesses said Lisa Thibodeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thibodeau, was strapped in a stroller parked when a dog fight broke out. The dogs bumped into the little girl's nursemaid who in turn was thrown against the carriage.

The stroller fell off the dock and was swept under the surface and downstream. Mr. Girard, fishing downstream from the pier, heard the cries for help and dived into the murky waters in an attempt to recover the child.

On a second dive he found the stroller, struggled with it to the surface, and was pulled to safety himself by fellow fisherman David Truchon.

The child—taken home by ambulance—was reported none the worse for the experience. Girard, unemployed until Wednesday, has subsequently received several offers of employment.

Amherstburg is 15 miles south of Windsor.

TV Camera to Be Installed Inside Cooper Capsule

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, which has brought five U.S. manned flights, including trips into homes, now hopes to take the viewers inside the capsule.

Astronaut Gordon Cooper will have a miniature camera inside his craft during his 22-orbit space flight planned for mid-May. If all goes well, viewers will be able to watch Cooper during the launching and during the 34-hour trip—the latter may see the earth from points 100 miles in space.

Development of a special, tiny television camera has made this possible. It has the shape and is about the size of a four-battery flashlight and will be clipped on a swivel mount inside the capsule, but can be removed and aimed by Cooper for experiments in progress and the world below.

The five previous manned space shots have been reported by the three major television networks on a pooled basis, but the picture coverage ceased as soon as the missile shot out of sight.

The small camera will take one picture every two seconds (the so called "slow scan"). The picture from the capsule can be received when it is within 1,000 miles of the Cape Canaveral receiver. We also per permitting we'll see him for seven or eight minute daring orbits one through five and 15 through 20. Pictures will be received on two tape machines in Mercury Control Centre, and released to the television pool.

Laurel Goodwin, Hollywood's Newest Find is Elvis' Love Lead in "Girls! Girls! Girls!"

Hollywood has a new Cinderella named Laurel Goodwin.

Anyone who may have rashly concluded that automation and other modern trends had put an end to fairy tale beginnings would do well to consider this blonde young lady of 20, who is starting at the top.

Her very first role is opposite Elvis Presley as his romantic lead in Hal Wallis' "Girls! Girls! Girls!" directed by Norman Taurog for Paramount release and continuing Today, Friday and Saturday at the Belle Theatre. And if that isn't a fairy tale beginning for a girl of 20, nothing would be.

Laurel has gone from this auspicious start into a starring role with Jack Gleason in Papa's Delicate Condition", a Jack Rose production from the book of the same title by former star Corinne Griffith and for the same studio. Following her role in the Presley musical romance, and after seeing rough cuts of the Gleason film, Paramount exercised its option on Miss Goodwin.

Lotte Lehmann Too Busy To Lament Loss of Voice

By BOB THOMAS

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Her soaring soprano voice is stilled, but Lotte Lehmann at 75 is too busy to lament the loss of her great gift.

"I don't sing any more," she says. "During my lifetime I have never done anything half-way. And when I lost my voice, I lost it entirely."

Similarly, she approached retirement wholeheartedly. Her comment:

"When I retired, people asked me, 'But what will you do?' My answer was: 'What won't I do?'"

At her wooded villa overlooking the Pacific she paints and makes mosaics. She has completed a book about her long association with Richard Strauss; she sang to the debuts of many of his works.

She maintains a steady correspondence with opera singers who have studied with her here and are scattered through the world. Additional satellites function about the Music Academy of the West from 1951 to 1961, and give occasional coaching. Her sole student now is Niwa Katsumi, a 24-year-old soprano who, she says, shows vast promise.

HARD TO LEAVE

Madame Lehmann makes an occasional trip—she is planning to return to her beloved Vienna next year—but she finds it hard to leave Santa Barbara. She has made her home here since 1941.

She left her fall for a return to the Metropolitan Opera House. She had been invited to help stage Otto Rosenkavalier in which she often had sung Marschallin to great acclaim. The experience was not a success.

"I was not able to do much more than coach three of the singers," she said, "I sat at rehearsals and wanted to make suggestions, but I knew I would only upset things if I did. There was no time to make changes.

"And I had forgotten how hectic New York can be. The people on the streets are almost brutal. Rehearsals always let out at the rush hour in the afternoon, and I was unable to get a taxi. The people there fight you for them."

"Diamond Head" Is Color Hawaiian 'Hula'

If a Hawaiian today publicly performed an authentic hula, circa 1900, outraged bowls would probably be heard all the way from Honolulu to Boston.

dhmuv0tyiHHoOuslg-go

So says South Seas dance expert Tani Marsh, whose latest chore was on the Jerry Bresler production, "Diamond Head," at the Park Theatre in Panavision and Eastman Color, held until Saturday and now on its 4th great day. She staged a Hawaiian hula scene and also a torrid Tahitian number for the new Columbia release. Miss Marsh stoutly maintains that the real hula wasn't lascivious, even if it now is toned down considerably.

"It was pretty frantic, but you've got to remember that the missionaries of that day were complete squares," she says. For "Diamond Head," Miss Marsh instructed stars Yvette Mimieux and James Darren in some of the "hoop" movements (the authentic, or forbidden, hula). She kept them well within the limits of good taste, and movie-making, but she says: "If you think your hula hips is rich, you should see a real Tahitian love dance."

Charlton Heston heads the cast of "Diamond Head" which also stars George Chakiris and Franco Nuyen as Mel Chen. Complete shows are at 7.15 and 9.25.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The old Canadian custom of predicting great things for track and field athletes in international competition is being upheld.

"Four or five of our athletes have good chances of picking up gold medals," says Ken Twigg of Toronto. In the event that anyone has missed it, Twigg is manager of Canada's track team for the April 30-May 5 Pan-American Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Twigg is known in the trade as a track nut. He probably has some inside information on the calibre of athletes from South America and the Caribbean countries, but he appears to be overlooking the United States, the world power in track.

And the U.S. has already given warning that it will have its greatest team in history in Brazil.

BIG NAMES MISSING

It's hard, too, to figure out Twigg's thinking when you can't find an outstanding name on the 17-member track team roster. The big boys aren't going.

Thee is no Bruce Kidd, Bill Crothers or Harry Jerome. They're tied up with university examinations.

Twigg relizes this and says "we may have some sleepers and I think we can pull a few upsets."

Where?

"My best is high on the chances of a couple of women hurdlers and a shot-putter and a pair of walkers.

Abigail Hoffman, a strong, wiry, 16 - year - old Toronto schoolgirl who represented Winnipeg school teacher Noreen Deuling, are his hopes for the 800 metres. Abigail has consistently beaten the best Americans in the eastern U.S. at her specialty, and Miss Deuling, who says she has "more staying power than speed," is right behind her.

Leah Bennett of the U.S. is tabbed as their main threat. "It's a toss-up between these three for the gold medal. I don't know of any North American who can beat them."

NANCY'S NERVOUS

Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., a muscular and well-proportioned brown - haired 18-year-old, is Canadian women's shot-put and discus champion. But she admits to a tendency to get "butterflies" at big competitions.

This was demonstrated last August when she failed miserably in the British Empire Games trials. A month later at a small-town meet in Ontario and with no pressure, she broke Canadian records in the shot and discus.

Alex Oakley of Oshawa, Ont., and Nick Marrone of Montreal, are tabbed as possible gold medal winners in the heel and toe event over 20 kilometres. Oakley placed ninth in the 1960 Olympics and Miss Marrone, 30-year-old night-shift factory worker, has been Canadian champ over the distance since 1961.

The rest of the track squad is made up of what officials call "promising" youngsters and experienced international competitors.

Mr. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

Industrial Development Issue Says Premier Robichaud Seeking Re-election Apr. 22

By FRANK SULLIVAN

FREDERICTON (CP)—Louis Joseph Robichaud, who said he wanted be premier of New Brunswick by the time he was 35 and made it at 34, now aims to hold the office after the April 22 election he called on the issue of industrial development.

His childhood dream was realized in a rapid series of upward steps. He was elected to the legislature in 1952 at the age of 26, named Liberal financial critic four years later and selected party leader in 1958.

Campaigning mainly on the pledge that a Liberal government would abolish the $50 annual family premium for hospital care, he led his party to victory in 1960 and became the youngest government leader in Canada. The premium was abolished.)

He also was the only Acadian to be elected premier. His ancestors came to Acadia in 1609 and were among some 7,000 Acadians exiled from the Bay of Fundy area in 1755.

PROUD OF ANCESTRY

Proud of his Acadian heritage, he is teaching his four children to speak both French and English. Mr. Robichaud himself didn't learn English until he was 20.

Peter Veniot was the only other Acadian to become premier of New Brunswick and he held the office from 1923 to 1925 by appointment after the late W. E. Foster resigned the post to enter the federal cabinet.

Seventh in a family of 10, Mr. Robichaud developed political aspirations when still a school boy.

Along with pictures of hockey and baseball stars, he had kept in his scrapbook pictures and stories of outstanding politicians. "Some day," he had predicted, "I'm going to be a big political man myself."

STUDIED POLITICS

He received his early education in his native Northumberland village of St. Anthony, his BA at Sacred Heart University in Bathurst, N.B., and studied political, economic and social science at Quebec's Laval University. He couldn't afford law school and articled with Albany M. Robichaud, a Bathurst lawyer who now is a Supreme Court judge. He was admitted to the New Brunswick Bar in 1952 and moved here the same year to open a law practice.

As a young man, along with editing college newspapers he played hockey and basketball and still likes to play scrub hockey with the local boys.

He relaxes with his wife, the former Lorraine Savoie—whom he married in August, 1951—in their summer home, which he built himself about two miles from Richibucto on Northumberland Strait. Cottages and even walking on his hands are a sandy beach, help keep the 158-pound premier in top physical condition.

ENERGY BOUNDLESS

His energy appears boundless. Campaigning in 1960 took him more than 50,000 miles in this province of 608,000 population.

Stating his party's platform in the April 22 election, Mr. Robichaud said:

"The prime purpose of this Liberal government is to provide rapid industrial and economic expansion throughout New Brunswick, so that all people of this province, wherever they may live, may have equal opportunities for employment, income and human betterment."

He hailed the April 8 federal election results, in which Liberals retained six of the 10 New Brunswick seats, as an indication the people of the province "have realized that the Liberal party is the party of the people and they will vote strongly Liberal in the next provincial election. I expect a minimum of 42 seats."

In ite defeat of the Progressive Conservative administration of Hugh John Flemming in June, 1960, the Liberal party took 31 seats to the PC's 21 in the 52-seat House.

10-Year-Old Blackballed In Cub Pack

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Galt, correspondent in Washington for The Sun, says in a front-page story that his 10-year-old son was black-balled by a Washington cub pack because he is Canadian.

"This domestic crisis in Canadian - American relations has been partly caused by diplomatic negotiations conducted by my wife," he writes.

"As a result, the pack has agreed to study the case."

Galt says he was "badgered out of the house to a Parent-Teachers' Association meeting called to set up a cub pack."

"I got even with my wife by telling her I'd signed her up as a den mother."

Then the crisis broke:

"'We're sorry,' said a voice over the phone, 'but you won't be able to join the cub pack.'"

His wife asked why and was told:

"Because cub scouts is an all-American organization and you're an all-Canadian family."

Galt says his wife's "moving account of the international aspects of scouting" won the promise of a second look at the boy's application but:

"It was definite that any mercy extended to the boy would not take in his parents. It was all too clear that my wife wouldn't get to be a den mother."

However, Galt writes that he has been struck by another nagging worry:

"One of our daughters has infiltrated another all-American institution—the brownies.

"But we think she's a Canadian."

New Brunswick Tory Leader Gave up Farm for Politics

By FRANK SULLIVAN

FREDERICTON (CP) — A farm boy who gave up a pitchfork for provincial politics and became leader of the Progressive Conservative opposition is hoping April 22 will harvest a return to Tory rule in New Brunswick.

J. B. Sherwood, known by party supporters as "a man who never knew defeat," led the PC ticket on each of three Kings County wins. He was elected to the legislature in 1952, re-elected in 1956 and again in 1960.

He was named agriculture minister in the government of Hugh John Flemming who then was premier and who later became a minister in the federal cabinet of John Diefenbaker.

Born July 1, 1915, in the Kings County community of Midland, Cy Sherwood organized and became the first president of the New Brunswick Cream Producers Marketing Board. He was a former president of the Milk Producers Association of the province and acted on the board of directors of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

RUNS DAIRY FARM

A past president of the Holstein - Friesian Association of Canada, he owns one of the most modern and highly mechanized dairy farms in the province. He also raises some beef cattle.

A graduate of Sussex High School in Sussex, N.B., he attended the University of New Brunswick as an engineering student from 1932 to 1935 when he had to return to help on the family farm because of his father's serious illness.

He married Gertrude Lunn in 1939. They have three girls and two boys: a son, William, 21, now is studying at the Bachelor of Science degree in agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Mr. Sherwood accepted leadership of the provincial PC party in October, 1962, a little more than two years after the Liberal party under Louis J. Robichaud swept into power.

PLATFORM STAND

Mr. Robichaud called the April 22 election on the issue of industrial development and accused Mr. Sherwood of being against admission of foreign capital investments for industrial expansion.

Accepting the party leadership, Mr. Sherwood had said: "I do not consider it our task to oppose progress, to obstruct sound policy, to exploit situations that make capital out of public issues purely for political ends."

The "broad objectives" of his party as he saw them were "to build New Brunswick, to raise standards, to alleviate hardship, to broaden opportunity, to unify a people, to elevate and dignify the individual citizen."

A boating enthusiast, Mr. Sherwood relaxes at his summer home on Belle Isle Bay, an inland tributory of the St. John River. He loves to meet and work with people and is regarded by associates as quiet and unassuming.

In his leadership acceptance speech he had said:

"My plans can be summed up in one word: Work. My objectives can be summed up in one word: Win. My cause can be summed up in two words: New Brunswick."

"Jest a Second"

"Before I take the job—how much discount would I get on that green dress in your window?"

Pearson Will Not Name Cabinet Until Sworn In

Speculation Running High on Make-up

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister-Designate Lester B. Pearson hopes to complete his Liberal cabinet list today, and then intends to keep it close to his vest until his government is sworn into office Monday.

He said Wednesday when he was invited to form the new government, following the April 8 general election, that he would have the job done today, but that it would be a discourtesy to the Queen's representative, Governor - General Vanier, to announce the list before the swearing-in ceremony.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his Progressive Conservative cabinet colleagues, meanwhile, are preparing to take their leave of General Vanier, who is recovering from a mild heart attack, he suffered April 10. Government sources said the retiring ministers would be welcome to pay their last formal calls at Rideau Hall tomorrow.

Mr. Diefenbaker's East Block office files and mementoes are to be moved into the caucus room in the Centre Block, adjacent to the offices Mr. Pearson will occupy as leader of the opposition.

ONCE KING'S OFFICE

In his new suite, Mr. Diefenbaker will occupy a corner office one floor above his old third-floor quarters, and one that previously was the private office of a Liberal prime minister, the late W. L. Mackenzie King. Subsequently it was the office of Liberal finance ministers Douglas Abbott and Walter Harris.

Speculation is running high on the make-up of the Pearson cabinet.

It was regarded as almost certain that he will give cabinet posts to the four ministers re-elected from the province who, along with Mr. Pearson, served in the previous Liberal government before its defeat by the Conservatives in 1957.

They are:

J. W. Pickersgill (Bonavista-Twillingate), former citizenship minister and, before entering politics, privately secretary and special assistant to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Mr. King. There have been indications he would like the post of House leader and minister either without portfolio or with less than onerous department duties so that he can devote most of his time to piloting government legislation in the Commons.

MAY GET HIGH POST

SAYS KENNEDY LETS REDS PLOT WITH IMPUNITY

Cuban Exiles Split As Leader Resigns

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, stepping down as leader of Cubans in exile, says President Kennedy has given Fidel Castro "absolute immunity in the execution of Khrushchev's sinister designs."

In a 6,500-word resignation letter that split the Cuban Revolutionary Council apart, Miro accused Kennedy of backing out on a promise of a second invasion and of "liquidating" the struggle for Cuba.

And he warned that the Russian premier, "day by day, will increase the army of local Communists" in the Western Hemisphere until a "terrifying catastrophe" develops.

In support of Miro and his stand, nine members of the 16-man revolutionary council met during a 4½-hour session that followed his departure from the meeting room Thursday night.

No successor was chosen to head the council, which was formed with U.S. government support to launch the futile 1961 invasion at the Bay of Pigs. But Dr. Manuel Antonio de Varona, Miro's right-hand man, said he would seek to strengthen the council by wooing more of the many exile groups into its ranks.

TELLS OF INTERVIEW

Miro, first premier of the Castro regime who later defected, said Kennedy told him at a meeting in the White House April 10, 1962, nearly a year after the first invasion, that the problem of Cuba was essentially a military one and that the council should contribute the major contingent of soldiers.

"I left the White House with the assurance, that the liberation of Cuba would follow ways with Cubans at the vanguard in battle," he said.

Later, he said, U.S. policy on Cuba "shifted suddenly, violently and unexpectedly" and "the solemn pledge" was left in the process of being liquidated by the government.

The White House said there would be no comment. The state department called Miro's statement "inaccurate and distorted."

Varona, who has devoted most of his life to fighting oppressors of the Cuban people, is considered a strong choice to head the exile body.

Spain Confirms Death Sentence For Red for Civil War Actions

MADRID (Reuters) — The "competent juridical authority" today confirmed the death sentence passed Thursday against Spanish Communist leader Julian Grimau, the interior ministry said.

The sentence touched off a series of protest demonstrations outside Spanish Embassies in several European capitals. So-

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm rapidly approaching Lake Michigan is causing widespread showers and thunderstorms in central and southern sections of the province. As this storm moves into southern Quebec tonight clearing skies will move over the Lower Lakes. Predominantly overcast skies and cool temperatures will persist into Saturday across the Upper Lakes.

viet Premier Khrushchev appealed directly to Gen. Francisco Franco for cancellation of the sentence.

Grimau, 53, was convicted by a court martial on charges of "military rebellion."

It was believed the juridical authority referred to in the announcement was Franco's cabinet, which met today. All death sentences passed in Spain must be referred to the cabinet for confirmation.

The prosecution accused Grimau of committing atrocities in a country-wide Spanish Civil War against Franco supporters.

During the trial, the prosecutor described Grimau's conduct since the civil war as "one continuous process of military rebellion."

Grimau firmly denied the torture charges in court.

Meanwhile, demonstrators in Moscow, Paris and Stockholm protested against the trial. A worker group in Moscow called for efforts to save Grimau. In

RESCUE CREWS RECOVER BODIES OF TWO MINERS

Trapped 400 Feet Down in Malartic

MALARTIC, Que. (CP)—Rescue crews early today hauled to the surface of Hygrade Gold Mine the bodies of miners Hilaire Champagne, 33, and Maurice Langlois, 30, trapped 400 feet beneath fallen rock since Thursday.

Hopes at the minehead through the night that one of the miners was still alive were dashed when the crew deep in the caved-in mine shaft signalled that both men were dead.

Champagne, of Malartic, leaves a wife and seven children. Langlois, of nearby Val d'Or, leaves a wife and two children.

Before discovery of the bodies, Mine President Gerry Paquette expressed hope that at least one of the men was still alive.

He said a member of one of the five rescue crews crawled underneath the pile of between 50 and 75 tons of rock which fell late Thursday morning, and could see large gaps among all the huge rocks.

"Sometimes a man might have a chance to survive in that if he's lucky," said Mr. Paquette.

Mr. Paquette, who was in Montreal on business and drove back to supervise rescue operations, said one of the rocks still in the mine shaft weighed 20 tons.

Since larger rocks create larger gaps, he felt this meant there was still a slight hope one of the men could be alive.

He said 32 cars of 1½ tons each had been removed from

Enquiry Witness Pinpoints Weakness in Tax Act

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants served notice Thursday it will attack the "anomalies, inequities and loopholes" in the income Tax Act even though some of its own members, and some of their clients, won't like all of the end result.

"The problem is very serious," said A. J. Little, chairman of the institute's special taxation committee which appeared before the Carter royal commission on taxation to outline its views on Canada's taxquestions.

"We want to come up with the most objective and unbiased recommendations we can," said Mr. Little, giving the six commissioners a preview of the institute's proposed formal brief to be presented later this year. The attack on the problem will be in the form of recommendations to the commission made jointly with the Canadian Bar Association.

The recommendations would contain a list "of a great many anomalies, inequities and loopholes," the commission was told. These had helped create uncertainties in the minds of taxpayers and had drawn fire against the tax system itself.

None of the anomalies, inequities and loopholes were spelled out in detail at Thursday's hearing which, like earlier sessions in the week, was a general discussion on the commission's forthcoming investigation into the entire federal taxation field. But the institute mentioned several areas that should come under scrutiny.

The royal commission headed by Toronto chartered accountant Kenneth Carter, was told that "careful consideration" should be given to the double taxation of company profits—taxed at the corporate

OAS Membership Expected Top Concern of Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Early action to take Canada into the Organization of American States is expected to be a top-priority foreign policy concern of the new Pearson government.

In some official quarters there are suggestions that Canada will make the historic move into the hemispheric association within a year, thus ending an isolation that is as old as the OAS itself.

However, some ticklish political and financial problems will have to be considered first, diplomatic informants say. Conceivably, these could cause still further holdups in the off-and-on movement toward Canadian "membership in the hemisphere."

The OAS embraces the United States plus the 20 Latin American republics, though the present government of Cuba has been excluded from its activities.

Both Liberal Leader Pearson, the incoming prime minister, and Paul Martin, considered likely to become the new external affairs minister, are old hands at this record in favor of Canada's joining.

The strongest expression of this policy came during a Commons external affairs debate on 24 when Mr. Martin, veteran member for Essex East and onetime head of Canada's UN delegation, declared:

". . . It seems to me that the time was never more ur-

PLAN TO CREATE 300,000 NEW JOBS OUTLINED

May Build Nuclear Power Plant

TORONTO (CP)—A five-year economic plan to create 300,000 new jobs by 1967 by expanding industry was outlined in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

Economics Minister Macaulay said the plan may include construction of a $500,000,000 hydroelectric power plant capable of generating 1,800,000 kilowatts.

He said the plan will concentrate on the manufacturing industry as "the central core of the Ontario economy" and will be achieved by creating a "favorable environment for expansion."

He listed nine policies to this end, including a reduction in imports, increased exports and government loans and grants to industry.

Calling for greater economic co-operation among the provinces, Mr. Macaulay said it would be "unfortunate" if a growth race among the provinces resulted in destructive competition.

CALLS FOR MEETING

He said he would call a meeting of provincial trade and industry ministers to be held in Alberta this year for discussion in turning many of Ontario's trade policies "into effective national policies."

Mr. Macaulay said the government would likely make a "firm final announcement in the next two or three weeks" on the nuclear plant project.

He predicted current studies would justify a detailed design study "which would probably lead to completion by 1970 of large Canadian nuclear power stations. Construction could start next year.

"I am confident that this is going to be an economic proposition," Mr. Macaulay said. Money would be sought from private financial institutions as sources.

He warned that if a "substantial program of nuclear power station construction" is to get started in Ontario "Canada would be importing between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 worth of American coal annually.

SEEKS MORE EXPORTS

Mr. Macaulay said three policies will be pursued in the five-year program would aim at encouraging reduction of imported goods with Ontario-made products, increasing purchases of Canadian products and expanding exports.

The government will set goals to bring individual firms into Ontario to manufacture formerly imported goods and create 75 to 100 "industrial development agreements" whereby foreign manufacturers licence production in

Kennedy Wants Nuclear Accord Ere NATO Meets

Will Seek Settlement When He Sees Pearson

Washington (cp) — President Kennedy and Liberal Leader Pearson likely will attempt to settle the Canada-U.S. nuclear controversy before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial conference opens at Ottawa May 22.

Informants said one issue the president plans to take up with the prime minister-designate at their first formal conference—probably early next month—is provision of U.S. nuclear warheads for Canadian defence forces in Europe and Canada.

American authorities see no major problem in getting Parliament to agree to accept the warheads, since the latter indicated during the election campaign just ended he would meet Canada's obligations under NATO and the North American air defence agreement.

He would make the announcement at a meeting of provincial trade and industry ministers to be held in Alberta this year for discussion in turning many of Ontario's trade policies "into effective national policies."

THIRD MEMBER CIRCUS FAMILY FALLS TO DEATH

Yetta Wallenda Had Blackout

OMAHA (AP)—The billing in the program said:

"Skirting the borderline of eternity in the dome of the auditorium."

Yetta Grotefent, 42, of the famed circus aerialist family, the Wallendas, had reached the climax of her solo act.

She stood on her slender 38-foot pole, swaying back and forth in a wide arc.

The pole was on a back swing when Yetta tumbled backward and plummeted to her death as 4,666 spectators watched in stunned silence Thursday night.

That was how death claimed the third member of the troupe in 16 months. Dieter Schepp, 23, and Richard Faughnan, 29 were killed in Detroit Jan. 30, 1963 in a high-wire accident involving seven members of the troupe. Yetta was not a member of that act.

What caused the death of the 42-year-old Yetta?

A member of the Kristensen troupe of equestrians said in a taped interview that "I think she must have passed out up there."

Several other circus people said they had heard Yetta wasn't feeling well before she got to her act at the Ak-Sar-Ben Shrine circus.

Some spectators said the aerialist appeared to slip.

LIKED HIGH POLE

In an interview in Detroit in 1962, Yetta had said that when she was on the indoor pole, "it seems so little I feel I have to do more to impress the audience. I get a little reckless."

That comment had followed her explanation of her preference for the 12½-foot pole she used outdoors and on which, she said: "You are really away, what with the height and the wind."

Yetta fell face upward until she hit a guide rope 15 feet above the bright green mat on the floor. The impact spun her around and she hit the floor spread-eagled and face down-

80 Medical Students Take Drug In Search of Elusive Antibiotic

TORONTO (CP)—Eighty second-year medical students at the University of Toronto have volunteered to take a new drug. They had no idea what effect it would have.

A combination of three different chemicals, the drug is a further attempt to find the elusive successful antidote to lethal insecticides.

Some insecticides widely used in agriculture act the same way as nerve gases by interfering with nerve's controlling muscle contraction.

If enough chemical is inhaled, swallowed or absorbed through the skin, the muscles become paralyzed. When this happens it usually means breathing ceasing the person dies.

A Hamilton man died in February when an insecticide of this kind splashed into his mouth after he pulled the cap off a can with his teeth. A Saskatchewan farmer died last summer when he splashed the stuff on his face and hands.

Complete avoidance of the danger would be the best precaution, but for those who must work with it prior protection is necessary.

A pill to raise a person's resistance to the poison's effects, which he could take before he started work, would be the best protection. This is the aim of research scientists working for at least one.

However, toxic effects of the antidotes now used pose difficulties. Frequent exposure to one chemical is not much use if it only means being poisoned by another.

This is a problem studied in many medical centres around the world including the University of Toronto, where physicians and drug experts have worked on it for about six years.

The newest experimental stage started this week involves testing a new combination which researchers consider the most promising yet, both for treatment purposes and as a protective pill to be taken before exposure to the poison.

For the experiment, three different pills were used. The new drug, a drug that has been used as an antidote and ordinary sugar pills.

Neither the students nor the doctor who ran the tests, Dr. Russell Taylor of the department of pharmacology, knew who received which pills. This will be revealed when the results have been tabulated.

U.S. Govt. Tries to Protect Can ada

New Packaging Rules Would Stifle Trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. government has rushed to Canada's support in condemning a proposed bill which would increase handling, packaging and marketing problems for Canadian goods sold in the U.S. One section of the bill is aimed specifically at curtailing Canada's huge U.S. lumber market.

Assistant Treasury Secretary James Reed has told the Senate finance committee the U.S. government considers the proposed legislation a violation of international trade obligations and that in all likelihood it would be vetoed by President Kennedy if ever approved by Congress.

The legislation, approved by the House of Representatives but bottled up in the Senate committee, would force U.S. importers and distributors to stamp the country of origin on all imported and repackaged goods are moved from one container to another, the new container would have to be so marked.

It also would require all Canadian lumber sold in the U.S. to be marked with the country of origin, a move which U.S. lumberman attempted to push through the U.S. Tariff Commission but were turned down.

The Canadian government told the U.S. in an aide memoire dated March 19 that marking of Canadian lumber with the country or origin would run counter to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and "would conflict with longstanding international undertakings of the U.S. to Canada whereby lumber is exempted from marks-of-origin requirements."

The aide memoire, published in the transcript of committee hearings held last month, said also the general provisions of the bill "would seriously endanger many Canadian exports to the U.S., specifically trade in goods which are normally shipped in bulk for repackaging in the U.S."

Canadian exports to the U.S. totalled some $3,600,000,000 last year.

"It is apparent that many industries would be affected," the Canadian government said.

"For example, there is an important seasonal trade between Canada and the U.S. in agricultural products which would be adversely affected. Such products include eggs, meat and meat products, forage and grass seeds, potatoes, fresh fruits and vegetables."

The U.S. lumber industry has been seeking alternative ways to restrict lumber imports from Canada ever since the tariff commission ruled that under the new Trade - Expansion Act the U.S. industry has no grounds for obtaining higher tariff protection against Canada.

Argentina's Military Chiefs Nip An Abortive Revolt

CP from AP-Reuters

BUENOS AIRES—Argentina's military chiefs say they have stopped another revolt by the navy and civilian rebels who staged an abortive revolt April 2.

The armed forces and the interior ministry headed by Gen. Enrique Rauch reaffirmed their pledge to hold presidential elections scheduled for June 23. The public regarded the promises of balloting with apathy and skepticism.

Meanwhile the military remained on the alert, and tension continued to hang over Buenos Aires. Armed patrols roamed downtown streets Thursday night and there were unconfirmed reports that tank and anti-aircraft units had been ordered to bases near the capital.

A defence ministry communique said Thursday night the latest plot was being fomented by a small minority involved in psychological warfare to offset their previous defeat.

The interior ministry had announced earlier the arrest of seven close advisers of deposed President Arturo Frondizi. They have been charged with plotting a Communist revolution. Eight others remain at large.

GUIDO REPORTED ILL

President Jose Maria Guido reported ill, confereed at length with his military chiefs at his suburban home.

There were reports that the president had suffered a mild coronary.

A roundup of bankers, businessmen and intellectuals, ordered by interior minister Enrique Rauch. Some observers said the government may collapse and Rauch emerge as new strongman on the troubled political scene.

Stone, a close associate of Pearson's when Pearson was in the diplomatic service and external affairs minister, described the election result as "the finest thing that's happened in our country for a long, long time."

"I look forward with confidence to a very considerable improvement in our position in the world. Our wise counselling will be listened to again as it has not been listened to during the last several years. . . ."

Green said the problem is to increase Canada's population to help make Canada a stronger, independent nation.

Panel Discusses Canada, U.S. Relations

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YORK (CP)—Two men —one from Canada, the other from the United States—who in the past served in the diplomatic services of their respective countries discussed Canada-U.S. relations here Thursday night for the benefit of an audience of about 300.

Their separate conclusions:

A strengthened Canada will be of greater service to the U.S. interest than could ever be provided by Canada as a 51st state.

Canada, with Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson's as prime minister, will have the ear and attention of the bigger nations.

The former came from Ernest A. Gross, once assistant secretary of state for the U.S. and former deputy U.S. representative to the United Nations.

The latter came from Thomas A. Stone, former Canadian ambassador to The Netherlands, once (a very short) minister in Washington and once chairman "of the United Nations administrative and budgetary committee.

Gross and Stone, now both in private business in New York, were panelists in a discussion sponsored by the English Speaking Union here and promoted by recent U.S. interest in Canada and April 8 federal election there in which anti-Americanism played a part.

NDP Head Says Assisted Firm Linked to Probe

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario New Democratic Party leader asked the government Thursday night what connection exists between an Owen Sound textile company, re-established recently through a provincial loan guarantee, and a Jamaican company currently the subject of a royal commission investigation.

Donald C. MacDonald said a Fairfield company, woollen manufacturers, had operated in Smithville in the First World War years, later moved to Preston, Ont., and ceased operations there about 1958 or 1959.

Officers of the company apparently then moved to Jamaica, to establish Jamaal Woollens with the help of funds advanced by the Jamaica Industrial Development Corporation, Mr. MacDonald said.

Jamaica Woollens went bankrupt a few years later, and a royal commission is currently investigating the company's operations, the NDP leader told the legislature.

Goose Bay Base Dispatches 5,000 Planes a Month on Runways 21-2 Miles Long

By JACK BRADLEY

GOOSE BAY, Labrador (CP) An "elephant parade" of speeding tanker planes moves in lumbering procession down the snow-packed runways and takes off at precise intervals deliveries fuel to a U.S. Strategic Air Command nuclear fleet somewhere overhead and out of sight.

A flight of RAF supersonic Vulcans is away in a powder of snow not fast they can't interrupt the tanker schedule.

And in between, the busy control tower clears a few search and rescue and commercial craft of tolerant landlord Canada.

It's a normal day at this big sub-arctic base, clearing 5,000 planes a month on the 3½-mile runways and filling a role excusively less important than in wartime. It will remain that way as long as there's call for refuelling manned aircraft for defence.

After that—and one guess is as good as the next—it seems to go—it could conceivably be reduced to handling light traffic and recreational pursuits for sportsmen seeking fish and game in a beautiful setting.

In some of Canada's wildest and most rugged country.

RCAF RUNS BASE

"Right now our main job is to support the North American SAC force so that it can get to its job fast," says brisk, energetic Group Capt. C. McCaig, 46, of Vancouver.

And, as the other parts of the continent, the U.S. tenant dominates the area in men and warplanes. Its material with an investment of $180,000,000. The RCAF can launch nothing more offensive than Canada Jet search-and-rescue planes, one of them an all but obsolete Dakota.

Nevertheless Canada has the final say in all movement and control at the big base, and the cool and competent men of the RCAF men, under Sqdn. Ldr. Russ Hammond of Montreal, marshal and launch the big USAF tankers as they head for their overseas refuelling areas over B-52s, high in the northern skies and presumably just outside Canadian air space.

The Canadians, of course, speak almost the same language as the tenants and often observe the same procedures in handling warplanes. So the well-beeped tenant is very fond of Canada, about.

"Actually our relations are close and cordial," says Group Capt. Kenny. But everybody is careful to see that personal feelings are not disturbed. For instance, a base news sheet on the American side of the station's invitation from the Canadians to take part in their annual winter carnival, but in carrier a firm reminder from the American commander that his troops "are all" still on a temporary basis and that all actions are to be governed by RCAF rules.

TYPICAL AIR BASE

The Americans draw their manpower — apparently by a studied policy that may sound perverse but has practical application for possible Arctic war experience—from the southern states and the big American compound is known as the "you all" side of the base. Group Captain Martin, the American commander, is a Texan. Two of his aides are births in the ranks of RCAF.

An impressive cover of fight ers continuously buzzes around the base ready to protect the delicate tanker mid-air refuelling operations, and the Americans are also heavy on the ground with defensive equipment.

But the Americans are strictly leases, unlike the 99-year commitment they enjoy in other parts of Newfoundland where they pay an annual rental.

Canada supplies most of the civilians for a wide range of jobs from maintenance and clerical to supply and technical. A big winter task is plowing the 21 miles of runways and 65 miles base highways. For despite its open-weather record, Goose Bay receives the same annual snowfall as Edmonton—gets a heavy snowfall.

The Canadian work force includes a fairly sizeable band of Eskimos from the settlement of Hopedale and the late Jennis Riley. He resided in this locality since 1946 and took up residence at the County Home in 1956.

MONEY FOR CIVILIANS

There are 4,000 civilians in the area and 85 per cent of the airbase depend on the base for a livelihood. Many originally depended on trapplines and some still follow the life in the community with their traditional costumes, mushing along behind fine teams of huskies and white Husky-type dogs.

When Group Capt. Kenny made his comment about the base it took him 12 hours with a "tail wind" to cross the Atlantic in his RCAF Jet delivering to an RCAF advance base. The other day he "mislaid" his jet in less than four hours in an RAF Vulcan bomber.

The base is still sometimes used by Canadian military aircraft as a refuelling stopover route to units in Europe and on United Nations duty in the Middle East. Goose Bay is also used as a base for training exercises, including winter parachute drops by infantry regiments.

It's a far cry, however, from the days when Canada had a handful RCAF bomber and fighter deliveries in '100-plane Hurricane flights.

On one recent day, in fact, the only Canada activity was a touch-and-go exercise of a search - and - rescue Albatross from Greenwood, N.S., that stampeded a herd of 300 caribou as it skimmed the spectacular mountain gorge.

STUMBLED ON SPOT

The base is here today because Canadian and American conditions were seeking an alternative to Gander as part of the chain of ferry bases linking Canada, Greenland, Iceland and Britain during the war.

A Canadian ground party stumbled on the area almost accidentally, the same day as an air party headed by Elliot Roosevelt landed on a frozen lake.

The Canadians had given up after finding bog and muskeg in the nearby North West River settlement. They went fishing, landed at the foot of the Goose Bay escarpment and realized immediately it was a giant sand dune—600 feet deep—that would provide natural drainage. At about the same moment the Roosevelt party was overhead arriving at the same conclusion.

The base was ready in 1942 about the time the present commanding officer was seeing his first action in the war as a pilot.

It lies on a peninsula between the great arms of the Hamilton River and Goose Bay itself, part of a long inlet to the sea. Winter temperatures range from zero to 10 below and the base is far enough inland to escape the bitter damp and bad flying conditions of the coast.

Tractor-Trailer Jackknifes at Intersection

MARMORA (Special) — Damage is estimated at $15,000 in a spectacular truck-car crash at the main intersection of this village today.

Possible serious injury to pedestrians was avoided as a tractor-trailer, loaded with aluminum piping jackknifed after striking a car at the intersection of highways 14 and 7.

It happened at 6 a.m., early enough so not many people were around," said police chief Murray Brown. "But it was still a very close call."

The accident occurred as the transport trailer struck the rear of a car ahead, driven by local man George Green, aged about 30.

Mr. Green was treated for scratches, cuts and bruises. Truck-driver Andre Perreault, St. Therese, Quebec, was uninjured. A plane aboard the truck was demolished. Both vehicles were westbound at the time.

Three Youths Walk Around Bay of Quinte

Teenagers have been getting plenty of exercise of late, if nothing else, these past few weeks as they joined in the nation's fad of walking.

Thursday, three more Belleville youths joined the long list of walkathoners as they gamboled around the Bay of Quinte.

John Smith and Ron Wardaugh of Centre Dufferin Secondary School and Ron McKinnon of St. Michael's, left Murray St. yesterday about 8.00 a.m. and walked across the bay to Redinersville, then to Carrying Place, from Carrying Place to Trenton, and back to Belleville; a total distance of about 33 miles.

After stopping between Trenton and Belleville to eat, the boys arrived back at 8.00 p.m., weary, but none the worse for their afternoon outing.

IN MEMORIAM

FRASER — In loving memory of a dear mother, Jennie Fraser, who passed away April 19th, 1962.

We are sad within our memory,
Sad to think you're gone,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever been called away.
We think of you in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But many sadness and heartache shed,
When others are asleep.
—Ever remembered by daughters and son-in-law Betty and Carman, Jean and Jack.

FRASER — In loving memory of our dear mother, Jennie Fraser, who passed away April 19th, 1962.

Two dear bright eyes, a tender heart,
A loving heart that knew no art.
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other light.
It sank in suffering one day love,
It rose in glory the next day love,
We thought of it all but of her other;
I know I will see it well some day
—mother!
—Sadly missed by son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

Gravel Roads in Belleville Get Dust-Layer Treatment

Dust-layer application to gravel streets in the newer sections of the city is now well underway and the city public works department is welcoming with open arms last night's rain which will aid in the dust-laying program.

"We really needed the rain," said city engineer Wilbur Pannell.

Mr. Purcell said the operation now under way by the roads department is actually a dust-laying program and is not to be confused with surface treatment of permanent type roads which will come later in the year.

Although the dust-laying program is underway mainly in the newer sections of the city, isolated sections of roadway in the "old" part of the city are also being treated where required.

One of the main areas of operation has been in the west and northwest, where sewer installations have been carried to the reverse of this.

Minor repairs and dustlaying have also been done along detour routes in the south end of the city where traffic is being diverted on Geddes, Grier and Evans Streets, with construction of the new North Front Street bridge.

Mr. Purcell said that the amount of surface treatment to be done this year will be dependent entirely on the year's budget, still to be set by council.

The surface treatment program normally gets underway during May.

Planners Worry Over Problems For Centennial

MONTREAL (CP) — Private planners of celebrations to mark Canada's centenary in 1967 appear concerned with problems of bilingualism and with the pressures that threaten Confederation.

This became evident at Thursday's opening of the Canadian Centenary Council's annual meeting, grouping some 300 representatives from various associations and businesses interested in planning special celebrations for 1967.

Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie, council president, stressed the problems in his keynote address and warned that if any provinces decides to separate from Confederation "all of us, I am certain, would be the poorer for it."

"One result of this separation, I feel sure, would be the early merging of most of English Canada with the United States."

He said the problem of Confederation in Eastern Canada may appear to be a problem "of the Maritimes alone, but in British Columbia "the attractive United States is only 19 miles from Vancouver."

The retired president of the University of British Columbia said it will be more difficult to keep young British Columbia separate apart from the United States than it will be to keep Ontario and Quebec in some kind of union."

Mindszenty May Leave Hungary, Go to Vatican

BUDAPEST (AP)—Austria's Franziskus Cardinal Koenig met Thursday with Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in secret talks that may end the Hungarian Roman Catholic primate's seven - year asylum in the United States legation here.

Legation officials declined to reveal details of the talks. A spokesman only confirmed that the meeting took place after Cardinal Koenig's arrival.

Informed sources believe the Austrian cardinal conveyed to Cardinal Mindszenty the desire of Pope John XXIII that he leave his self-imposed exile and go to the Vatican.

Details of the necessary steps to be taken by both the Hungarian Communist regime and the U.S. government to arrange for the cardinal's departure are being kept secret.

Despite denials, it has been reported that these details have been negotiated in recent talks between the two governments and that the Hungarians would be assured Mindszenty safe conduct out of the country.

The cardinal himself must first make his decision whether to, and his exile in the legation, where he has been living since the bloody days of the autumn of the 1956 uprising, or whether he will remain there as a symbol of resistance to anti-Communist resistance.

Cardinal Mindszenty has said he does not intend to leave his people. Under canon law the Pope cannot order him to leave his country. But authoritative sources in Budapest and at the Vatican believe the Pope now apparently feels that such a step would be in the interest of an improvement in relations between the Hungarian regime and the church.

Cardinal Koenig had been expected to spend several days in Hungary but he returned to Vienna Thursday night.

Man Claims He Was Beaten By Four Girls

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Morris McCarthy, 56, testified in magistrate's court Thursday he was beaten, undressed and robbed March 27 by five girls staying at his apartment.

Jessie Gabereau, 20, Joyce Boucher, 17, Carol Ennerie, 20, Joanne Royle, 20, and Anne Tanner, 23, all of Toronto are charged with robbery with violence.

McCarthy, photographer, said he returned to his apartment where he lived with Miss Royle and found her and the other four girls, who had arrived a few days before, in a hostile mood.

He said the girls entered his bedroom, grabbed him and struck him several times with a beer bottle when he tried to escape.

McCarthy said the girls forced him into the living room where they undressed him to the skin, identified bruises and after he made a second attempt to escape, tied him to a bedroom bed.

The girls then left the house, taking $45 in cash, four suitcases and $100 worth of silver, he said.

The trial continues.

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—In switching jobs Monday, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Opposition Leader Pearson will find there are great differences in addition to those of responsibilities and titles.

Mr. Pearson, now from the privately-limited facilities of an opposition leader to a policy-making post that carries with it practically limitless means of researching, making and publicizing policy.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in leaving this behind, will suffer a sharp reduction in the tools available to him for the job of analysing and criticizing government policy and legislation.

A good example is the staff available to the occupants of the two posts.

A prime minister has a modicum of about 50 staff members, including top legal and economic brains among permanent civil servants in the prime minister's office. He also brings with him many of those who served with him in the opposition leader's office.

INCREASED ALLOWANCE

An opposition leader can count on only about one-fifth of that number paid out of public funds.

Before the 1957 election that brought him to power, Mr. Diefenbaker, as opposition leader, was provided with funds sufficient to pay for seven staff members such as secretaries, stenographers and messengers.

This cost about $30,000 a year.

One of the earliest acts of Mr. Diefenbaker when he became prime minister was to arrange to double the public funds available to pay the staff of the opposition leader—to about $30,000 a year. This made possible the addition to the staff of three persons.

However, Mr. Pearson also had the help of four others whose salaries were not paid from public funds. They included economists and speech-writers and special assistant Dick Cashin.

Mr. Diefenbaker will have about the same number of public-paid staff members when he becomes opposition leader. His staff also is expected to be augmented by three appointees from Progressive Conservative headquarters, to be paid by the party.

Four Former CNR Engineers And Their Wives Honored

Four former Canadian National Railways engineers who recently have observed their 65th birthdays, with their wives were "at home" to fellow railway employees last night as they staged a retirement party at the Club Canara.

The four were broadcasters with a total of 168 years' service behind them are: Joseph Gallagher, Frank Sadler, Jack Faulkner and Allan Van Stone.

Mr. Gallagher retired in January while Messrs. Sadler there have all written finis to their railway careers within the past three weeks.

Members of the railway entertainment committee co-operated in making the retirement party a success. Presentations were made to the retired engineers and their wives, while the evening was highlighted by the cutting of suitably decorated combined birthday-retirement cakes. Master of ceremonies for the occasion was entertainment committee vice-chairman R. Jones.

Honoring the retiring men, railway employees, presented Mr. Short with a rocker, and Mr. Van Stone, a transistor radio; wrist watches were given to Mr. Faulkner and Mr. Gallagher.

Mrs. Faulkner and Mrs. Van Stone received purses, while Mrs. Short and Mrs. Gallagher were presented with jewellery.

Police Looking Into Fires That Took 21 Lives

MONTREAL (CP)—A widening police investigation is looking into fires that took the lives of 21 people in the province in the last three years.

Two more suspects were rounded up Thursday to join eight others arrested in the last 24 hours. Police say there may be more arrests.

So far there has been no charges laid yet.

The questioning is under the direction of Jean Bienvenue, of Quebec City, special provincial fire commissioner. Chief Insp. Gerard Houle of the Quebec Provincial Police said the investigation is "entirely in the hands" of Mr. Bienvenue, with the police force assisting.

One of the fires under suspicion occurred April 14, 1957, in Pointe aux Trembles, a residential suburb, when 17 elderly men died in flames that engulfed a hostel.

Most of the suspects are said to be former policemen and some are described as fire insurance adjusters.

The investigation began three months ago after some preliminary findings by the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association into an outbreak of general area.

The investigation later moved into Montreal, which has had alarm fires in the Quebec City only one major fire recently.

Det.-Capt. Cecil Rowe of the Montreal police department said special squads are investigating a downtown department store alone. Five that took the lives of three firemen when the building collapsed.

Sheet of Plain White Paper N.B. Official Election Ballot

By DAL WARRINGTON

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Canadians who move to New Brunswick from another province have often expressed views they come to vote here in a provincial election.

New Brunswick is the only province in Canada where a sheet of plain white paper constitutes an official election ballot.

It is also unique in that all ballots are placed in envelopes before being dropped into the ballot box.

However, next Monday's election may be the last in which New Brunswick voters have this distinction. Both Liberal Premier Louis J. Robichaud and Conservative leader C. B. Sherwood have made electoral reform part of their election platforms.

The system dates from pre-Confederation days. Researchers at the New Brunswick Museum say it began in 1855 with introduction of the secret ballot, which allowed voters to adopt it.

In federal elections, of course, New Brunswickers use a printed ballot listing all candidates alphabetically—the form other provinces also use for provincial elections.

RECEIVES ENVELOPE

When a New Brunswick voter enters a polling station the deputy returning officer hands him an official envelope which has been initialled in his presence.

The voter takes the envelope to the private voting compartment. There he normally finds three or more kinds of ballot papers provided. One is a plain blank sheet on which he may write the names of the candidates he wishes to vote for. The others are printed papers provided by the political parties. Liberals and Conservatives each supply ballots naming only their candidates. Those of any other party may do the same.

If you wish to vote a straight party ticket you merely place the appropriate ballot in the envelope instead and hand it to the deputy returning officer.

But if you wish to split your vote—all New Brunswick constituencies elect more than one member—you must use the blank ballot, writing in the names, or strike out some names and write others in place on the ballot. Use of either pen or pencil is permitted.

The demand for reform arises from some obvious abuses. Ballots provided by one party are often either too few or too many in opposition. Ballot box "stuffing" is easier and counting is complicated.

Premier Robichaud has predicted adoption of secret ballot for use in federal elections.

The Conservatives have promised a complete revision of the Elections Act, including reform of the ballot.

Phong Savan Captured by Red Troops

CP from Reuters-AP

VIENTIANE—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops today captured Phong Savan, neutralist-held Laotian town about 10 miles east of the embattled Plaine des Jarres.

Neutralist Gen. Kong Le's forces were confined to their airport headquarters six miles from Phong Savan, and it has been under mortar fire from Pathet Lao and dissident neutralist forces in the surrounding hills.

High-ranking neutralist officers said a dozen Communist North Viet Nam experts staffing the control tower at the main airport had sabotaged the field, but Kong Le's troops still were in control of the main airport and the alternate airpark of Muong Phan. They are about 100 miles north of this Laotian capital.

The officers said 13 neutralists were killed Thursday when the attack on Phong Savan started.

Despite their plight, the morale of the neutralists was good and Kong Le, 31-year-old former paratroop officer who once allied himself with the Pathet Lao, remained in control of his forces.

In Vientiane, neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma was reported planning a weekend trip in another attempt to make peace between the neutralists and the Pathet Lao.

Glassco and the CBC

The Glassco Royal Commission says that extensive management reorganization is necessary if the Canadian Broadcasting Association is to attain efficiency and economy. The CBC, it reports, "has failed to develop positive goals."

This will delight those TV-viewers who prefer the U.S. type of program.

But this criticism of the CBC was aimed at its business operations, not at its artistic achievements.

The latter came in for high praise.

"The quality and balance of network programs have been exceptional and the large audiences catered to have enjoyed a full and edifying fare of cultural, informative and entertainment programs," says the report.

What the Glassco commission wants remedied is the CBC's businesslike—or unbusinesslike—operations. Its commercial policy developed in a haphazard manner, says the commission. Its sales staff is small. Salesmen, being unionized, lack the incentives provided by commissions. Top management salaries are low and the small spread between them and the pay for those in the lower echelons provides little reason to work hard for advancement.

All this will impress businessmen.

The question is whether broadcasting is, or ought to be, a business, when the system is publicly owned.

It is difficult for any organization to serve two gods—that of sound business practice and of artistic achievement in the field of education and entertainment. It is doubly difficult when the source of revenue is advertising, under the American system of sponsored shows. There is more than adequate proof, from actual experience in the U.S., that where the primary objective is the profitable operation of a broadcasting system, sponsors seek to interfere with the content of the shows carrying their name. A remedy—it would appear an easy remedy—would be to base Canadian television and radio advertising on the British pattern, with space being sold in exactly the same way that newspapers sell advertising space, without the advertiser being named as the sponsor of any program. But even if this is done, there will be pitfalls to any effort to make the CBC "businesslike." The businessmen and the artist are seldom the same person. If we are not careful we may throw out the baby with the bathwater, and end up with a marvellously efficient money-making machine which has lost the ability, and perhaps even the desire, to provide "a full and edifying fare of cultural, informative and entertaining programs."

Atoning for Peace

The old idea of beating swords into plowshares has been updated, since the sword was phased out as an operational weapon, but the idea still holds. Naval rifles may be shooting satellites into space by next year, and fighters are often used to prevent avalanches, by blasting snow before they start. Wartime use brought the helicopter to practical use for construction jobs, and the cranky jet fighters of World War Two have become the jetliners of today. But the nuclear submarine has outclassed all three lesser conversions in its promise to Canada's future.

Commodore O. C. S. Robertson, discoverer of the first usable Northwest Passage, told reporters in Halifax recently of the possibilities of the submarine in the North. Himself a veteran of a submarine trip to the North Pole, he said that Canada's Arctic waters are open all year round to the modern submarine. He said submarine merchant ships would someday unlock the mineral wealth of the Arctic, now frozen by the prohibitive cost of transport.

With modern equipment, according to the Commodore, living in the Arctic would be no more hazardous or uncomfortable than life on the prairies.

Some Police Stats!

Over the weekend, in the course of an Easter jaunt, we had a businessman complain to us that we already have a police state in Canada.

We could understand his feelings, because the Department of National Revenue had just made him cough up several thousand dollars as tax on income earned several years ago.

We could not, however, raise any sympathy with his viewpoint, since we had just had a puncture on Highway 401—and had had the tire changed for us by a provincial policeman.

Everything we have ever read about police states leads us to conclude that in them policemen do not treat the ordinary civilian in this manner.

Will Teach Parents Of Retarded Child

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

Scattered throughout rural Ontario, there are scores of families with a retarded child, whose parents get no help in organizing his days or planning his future.

In order to assist them, the home care committee of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children is holding a three-day workshop at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph, on June 6th, 7th, and 8th. This is open to mothers and/or fathers of mentally retarded children. The cost is small and the program, highly practical, with leadership from medical experts, nurses and teachers who are familiar with this problem. The enrolment is limited to 50 parents and 50 public health nurses.

Since the families we seek are unknown to us, we would appreciate having this letter appear in the 'Letters to the Editor' column of your newspaper. We hope that any rural parents who see this letter and who are not presently in an area served by a local community association for retarded children will write to us so that complete information regarding the school will be sent to them.

Take Wedlock Too Lightly

Guelph Mercury

Channing Pollock once said: Marriage is a sacrament, institution, and no family should be without it." Nevertheless, the marriage counsellors have a busy time these our times trying to salvage marriages which apparently in many instances were a mistake from the beginning, and should never have been contracted. It was accepted great fanfare at time with little question, that marriages were made in heaven, but social workers know famous English humorist, (and Member of Parliament) Sir Alan P. Herbert, "Why does Holy wedlock so soon become Unholy Deadlock?"

It is an old adage, not so much in use in these days of hustle, bustle and muscle, that we should "look before we leap." Certainly a dive into a swimming pool without any water in it can be embarrassing, at the least, and fatal at the other extreme.

What is this strange compulsion which tosses many youngsters into the holy state of matrimony before they have even an inkling about the whole thing?

Dr. R. S. Hosking, a former judge of the Family Court in Toronto, in a recent address, very interesting and carefully researched report to the general Council of the United Church of Canada, now points a condemning finger at the "over-romanticized, over-sentimentalized, stressed picture of the perfect marriage which is presented to our young people today."

Dr. Hosking is not, of course, subscribing to the rather cynical equation which is sometimes expressed in these words: "Love is blind; marriage is an institution; therefore marriage is an institution for the blind." He does point out, however, that the expression: "they lived happily ever after" belongs in fairy tales, and mature people should have realized, by the time they're old enough to get married, that there just aren't any fairies. The marriages with a built-in guarantee of success is a figment of the romantic imagination.

It Always Happens

La Liberte, Fribourg

An African chief who returned home from his first visit to Europe gave this report to his people: "Thousands of people assembled in seat around a great green field. Two groups of men in odd dress ran onto the field, made bending motions and placed themselves in special positions. Then the chief man kicked an object bigger than any egg and the miracle was produced: rains fell from the heavens."

Third Officer Nancy Pyper of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, was guest speaker at the "Ladies' Night" of the Trenton Rotary Club in the Bata Recreation Hall at Batawa. Mrs. Pyper gave a stirring address on the part that women are playing in the various services, replacing men in all branches of the work. She spoke of the WW.D's. of the Air Force, the women of the Army, but at greater length and with more feeling of the girls who are so nobly following their British sisters, "The Wrens," in joining the Royal Canadian Navy.

Yellow crocuses flaunted a gay spring defiance today to Old Man Winter as the blooms pushed their petals through green coverings to welcome a temporary morning sunshine. The yellow blooms gleamed gaily on the lawns of Dr. Marshall on Bridge Street East and of Dr. George H. Stobie on Campbell Street.

The Minstrel Show which was put on by the Belleville Rotary Club in Griffin's Theatre was a great success; the house was filled to capacity and everyone enjoyed themselves.

The solo parts were taken in fine style by Dr. A. B. Haffner, Al Sullman, James Booth and Sandy Burrows. Charlie Symons' "Trick Dressing," the first turn on the olio, was the real outstanding skit of the whole show and stood out in the performance like a nigger in a snow pile. Charlie Dolan, endman, made a great hit with his song story of "Old King Tut," in which he was assisted by the chorus. Billy Doyle as interlocutor, was the right man for the job. The following were the endmen: Dr. Haffner, Charlie Keeber, Bill McCreary, George Hastings, Charlie Dolan and Dr. Morley Day.

The skit "Going to the Races" was well done by Guss "Dandy" Scott and "Doc" Day and Charlie Keeber with Bill Deacon as the cop. Ab Wheeler and Davie Carr did some good stepdancing. Jackie McGie and Harold Barrett presented a pretty musical act which was well received by the audience. The following composed the chorus: Tim Little, Arthur Rowland, Al Sullman, Bill Sewell, Jack Reno, Harry Ackerman, Charlie Symons, Oswald Scott, C. H. Vermilyea, J. G. Moffatt, Stewart Robertson, W. Ballo, Morley Duff, Joe Corbin, Fred Smith, Harold Barrett, Norman Tucker, W. T. Youdale, Charlie Dickens and S. A. Robins. Accompanist Jack McGie and Paul Lalonde, musical director and old pro minstrel, deserve much credit for the success of the show. The Eureka orchestra under the direction of Reg Hinchey, did famously. It is expected more will be heard of this fine orchestra in the future.

Hippo Twins Pose Problem

Hamilton Spectator

Pepper, the St. Louis Mo., zoo's hippopotamus, gave birth to twins the other day. A zoo spokesman said he believed it to be the first multiple accident of a hippopotamus in captivity.

A news agency now poses the problem: Is Pepper's progeny twins should be called hippopotami or hippotami. The Webster's Third New International Dictionary lists both forms as proper. More important to us, we does the Oxford Dictionary, which discusses Latin plurals, is not spelled in the land of its origin.

People who want to be on speaking and spelling terms with hippopotamuses or hippopotami can call them "hippos". The plural of the colloquial hippo; But some of confusion and the humiliation of resorting to familiar short forms could have been avoided if an early linguist had insisted on calling a hippopotamus a "river horse" being derived from the Greek words "hippos" meaning horse and "potamus", meaning river.

Pepper is much too busy to worry about little factories full of automatism, lining the suburban highways. Down through the canyons of big business we crept in our car, inching inch by inch. Out to the mass-produced housing developments, pink and blue; around through the elite neighborhoods full of crouching ranch type bungalows, pretending they were alone on the long prairie.

"Well, heck," said my cousin, "none of them have any verandahs. They don't even have porches! Where are they going to sit?"

"Inside," I explained, "looking at TV."

"How about fresh air?" he protested.

"They've got air conditioners on all the windows," I said.

"Hummm," said he. "What time did I say that bus leaves?"

"Ten past ten," said I.

"Don't let me miss it," said he.

Fire ragged through downtown Toronto 30 years ago today—in 1904—causing an estimated $11,000,000 damage. The worst fire in the city's history broke out shortly after 8 p.m. on a windy summer night. At first it looked like an ordinary fire—but a strong wind from the wind scattered burning brand and within three hours practically the entire wholesale area of the city was ablaze. When the wind suddenly changed direction the flames were brought under control.

Strictly Personal

Resents Being Only Unpaid Contributor

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I admire and envy a writer friend of mine who, when the proper stance on a matter I feel strongly about, but rarely have the occasion to express.

Sitting with him in his study a few weeks ago, I overheard a telephone conversation between him and a man from a radio station. The man had called my friend to participate in a round table program; as he had a loud, clear, radio-type voice, I could hear both ends of the conversation.

"I get the picture," said my friend. "What time are you prepared to pay for this job?"

"Well," said the radio man, "it's a sustaining public-service program, you see, and so we don't have any money allocated for speakers."

"Are you being paid for your work on it," asked my friend, "or are you contributing your services, too?"

"Naturally," said the man, "I'm getting my regular salary. It's part of my job."

"It's not part of mine," said my friend. "What about the engineer in the control booth for the program. Is he getting paid?"

"Well, certainly," said the radio man. "It's his job too."

"I thought that perhaps he was volunteering after hours, as a gesture of generosity and good will," was my friend's reply. "Now tell me this — what about the announcer, the producer, the director, and the man who comes in and sweeps the floor afterwards? Are any of them doing it as a public service?"

"No, of course not," admitted the radio man. "But we just don't have anything in the budget for speakers. There's no money available."

"I can go along with that," said my friend. "I'm not greedy for money. But I'm sure you can't expect people to work if you're asking a service of me, why can't you reciprocate with one favor?"

"Such as what?" asked the radio man.

"There's a lot that needs doing around my house — the walls need washing, the basement should be scrubbed, and some bookshelves have to be put up. Suppose, if you come around on Saturday, you send someone around, to do these things, and then I will gladly let you have my services for the program."

"I've never heard of such a thing in my life," sputtered the man.

"Neither have I," purred my friend, "but I think it's high time we both heard it. You'll let me know, won't you? Thank you — and good-by."

Treat Angina Pectoris By Using Nitroglycerin

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(This is the second of two articles on angina pectoris.)

More can be done about angina pectoris than some people realize, so let's get the word around.

As we said yesterday, there are many causes for angina. In some instances it stems from a weakness of the heart itself, and you just have to accept this unhappy fact.

But if you have the problem, you can still be a great deal more comfortable with it.

In cases resulting from other causes, considerably more can sometimes be done and in some instances permanent correction or lessening of the severity may be possible.

The most effective relief, however, is by placing a nitroglycerin tablet under the tongue. It gives instant relief, even though temporary, so that the pain ceases and the heart catches up to adequate power. The effect of the tablet, however is brief.

Fortunately there is no particular limit to the number which can be taken safely. Neither do they lose their effect from repeated use.

Many patients get along well with only a few a day. Others require a considerable number for comfort. Some patients even keep the tablets on a night stand beside the bed because they know from experience that they are likely to be awakened by pain. Others, however, since they are at rest, sleep right through the night.

On occasion it is better to use longer-lasting nitrite tablets instead of the nitroglycerin. With either medication, however, a great deal of the success depends upon the patient himself.

He usually learns quickly to recognize how much exertion he can stand without suffering an attack — he learns how far and how fast he can walk. If walking from office to parking lot is too much, then taking a nitro pill beforehand often permits the jaunt without pain.

Learning to go only half way and then sitting down to rest for a few minutes is part of the pain. Often if the pain starts and the patient immediately stops whatever he is doing, exercise he has been engaged in, the pain can stop as abruptly as it started. But nobody gains anything by being stubborn and trying to keep going anyway. The heart must have its respite from strain.

If the blood cholesterol is high, reduction of it by diet and medication sometimes reduces the pain.

When anemia, over-active thyroid or diabetes are the root of the trouble, these must be controlled — but that still does not mean that the heart will with impunity be forced beyond its capacity.

Reduction of smoking, or quitting entirely, is wise, because tobacco aggravates angina.

In a few cases of certain types, modern heart surgery can be very helpful. Don't get warn that, up to now at any rate this is limited.

Let's be no means the least important, emotional stresses and disturbances can evoke pain. Make a conscious effort to avoid getting stirred up. In short, be philosophical about life; it will make your more comfortable. Indeed, there are many cases in which the pain has subsided or even disappeared when a patient has calmed down after passing through some extended crisis, as marital discord or job difficulties.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a person to bite his tongue and lips? I do this quite often. —

First Loyalty To Mankind

By Eugene Rabinowitch in the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists

In 1962 mankind came as close as never before to the abyss of a nuclear war. Shall such paroxysms of power politics be permitted to occur again and again, until one of them ends in disaster?

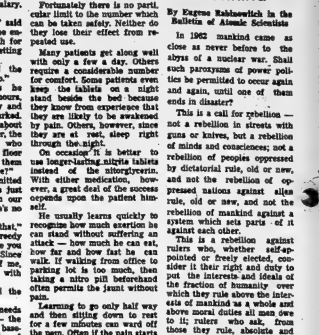
This is a call for rebellion — not a rebellion in streets with guns or knives, but a rebellion of minds and consciences; not a rebellion of citizens oppressed by dictatorial rule, old or new, and not the rebellion of oppressed nations against alien rule, old or new, and not the rebellion of mankind against a system which sets parts of it against each other.

This is a rebellion against rulers who, whether self-appointed or freely elected, consider it their duty and duty to put the interests and ideals of the fraction of humanity over which they rule above the interests of mankind as a whole and the moral duties of man more to it; rulers who ask, from those they rule, absolute and ultimate loyalty to the national power and to the faith or ideology for which they stand.

A man can be asked to give everything he owns, his very life, for the protection of his family, his community, the nation to which he belongs and for the faith or idea in which he believes.

But a man cannot be asked to become a gangster or con. niver in a millionfold crime of innocent men, women and children, in the name of special power interests or a special faith or idea to which his group of mankind is committed and to destroy, in the name of his loyalty to his group, the very basis of his existence on earth.

Man over his highest and overriding loyalty to mankind, not to any of its parts.



Mankind must be the aim of the rebellion?

To establish in all parts of the earth the rule of men who would consider their power over a part of humanity not — or not for long — as mandate to defend and advance the material and spiritual ideals of this part, but above all as a trust for the benefit of mankind as a whole — to contribute to its survival, strengthen its stability and to further its progress with all means at the disposal of the part of humanity which they represent.

Men dedicated to this common aim above all others should rise in all parts of the world; and scientists should be leaders in this rebellion for survival and rebirth of mankind.

Entire Church Roof Structure Shipped From BC in Trailer

Package deals are growing in popularity in the modern day business world, but a Belleville district contractor has possibly scored a first in getting an entire church roof structure shipped in on one huge tractor trailer—and all the way from British Columbia.

This week a transport company delivered a fifteen-ton load of laminated roof beams and posts for use in the construction of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church on Victoria Ave. in the eastern end of the city.

The transport trailer left Vancouver on April 9th and arrived in Belleville on the 17th after changing drivers at Winnipeg. Three-inch cedar roof decking for the church was included in the transport load.

General contractor for the $50,000 construction job is Wieger De Jong of Stirling, who already has the foundation and the sub-flooring in and is commencing on the brick work walls. Watson and Wiegand of Belleville are the architects.

The church unit now under construction is the first of two stages in the structure now going up to be eventually used as a Sunday school.

ward. She didn't utter a sound as she fell.

Among the first to reach her stricken woman was her husband, Arthur, who had rigged the ropes for her act and was standing next to Fred Cross where she landed. He was given sedatives later.

Vera was dead on arrival at a hospital. Firemen said she apparently died of a broken neck.

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—"We must go on," said Karl Wallenda. "It is already arranged."

The 33-year-old head of the famed Wallenda aerial troupe, his brother Herman, 60, and their nephew Gunther, 34, learned Thursday night, while watching a television program, that Yetta Wallenda had been killed when she fell 30 feet from a slender pole during her act at Omaha.

They were to perform in Lewiston, Me., tonight.

Karl suffered pelvic injuries in a Czechoslovakia accident in 1962 which two of the troupe died.

Then, he said the act was his family's way of life and would continue. Doubt crept into his anguished words Thursday night.

"What can we do? Fold up the act? It is our living."

Two Hungerford Women Fined In Family Court

Appearing for sentence on a charge of leaving their children unattended, two Hungerford township women Thursday afternoon were assessed fines of $50 each by Col. T. Y. Wills, deputy judge of the Hastings County Family Court.

The two women were given one month to pay their fines and in lieu of payment will serve a month in the county jail.

The women pleaded guilty to the charge at a family court hearing in Marmora earlier this month and were remanded until yesterday for sentence.

The charges arose out of a fire at the Hungerford township home, while the mothers were away. The children were shepherded safely out of the burning house by the oldest sister and all escaped without harm.

Yesterday in family court the Children's Aid Society was awarded six months temporary custody of the two women's nine children, seven of whom are from one family.

Business Increase to Delay McFarlane Gendron Move

An increase in company business will delay the intended shutdown of the McFarlane Gendron Mfg. Co. plant in of the year.

Belleville, it was learned today.

Plant manager Jack McFarlane said that due to the increase in business the local plant operation would be unable to move to Toronto as was announced last December.

He was unable to say whether the decision to stay in Belleville would be permanent but said the move would be postponed until at least after the end of the year.

HOPE TO STAY

"We hope we can continue in Belleville," he said.

Currently McFarlane Gendron employs 63 persons, with this force usually being increased to about 110 around the end

The Belleville operation is a branch of the parent firm in Toronto which, before establishing in this city, operated a plant in the province of Quebec.

In the immediate post-war period the firm purchased the Belleville plant of the former Bristol Aircraft Company and moved its Quebec operations to Belleville.

Weddings

GRILLS — SHARP

A very pretty Easter wedding took place at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, on Saturday, April 13 at 3.30 o'clock when the Rev. A. E. Toombs united in a double ring ceremony Velda Iona Sharp, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Sharp, Campbellford, to Charles Herbert Grills, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Grills, Campbellford. The church was beautifully decorated with white Easter lilies for the occasion.

During the gathering of the guests, who were ushered by Douglas Sharp of Campbellford and Arthur Sharp of Gilmour, brothers of the bride, Mrs. Ward Archer, organist, rendered several pieces of wedding music.

The bride entered the church to the strains of "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven," and was given in marriage by her father. The bride looked charming in a white matelasse Italian brocade floor length gown with overskirt, forming a chapel train. The bodice featured long lily-point sleeves and scalloped neckline. She wore a heart-shaped diamond set necklace which was the bridegroom's gift. Her veil was waist length, silk net with matching lace and her head dress a crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet in fashion of red roses.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Harry Bradley, wearing a nile green brocaded taffeta gown with overskirt, elbow length gloves and headdress to match. She carried a fan of green and white mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Rose Anne Douglas, Crookston, cousin of the bride and Miss Karen Grills, Campbellford, cousin of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids' gowns and accessories were the same as the maid of honor's.

The groomsman was Mr. Robert Millen of Peterborough.

Little Misses Susan and Lynn Bradley, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, dressed in mauve and white flock nylon over taffeta with matching headdresses, and carrying bas kets of mauve and white mums.

The ring-bearer was Master Gary Sharp, nephew of the bride, natty in his white flannel trousers and navy blue blazer. He carried the rings on a white satin heart-shaped pillow.

The Chorian Choir, of 18 members, under the direction of Mrs. Allen G. Watson, wearing long mauve brocaded taffeta dresses, sang before the bride entered the church "The Lord is My Shepherd" and during the signing of the register "O Perfect Love" and for the recessional the "Trumpet Tune" and Purcell's "Air."

The bride's mother received in a mink colored brocaded dress with dark brown accessories and corsage of bronze mums.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing a dusty rose brocaded dress with mink fur stole and corsage of pink roses.

The reception was held in the basement of the church.

Mr. Ansell Taylor of Peterborough, was master of ceremonies. The Rev. A. E. Toombs, the Rev. Gordon Whitehorn and the Rev. Earl Wannamaker spoke briefly.

Guests were present from Thousandins, Stirling, Colborne, Frankford, Trenton, Toronto, Peterborough, Gilmour and Campbellford.

The bride chose a beige wool suit with mink fur collar, dark brown accessories and an orchid corsage for travelling to points west. On their return the happy couple will take up residence at 551 Weller Street, Peterborough while the bridegroom is engaged as a teacher in the Queen Mary School.

AN EXCELLENT tactic for a family with school-age children is "let's look it up." Preschool youngsters sometimes ask questions for which you haven't satisfactory answers. ## College Hill UCW Plans Coming Bazaar

The afternoon unit of College Hill U.C.W. held its regular meeting in the church on Wednesday afternoon with Unit Leader Mrs. A. Dickens, in charge.

The meeting opened in the usual manner and with the conclusion of the business period the fall bazaar was discussed. Members were reminded to bring donations for the "Trash and Take" table to each meeting between now and bazaar time. It was decided to have a pot-luck luncheon for the June meeting, and a motion was made that this unit would assist Mrs. Vessey with an afternoon tea for the newsgurgers and their mothers in May.

Mrs. C. Bailey, in charge of devotions, used as her theme for the Meditation "Praise Ye the Lord for His Steadfast Love". Mrs. Vessey was in charge of Bible Study which centred around "The Love of God," taken from chapter four of "The Word and the Way". This study pointed out the amazing ranges of meanings of the word "Love", the greatest of these being, "The Love of Compassion", which is the Love of God, one realizes this when reading the passage from John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son, that whosoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life."

Several other passages were also studied which all pointed out the wonderful compassionate love of God and Saviour.

At the conclusion of the study period, the ladies were served refreshments by Mrs. C. Bailey. A social half hour was enjoyed.

Wife Walks 7½ Miles in Day's Work

VANCOUVER (CP)—How far does an average housewife travel while doing her chores—cleaning, dusting, washing and chasing after the children?

Mrs. Jean Morris participated in an experiment to provide an answer.

Wearing a pedometer, a little gadget that measures the miles, she followed her normal routine.

Her day started at 7:30 a.m. when she made breakfast for husband Ras and the children, all under school age. She did the dishes, made the beds and drove the children to nursery school.

During the morning she cleaned her father's upstairs suite, did the bedrooms, bathroom and three loads of laundry in the basement. She also ducked out door to water the neighbors' plants.

After picking up the kids at noon, Mrs. Morris made lunch, vacuumed the floors and cleaned the windows. Then came the evening meal for the family, more dishes and a final trip to the cellar.

Her total walking distance— 7½ miles.

Gay, New Millinery Fashions Show Wide Range of Themes

This year millinery dimensions are high, not too wide and definitely handsome! And . . . if you'll pardon the pun, women are going "soft in the head." No offense, please — merely a prediction of the fashions of hats.

Soft, sweeping lines that fold and curve around the crown are being previewed in turbans, cloches, pillboxes, brims, skimmers, sailors and berets.

Bouffe - type ribbons and trim, enhance cushion - brimmed cloches and off-the-face berets of extremely soft straws.

The big-brimmed hat and the tiniest hat styles with the high crown are also leading contenders for the chapeau spotlight.

Drapery is in the show everywhere, light-headed in silk organdies, chiffons, paisleys, twisted and puffed-up patterns that make for a turbaned look.

"Walking flower gardens" will be in vogue in all colors, shapes, sizes and varieties of flowers.

For the crisp, tailored-seamed crowd, there are sleek hats, that ride straight and forward in the Spanish manner. Shown most often in black shiny straws, they wear the Spanish air to a nicety.

The sailors are in — and are even more decorative and detailed than in the past. Crowns of these delightful headliners are a bit higher than usual and are now being trimmed with dramatic chiffon drapes and veilings that sweep past the shoulder line like an Arab in desert costume.

Large picture hats come out for Easter and early summer in milan, multi - colored and coarse-weave straws.

Newest shapes in these picture hats have wide, side-to-side dipping brims, and high manipulated domes in every featured media.

From the looks of current millinery fashions, hat-fanciers will find wonderful treasures of color, style and flattery in every feminine line for spring-in-to-summer costumes.

Clarence Thomson.

The Bible study was conducted by Mrs. H. Pillen with the topic "Consolation," after which discussion groups were formed and results proved most interesting.

'Sportswear' Meaning Is Extended

There've been times — in the past, of course — when a mere man, looking at a new fashion for women, might say, either jokingly or seriously, "What is it?"

This spring is the time when women, reflecting in most important kind of fashion, might echo that question — in a happy tone, more approving than curious.

What is it? It's sportswear, an idea that has evolved from its original definition as one kind of fashion — clothing for active or spectator sports — into many kinds of fashion, all of them added up to the symbol and substance of the well-dressed look.

Sportswear still means fash-ions for sports, as the growing popularity of new styles for bowling and bowling attest. But it means much more.

Sportswear means knits, an ever-expanding fashion that includes separates, casual dresses and suits in every kind of texture and weight. Imaginative new wool knits, cotton knits, knits of man-made miracle fibres and blends.

Newest and most exciting meaning of sportswear centres on fashions for pale, lounging, at-home entertaining. The long look comes to the fore, as tops of all sorts pair up with the long, long skirt. Colors, fabrics, prints mix and mingle with imaginative abandon — a plaid wool top with a long, floating solid-color chiffon skirt, to cite just one example.

Pattern dresses copy the muu-muu and an array of easy, natural shapes.

Pants are in the picture, at-home and elsewhere. Slim, trim and tapered — right for classic new spring and especially for patio dazzle, there's news in the widening influence of dashing high bottoms and in modified harem styles.

Sportswear means coordinates, for all hours and occasions. Mixtures of colors and fabrics continue in this fashion trend. Skirts show new variations of ease — easy-ellos, pleated, "fra-yes" flounced with hemline flares and flounces.

Tops take the brief approach to the casual life, to sunshine and fun. Midriffs are bared by cut-away flared and bow-swinging versions of these little toppings.

In a more dress-up mood are blouses and shells appearing as sleeveless shells, middy looks and other relaxed pullovers, pretty looks highlighting ruffles and lace. The casual tuck-in with roll-up sleeves maintains a strong position.

Sportswear means sweaters, and no clean cut, sporting, specialty since cardigans are such popular pairings with sleeveless dresses as ever now but will into summer, as travel companions and air conditioning protectors.

And sportswear means interesting fabrics, rugged but'refined — a country look come to town. Leading off are work denims and denim copies, linens and linen looks, madras.

Son Wants to Leave Home

DEAR DORIS—Our son is 25 years old and lately has been very hard to get along with. He pays $60 per month for board, room and washing. Do you think we charge him too much?

The other day he told me that he is moving out. That would kill me as we love him dearly. Please advise us what to do.—BROKENHEARTED PARENTS.

DEAR BROKEN-HEARTED — The rates are fine; he'll pay more away from home. And who'll pamper him like you do?

But find out why. Ten to one he craves to spread his wings—which is normal. You'll hold his love better by letting him go now.

Besides, your own fun can begin coming first once you can stop concentrating on offspring. There's a whole new era of friendships and sociability for you and your husband. Take a step in that direction and see.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO SECRETARY — Is a pension after twenty years important enough for daily drudgery? Your job should and can be your fun. Take the course and step out.

DEAR DORIS—Don't you think a married woman's place is at home with her kids?

My husband has two kids of her own, the baby being six months old. She leaves them with a baby sitter who doesn't even talk English. And when she comes home at night from work, the supper isn't ready, clothes are everywhere on the floor, the kids are dirty and she can't spare five minutes to play with them. While their parents are piling money in the bank, those kids feel lonely and neglected.

So, honey, what's your opinion? Don't you think it's monstrous? I think a woman like that doesn't have the right to be called "Mother."—NON-WORKING MOTHER OF TWO.

DEAR NON-WORKING—Youngsters, even babies, show the effects when there's no time for love for them. Material rewards piled on pining away for lack of fondling and trusting like going concerns.

Working mothers aren't the same threat to budding personality as Jill and Jill are off to school; but they need to put first things first—and be home in time to respond to "Hi, Mom!!" when school's out.

DEAR DORIS—I'm in too deep. I'm going with this woman who is ten years older than me, and we've been going steady for five years now. I've asked her to marry, but she refuses to.

Could those ten years make any difference? I don't think they should. I'm not a teenager any more. I can think like a man.

But that's not the point. I'm plainly tired of her calling me a teen, and I don't care for girls my age. I think older ones are better. So please tell me what I should do?—WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING—If she sees you as a teen, she has no business wasting your time. Walk out on her and see if she begins to notice. Ten years is a lot, unless circumstances are exceptional, and your personalities are exceptionally congenial.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO VERY ANGRY—You may have a point, but I cannot print your letter until you are willing to identify yourself to me. Your name will not, of course, appear in the column.

DEAR DORIS—My husband of one year will not work. He is distrustful, dishonest, and drinks. He has been talking with Alcoholic people but would not do as they asked him to and would not attend the meetings.

I put him out twice and took him back when he promised to do everything in his power to reform; but now he is out and wanting to come back again. I feel I don't want him. He comes home drunk, starts an argument, beats me up, calls me names and tells me lies.

He says he loves me very much and also the baby, but won't work or stop drinking. Should I take him back or forget about him?—UNDECIDED.

DEAR UNDECIDED—Are you willing to raise him, as you would a fractious child? His parents sold him short and he has never learned good behavior. You'll have to decide what you can take.

If you do try again, warn the police that you may be calling on them in a hurry for physical protection. And follow through.

DEAR DORIS—I have not been out with anyone for years as I seem to feel that it is my duty to look after the housework, as mother is not very well. I am in my mid-thirties.

I have already said no to this latest fellow. It is so long since I have been out with a fellow that I just can't seem to bring myself around to getting started, even if I wanted to go out. I know that giggle men are very rare and I dread the thought of being a lonely spinster some day. Mother has often asked me to go out and enjoy myself but I seem to feel that the housework comes first.

What should I do, Doris, as I like this fellow but I also love my parents?—SHY.

DEAR SHY—Right now—let's face it—you are hiding behind the housework. It takes nerve to go out with a man.

But soon you'll be so withdrawn you won't even write me a letter about it. Make your parents and yourself happier by stepping out—now!

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO VICKI—Your pal can hand it out but she can't take it, proving she is spoiled and a poor sport. Try to ignore her.

QUESTION:

Would you please send me your onions angel food cake recipe? — Mrs. A. H.

ANSWER:

I am glad you asked. On looking back through the files I find I have not given recipe for angel food cake here for three years. This may be because packaged angel food cakes have such a fine reputation. But I know too that there are plenty of cooks who have egg whites leftover which they want to use to good advantage.

Dinner Menus

FRIDAY (Guests)

Malabar Seafood (see Monday — cut recipe in half to serve 6 or 7) Fluffy Boiled Rice, Buttered Baby Beets, Tossed Green Salad (see Tuesday — make half recipe for 7 or 8) Compote of Fruits Brownies, Coffee.

ANGEL FOOD (12 egg whites — 10" tube pan)

1 cup sifted cake flour, ½ cup fine granulated sugar, 1¼ cups egg whites (12 at room temperature), 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon almond extract, ¾ cup fine granulated sugar (a second amount of sugar).

(Note: Some angel food cake experts say that more air is incorporated into the meringue if a large wire hand whip is used for beating.)

Sift together the measured and sifted flour and ¼ cup sugar 3 times. Into very large bowl measure the egg whites, cream of tartar and salt and beat until foamy with electric or rotary beater or wire whip. (If wire whip is used beating is more tiring.) Beat until foamy, but until quite foamy. Now gradually begin to add the second amount of sugar (¾ cup), 2 tablespoons at a time, while beating constantly, until all is added and meringue is very, very stiff and forms peaks which stand straight. Fold in vanilla and almond extract. Begin to sift flour-sugar mixture over, folding it into the meringue (do not beat at this stage) until all is added. Do not overmix.

Pour batter slowly and steadily into ungreased tube pan (preferably also reserved for angel food and chiffon cakes only). Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 to 45 minutes or until cake springs back when pressed gently with finger tip. Invert and allow to hang upside down until cold without touching cake with hands. Then coax from pan with spatula and fingers or if your tube pan has removable bottom, push sides with spatula, lift out cake and loosen from tube. Then turn bottom out on to cake rack, top side up.

For those who prefer a small, or eight inch cake, here are the amounts for 2-3 of above recipe: Two-thirds cup sifted flour, 3 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon sugar (first amount), 1 cup egg whites (8 — room temperature), ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon almond extract, ⅔ cup fine granulated sugar (second amount). Method same as above. Baking time is a little shorter. Fills 8" tube pan.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Polished manners, as well as a well-groomed appearance, are the trademark of the perfect secretary. How do you measure up?

1. How should a secretary answer the phone?

2. How should a visitor be announced?

3. Should a secretary stand when a visitor enters her office?

4. How should she conduct a visitor into the inner office?

5. How should she put a call through for her employer?

6. What courtesies should she extend to a waiting visitor?

7. Must a secretary stand when her employer comes to her desk?

8. If a visitor appears without an appointment, how may she politely handle the situation?

9. May a secretary take a seat when visiting another executive office on business?

10. How may she graciously sidetrack a phone call her employer doesn't wish to answer?

ANSWERS

1. By announcing "Mr. Brown's office". She may add, "Miss Smith speaking", if she prefers, so the caller may then address her by name.

2. She announces, "Mr. Jones to see Mr. Brown". She uses the visitor's name, rather than saying "A gentleman to see Mr. Brown", or, just as bad, "A Mr. Jones to see Mr. Brown."

3. Only if he's a very high executive in the firm, a client or someone she knows she will have to stand for other secretaries or even for junior executives unless there's a reason for doing so.

4. She opens the door for the visitor and announces his name, then closes it after he enters the inner office.

5. She should put through a call only when her employer is ready to take it, so the party on the other end won't be kept waiting. Her employer's name and affiliation should be given before he gets on the wire.

6. She may show him where to hang his hat and coat, indicate if he may smoke and provide him with reading matter while he waits.

7. No, it's not necessary.

8. She may announce "Mr. Jones to see Mr. Brown", but if Mr. Brown answers that he hasn't time to see Mr. Jones, she may say Mr. Brown is in conference and ask that the visitor leave his card so an appointment may be made at a convenient time.

9. If she's invited to, yes.

10. By checking with her boss on the intercom, first. If he doesn't wish to speak with the caller, she may say "Mr. Brown is in a meeting and will call back when he is free".

Women's Activities

RAWDON U.C.W.

RAWDON—The conveners, Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. Carleton Potts arranged an attractive worship centre in the church hall for the monthly meeting of Mount Tabernacle Rawdon U.C.W. The setting included potted ferns and Easter lilies, brass candlesticks with white lighted tapers. Mrs. Garth Joslin was pianist for the Easter hymns used throughout the service.

Mrs. Donald Knight, first vice-president welcomed the 26 ladies and was pleased to have the president in attendance. Mrs. Ross Jeffs gave her report and Mrs. William McAdam has remitted the first installment of the Presbyterial allocation. The correspondence included thank-you letters. Mrs. Carleton Potts gave a paper on stewardship and the envelopes were distributed for the thank offering. Mrs. Herbert Smith displayed plates with the picture of the church, and these are now on sale.

DEVOTIONAL

In the devotional the convener Mrs. Potts presided and offered various prayers throughout the service. The Bible passages were read by Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mrs. Milford Wrightman and Mrs. Stanley Williams. The meditations were read by Mrs. Burton Sharpe, Mrs. Douglas Campbell and Mrs. Ira David-Adam and Mrs. Margaret McMillan rendered a vocal selection and Miss C. Merrick gathered the offering which was dedicated. Mrs. Garth Joslin presided over the program and all enjoyed a singsong of Easter selections. Mrs. Harvey Couch read "The Story of Easter". Mrs. William McAdam and Mrs. Egg Sharp read "The Easter Parade". Mrs. Kenneth Weaver read "The Legend of Robin Redbreast". Miss Carolyn Merrick contributed a piano solo. Mrs. Herbert Smith read a poem entitled "Ferns".

At the close two contests were enjoyed.

The lunch conveners, Mrs. Donald Knight and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver served sandwiches, relishes and coffee.

SENSITIVE ROLE

The most sensitive role, that of the portrayal of Christ, is entrusted to Robert Wilson in Century Films' full-length production, "Day of Triumph", filmed in Eastman Color, opening Saturday, April 20th at B.C.I. Auditorium at 7.30 p.m. Doug Stark, general chairman, said the public would be invited to see what he described as "the only major film production on the life of Christ that's Scripture true."

He said the full-color picture includes the climactic events in the life of Jesus Christ, including the Sermon on the Mount, the Last Supper, the conversation of Mary Magdalene, the raising of Lazarus, the Lord's Prayer, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection. These true-to-the-Bible scenes highlight a story filled with action, pageantry and suspense. The players of "Day of Triumph" include Lee J. Cobb as Zaook, dynamic Zealot leader; Joanne Dru as Mary Magdalene; Robert Wilson as the Christ; James Griffith, Judas, and Lowell Gilmore, Pontius Pilate, and Touch Connors as Andrew.

"Day of Triumph" was produced by Dr. James K. Friedrich, an Episcopal minister and for many years a leading producer of church films. Arthur T. Horman, prominent Hollywood screen writer, developed the screen play with what the nation's clergy has hailed as remarkable integrity to its Scriptural source.

Robert Wilson, a relatively unknown by Hollywood standards, was chosen to portray the Christ after an exhaustive search. He, and no other actor under consideration, fulfilled the requirements; a deep personal piety, ability as a performer, and a marked physical resemblance to the traditional likeness of the Saviour. The part Mary Magdalene is shown more by implication than by characterization, but her emotional turmoil while seeing the light of faith is a joy to watch as Joanne Dru plays it.

Pearson

president of the privy council. A senior post as Mr. Pearson's chief Quebec lieutenant seems indicated, perhaps minister of justice.

Paul Hellyer (Toronto Trinity), associate defence minister in the St. Laurent administration, who may go to the defence portfolio or to trade and commerce.

Paul Martin (Essex East), former health minister, a long-time student of international affairs who in the previous Liberal government headed Canada's delegations to United Nations assemblies and other international conferences. During the election campaign, Mr. Pearson indicated strongly that Mr. Martin would be his external affairs minister.

WORKED WITH PEARSON

The new Liberal contingent in the Commons includes a number of men who have worked closely with Mr. Pearson as senior advisers while he was in opposition, and are expected to be given important assignments in the new cabinet.

They include:

Alan J. MacEachen (Inverness - Richmond), former economics professor at St. Francis Xavier University in New Brunswick; Maurice Lamontagne (Montreal Outremont-St. Jean), economic adviser to both Mr. St. Laurent in government and Mr. Pearson in opposition, who helped found the school of social studies at Laval University; Charles M. Drury (Montreal St. Antoine - Westmount), former deputy minister of national defence and now a leading Montreal businessman with special administrative talents; Walter Gordon (Toronto Davenport), chartered accountant and management consultant who headed the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, and Mitchell Sharp, former deputy minister of trade and commerce who was a chairman of the 1958 national Liberal rally here.

The Liberals, with 130 members, will be three short of a bare majority in the new Commons, and on all crucial votes they will need the support of one of the opposition groups or a splintering of them to ensure the new government's safety.

COUNT ON HARKNESS

The chief opposition group will be headed by Mr. Diefenbaker, consisting of 94 Conservatives. The Liberals cannot expect automatic support of the Conservatives on all votes, but may expect some support from such individuals in the Conservative ranks as former defence minister Douglas Harkness on acceptance of nuclear warheads. It was on this issue that Mr. Harkness resigned from the Diefenbaker government Feb. 3.

Social Credit Leader Thompson, with 24 MPs, has said his group will generally support Mr. Pearson, at least in the initial stages, for the sake of orderly government. But the Social Crediters will not compromise on their principles of monetary reform and six Quebec Creditistes who originally announced and then withdrew their support of the new administration are insistent on a national flag and anthem, and increased family allowances.

T. C. Douglas, leader of 17 New Democratic Party members, has also declared his group will generally support the new government but will not compromise on Socialist principles.

MAKE YOUR OWN

RAPID TURF

The newest wrinkle in "fast-growing" lawns is simply the use of "rapid-seed." Any good lawn seed may be used at home to hasten germination before planting at much lower cost than that of mail-ordered "rapid-seed" simply because of the deterioration that takes place if the seed is left unplanted and out of cold-storage for an extended period.

Our VERIGRAS or VERIGRAS-MERION mixtures are ideal for pre-soaking and will come up in less than half the normal time.

HERE'S HOW!

Place the required amount of lawn seed in an over-large bag to compensate for swelling. Tie the top. Soak in a bucket of room laundry tub overnight (12 hours). Then drain well and shovel under like any fresh water rain clear. The next morning the seed may be spread out in a thin layer in the sun on a tarp or sheet to dry quickly (it takes 2 to 3 hours). Now you have pre-soaked or rapid-dress seed.

Once reasonably dry this seed will sow quite easily and having been softened and warmed free of inhibiting acids will germinate in less than half the normal time. Try it on your next lawn-sowing project.

Plan to Create

Ontario of goods previously imported.

"We must create 300,000 new jobs by 1967," Mr. Macaulay said. "This is the measure of the job ahead."

His policies to achieve his target included:

Support for research through tax incentives, increased grants and participation in the Ontario Research Community and expansion of the recently-created Ontario Development Agency which can guarantee loans to industries;

Transportation studies, including the question of subsidizing electrical, freight and other public service rates;

Research studies into national and international economics such as the United States Trade Expansion Act and the European Common Market;

Increased activities by the Ontario Economic Council through inter-provincial, federal-provincial and provincial-municipal co-operation and provincial achievement awards to firms showing outstanding success in exports and expansion;

Regular seminars with municipal industrial commissioners to "acquaint them with the problems of decentralization and expansion of manufacturer information services.

FORMS SALES TEAMS

Mr. Macaulay said export expansion would be pursued by sending 10 sales missions representing more than 100 manufacturers overseas, establishing co-operative agencies and sales agents in foreign markets and pressing the federal government for a better system of export credits.

He said the Ontario Trade Crusade, initiated last year, "brought to Ontario business in the tune of approximately $275,000,000 in 1962."

He said a study by an independent company said consumers had spent $115,000,000 more on Ontario-made goods last year. Three manufacturing opportunity shows resulted in $35,500,000 worth of new business and 10 sales missions brought in another $26,491,000 in sales.

Cigar-Smoking Wife May Be Setting up Smoke Screen

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I am a travelling man who leaves home on Monday and returns on Friday. This has been my routine for 12 years.

My wife knew this when I married her eight years ago and she said it was O.K. with her—that she would never beef about my being away. Her father worked on the railroad so she was accustomed to it.

She has kept her promise, but now I think maybe I have other problems.

Last night I arrived home a few hours earlier than usual. The place was filled with cigar smoke. There was a cigar butt in the ash tray. My wife was washing her hair. When I asked about the smoke in the house and shoved her the cigar butt she said, "I've always wanted to smoke a cigar . . . so tonight I tried one." What do you think?—LOSING BY A NOSE.

DEAR NOSE—Any woman who can think that fast is going to be awfully hard to outsmart.

In the absence of other evidence accept her explanation—and keep your eyes open.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I am 19. He is 21. Jim is the nicest guy I ever met. I am trying desperately not to fall head over tea-kettle, but I am losing the battle.

The problem is this: Jim has another girl who keeps giving him the run-around. He has told me he's in love with this girl but he enjoys my company a great deal. I'd have to be pretty dumb not to realize that I am his second choice.

This girl treats Jim like dirt. She stands him up when she gets a chance to go with fellows she considers more important. Then he calls me—and I go running.

I hope one day he will see what she is doing to him and that he will stick with me. What are my chances? — SPENCE.

DEAR SPENCE—Your chances are about the same as a snowflake on the Sahara. Some men just love to be kicked around. The more abusive the treatment, the better they like it.

If this girl drops him on his head he will probably fall for another girl who treats him the same way. And you will continue to be second—or third.

Now You Can Test Your Own I.Q.! How Do YOU Measure Up?

Below's Helen Thompson to you through life without knowing your I.Q. score, however, it's often a source well kept by teachers or others. Here, probably for the first time, you are enabled to test yourself. The questions were selected carefully by the expert authors of the best-selling book used in the army, they, too, test failed to convince at least .01 with Standard-Binet and other Stanford-type tests. Are you ready?

By WILLIAM RICHARD and JULES LEOPOLD

Today the expression "I. Q." is on everyone's lips, yet, few understand what it means.

For one thing, the I. Q.—short for "intelligence quotient"—is too often confused in the popular mind with mental age.

Part of this confusion arises because "mental age" is what an intelligence test is generally scored to indicate. But the mental age must be considered in relation to actual age in years and months if the I. Q. is to be determined.

Take a lad of six with a mental age of ten years. You'll admit his development is different from that of a 15-year-old whose mental age is also ten years. The I. Q. is simply a convenient device to show this difference.

Another common error regarding the I. Q. can be blamed on self-styled "psychologists" who should know better.

These pseudo-experts release a flood of tests and quizzes with titles like: What's Your Sports I. Q.? and Current Events I. Q. Test. The public is misled because such tests measure attitudes or knowledge, if anything. This is exactly the opposite of what your true I. Q. probe seeks. In-

Direction: Work as fast as you can without sacrificing accuracy. If you wish, you may make calculations on a separate sheet of paper. But remember not to work too long on any one question; skip the hard ones and return to them later should you have time.

Tired of Wicked Ways

By ROY L. SMITH

A false impression is abroad, especially on college campuses, to the effect that it is the reckless, the heedless, the wicked—those without convictions—who have the good times in this life, and that the clean, the virtuous, the people who live by a great faith, are the ones who suffer from dullness.

As a matter of fact the reverse is true, of course, but it is only those who look below the surface who realize it.

SICK AND TIRED OF SIN

Some years ago I was a member of a grand jury that was trying to clean up a vicious situation that existed in our state. There was one character who was generally conceded to be the leader of the vice forces, and we were particularly anxious to get our hands on him.

One afternoon, in the midst of a terrible blizzard, my doorbell rang, and when I opened the door I was confronted by a man whose face was completely covered by the collar of his overcoat, wearing dark glasses.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 21: "Psalms in Worship and Life." Psalms 1; 15; 73.

I invited him in out of the storm and he hesitated. When I urged him, he said, "Maybe you will not want me to come in when you know who I am." Then he told me he was the man we were hunting for.

I struggle my fire, he opened up and told his story, "I am sick and tired of sin," he said. "I'm going to give myself up. But-I wanted to talk to a man of God before I did it."

With that he began describing the facts of life as a criminal faced them. He did not dare carry an account at the bank, his wife did not dare have a charge account, he could never go to a ball game with his ten-year-old son, he could not belong to a lunch club, he had to divide the loot with a dozen accomplices everytime he "made a haul"; he could not subscribe to a magazine, he could not register at any hotel under his own name. As he described his handicaps it sounded as if he were the most terribly imprisoned man in the world.

"If you ever get a chance," he said, "just every little pinky kid in this town that there isn't three minutes of fun in any 24 hours, living the way I do."

Yet he was a "big shot." He stood at the top of his profession. Hundreds rushed to do his bidding. He was the "vice-lord" of a state. But he was a man imprisoned by his own evil.

THE PSALMIST SAW IT

This is no new discovery. An old Hebrew Psalmist recognized the situation at least 2,500 years ago, and put the warning into unforgettable words which have been placed at the masthead of the Book of Psalms in the Old Testament.

"Like the chaff that the wind driveth away."

"The wicked will not stand up in the judgment."

"The way of the wicked shall perish." (Psalm 1:4-6 RSV)

THERE'S A LAW

How often we hear it said, "There ought to be a law." As if there were an evil that is outside the law.

One of the first lessons upon which good religion insists is the fact that we are living in a universe that is under the authority of law. There is no escaping it.

The first objective of the chemist is to find the law that governs among the molecules. The physicist cannot rest until he knows the laws that govern inside the atom. The psychologist has made his greatest contribution by explaining the laws by which the human mind operates.

And the same principle holds true in morals, within the human spirit, and throughout all of life. If we know the law, we are in a position to establish mastery. And mastery means success, achievement, peace of mind, happiness!

None of these things are accidents. One does not develop morality because he is lucky, nor does he enjoy the respect of the community by accident. Such things are determined by law, just as is the stability of a wall, the dependability of a molecule, or the permanency of a chemical compound, and the reliability of a mathematical formula.

AS OLD AS OLD TESTAMENT

This world does not need a new religion. The great basics of the law of life were explained thousands of years ago by the Hebrew prophets. They had discovered the way life works, and they warned us that wickedness does not work.

It is not a matter of theology but of practical experience. Any man can prove the case, if he is unwilling to accept the judgments of the psalmists.

The criminal at my door had tried to go another way, but he had discovered that the psalmists were right. Especially this first Psalmist, Asaph, is the man whose delight is in the law of the Lord.

rate when they are earned, and at the personal rates when they are distributed to shareholders.

This, said the institute's brief, was at the root of the problem of distributing the retained earnings of companies, which are subject to taxation inconsistencies when they are distributed through a series of special provisions in the tax act.

The institute also expressed concern with the conflict between recognized accounting practices and establishing the income of a business under the Income Tax Act.

The institute asked the commission to consider whether advance publicity should be given to tax changes so taxpayers could submit recommendations; whether taxation statutes should be under continuous study by a special body of experts; whether the time spent on insignificant matters could be reduced and assessment procedures speeded up; and whether the revenue department's interpretation of legislation should be published.

PLANE GETS PREVIEW

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An X-15 rocket plane carried a dynamic pressure gauge to 92,000 feet Thursday in a preview of conditions the craft will meet in re-entry from heights of 70 miles. The X-15's needle-like nose antenna was replaced by the spherical gauge designed to measure dynamic pressure.

gent for us to accept the long-standing invitation of every member of the Organization of American States and to join this organization."

Mr. Pearson, addressing the Commons Sept. 11, 1961, said that if Canada is to interest itself in hemispheric developments and offer advice to the United States on the dangers of rash action, as it "rightly" did in the Bay of Pigs invasion fiasco, then it had to take its responsibility in the OAS.

Now that the Liberals are on the verge of assuming office, observers anticipate steps to translate such words into action. But the entry process may not be as straight-forward now as it once appeared.

According to speculation, Mr. Pearson may seek President Kennedy's personal assurance of American support for Canadian membership when he confers with the U.S. leader early next month.

Allan S. VanStone Ends Railway Career of 43 Years

Yesterday was a big day in the lives of two railroaders in the VanStone family.

It marked the final run for Allan S. VanStone, 63 Emily Street, who retired as engineer after bringing in the afternoon train from Toronto.

And at the same time it could have sown the seed for a railway career for his three-year-old grandson, Gordon VanStone, who enjoyed his first locomotive ride.

Gordon, with his father and three older brothers, caught the afternoon train at Trenton and rode on to Belleville in the cab of the diesel locomotive with his grandfather at the controls.

But for Mr. VanStone the ride marked finis to a 43-year railroading career which began in Toronto as a fireman. He has been working in and out of Belleville for the past 25 years.

The VanStones will continue to live in Belleville where in retirement Mr. VanStone expects to keep busy in his wood working shop, in his flower garden and at fishing.

SAID NEARLY ILLITERATE

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto school graduates were rated "almost illiterate" by local employers in a survey conducted recently by a parents' group, the Ontario Home and School Federation was told Thursday. A. A. Greene, a member of the parents' committee for better basic education, said the "see-say" method of teaching reading was responsible for the low ratings in the survey.

U.S. Has Only Very Small Numerical Lead Over Russia In Nuclear-Powered Subs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has only a "very small numerical advantage" over Russia in atomic-powered submarines, Admiral George W. Anderson says.

The statement by the chief of U.S. naval operations — which comes in the face of popular belief that the U.S. has been holding a decisive lead in this portion of the arms race—is contained in testimony before a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee in February. A censored version was made public Thursday.

Anderson said he has expressed this view to President Kennedy last December in discussing cutbacks by the defence department in the submarine building program. The House subsequently voted authorization for two atomic-powered attack submarines the Pentagon had cut from the navy's original request for eight.

Said Anderson:

"I pointed out to the president that the most important deficiency, in my judgment, in the elimination from the ship-building program were two attack nuclear-powered submarines — particularly so because of the long leadtime (for planning and construction) and because at the present time we, the U.S. Navy, have a very small numerical advantage in nuclear submarines of all types over the Russians. We have to preserve that lead."

NO COMPARISON

The published transcript did not show whether Anderson had given a comparison of the numerical strengths of the two submarine forces.

The latest count shows 30 U.S. atomic submarines in the water, of which 27 are operating and three others launched and in the process of dockside completion and fitting out. Another, the Thresher, was lost last week. Of the 27, 18 are attack types, 12 missile - firing ships, of which 10 are rigged for firing underwater Polaris missiles and one rigged for surface-launching the air - breathing Regulus missile.

Russia is estimated unofficially to have perhaps slightly more than 20 atomic-powered submarines in operation, the majority of these are believed to be attack types, but Anderson said that missile-launching Soviet submarines now are in operation.

Anderson was asked about the activities of Soviet submarines and said that close cooperation which the U.S. atomic submarines have been conducting since May, 1961.

The admiral replied that Russia has shown extreme interest in the Arctic Ocean area, and he added:

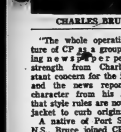
"Operation of nuclear submarines in the Arctic . . . represents a Soviet desire to control the sea over which a year ice cover, can be controlled effectively only by nuclear submarines. All ships are properly checked in this ocean would permit the Soviets to use this ocean to great advantage, round deployment of nuclear missile and attack submarines through areas previously capable to her. . . . A glance at a polar chart will serve to show significantly what the exploitation of opens new lines of Soviet sea communications and extends the scope of submarine deployments."

Charles-Bruce Retires as CP General Supt.

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Bruce, newspaper man, novelist and poet, will retire as general superintendent of The Canadian Press on his 57th birthday May 11. He plans to devote his time to writing.

The announcement was made in the annual report of Gillis Purcell, general manager of Canada's national news-gathering agency.

Bruce has been 35 years with CP, 26 of them in administrative positions. The annual report commends:



CHARLES BRUCE

"The whole operating structure of CP as a group of working news people has been strength from Charlie's constant concern for the individual and the news report and broadcast character from his insistence that style rules are not a straight jacket to curb originality."

A native of Port Shoreham, N.S., Bruce joined CP at New York in 1928 and was at CP Halifax for five years before being moved to Toronto. In 1937 he became general news editor. During the war he was bureau chief at New York and later at London, returning to Canada in 1945 to be appointed general superintendent.

He is a creative writer as well as a newspaper man. One book of his poems won a Governor-General's award. He has also written two novels The Channel Shore and The Township of Time. Setting for most of his writing has been his native Nova Scotia.

JACK DAUPHINEE

John Dauphinee, 49, will take over as general superintendent after 26 years with CP, News at Vancouver, he was successively bureau chief at London, New York, Winnipeg and Edmonton before appointment to his present post as general news editor in 1952.

$3,000 in Cash Taken by Two Gunmen

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A 68-year-old Windsor merchant escaped serious injury Thursday when he was beaten and robbed of about $3,000 in cash by two masked gunmen.

Police said Harry Lysy was taking the money to his brother's hotel where payrolls for factory employees are cashed Thursday nights.

Two passing witnesses told police a late-model car forced Mr. Lysy's vehicle to the curb. The masked men dragged him over a strip of grass and beat him.

The pair then fled in both cars. The youths who witnessed part of the robbery from a half block away said, "It all happened so fast that the men were gone by the time we realized what had happened. They were

DOUG AMARON

Douglas Amaron, 48, will become general news editor after nine years at Toronto as executive assistant. Born at Quebec, he has 21 years service with CP, including five years as war correspondent in Britain, Italy and Western Europe.

DEATH CAR — One girl died, another was severely hurt when this small convertible careened out of control on Highway 401, west of Wallbridge overpass yesterday. OPP Constable Howard Adamson, Belleville district headquarters, checks damage to car as police attempt to find cause of the mishap that saw car roll at least twice, spilling occupants on the highway.

INCO Workers Fail to Get Wage Contract

SUDBURY (CP)—Inter-union sniping has resumed in this Northern Ontario mining centre with the failure so far of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) to obtain a contract for their 14,000 members.

The failure of a conciliation board to negotiate an agreement and the Steelworkers' rejection of a wage offer from the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited had drawn caustic criticism from the union's long-time opponent.

The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), which lost control of the INCO workers to the Steelworkers in a 13-month certification struggle marked by riots, has called meetings tonight and Saturday to discuss the breakdown in negotiations.

It claims that its own contract negotiations with Falconbridge Nickel Mines which start today will set the trend in the industry and force Inco to sign an agreement satisfactory to its employees in Sudbury and Port Colborne.

AWAIT REPORT

Steelworkers' officials, bargaining agents at Inco since last fall, are waiting for the report of the conciliation board, expected to be released in two to three weeks, before deciding what action to take. They are confronted by a campaign promise to obtain a better deal than Mine-Mill could.

Their stand was endorsed by a meeting of 3,400 members Wednesday night.

They sought an eight to 10 per cent wage increase and an improved welfare and pension plan. The company offered increases of two per cent a year over a three-year contract and, when this was rejected, reverted to its original proposal of one per cent a year.

"Steel is not giving the members a true picture," said Thomas Taylor, president of Mine-Mill Local 598 which represents 1,200 workers at Falconbridge Mines.

He called on Inco workers to "reject any sell-out by Steel until a settlement has been reached with Falconbridge."

Steelworkers President Donald McNabb said attendance at these meetings and any attempt by Mine-Mill to undermine the union "should be frowned upon by any serious minded worker at Inco."

SCHWEITZER TO STAY

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP)—Dr. Albert Schweitzer, 88, told friends and neighbors at Lambaréné Thursday he expects to remain in his African hospital for the rest of his life. He spoke at the first day's sale of a stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of his arrival in Gabon.

saw the injured man stagger up the sidewalk, he then realized he had been beaten and robbed."

Police later recovered the stolen car a few blocks away. Detectives from the fingerprint division said the bandits had wiped fingerprints from the doorhandles and steering wheel before abandoning the auto.

Mr. Lysy suffered an injured leg and other bruises. He described his assailants as being of medium height and medium build.

Stirling Girl Killed, Two Others Injured in Mishap

A 16-year-old girl died, another was critically injured when a small convertible careened suddenly out of control and rolled on Highway 401, five miles west of Belleville yesterday.

Mary Ellen David, of Stirling, died in Kingston General Hospital about three hours after the accident. Still in critical condition in the Kingston hospital is the driver of the car, 19-year-old Mary Anne Loucks, also of Stirling.

In Belleville General Hospital is the Loucks' girl's brother, nine-year-old Gordon Loucks.

Miss Loucks suffered severe head injuries. Charles Loucks is being treated for back injuries and scalp cuts.

LOST CONTROL CLAIM

Scene of the accident was exactly two miles west of the Wallbridge Road overpass, about 2:30 p.m. The Loucks' car, a small German model, was travelling east toward the overpass. For some reason, still unknown, Miss Loucks suddenly lost control of the little car, veered suddenly across the highway, struck a guard rail, then rolled over several times.

Mary Ellen David, who was thrown from the car, died instantly.

Provincial police rushed two ambulances from Belleville to the scene. Miss David was given a preliminary examination at Belleville General Hospital, where she was found to have a fractured skull; possible brain damage, back and numerous internal injuries.

Immediately her injuries were determined she was placed back in the ambulance and rushed to Kingston hospital where she died shortly after being admitted.

Today, provincial police are still investigating the cause of the accident.

Resident in the Stirling area all her life, the David girl was one of four daughters. Her three surviving sisters are Kaye, Tvronto, and Nancy and Deborah at home. Funeral services will be held in Stirling's Mount Pleasant United Church Saturday with burial at Glenwood Cemetery, Picton.

Cannot Call Byelections at Present Time

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal members of Ontario legislature Thursday called for byelections in four vacant ridings, but Premier John Robarts said later he is not permitted to call them while the House is in session.

Mr. Robarts said he wants all Ontario citizens to have proper representation, but Ontario law do not permit by-elections to be called during a legislative session.

Ray Edwards (L — Wentworth) and Harry Worton (Lab — Wellington South) had sent official notices of vacancies in Halton, Hamilton Centre, Nickel Belt and Sault Ste. Marie to Speaker William Murdoch.

Eldorado President Says Canada Should Start to Prepare for 1970 Demand

OTTAWA (CP)—W. M. Gilchrist, president of Crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, said Thursday Canada should start preparing within three years for a sharp rise after 1970 in the Western World's demand for uranium for electric power stations.

The head of the federal agency for the procurement and sale of uranium has been made the statement in an interview following his return to Ottawa from a fact-finding tour of Europe.

Mr. Gilchrist visited Britain, the Netherlands, West Germany, Belgium and France to discuss the possibility of future uranium sales to these countries. These and other countries in recent months have expressed an interest in buying Canadian uranium after 1967 or 1968 when many new nuclear power plants will start to come into demand.

Mr. Gilchrist said his trip convinced him that the future of the Canadian uranium industry "is indeed hopeful." He said that in the supply of large amounts of uranium to Western countries in the 1980s and the early 1970s "Canada will hold an extremely strong hand."

DEMAND TO RISE

A recent report issued by the European Atomic Energy Community estimated that the Western World's demand for natural uranium is expected to be about 10,000 tons in 1970. It would rise to some 20,000 tons by 1975 and to between 35,000 and 50,000 tons by 1985.

However, economists forecast on the basis of present production schedules that the amount available for sale in 1970 will be in the neighborhood of 5,000 tons. It would be available mainly from Canada and South Africa, with perhaps some being supplied from the British exhibit.

Canadian production on the basis of present schedules will increase by 1970, Gilchrist said.

"The shortage of 5,000 tons in 1970 will have to come from somewhere," Mr. Gilchrist said. "There's no reason why Canada could not provide part of it." Mr. Gilchrist said he does not believe it is necessary for any action to be taken for a year or two.

However, within three years it would be necessary to make preparations for the future based on the basis of present output schedules a shortage of uranium will begin to develop. Steps should be taken to prevent an "explosion demand" once uranium again is required in large quantities for generation of power.

To meet this situation it would be necessary to start looking for new sources of supply before 1970 and to give consideration to getting idle mines back into production by that date.

The search for new mines would have to start within three or four years, he said. This would be necessary because of the time it takes to find and place a mine in production.

"There's not too long to wait," Mr. Gilchrist said.

One proposal to keep present producers from closing might be for importing countries to buy uranium on a long-term basis between now and 1970.

Senior Economic Officials Start Ball Rolling on Trade

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Commonwealth trade, a topic that tends to stimulate comforting speeches but few reassuring statistics, comes sharply into focus next month.

Senior economic officials of the Commonwealth start the ball rolling with London meetings May 8-10, setting the stage for a conference of their trade ministers May 13-14.

Then the scene shifts to Geneva May 16-21 for a ministerial session of GAAT — General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. This will mark the first full discussion of the so-called "Kennedy round" of tariff reductions and non-tariff barriers, a process of negotiation that may last years.

The negotiations will be so difficult and so complex that concrete results are likely to emerge only gradually if at all. Meanwhile in a more limited way but with an increasing sense of urgency, Commonwealth will'be under pressure to take some steps on its own account.

With Britain still recovering from the blow of being turned away by the European Common Market by French President de Gaulle, thoughts naturally turn to what is called the "Commonwealth alternative."

Thus in London's New Statesman, former British cabinet minister John Strachey writes that if the Commonwealth is to live and grow, it must discover ways and means of developing Commonwealth trade.

Along with reawakening interest in economic aspects, there seems to be a more outspoken trend toward political disenchantment. With the best will in the world, it is obviously going to be hard to sustain the old mystique and camaraderie of Commonwealth that is rapidly becoming diffused and dispersed.

Few people now can even name all the countries of the Commonwealth, let alone develop an interest say in Sierra Leone or Ghana or Tanganyika.

HOLDS BRITAIN BACK

"The poet - 1945, non - British Commonwealth, that bastard child of guilt and vanity, simply a millstone round Britain's neck," wrote Sebastian Haffner in Encounter magazine, expressing what many feel but dare not say.

Still, there are others who would say that Commonwealth Martin Green, in his book A Mirror for Anglo-Saxons, that the very existence of the Commonwealth means that British is destined again for "political and international greatness."

In passing, Green looses an unmalicious shaft at Canada, saying: "Canada is becoming immeasurably less important than the United States" than France" than Britain. Canada never must include her immediately, her lack of self-responsibility, her status as daughter nation."

Even if rated by Green as less important than Egypt, Canada undoubtedly will play a key role in the economic meetings of the Commonwealth coming up next month.

Washington Post Says Angry Words Said Between Diefenbaker and Merchant

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post says Prime Minister Diefenbaker let loose with an angry barrage against President Kennedy last year after Kennedy had a private talk with Liberal Party Leader Lester B. Pearson.

The Post says in a front-page story that the outburst came when Livingston Merchant, former U.S. ambassador to Canada, called on the Prime Minister for a farewell that after Merchant decided to retire from the diplomatic service.

The newspaper, a strong supporter of the Kennedy administration, says that instead of a pleasant exchange, Merchant was met with an outburst because a few weeks earlier Kennedy had chaired talks between Pearson when Pearson attended a White House dinner for Nobel Prize winners.

Not only did Diefenbaker express his fury but he made a threat, The Post says. He told Merchant he had an offensive document the previous States used during his May, 1961, Ottawa conference.

SOUGHT OAS ENTRY

This was the much-reported working paper, prepared by presidential adviser Walt Rostow, urging Kennedy to "push" for Canadian entry into the Organization of American States, greater Canadian support for the Alliance for Progress program to help Latin American countries, more Canadian foreign aid and more participation of the Communists in Asia.

The Post says Merchant reported the incident to Washington, along with the Prime Minister's threat to make the work-

Former OPP Commissioner In New Role

TORONTO (CP) — W. H. Clark, former provincial police commissioner, has been retained by the Ontario Police Commission as an adviser and investigator.

Wednesday he began looking into the structure and efficiency of the Brampton police force.

Judge R. L. Madsen, judge of Windsor, chairman of the commission, said Thursday the commission wants to appoint two advisers.

Once he has completed his work in Brampton, there are several other tasks the commission has for Mr. Clark, said Judge Macdonald.

"In the past this kind of work has been done by the inspectors of the OPP," he said. "Of course Mr. Clark is better fitted for they to do this kind of work."

Sen. Keating Says Kennedy Gave Misleading Reports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Kenneth Keating said Thursday President Kennedy gave misleading reports of a drop in Soviet troop strength in Cuba. State Secretary Dean Rusk said the reports were under way to get the troops out.

Rusk and Keating served up conflicting views of the Cuban situation before the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

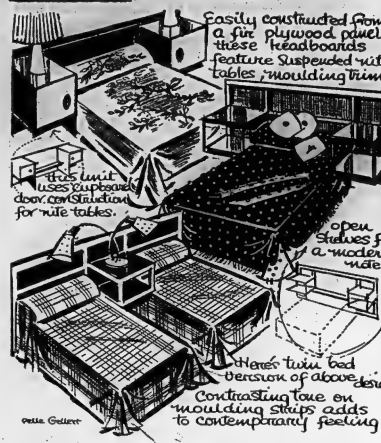
Because the speakers appeared separately, their responses of one did not exactly counter arguments made by the other. But their differences stood out although they agreed in opposing U.S. invasion and hit-and-run raids by Cuban exiles.

Keating, a New York Republican who has been outspoken in criticism of the administration's Cuba policy, said the U.S. government has left the people bewildered and uncertain on how to deal with the Castro-Communist take-over of the Caribbean island.

The senator said that despite Kennedy's April 3 report that 4,000 more Russian military personnel had been withdrawn from Cuba, reducing the number remaining to 12,000 to 13,000, actually some 17,000 Soviet troops remain there because several thousand more have been sent in.

"The fact publicly given in recent departures has completely clouded over the fact that a considerable number of new troops have been brought to the island," Keating said.

Rusk, who spoke following Keating's luncheon address, did not deal with Soviet troop numbers directly in his prepared remarks nor did the editors put him later on this point in their questioning.



Generally, the state secretary took the line that the various military, diplomatic and economic actions taken by the administration "together make up a serious, sustained and effective effort to eliminate Marxist-Leninism from the hemisphere."

On one item—how world shipping of Cuba—Rusk voiced discontent and disclosed that the United States will try once again to get Ha allies to clamp down on maritime trade with Cuba.

Rusk said "A Soviet military presence in this hemisphere is not to be accepted as a normal state of affairs" but he declined to name a specific deadline on their presence.

Ideas in Fir Plywood

Headboards Can Transform Otherwise Drab Bedrooms

A happy combination—a clean, uncluttered look, up-to-the-minute design, ease and economy of construction.

Top left — notice something? Cantilevered out as those miniature cupboards are, you can run a mop under them, tidy up the bedroom floor in a flash. If you require the absolute ultimate in luxurious comfort, ask the boss about a toy-sized refrigerator unit in one of them, and you can serve ice-cold fruit juice in the morning without turning a hair, read in bed and dine on crackers and cheese and cold milk or—well, name your own poison.

Centre right — the oriental look, firm yet desirable. Try various fabrics and wallpapers against that backing. Made detachable, they'd give you scope for changing the feeling of the room whenever you need an area of self-expression that isn't going to cost a fortune. The small area involved would mean that you could 'go for broke', buy the very best on the market for a change.

Bottom left — if you have twin beds, a dramatic version of the same theory. If you're striving for the 'kingsize' look, put the two beds together, add a pair of the night tables, as above (top left, centre right) and your room will boast the most majestic unit in town . . . but watch proportions, don't make the tables too small in this case.

Don't envy the fellow with enough money to walk into a store and buy the end product of vision and skill regardless of cost. You can revive the end product yourself, at home, using easy-to-work fir plywood available everywhere.

And your local lumber dealer will come up with an amazing knowledge of dimensions once you've enlisted his aid.

To live with practical beauty created by your own hands is a source of satisfaction surely comparable to that of a great sculptor as he puts the finishing touches to his masterpiece.

The local boudoir Epstein, that's you.

Water Conditioning Is Economical Installation

Homeowners in "hard water" areas are more and more making installations of water softeners high on their "must do" improvement list.

The Water Conditioning Research Council reports that home owners can count the savings in dollars and cents when they use water softeners. The Council says:

"The average amount of hardness of water throughout the United States is ten grains and just seven grains of hardness costs the average family of four $24 more a year in soap."

Hard water also builds up scale on the inside of water pipes faster than soft water ever does. Over a period of time, a quarter-inch of scale could reduce the flow of water. Water pipes encrusted with scale become insulated and don't deliver heat efficiently. A water softener will help save your fuel bill.

Softened water is a better cleaner than hard water and is easier on your clothes. For example, softening ten grain water makes a thirty-five per cent increase in longevity for linens.

Folding Doors Improve Homes

Homemakers who have undergone the common struggle of stumpling to rearrange a room with a number of traffic-doorways are most enthusiastic about folding doors. They no longer have to be concerned about which way the door swings.

And, anyone who loves the space-saving features of sliding doors but has been bothered by the doors sticking, will certainly appreciate these smoothly moving folding doors.

To beautifully accent or blend with any decor, the doors are now available in matchstick bamboo, vinyl plastic in a variety of colors and patterns, wood, and wood combined with long-wearing fabrics.

WASHABLE DOOR PANELS

Protect door bottoms from kick marks and knob-areas from discoloration, by covering them with decorated panels of plastic-finished panelling. Then a daily sudsy wipe will keep them clean.

Roses Are Widely Used in Landscaping

Roses have many functional uses on the property. They make colorful beds along the driveway and serve, too, as borders for summits or other shrubs. Climbing varieties can be planted to adorn the garage or an unsightly fence post. Planted near the house, rose bushes add color to the overgreen foundation plants from spring through fall. They can be used as accent plants, and if well placed they will emphasize the architecture of the house. As hedges they create privacy where desired, and they are useful as screens as well as ground covers. Rows of miniature rose bushes add striking effect under picture windows or along glass walls.

The early gardener acquires bigger and better rose blooms, says the American Association of Nurserymen. The sooner your rose plants throw out their roots, the earlier the plants will grow and bud, forming better quality first-year flowers. So start early on your rose plantings. Bare root rose plants preferably are set out when they first come into the markets. At that time they are in their most perfect condition, and of course, they will have the benefit of longer season of growth and flower.

A fairly new type of rose is a class known as "grandiflora". Its name characterizes this plant which is vigorous in growth and has a wealth of blooms. It is ideal as a specimen or accent plant, its blooms often having a spectacular display.

Floribunda roses are extremely useful for landscaping. They afford masses of blooms of just about the right height for narrow beds along a walk or fence, or rose beds. Many new floribunda roses have been introduced in recent years, and they are available in a wide range of colors.

The smallest rose plants are the miniatures which have had a revival in modern landscaping where low rose plants are desired beside a terrace or as a low border to a garden of other flowers. The small flowers are perfectly formed miniatures of the larger blooms and they are increasingly being used for pots, table arrangements and boutonnieres.

Tree roses have assumed more importance recently as the demand for landscape roses has increased. Tree roses are grown on a single large stem or "trunk", branching out at a height of about four to five feet to appear like a bouquet of roses. They are grown in a variety of colors. Along walks, in a regular rose garden to give a "two-tier" effect, or on a terrace in tubs or pots, they impart a rather formal effect.

As always, climbing roses are best for arbor planting or beside a porch, garage or along a fence or high wall. They are widely used in landscaping.

For formal rose gardens the hybrid tea rose is preferred by many, although it is often used elsewhere, in beds along walks, beside a patio or garden living room and similar locations.

Some of the newer varieties are conversational pieces and like other species, they provide cut flowers by buddin the buds. New colors, from lavender to orange, with many new shades of yellow, pink and red, are continuously being produced by famous hybridizers here and abroad.

So select your rose plants with care to serve your property functionally as well as for beauty.

Fir Plywood Patio Tables Will Serve Dual Purpose

Tables for outdoor living are practical additions to your backyard amenities.

A rich sizzling barbecue pales if you have to hold it on your lap. A table is a safer place for a drink or a book than the flagstone, concrete or lawn of the terrace. And, when the wife isn't watching, it's the natural place for weary feet.

With random segments cut out of these circular tables, any number of them can be tastefully arranged to suit your needs.

Building one of these patio tables is simplicity itself. To cut the 30" diameter circles of ¾" fir plywood you can use a jig saw, band saw, sabre saw, coping saw, keyhole saw or what have you.

To locate the positions of the legs, centre a 14" square on the centre of the circle. The legs will be fastened at the four corners.

Stock hardwood legs with complete hardware are available at any lumber supply dealer and easily used.

In the alternate leg style shown, you have an attractive leg arrangement which you can easily and inexpensively make yourself from fir plywood.

Be sure to use plywood made with waterproof glue since your tables will be outdoors most of the time.

(We say "most of the time" because there's a good chance you will want to use one of them for a coffee table indoors.)

There is only one kind of waterproof glue fir plywood made in Canada. It is identified on its edge by the industry mark "PMBC Exterior".

Finish the tables with natural finishes to bring out the fine grain of fir plywood or, if color is desired, use a quality exterior type house paint.

Concrete Masonry Is Newsmaker For Outdoor Home Accessories

When it comes to home interiors there have traditionally been fashion fads galore. But in recent years outdoor fashions have captured a limelight of their own as the trend continues to make the exterior a beautiful and integral part of the home.

The patio, or outdoor living room, has virtually become a standard accessory for new homes and is a ranking favorite in the home improvement line. But what of those additional exterior appointments such as planters, pools, pathways, and retaining walls that enhance the appearance and value of your property as well. These accessories are increasingly popular and well within reach of the owner of new or old home alike.

Planters bring life and lasting beauty to outdoor settings. Whether they are small and simple, randomly dotting the lawn, or large and impressive, running the length of the property. The new variety of concrete masonry now available is frequently selected for planters and other exterior embellishments. Many home owners, wishing to match a particular architectural style, specify four-inch high eight-inch square or the regular 8" x 8" x 16" block to complement contemporary residences. Popular with owners of traditional homes, are the more rustic textured concrete masonry units — many of them resembling natural stone.

When retaining walls are added, they not only frame foliage and hold soil where it belongs, but give specious depth to the yard as well. Elevated retainers also ease the gardeners' back, a welcome boost to any outdoor living enthusiast.

Winding their way through many outdoor kingdoms, are pleasant pathways, and slender patio block is a perennial favorite for fashioning walks. Since patio block is manufactured in a wide variety of sizes, shapes and colors, the number of path design possibilities is virtually unlimited. Different size units produce a flagstone effect, while uniform sizes used in imaginative combinations offer a potpourri of pleasing paths.

Pools, simple and serene or sizeable enough for swimming, are also finding their place in the sun. Flshpond, fountain, floating flora — all are served by versatile concrete masonry. Block's willing acceptance of masonry waterproofing, its rugged resistance to the elements, children's scuffs and gnawing rodents, makes it one of the most economical and maintenance free materials for furnishing the world outdoors.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"This will be the best Allan Cup series in six or seven years."

You cannot blame tallish grey-haired Lloyd Pollock, chieftain of the Ontario Hockey Association for making such a statement despite the fact a lot of people will disagree with him.

Had Lloyd said "It could be . . ." it might have been closer to the point. It would have been a lot better prediction too, for at the time the strength of he Winnipeg Maroons is based purely on statistical figures, and past and present records of some of the players.

There is no doubt the Maroons are a strong aggregation. After all it has proit to be recorded that a weak pretty-waist team has made the Allan Cup finals.

Perhaps the most one-sided series or at least one of them, was that when Wren's Blair's Whitby Dunlops won the series and the bauble in four straight in Maple Leaf Gardens from the Spokane Club.

Mr. Pollock, in case you are not so-informed, resides in Windsor. The genial boss of the OHA, after all, is human, too, and cannot be blamed for leaning rather heavily towards the Bulldogs of the Border City.

And adding to the natural chest-swelling of loyal Windsor fans is the fact that this is the first year a Windsor team has ever reached the Allan Cup final. The Bulldogs shoved Allan Cup potential in their march to the final, eliminating Chatham in group playoffs, Normads and Moncton in the Eastern Canada playdowns.

Little is known of the Winnipeg Maroons apart from their personnel records and the fact they won the Western Canada title, dominating the Saskatoon Quakers in the prairie finals. They were the only senior club in Manitoba, thriving more or less on exhibition tits.

In an outburst of nostalgia, Mr. Pollock announced that the "Windsor Bulldogs are one of the best senior teams in years. Winnipeg is a fine club too. It will be the best Allan Cup finals in the last six or seven years."

And if you will forgive a little "boomtownishness" on this agent's part, Mr. Pollock should have taken that Kelowna outfit back in 1953 (five years ago) when the Belleville McFarlands roared back from the brink of oblivion's grave to snatch the Allan Cup from a hard-hitting Packers team.

If my friend Lloyd will read the records, that series went down in history as one of the greatest amateur hockey comebacks of all times. The Macs topped the Packers in the first tilt and as a solid Belleville fandom swept years of disappointment went down to defeat in the next three clashes.

They won the next game and hope sprang alive along the banks of the Moira as Ike Hildebrand's gang roared back with another victory to knot the series.

But it was not over and the Packers raced to a 3-0 lead midway through the second period of the seventh game. The Macs battling desperately tied the score from Bart Bradley early in the third. Then the Macs cut loose. Led by the line of Kwasnicak, Geyer and Murelich they banged home four more goals against a single return to win the silverware.

If Windsor and Winnipeg can top that heart-wrenching series there could be several cardiac cases in the Border City before the final whistle blows.

Under Discussion

Hunters' Licences Upped?

OTTAWA (CP)—Duck hunters may pay more for their licences next year.

The federal-provincial Canadian Wildlife Conference went into its annual closed-doors meeting Thursday to discuss amendments to the migratory bird regulations.

Another topic will be the issuing of "duck stamps" by the federal government. Under this plan — now in effect in the United States—persons buying provincial licences to hunt waterfowl would pay an undesignated amount for the stamp if they wish to hunt ducks.

If delegates approves the idea, it will go to the meeting of resource ministers for their approval.

Wildlife officials said the money collected by sale of the stamps would be used to purchase or lease land for duck-breeding or other wildlife purposes.

DICKSON HEADS SQUAD

BOSTON (CP)—A strong Canadian group headed by Gordon Dickson of the Hamilton Olympic Club vies with a large international field today in the 67th annual running of the Boston Marathon.

A dozen Canadians are among the near-record 230 runners hoping to start the 26-mile, 385-yard test at noon.

The favorites are three-time winner Eino Oksanen, a hairy detective from Helsinki, Finland, and Olympic marathon champion Abebe Bikila of Ethiopia. Oksanen won last year.

Oksanen is only the fourth runner in the history of the marathon to win it at least three times. Clarence Deloley of Boston won it seven times between 1911 and 1930, the last time at the age of 42. Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., captured it four times from 1940 to 1948.

Keon Lights Leafs' Trail To Trophy

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP)—Before the Stanley Cup finals began, the experts figured Toronto Maple Leafs would wear Detroit Red Wings down with brute strength.

But when the assets were weighed after Toronto's clinching 3-1 victory that closed out the five-game series Thursday night, the deciding factor was the littliest Leaf of them all.

Dave Keon, a centre who weighs 163 pounds soaking wet, dominated that game by firing two goals to give the Leafs the best - of - seven series by four games to one for their second straight Stanley Cup victory.

Two nights earlier, Keon fired the winning goal in Detroit when the Leafs broke the Red Wings' hearts by whipping them 4-2 on their own rink.

Along with his scoring achievements, a playoff total of seven goals and five assists, the dark - haired stylist from Noranda, Que., skated relentlessly throughout the series, spearheading power plays, killing penalties and generally making himself a nuisance to the opposition.

Typically, both his goals Thursday night came while Toronto was shorthanded.

The second, fired into an empty net from long range with five seconds remaining, came as an anti-climax after the battling Wings almost unbelievably failed to tie the game in the final minute.

ULLMAN MISSED

The Wings' Norm Ullman missed a wide-open net from only 10 feet out as Detroit, with a two-man edge, worked frantically to tie the game in the dying minutes with the Leafs in front 2-1.

Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower and right-winger Gordie Howe were tangled up on the ice at the side of the net and Ullman's shot bounced off Howe's leg and dribbled over the two players. Bob Pulford of the Leafs had been in the penalty box since 18:07 for holding Alex Delvecchio.

That set the stage for Keon's second goal, into the net Detroit goaltender Terry Sawchuk had vacated for an extra forward.

It was the first time since the National Hockey League gained sole possession of the Stanley Cup in 1927 that there was no overtime in the semi-final or final series. The Leafs whipped Montreal Canadiens 4-1 and Detroit knocked off Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 in the semi-finals, all in regulation time.

Delvecchio scored the only Detroit goal Thursday night, thus atoning for letting Keon by on the 23-year-old centre's first marker.

There was one sad note to the Leaf festivities. Defenceman Carl Brewer, a mainstay of the club and a sure-fire candidate for the 1962-63 all - star team, suffered a broken left arm in the third period when he collided with Andre Pronovost of Detroit and hit the boards.

As the presentation of the cup took place on the ice, he was being hurried off to hospital.

SHACK SCORES

A Detroit power - play backfired on Keon's first goal, before 14,403 fans at 17:44 of the first period. He scurried around Delvecchio to the left side and cut back in front of the net to beat Sawchuk with a 15 - foot shot while defenceman Allan Stanley was in the penalty box for elbowing Howe.

The clock showed only 42 seconds of the second period when Delvecchio tied it 1-1. Howe fed the puck to the Detroit centre, who wasted no time in golfing it past Bower.

Eddie Shack scored at 13:28 of the third period. Defenceman Bob Douglas shot the puck from the blue line, it ricocheted off one or two Detroit players and then to Shack's stick. The Leaf left winger hardly had to move to put it past Sawchuk from in front of the net.

This is only the second time the Leafs have been able to win both the NHL championship and the Stanley Cup. They did it before in 1948.

There has been speculation this season that manager-coach Punch Imlach would step down coaching and stick exclusively to managerial activities if he was able to win both. But Imlach said Thursday night:

"I've said it before and I'll say it again. As long as they (the Leafs) will play hockey for me, I won't take on a coach. So far, I would have to think they have played their hearts out."

Imlach also paid tribute to Wings.

Five Called In Giants-Colts Game

Mays Scores Two Runs On Balks

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Red-necked pitchers and managers are trying to find a yardstick for measuring a second in an attempt to halt the mushrooming number of balk calls disrupting National League action.

Balk calls may have been the decisive factor for the first time Thursday as Willie Mays was waved home from third base twice in San Francisco's 6 - 3 victory over Houston. In all, five balks were called in the game.

One balk was called at Milwaukee, where the Braves rewarded first place with their seventh straight victory, 6 - 5 over Philadelphia, and one was charged at St. Louis where Pittsburgh edged the Cardinals 4 - 3.

No balks were called as Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 in the only other game scheduled.

QUESTIONS UMP'S METHOD

"The way they're calling balks," said Colts' manager Harry Craft, "the pitchers will have to change their entire patterns. With there was some consistency," added Craft who has questioned how an umpire can determine a second without a stop watch.

Rules require a pitcher to pause a full second before delivery.

Thirty-nine balks have been charged in less than two weeks of the season. The major league record is 78, set in 1950. There still has not been a balk called in the American League.

The Giants led 3-3 going into the fifth inning. Mays opened with a double, moved to third on a balk call and eventually scored on a double run on another balk call, both charged to reliever Ron Kemmerer. Mays' steal of second in the seventh on a balk call.

Mays, Willie McCovey and Felipe Alou led a 12-hit attack, each collecting a double and two singles. George Brunet took the loss.

ERROR DECIDES GAME

The Braves won it with a run in the ninth contributed by the Phillies' fifth error. Hank Aaron led off with a double off loser Ray Culp and came home when catcher Clay Dalrymple fired past third in an attempt to get Aaron on Norm Laker's bunt. Laker, who homered earlier, received credit for a single on the play that made reliever Claude Raymond the winner.

Bill Virdon drove in his second run with a ninth inning single, giving the Pirates and Don Schwall the victory over the Cardinals. Schwall, making his first start this season had to leave after eight innings with stomach pains. Elroy Face finished up. Ken Boyer homered for St. Louis.

The Cubs made the most of three Dodger errors, scoring three unearned runs and beating Don Drysdale, now 2-1, for the first time since 1960. He had beaten Chicago six straight.

Glen Hobbie who had lost five in a row to the Dodgers, won it with ninth inning relief help from Don Elston. The deciding run scored in the second as Ken Aspromonte doubled and scored on a single by Dick Bertell when left fielder Ron Fairly bobbled the ball.

Name Three To Hockey Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP)—Three builders of hockey were elected to the International Hockey Hall of Fame at a meeting Thursday of the selection committee.

Honored were Leo Dandurand of Montreal, the late Tommy Gorman of Ottawa and the late Major Frederic McLaughlin of Chicago.

Each of the three made many contributions to the game and were influential in developing it into an international sport.

Sportsmen Spend Millions

267 In 1961

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The first attempt to put a dollar value on wildlife sports in Canada has revealed that fishermen and hunters spent $275,000,000 in 1961.

Results of an economic survey by the bureau of statistics, done at the request of provincial game agencies, were placed before the 27th annual Canadian Wildlife Conference when it opened a two-day session Thursday.

However, C. H. D. Clarke, chief of the fish and wildlife for the Ontario department of lands and forests, said the report did not give a true picture of hunting and fishing in Ontario.

"We do not want this understatement . . . to become fact," he said, contending Ontario statistics were far too low.

W. Mair, chief of the Canadian Wildlife Service and chairman of the conference, said the report "is the first nation-wide assessment of the major activities relating to fishing and hunting and of the money spent in those pursuits."

SURVEY MADE IN 1962

The survey, dealing only with the activities of Canadians 14 years of age or older, was carried out in February of 1962 by enumerators preparing the labor force survey sample for that month.

The report showed that 1,536,000 persons or 12.6 per cent of Canada's population 14 and over fished or hunted or did both in 1961. Of these, 1,311,000 persons fished and 725,000 persons hunted.

Ontario with 579,000 had the most sportsmen, followed by the Prairie Provinces with 313,000. There were 272,000 fishermen and hunters in Quebec, 152,000 in British Columbia and 170,000 in the Atlantic region.

Sport fishing provided 20,000,000 days of recreation and hunting 11,000,000 days, the report said. Canadians travelled more than 1,600,000,000 man-miles in private vehicles to fish and hunt.

Other highlights of the report:

1. Of the $87,000,000 spent by hunters in 1961, each big game hunter spent an average of $85. Waterfowl hunters spent an average $79, small game hunters $50. Of those who hunted both types of game, the average expenditure was $110.

HUNT CLOSER TO HOME

2. More than 60 per cent of all sportsmen hunted or fished within a 100-mile radius of their homes.

3. Freshwater fishermen outnumbered saltwater fishermen eight to one.

4. Men outnumbered women in both fishing and hunting six to one.

5. About 3.7 per cent of hunters spent money on archery equipment and used it on big game, small game and waterfowl.

Mr. Clarke, in a sweeping criticism of the Ontario figures, said fishing and hunting licences issued by his province in 1961 indicated that the survey figures were incorrect.

The survey showed 325,200 fishermen in the province while more than 460,000 licences were issued. It also showed 190,950 hunters when more than 300,000 licences were bought.

D. A. Benson of the bureau of statistics said that when the survey had its weaknesses—for example relying on mailed reports and not having the enumerator take down the answers at the door—the labor force survey used "was one of the most reliable methods" to get the figures.

He suggested that some persons in Ontario who perhaps fished "for an hour or so" did not consider themselves fishermen and would not fill out the questionnaire. Then there were sportsmen who would not take the time to answer the questions.

Meet Tonight In Windsor

Dogs, Maroons Seek First Cup

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two hockey teams which have never won the big prize in 10 years of operation tangle here tonight in the opening game of the 1963-64 Allan Cup finals.

Winnipeg Maroons arrived by plane Thursday night to do battle with Windsor Bulldogs in a best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior championship.

The Maroons will be making their second trip to the Allan Cup final in three years. They lost 4-1 to Galt Terriers in 1961 in their only other bid. A Winnipeg team last won the Allan Cup in 1932.

This year's Bulldog team, coached by Harry Watson, former National League left winger, has reached a Canadian final, junior or senior, for the first time in the city's hockey history.

The Bulldogs this season repeated as senior Ontario Hockey Association champions and downed Noranda Aloueites and Moncton Hawks to win the Eastern Canada championship.

The Winnipeg club, whose playing-coach is 43-year-old Bill Juzda, a former teammate of Watson's with Toronto Maple Leafs, beat Fort William and Saskatoon Quakers to win the western title.

Whitewash Kansas, Angels

White Sox, Twins Score Blanks

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The early returns are in on baseball's enlarged strike zone, and the results come as no great surprise — the pitchers love it and the hitters are debating a change.

With the major league season less than two weeks old, the game is no longer a batters' paradise.

In the only games played in the American League Thursday, Ray Herbert pitched Chicago White Sox to a 3-0 victory over Kansas City Athletics and Dick Stigman of Minnesota Twins duplicated the feat in beating Los Angeles Angels. Both shutout three hits.

There have been nine shutout games already in the American League and 10 in the National—better than 25 per cent of all games played well ahead of the usual average.

Herbert, sidelined for nine days with a stiff arm after being knocked out in his opener, served his drive singles to the first two men he faced—Dick Howser and Joe Tartabull—and then settled down to retire 21 of the next 22 men.

Gino Cimoli, the American League's leading hitter, got the only other safety, a single in the eighth. Dave Nicholson's first home run of the year was Chicago's big blow against loser Ed Rakow.

Stigman also scattered three hits in recording his first major league shutout. He didn't permit a Los Angeles runner to get beyond second base and he allowed only one extra base hit—a double by Jim Fregosi in the fifth.

Earl Battey opened the Twins' scoring with a home run off starter Ken McBride in the second. The Minnesotans added two more in the fifth on a triple by Bobby Versalles, singles by Lenny Green and Vic Power and a sacrifice fly by Jim Hall.

Lindsay Wins Tournament Top Award

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Lindsay, Ont., after trying for six years to win a title at the Western Canada Week Feewee Hockey tournament, downed Waterloo, Ont., 4-1 Thursday night to capture the A series championship.

The title was the first of five to be decided in the eight-day knockout tournament which ends Saturday night. The AA series crown will be decided today.

Leamington fell earlier Thursday in its semi-final with Waterloo by a 3-2 score. Lindsay gained the finals with a 5-1 decision over Galt.

Greg Bodnar, son of former Toronto Leaf star Gus Bodnar, scored home three of Lindsay's markers in the championship game. Doug Kingsborough collected the other Lindsay goal and Larry Austett counted Waterloo's lone goal.

BODNAR GETS ANOTHER

Bodnar scored on a penalty shot, the third of the current tournament, to tie the score with Galt 1-1 after Peter Beckley had put the losers in front. Mike Moher, Allen Woolley, Jim Crawford and Gord Schleicher notched the others for Lindsay.

Leamington and Waterloo were tied 1-1 at the end of one period as Morris Peters scored for Leamington and Mike Scarfone for Waterloo. Kirk Bowman gave Leamington a 2-1 lead in the second, but Schlaich and David Johnson scored in the third as Waterloo staged a late spurt.

In the AA series Winnipeg Mustangs defeated London 7-1, Toronto's North York Knights beat Detroit Dearborn and Scarboro Lions by 4-2 scores, Scarboro edged Sarnia 5-3, Sault Ste. Marie defeated Kitchener 5-1 and Port Arthur, Mich. downed Hamilton 19-17 in shots on goal after a 3-3 tie.

More Revenue For Farmers From Wildlife

OTTAWA (CP)—A. T. Davidson, director of the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, said Thursday that farmers soon must receive more money for land used for wildlife purposes.

He told delegates to the annual federal-provincial wildlife conference that sweeping changes in agriculture will make several million acres of farmland available for other purposes.

This meant that wildlife areas now in existence could be maintained. And ARDA was prepared to supply some of the money to create other refuges for wildlife.

He said ARDA is concerned "not only with the best use of land but also with increased income for farmers."

Bears Meet Bisons For A.H.L. Title

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hershey Bears of the Eastern Division will meet Buffalo Bisons, Western Division Kings, in the best-of-seven playoff for the American Hockey League Calder Cup.

The series opens in Buffalo Saturday with the second game there Sunday.

Hershey reached the final by whipping Cleveland Barons 5-2 Thursday to take their best-of-five semi-final series, 3-2.

Just as they did in Cleveland, Wednesday to tie the series at 2-2, the Bears came from behind to win. The Barons led 2-1 until Pete Conacher tipped in a long shot to tie it late in the second period. After Dick Meissner broke the deadlock, Yves Locas and Willie Marshall clinched the win. Dale Rolfe scored the first Hershey goal and Cleveland marksmen were Hank Ciesla and Bill Masterton.

At The Park

"Diamond Head"
Last 2 Days
Hawaiian Fashions

"Hawaii has a fashion all its own!" This was the conclusion Yvette Mimieux and France Nuyen came to while they were on tropic isle locations during the filming of Darryl F. Zanuck's production, "Diamond Head," new Columbia Pictures release now at the Park Theatre today and Saturday in Panavision and Eastman Color with Charlton Heston, George Chakiris and James Darren also starred.

Prior to her stay in Kauai and Oahu, Miss Mimieux thought of muumuus as Mother Hubbards, and not particularly attractive, although comfortable. But along with Miss Nuyen, an old hand at Polynesian garb, Yvette discovered there are morning, noon and evening muumuus, in all shapes and sizes, and manly quite fetching.

Between them they brought back 23 separate distinct and eye-filling garments. Both actresses admitted that, with many of the muumuus, lots of caloric content could be hidden. But with several, sleek and sarong-ish for evening wear, a glove couldn't fit tighter.

"Diamond Head" was directed by Guy Green from the screenplay by Marguerite Roberts and the original best-seller by Peter Gilmuz.

Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Doors open at 12.30. Extra Saturday matinee, five colorful cartoons and free toy bunnies to lucky boys and girls.

In The Dressing Room

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—There is a bigger difference between a winning and losing dressing room than a few bottles of champagne.

Its doubtful that Detroit Red Wings, who were swinging soft drinks, gave a hoot Thursday night that across the lobby Toronto Maple Leafs were popping corks.

Toronto had won the fifth game of the Stanley Cup final 3-1 to take the best-of-seven series in five games.

But the Wings, who felt they were out-lucked, weren't despondent.

The great Gordie Howe said it well.

"For a team that wasn't supposed to make the playoffs we showed up pretty well. But did you ever try to spit against the wind?"

Dave Keon, a nimble young man from Noranda, Que., was patiently answering questions and posing for photographers. He scored two goals for Toronto, his sixth and seventh of the series.

Meanwhile, Eddie Shack, the unlikely scoring hero who tipped in the winning goal, was explaining how he outfoxed Detroit goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk.

"I was trying to get the heli out of the way. It hit my stick and went in."

PUCK BOUNCED

Toronto defenceman Kent Douglas took the original shot and it bounced off Detroit's Doug Barkley, then hit Shack's stick.

Keon was talking about his first goal, on which he overpowered Detroit's Alex Delvecchio, the loose defender, with speed.

"Delvecchio sort of stumbled," said Keon between sips of champagne. "I had to go to the left side and I knew I had him."

Normie Ullman was one of the sadder wings. He could have tied it up in the dying moments with the score 2-1.

"But his shot hit my leg," said Howe, who was sprawled with Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower in the crease at the time.

Imlach, almost miserly with praise of individual players, astounded everyone by bluntly declaring that Keon "is the greatest player in the game today."

BREWER INJURED

Andre Pronovost, who was involved in a collision in which Toronto's Carl Brewer broke his arm in the third period, doesn't know how it happened.

"I was on one skate when he (Brewer) hit me," said the Wing player. "I fell and hit my head on the boards and Brewer fell on top of me."

"With Brewer out, I'm awfully glad it's over," said Imlach in tribute to his talented young defenceman.

Detroit coach Sid Abel took time out to say there had been a misunderstanding at Detroit after Tuesday's game. He was asked by a reporter if Detroit fans were always as rowdy after a game as they had been after that one, showering the Leafs with paper cups and forcing coach Punch Imlach to disconline a press conference in the lobby.

He replied that "a lot of those fans are from Windsor and Lasalle."

People in Windsor, across the Detroit River, are irate. They say they're all Toronto fans and wouldn't be bothering the Leafs.

Abel said Thursday night he wasn't aware of any disturbance in the lobby at the time because he had been in the dressing room before it started.

SAYS MISUNDERSTOOD

He claims he thought the reporter was asking about the fans during the game, those who were throwing eggs and other debris. Later writer says Abel told him Tuesday night that fans sitting behind the Red Wing bench in the general area where some eggthrowers were sitting, were from Windsor and Lasalle.

Abel did not repeat this Thursday night, but said strongly there had been a misunderstanding—if Windsorites caused the lobby scene, he doesn't know anything about it.

Winnipeg Delegation Optimistic

67 Pan-Am Games For Canada

SAO PAULO, Brazil (CP-AP)—A delegation from Winnipeg pressed its bid for the 1967 Pan-American Games Thursday as athletes from 24 countries warmed up for the current Games' opening Saturday.

"We are very optimistic we will get the 1967 Games," said Mark Dankner, chairman of the Winnipeg delegation. The site of the fifth Games was to be decided at a meeting of the Pan-American sports organization today.

Cool weather and cream puffs were prime topics of conversation as a record field of more than 2,500 athletes gathered for Saturday's opening of the 10-day event.

The unexpected chill had many shivering in uniforms designed for the tropics.

The cream puffs were the suspected villains in an outbreak of mild food poisoning. Canadian basketball players and other delegates, on a plan en route to the Games Wednesday night.

ATE CREAM PUFFS

They became nauseated, apparently as a result of eating the cream puffs, on a flight between Caracas, Venezuela, and Rio de Janeiro.

Beverly Coward, a 24-year-old nurse from Vancouver and a member of the Canadian girls basketball team, was taken to hospital when the 26-member Canadian men's and women's basketball group arrived here early Thursday.

Dr. T. R. Osler of the Canadian squad ordered the other ill players to bed in the Olympic village here. It wasn't immediately known whether the food poisoning was serious enough to affect the Canadians' play at the Games.

Hardest hit by the unseasonal chill were swimmers and divers and entrants from the humid countries of Central America. Youthful spirits went down a bit.

The temperature was 62 about noon before the sun made a belated appearance.

COMPETE WITH CHILE

The competition for the 1967 Games appeared to shake down to a choice between Winnipeg and Santiago, Chile. Dankner was confident the balance would tip toward the Canadian city.

"We were promised them (the Games) by the PASO leaders at Chicago in 1959 when Sao Paulo was picked for the year because of a previous commitment," he said.

"We are prepared to put on a wonderful show. We have all the stadium facilities with the exception of a velodrome for cycling and the type of swimming stadium required.

"The Winnipeg Stadium holds 30,000 and can easily enlarged to hold 45,000."

Movie Column

People Flocking to See Several Excellent Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The swallows have come back to Capistrano, and spring also has brought in a sweet bird of optimism to Hollywood.

After years of pessimism, it doesn't take much to make the movie world seek hope for the future. That hope seems to have some substance these days with audiences all over North America flocking to see "The Birds, Bye Bye Birdie, To Kill a Mockingbird and other less avlan attractions such as Sundays of Adrian Rice, How the West Was Won, Mutiny on the Bounty and Days of Wine and Roses.

The oldest saw in Hollywood is: "There's nothing wrong with the movie business that good pictures won't cure." It is getting above-average use during this period of post-Oscar euphoria.

The good feeling that pervades the movie capital is not diminished by the oceans of red ink that have swept over two of the biggest companies.

Twentieth Century - Fox reported a $39,796,094 loss for 1962, reflecting a season of bad production and bum budgetting on Cleopatra.

But the more sanguine observers argue that Fox has nowhere to go but up. The company will reap some tax advantages from its monumental loss. It has pared expenses to the bone and is preparing for a return to production with some promising projects. The Longest Day has been a good moneymaker.

PIN HOPE ON CLEO

The best hope for Fox, of course, is Cleo. The troubled queen already has helped put the company on the road toward solvency by cash advances from theatres eager to play the film. Payments may reach $25,000,000 before the premier in New York June 12.

MGM was hit by an $8,716,000 deficit for the 26 weeks ending March 16. The loss was blamed on Mutiny on the Bounty, which has been drawing well, but not enough to offset its $19,300,000 cost.

But once again there is a possible golden lining. Revenue will continue coming from Mutiny and the smash How the West Was Won. The company has no more high-cost epics to plunder the treasury, and some of the fat has been trimmed from the studio operation.

Hollywood places great hope in the MCA operation, which appears to be impelling Universal to primacy in the film world. MCA reported $12,706,949 earnings in 1962. Its television wing, Revue, continues to be the biggest producer in the business. Universal has been turning out theatrical product that is not only successful but often high in quality.

DISNEY GOING STRONG

Columbia, which has often staked its future on a blockbuster, appears to have found two: Lawrence and Birdie. United Artists continues to be the steadiest operation among the film companies, providing a steady program of top product. Walt Disney maintains his profitable pace.

Warner Brothers was hard hit by loss of all but one (To Sunset Strip) of its television series. But Jack Webb has taken over the operation and is producing results. And Warners has had a good season with its theatrical product, scoring with How the West Was Won, Mutiny on the Bounty and Days of Wine and Roses, Baby Jane, Music Man and Gypsy.

Ready For 4,000-Mile Car Grind

VANCOUVER (CP) — The crews are gathering for the world's longest rally, a 4000-mile grind across Canada.

They will pile into 47 cars Saturday night and set out through 60 control points scattered along some of the roughest, loneliest roads between here and Montreal.

They will stop overnight in Calgary Sunday and from there will make nightly stops in Regina, Winnipeg, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Montreal.

The rally is not a race. It's a test of driving skill, navigational ability and endurance for car and crew. Speeds are averaged at least 10 per cent below local speed limits along the route. Points are lost for being early or late at a check point.

Foremost among the international entrants is Belgium's Olivier Gendebien, four - time winner of the 12 hours of Sebring and four-time winner in the Le Mans 24-hour endurance race. He has won three times in the Targa Florio and has victories at the Mille Miglia and the Tulip Rally in Europe.

Grass, House Fires Keep Firemen Busy

DESERONTO — A series of fires has been keeping the local fire department busy since last week. Fortunately, most of the fires have been caused by burning grass but there has been no loss from them.

On Thursday of last week, however, they were called to a fire in the bush on the road at Tyendinaga township where Henry Sager lost his home by fire. The firemen found the house was almost to the ground when they arrived, but the barn had ignited. They were able to extinguish the fire and save the barn, but the Sager family lost all their possessions in the house fire.

Sponsored by the Firemen and the local Salvation Army Corps, an effort will be made to have donations of furniture turned into the fire hall on Monday evening next to assist the unfortunate family.

On Friday afternoon the department was called to the bay shore east of the town where a bonfire had gotten out of control. They completed the burning of the debris and were later called back as the fire had spread to the adjoining field.

On Saturday they were called to the town dump where burning rubbish had spread fire into the adjoining woods. They were also called to the home of Burgett Marsele on the Reserve where a fire had also spread and was endangering three homes. On Monday evening they controlled a fire in the dry grass at the western limits of the town.

Teen Age Canada
School Dropouts Speak Up Most Regret Their Move

By JACK HUTTON

A teacher friend looked out his window the other day at the first signs of approaching

March. Weather and spring arrived. "Well, it's almost Q - Day again," she said. What did he mean? It's very simple. This teacher, like many others, knew that as soon as the trees started to bud, as soon as it was warm enough to feel the heat of the sun, some of his students would think of quitting.

Ask any principal and he'll tell you that the warm breeze blowing into classrooms around Easter exacts nearly blow some students out of the high school classroom into jobs that seem attractive.

And why not? Jobs become more plentiful in the spring and early summer, provided a teen-ager can get to an employer before the other students go on vacation and offer an unemployed adult learner of the job.

The plain facts are that possibly two out of every 10 students who register in the Grade nine barrier of the school attendance age this spring will leave school. Some will have jobs. Many won't.

HOME ANSWERS

Why stay in school? Perhaps you or someone you know is asking this question right now. And the answers that parents or teachers are presenting just don't seem strong enough to justify staying in those books.

May I allow other readers of this column to answer you? During two years of writing this column, I've received mail on a variety of subjects. But one theme is a common one. How can I go back to school. Here, times changed and omissions to protect the writers, are samples of the letters this column has received.

Bob — I've been out of school now for four years. But I'd like to go back to school, starting with the Grade 10 I never did finish.

"Why'd I quit? I guess the main thing I wanted was a car. I knew that by living at home I'd be able to save for a down payment and I did. What I didn't realize was how broke the car would keep me. Now I've lost that job, I haven't saved a cent, and I feel like I've wasted four years.

Jane — "I hope that some time in your column you can get across to teen-agers who want to quit school just how different it will all be later.

"My mother and father were horrified when I quit just after the Grade 10 Easter exams, but as I told them, I was tired of never having the clothes to look nice. I wanted to earn my own money to buy clothes and, well be the popular girl I couldn't be at school.

"No doubt about it, the other girls in my crowd were green with envy. That didn't last long. I started noticing after about a year that we didn't see each other that often and when we did, we didn't have the same interests. They were passing me.

"That's as neatly as I can sum it up. They were leaving me behind. We didn't share the same things in night school. I find it twice as hard as before, but at least catching up.

"The question I ask myself is why'd I quit in the first place? Please do a column on this problem some time."

Well, I've passed on the statements of Bob and Jane. What were they saying? They were saying just what your self, or the folks of your friend — have been saying.

They told us that a teen-ager who quits school at Easter or shortly after to escape into a world that often seems more green and attractive than the classroom often winds up in what seems to be a dead-end street.

They told us that the friends who laughed admiringly and thought quitting was daring didn't think so later. In fact, it was doubtful if they knew the same friends four or five years later.

This is just a word to the wise. But remember, I didn't tell you anything. Bob and Jane did.

TEEN MUSICIANS

Hats off to 18-year-old Boris

Studying may seem an unbearable chore in spring weather, but Teen-Age Canada suggests it's better to suffer a bit now than to quit school and regret it for the rest of your life.

Brott of Montreal, who conducted the Toronto Symphony Orchestra last week, and 16-year-old Irena Welsz of Cardinton, Alta., who was the piano soloist.

Critics who praised their performances also kept mentioning one fact: Aren't they so young?

Young indeed! A list of musicians who started their studies and established in the musical world before leaving their teens would more than fill this column.

Did you know, for instance, that Mendelssohn wrote his Octet for Strings, still a highly regarded work, when he was 15 years old? And Mozart was amazing adults with his concerts at the age of 13.

Chopin wrote his first composition, a G-minor polonaise, at the age of 7. But he worked at improving his piano playing before making his debut — at the age of 8.

We're going to hear a great deal more from Boris and Irene before they are through playing. But in the meantime they've once again proven what we already know: Canadian teenagers have a lot of talent in their midst.

$200,000 FIRE LOSS ON FRONT STREET

RCMP Montreal Offices Bombed By Separatists

'Peaceful' Wing Stages Riotous Demonstration

MONTREAL (CP)—The violent wing of Quebec's separatist movement bombed the RCMP headquarters in suburban Westmount early today, only hours after the more peaceful group staged a riotous demonstration.

The bomb smashed three eight-by-six glass windows at the back of the RCMP garages and cracked two others. It broke three windows within the block and its report was heard half a mile away.

No one was injured.

Only 10 minutes before the explosion, an anonymous caller telephoned the Montreal bureau of The Canadian Press to say, in French, that the Front de Liberation Quebecois would begin "operation Jean Lesage" at 1 a.m.

At 12:55, the bomb went off. The FLQ is a self-styled terrorist group that says it wants to free Quebec from Canada by violent means. In a pamphlet issued several days ago, it said that its next operation would be named after Quebec Premier Jean Lesage whom it termed "a collaborationist."

DENOUNCE 'GESTAPO'

The demonstration Friday by some 125 separatist supporters hurl insults at the RCMP and break one window. The separatists said they were protesting "Gestapo tactics" used by the police last weekend when 15 were rounded up in Montreal for questioning about FLQ activities.

Some 20 RCMP officers encircled the headquarters after a missile was hurled through one window. Two men were arrested in a scuffle with Westmount police.

A fake bomb was found about the same time in a tunnel between the CNR Central Station and the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. It was dismantled by Montreal police expert Sergeant Leo Plouffe.

The bomb behind the RCMP building apparently was small and probably was tossed there rather than left with a timing device, RCMP speculated.

FLEMING QUITS

OTTAWA (CP) — Resignation of Justice Minister Fleming as Canada's governor on the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development has been accepted by the cabinet, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Friday.

Flames glow through second floor windows of the Mayer building on Front Street as firemen fight Friday night blaze with water from hand-held hose and two aerial ladders. Loss to "Honest Joe's" department, and to second floor insurance and legal office, was estimated at $200,000.

PUBLIC CONTROL OF INDUSTRY'S PLANS REJECTED

Govt. Will Not Dictate Moves

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has turned down requests by organized labor for public control over moves by major employers in the province from one area to another.

The Progressive Conservative government "is not prepared to accept a program that will force a company to go into a portion of this province or stay there," Premier Robarts said in opposing Minister Robert Macaulay told the legislature Friday.

He was replying to questions from Donald G. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, who took up earlier requests by the Ontario Federation of Labor for a special body to study proposals for plant relocation and decide if the movements should be allowed.

The suggestion came after a series of such relocations. Particularly hard hit was the Windsor area, whose once-dominant automotive industry has been gradually shifting its operations closer to Toronto's mass markets.

PLANS INCENTIVES

Mr. Macaulay believed that government programs would allow it to encourage industry to settle in certain areas by helping the company to finance operations there. But the government would not dictate nor forbid moves.

Mr. MacDonald had said there should be some "machinery for public scrutiny" of moves such as that made by Ford of Canada Limited to St. Catharines from Windsor. There was no question of the Windsor situation becoming economically unsound, he said.

And Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) added: "Nobody wants to compel anybody

U.S.-CANADA NUCLEAR PACT EXPECTED SOON

Ready for Signing At NATO Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canada-United States nuclear custody-and-control agreement is expected to be ready for signing by the time the NATO ministerial council meets here May 22, informed sources say.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Pearson is said to want to address both the Commons and the NATO meeting on this matter before the agreement is signed. After the signature, informants said, the placing of nuclear warheads on Canadian bases in this country and in Europe would take at least three months.

Mr. Pearson is expected to outline to the NATO conference his views on the future of the alliance in both the defence and economic fields.

During the election campaign, Mr. Pearson said Canada's standing in the world was the lowest it had ever been.

LIBERALS PLAN

Here is a rundown on what the Liberals are understood to have in mind to restore what they say is Canada's lost position:

1. To demonstrate that Canada has a strong government at home.

2. To honor Canada's nuclear

HOVERCRAFT ON WAY

LONDON (CP) — A 27 - ton hovercraft left aboard the freighter Beaverlir Friday for Canada where it will give demonstrations for industrial, military and government experts on the St. Lawrence River. The Beaverlir is due in Montreal April 28. The hovercraft, capable of travelling over land and sea, is manufactured by Westland Aircraft Corporation.

Big Decisions Now Are Up To Prime Minister Designate

OTTAWA (CP)—The big decisions now are up to Lester B. Pearson.

The Liberal leader, making the last few decisions for his new cabinet lineup, will be formally sworn into office on Monday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told reporters Friday that if any big government decisions have to be made this weekend, Mr. Pearson will be consulted.

Mr. Diefenbaker has said goodbye to his office staff and filing cabinets and packing boxes filled with his six-year collection of personal papers and mementoes have been put into temporary storage pending the switch of offices next week.

The Progressive Conservative leader views it as only a temporary interruption in his life as prime minister. He said he is looking forward eagerly to his time as opposition leader and will try to make a comeback at the next general election.

For Mr. Pearson, the immediate problem is to allay jealousies within the ranks of his party followers over the assignment of cabinet portfolios, according to reliable informants.

All seemed to be settled in the major portfolios when sources close to the Liberal leader started talking Friday about some surprises, that are to come when the cabinet list is made public Monday.

Conflicting pressures were reported to be on Mr. Pearson in the choice of cabinet ministers from Quebec.

The contingent of Liberal MPs from the province apparently is split between what is loosely described as "the old guard"...

Texan Says Scrapping Bomarc Without Replacement 'Ridiculous'

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressman George Mahon, chairman of a congressional subcommittee on defence, says the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile is not up to expectations, "but it would be ridiculous to talk of eliminating the Bomarc without something better to replace it."

"That goes for Canada, too," the Texas Democrat said in an interview.

There have been reports that a new subcommittee hassle over the controversial weapon took place behind closed doors and that all reference to the blowup was censored from the subcommittee's public transcript of its defence hearings.

Mahon denied the reports. He said, some subcommittee Bomarc critics stay awake nights thinking up new ways of attacking the weapon.

"I think the concensus of the subcommittee is that while the Bomarc is less than we had hoped for, we should make the best use of it that we can."

On March 29, the subcommittee released a censored transcript of Feb. 13 hearings during which Defence Secretary McNamara said he would scrap the U.S. Bomarc bases but for the fact that they cost only $20,000,000 a year to maintain.

McNamara added that one use of the Bomarc bases is to draw enemy missile fire in time for war, forcing the enemy to maintain more intercontinental missiles or to shift from some other North American targets.

Kennedy Denies He Ever Promised Cuban Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has denied ever promising a U.S. invasion of Cuba and has ruled out that kind of venture now. "It would be a mistake," he said.

But "time will see Cuba free again," the president told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Friday, "and I think when that happens the record will show that the United States has played a significant role."

The president also ruled out another kind of venture—an administration onslaught against the steel industry and raising prices last week.

Kennedy described the boosts as selected price increases that were "responsive to market situations."

"It represents, really, about a one-per-cent price increase for steel products which restores, really, the one-per-cent that has been lost since 1959 in the price of steel," Kennedy told the editors.

But the president said he is concerned about the psychological effect, and hoped steel-using manufacturers would absorb the new costs and not pass them on to the public.

The bulk of the editors' questions, submitted in writing, touched on the Communist state of Fidel Castro.

Kennedy was asked to comment on the accusation by Cuban refugee leader Jose Miro Cardona that Kennedy had reneged on a promise to invade Cuba.

"Nobody in the United States government ever informed anyone in the government or outside the government, Dr. Cardona or anyone else, that we were going to launch, committed ourselves to launch, a military invasion with six divisions," the president said.

Kennedy said "the United States cannot launch itself into a massive invasion of Cuba

CONVICTS TAKE GUARD HOSTAGE IN B.C. PRISON

300 Prisoners Are Barricaded

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—New violence involving the whole of more than 600 convicts in the maximum-security B.C. penitentiary broke out today.

Some 300 prisoners barricaded since Friday night in a main block of the big, grey-walled prison began smashing windows and breaking, as one official said, "everything they could lay their hands on."

They were later joined by about 300 other prisoners, most of whom were locked in cell-blocks.

Extra police held on standby to join prison guards and some 60 RCMP already on the prison grounds were armed with tear gas and guns.

Warden Tom Hall, appearing tense, told a press conference that negotiations for a settlement of the trouble had been almost successful when the new outbreak came.

He said only three of the 12 to 15 men barricaded in an auditorium were involved in the holding of a guard as a hostage there. The guard was being held in a washroom and the prisoners had a knife. He apparently was as yet unharmed.

CONSIDERED DANGEROUS

Asked whether he considered as dangerous the men who began the uprising, the warden replied: "Yes, I would say they are very dangerous."

He said he had been in touch with Ottawa — administrative point for federal penitentiaries —several times.

The warden said that the grievance of the three convicts involved in holding the guard is "personal, not against the administration."

It was learned one of the men had demanded a transfer to another penitentiary.

The outbreak followed a night of turmoil, gasoline bombings, furniture smashings and the calling in of police reserves. Then there was a period of comparative quiet.

Loudspeaker appeals were made to the prisoners without result.

Officials said it was the biggest uprising in the history of the penitentiary, which overlooks the shores of the Fraser River

Fireman Injured As Mayer Block Partially Gutted

Liberal Member Loses Many Legal Documents

Belleville firefighters last night fought a stubborn costly downtown blaze to a standstill — at personal cost.

Injured by falling bricks as the battle was joined in a blaze that partially gutted the Mayer business block near the city's Upper Bridge was fireman Stan Papke.

Papke was struck on the back by falling bricks washed from a roof parapet by one of the fire lines in the closing stages of the four-hour battle that marked up an estimated property loss of $200,000.

MANY OFFICES GUTTED

Papke is believed to have suffered back and hip injuries. He was to be x-rayed today.

A touch of bitter co-incidence is given the accident by city fire records. Ten years ago a fire on the spot where the Mayer building stands took the life of a two-year-old child.

Among the offices lost last night were those of lawyer Robert Temple, newly - elected Liberal Member of Parliament for South Hastings. Mr. Temple was in Toronto attending Ontario Bar Association graduation ceremonies at the time.

Also lost in the blaze were Honest Joe's clothing store and offices of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and Ontario Society for Crippled Children. Damaged to various degrees by smoke and water were El Ranch Restaurant, Deisney Furriers; office of the Undersheriff, Judgment Bureau; dentist Dr. H. A. Elliott, Associates Loans and Ontario Department of Education.

Severest actual property damage was caused in Honest Joe's where the fire is believed to have started about 9.25 p.m. before it spread to upstairs offices. Store operator Jon Burke had recently moved in new spring clothing lines.

However, the most serious loss may have been registered by Mr. Temple, whose offices held legal documents, records and files dating back to the start of his practice in Belleville 12 years ago.

HEARD OF FIRE BY RADIO

His loss is compounded by the fact he shortly leaves to assume his seat in the House of Commons, leaving much of his law practice to his new associate, Paul Russell. Ironically, Mr. Temple was in Toronto yesterday for Conservative Party functions, when Mr. Russell was formally called to the Bar.

Cause of the blaze was still unknown early today as firefighters continued dampening

Story of Terror and Hardship In North Told by Survey Team

OTTAWA (CP)—A dramatic story of terror and hardship has been brought out of the Canadian north by a federal government survey team.

It's a story comparable with those told by early explorers who saw men go berserk in the face of extreme cold, blizzards and loneliness.

Officials of the federal technical surveys department said that for three days and three nights the surveyors stood guard over a tent in which two threatened to kill them and himself. They say the incident illustrates the hazards government surveyors often face in gathering information important to many for the production of maps.

Last January the team headed by an Ottawa field officer was on a 275-mile survey across the frozen wastes of Labrador. Its job was to record elevations for use with aerial photographs in the production of maps of this mineral-rich area of Canada.

During late January and early February, the party encountered weather conditions as severe as anything known in the history of federal surveying. It was forced to battle temperatures as low as 72 degrees below zero, almost constant blizzard conditions and snow eight to 12 feet deep.

Officials gave this account of the ordeal:

On Feb. 20 the party was camped for the night on White Bird Lake, about 175 miles east of Schefferville. The weather was clear and cold with a temperature of 40 degrees.

In the middle of the night a laborer with the party climbed out of his sleeping bag, dressed, grabbed an axe and walked out into the darkness. About 3 a.m. others in the tent awoke to discover that a member of the party was missing.

A search was hastily organized and the man was found badly frost-bitten and unconscious about 1,000 yards from the camp. He was carried back to his tent and steps were taken to revive him and ensure his comfort and safety.

Tension mounted in the camp

FRANCISCAN PRIEST SHOT AT VANCOUVER

Gunned Down After Answering Doorbell

VANCOUVER (CP) — A suspect was held by police today in the slaying of a Franciscan priest, gunned down as he answered the doorbell of a monastery in Vancouver's east end.

Rev. Cuthbert Sewart, 51, a member of the Roman Catholic religious community called the Order of Friars Minor, was shot in the chest with a rifle Friday.

Not long after, police, acting on a tip, surrounded an apartment house six blocks from the monastery and arrested a man.

Father Cuthbert was rector of St. Francis' Parish. The monastery is on the parish grounds in the Grandview area.

Several priests heard the shot and found the rector lying in a pool of blood. The motive for the shooting was not immediately known.

Detective inspector Ian Mc-Gregor said police who surrounded the apartment could see a man pacing up and down a room with a rifle in his hand.

"He knew we were there and he just threw the rifle through the window and walked out the front door into the arms of Belleville's police officers," the inspector said.

CHILDREN SAW SHOOTING

Two children playing on the street outside the monastery told police a man went to the monastery door and rang the bell, and when Father Cuthbert opened the door, he fired the rifle. The man then walked calmly back to a parked car and sped away.

Cause of the blaze was still unknown early today as firefighters continued dampening

Recreation Highlights

Bruce Jarvis Assistant Director

Time was when the game of golf was the play thing of shepherds, who shrugged off the rigors of their trade by playing through the sparse and sandy dunes of Scotland, a country with which the sport generally is identified.

Some people, especially the irritated beginner who finds his ball skiing into the woods, time and time again, insists that the shepherds had it easy. The modern game played on neatly-clipped terrain, but spotted with hazards has driven scores of golfers into temper tantrums every day, and it's a release of emotion not confined entirely to the beginner. It happens to the best of them, including the golf professionals who, almost mightily each year for prizes totalling $1,500,000.

Here's what a beginner is letting himself in for when he decides to undertake golf as a pastime, and once he does, normally there's no turning back. He has the "bug" and it stays with him.

The game is played on a course consisting of a series of 1828 (although a number of courses are confined to nine), each comprised of a tee, on which the ball is placed for the first drive; a fairway, which is the area of good turf between the tee and the putting green and the green which is an area of finely-tailored turf.

The tee is the following playing area is located near the green and has the perpetual hole. It's on the green where the elusive hole, 4¼ inches in diameter and six inches deep is located.

The distance between the tee and golf hole varies in length from 100 to 600 yards and the better courses vary in length between 6000 and 7000 yards, with occasional exceptions.

The idea, of course, is to hit the ball from the tee to the hole in the least number of strokes possible and while it looks simple enough, the game before it's played is a severe challenge, as a matter of fact, it's always a challenge!

The first step toward lifting the ball either around golf is to buy properly-fitted clubs. They are the most part of improved golf that can be bought. The rest is learning and practice and a steady assault on faults.

The golf "grip" sets the stage for progress. It's the first hurdle a beginner must clear.

After that, he must learn his stance, the proper way to swing a club and putting. These are the things that make a golfer.

It's a difficult game to master — statistics prove that, but even the duffer, it has all the ingredients necessary to make it enjoyable; exercise, fresh air, body work.

After all, so many millions of people throughout the world can't be wrong!

Placing of Older Children Is CAS Adoption Problem For First Time in Years

The Hastings County Children's Aid Society is having difficulty in placing older children for adoption although there is no shortage of couples seeking infants and even children of toddler age.

Mr. Bruce Kerr, director of the local C.A.S., told the monthly directors' meeting Thursday that "for the first time in a number of years we have children in the care of the director awaiting placement for whom at this time we are unable to secure permanent homes."

He said the Society was finding it increasingly difficult to place children of early school age although there was no shortage of couples seeking infants and children of the toddler age.

"It is the child beyond this age who is once again present as a problem," Mr. Kerr said.

The director said that within the past months the work of the Society had increased tremendously at the protection level.

"This is a specialized work," he went on, "in that it is not remedial, but rather the salvaging of human beings in the interests of what was once a family and a home."

The president, Mr. George Wishart, presided. Sixteen of the eighteen members of the Board were in the meeting. In his opening remarks, Mr. Wishart welcomed Thomas Hughes, Reeve of Madoc, and M. J. McAlpine, Reeve of Bancroft, to the meeting. The reeves and Mr. McAlpine represent the County of Hastings.

NAME COMMITTEES

On the motion of Linton Reid which was seconded by Bernard Hurley, the following were named to the various committees for the year 1963: executive, George Wishart, convener, Mr. Stanley C. Wiggins; personnel, Mr. Linton Reid, convener, Mr. Bernard Hurley; public relations, Dr. S. C. Rose. Board personnel were also assigned to these committees.

Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott and Rev. Mr. Hurley were appointed to act as representatives of the Society to the Belleville United Appeal.

The president and Mrs. R. E. Follwell will represent the Society as voting delegates to the Ontario Conference of the Canadian Association of Children's Aid Societies at Toronto in May. Mrs. Follwell is this year convener of the conference as a director of the Association.

UNITED APPEAL

Mrs. Follwell, convener, president of the Belleville United Appeal in 1963 and Mr. Carl White, secretary-treasurer of the budget committee appeared before the Board. Mr. Gurnett outlined the role played by the Appeal in the community and requested the co-operation of the Society by making available material for publicity purposes. He also asked that the Society, through all its member agencies, refrain from the making of appeals briefly, stating that in his opinion a greater share of the cost of CAS services should come from senior governments. Mr. Wishart thanked them and their fellow members of the Belleville United Appeal for their untiring efforts on behalf of the Society and the community as a whole.

Mr. Kerr complimented the Board for its action in supporting the location of a provincially-sponsored Mental Health Clinic at Belleville and the inclusion of a psychiatric unit in the building plans of the proposed addition to the Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Stanley Wiggins stated that the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association was in the process of collecting data relative to the urgency and need of a Clinic to serve the community on a full time basis.

DIFFER WITH BRIEF

The president presented a report of the executive committee, which had spent considerable time in reviewing a brief on Board composition, financing, etc., presented by the Ontario Association of CAS to the Minister's committee on child welfare. While the executive of the local Society concurred in the majority of the suggestions proposed by the Association, it took strong exception to the recommendation that in the future the Board should consist of "eight members elected from the membership of the Society at large; five members appointed by the Province of Ontario to represent the interests of government, and two members appointed by the local community." It was the considered opinion of the local Executive that the appointment of "five members" by the provincial government would be, at best, political in nature and that such was not proper criteria for the administration and furtherance of an adequate child-focused, child welfare program. It was further stated that, in the opinion of the local Society, the reduction of local municipal representation would be a retrograde step in that at the present time there is provision for six municipal representatives on the Board.

The executive supported the philosophy of the committee of the Association as expressed in one of its closing paragraphs. "We firmly believe that changes is inevitable in keeping with the needs of children, and families, and providing this change is constructive and far sighted, we feel it can be most worthwhile."

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A driver of a milk tank truck and a Canadian National Railways trainman were killed and two other trainmen badly burned today in a level-crossing collision in Bedeau, a village 10 miles west of here.

Quebec Now Controls All Hydro Projects

MONTREAL (CP)—Last November, Quebec's Liberal government won an election on the basis of a government takeover of privately-owned power companies.

Friday, the government won the issue.

Premier Jean Lesage announced Jean-Claude Lessard, president of the government-owned Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission said that the commission now has effective control of eight privately-owned power companies.

Nationalization of the electric utilities is a reality now," he said.

The government offered Dec. 28 to buy the shares of the companies, and at the close of business Friday 45 per cent of each company had been accepted by holders of more than the required 51 per cent of the shares of each company.

The deadline for acceptance of the offer was Friday, but Mr. Lesage announced that it has been extended to May 17 to allow other shareholders to turn in shares. When all are in, the government will have paid $640,000,000 for the companies.

Quebec Hydro said the lowest percentage it holds is 85.6 per cent of the common stock of the giant Shawinigan Water and Power Company, largest electricity producer in Quebec, except Hydro itself.

The commission also held 95.2 per cent of Shawinigan's Class A shares, making a total of 58.1 per cent of the company's stock.

Hydro announced the following ownership in other companies: Saguenay Electric Company, 100 per cent; Southern Canada Power Company, 99.1; Lower St. Lawrence Power Company, 95.8; Northern Quebec Power Company, 92.3; Quebec Power Company, 85.8; and Gatineau Power Company, 58.3.

PUC Forbids Any Industry Using Pumps to Clear Mains

TRENTON—The heads of local firms which operate in Trenton on a seasonal basis are going to find it harder this year to do business with the Trenton Water Utilities Commission.

One such firm operates for three or four months of the year. When the plant is opened in the spring, a water meter is put in. When the plant closes, three or four months later, the meter is taken out, and the company's contract with the PUC is in effect cancelled. This means that for eight months of the year the local utilities "holds" equipment and a water supply amounting to half a million gallons per day, in readiness for when the plant is operating. The plant pays only for the water used while it's operating.

Further to this, the plant installs a force pump and literally "drags" the water out of the mains in one section of town.

The PUC will this year forbid any industry installing pumps and will put a stop to this mains throughout the town should be tracked down and corrected. That's commission think, in force and this will lead to further action.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission has written to the commission to say that any construction work in the vicinity of Wilmot Creek will result in "controlled." If foreign material were deposited in the well water from construction, says the OWRC charges might be laid. While cellars were being constructed, no water should be removed more than 10,000 gallons of water a day by pumping without a special permit. This permit would be issued subject to what might be the level in the well might be affected.

Meanwhile, a local realtor has written to the commission, offering for sale two lots adjacent to the Wilmot Creek. Does the commission need an extra six or seven acres here for a water control project? The OWRC will be called in to rule on the availability of water before the PUC contemplates the land.

Six Men Seen NearFarmWhere Man Is Killed

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Police said Friday they were checking a report that six men were seen late Thursday near a farm where a farmer was found beaten to death and his brother badly hurt in the same attack.

Lionel Sabourin, 52, was found dead in the stable of his farm home. Another six miles west of Sturgeon Falls, 24 miles west of North Bay. His brother, Richard, about 60, was found beaten and bound in the barn and was taken to hospital here with bullet wounds in his back, hip and abdomen.

Michael Lavoy, a school bus driver, discovered the two brothers about 9:30 a.m. Friday when he went to the barn to borrow tongs he intended to use to lift logs horses at his camp.

Neighbors believed the brothers were attacked some time after 8:30 Thursday night while they were milking their cows.

A neighbor said he heard shots but thought nothing of it, apparently fired inside the Sabourin home. It was believed the attackers shot the lock off a cash box.

Little Activity On Market Due To Cool Weather

Little activity was seen on the local farmers market here this morning, possibly due to the chilly and somewhat cloudy weather.

For the past two weeks maple syrup could be seen in large quantities, but today's market offered very little syrup for sale. According to district farmers the sap season has decreased as a result of previous years due to an early spring. However, prices remained unchanged, $6.50 a gallon, $1.75 a quart and .90 a pint.

Strawberry plants were offered this morning. The healthy looking plants were selling at 50c a box.

Eggs varied little in price this week, 40, 45 and 50c a dozen for small medium and large.

Apples ranged in price from 75c a qut quart basket to $3.75 a hamper for Macs and Spies.

City firemen crouch with hand held hose as they fight general alarm Friday night blaze at Mayer block near the Upper Bridge. The fire, believed to have started in "Honest Joe's" department store, quickly attracted hundreds of late shoppers with police having to cordon off area.

Fireman

the smouldering shell.

Mr. Burke said he locked up the store at the regular Friday late-night closing hour of 9 p.m.

He first heard the news of the blaze raging through his premises an hour later in a radio bulletin.

"I had just locked up, taken my mother home and gone over to Tobes (the restaurant at Rossmore) for a cup of coffee," he told reporters.

Firefighters raced to the scene as a general alarm was turned in.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance was at Club Canara where he had just got a dance underway he had organized for the Quinte Turf and Riding Club. Several of his men, off-duty and at the dance, left their wives to join the chief in the race to the scene.

At first the blaze appeared confined to the north end of the building, but heavy smoke gushing through openings smashed in display and office windows obscured the real threat from the street.

The blaze appeared to die down at intervals then well up again, until it suddenly penetrated second - floor partitions and started eating through upstairs offices.

At one time it again appeared from the street that the fire might yet be contained without spreading down the top-floor corridor to the Temple premises and beyond. However, it ate along the ceiling and broke out anew in the law offices.

A fire door, automatically operated by heat density slid into place midway down the corridor and sealed the south end of the block from the flames. However smoke already had filed into that part of the building and poured from the eaves.

Firefighters then donned smoke masks and drew a line to the upper storey to fight the blaze at floor level. Meantime, from the street, lines were concentrated from two aerial pumpers down into the burning building.

Smoke seeped through into the El Rancho Restaurant at the south end of the building and the manager was forced to close as it filled the premises.

Traffic was sealed off the Upper Bridge and Pinnacle Street as police inspector J. C. Hayes called in extra men to patrol the area. The fire lured itself to attract a maximum crowd. The downtown area was filled with shoppers and Friday night on-the-towners who thronged to the blaze.

It was almost 1 a.m. before firefighters felt confident they had fought the threat to a standstill - - about the time when fireman Papke was injured.

He was on a fire line at the rear of the building when the bricks suddenly tumbled loose from the top storey of the building felling him with back injuries. It was believed the bricks had been pummeled from the parapet by the powerful jet of one of the aerial lines. He was placed on a stretcher by fellow firefighters and rushed to an ambulance.

They said they wanted to prove that 50-mile hikes are really nothing to boast about.

Convicts

near this city 12 miles east of Vancouver.

Early today the warden was reported waiting for a call from the federal penitentiaries commissioner, A. J. MacLeod for "some guidance" in handling the situation.

The trouble began when a guard found t.. convicts trying to escape over a compound wall. The guard, accompanied by a guard dog, stopped the men and took them to the small auditorium building in the grounds to await reinforcements.

But he was overpowered by 12 prisoners inside the auditorium. Other guards who tried to rescue him were forced back by gas bombs reported to have been thrown by the prisoners, who barricaded the entrances.

A Roman Catholic prison chaplain, Rev. James Barry, went into the auditorium during the night and returned saying: "I spoke to several of the prisoners but they don't want me."

Meanwhile, other prisoners were in control of a cross shaped building block housing the prison's main hall, the north wing, the kitchen and what is known as the "dome area." On each side of the block steel-helmeted police and guards stood waiting for the prisoners' next move.

One prisoner in the auditorium was reported to have been badly burned by a gas bomb. He called for a doctor but the doctor did not enter in case he was held as a hostage. Blood plasma was believed sent to the auditorium.

It was not immediately known what the convicts' exact grievances were.

Paul Russell, newest member of Belleville's legal profession was called to the Bar at Osgoode Hall yesterday. He will practise in the offices of Robert Temple.

Wrong Remedy

A Toronto high school principal, William McLauchlin, has told the annual meeting of the Ontario Educational Association that Ontario must soon consider extending the minimum school-leaving age to 18. It is now 16.

He makes out a good case. But we think the remedy he suggests for the conditions he lists is the wrong one.

Mr. McLauchlin says that one-third of the labor force in the next five years will have only elementary school education and this will not be good enough. Agreed. He suggests new schools with a broad program, plus training in a specific skill to sell to some prospective employer. Sounds great for those young people who are willing to work at learning the trade, lack the talents to benefit from the present high school curricula. But young people of this type, we suggest, are in the minority amongst those who drop out of school. Many are lazy. Forcing them to go through the motions of attending school for another two years will do them no good — and will be an unjustified additional burden on the shoulders of taxpayers in general and of their parents in particular.

The best thing to do with those too lazy to work at school is to put them to work elsewhere. This may be another thing than Easter weekend, and it was from the Harrington hide-away that he phoned Allen Price to announce that the Armed Forces vote came in to say that at least he was ready to concede the existence of the powers and privileges of Prime Minister.

He had slept there for the last time as Prime Minister and now it was time for a drive down through the Spring countryside to Gatineau to the Capital and his fateful rendezvous with Mike Pearson.

It must have been a wrench for John Diefenbaker to leave this last leave of lovely Harrington Lake where there had been the peace and quiet and respite from the pressures and where the fine swimming, and more important, the trout fishing, had been so good.

For all there were the first things, as it actually happened, that John Diefenbaker surrendered when he came down the hills at Harrington for the last time. The pine-sweet slopes and the deep lake. It might be necessary to make marriage under the age of 21, but surely that would have to be done in any case, if the school-leaving age were raised. Parents can hardly be required to support a married man, his wife and family because the law says the man must attend school.

Power Export Questionable

J. Herbert Smith, president of Canadian General Electric Co., has suggested the export of Canadian-produced hydro power. This, he says, would 'stimulate employment and ease the nation's balance of payments problem.

On the face of it, the suggestion seems a reasonable one, at the very least. Millions of gallons of water are flowing unused down the Peace, Columbia and Nelson rivers in the West and down in the Saint Lawrence-Ontario watershed in the East. If these waters can be harnessed and the power they would generate sold at a profit, there is a clear gain to the national economy by undertaking such a project.

Unfortunately, there is a potential short circuit of disastrous proportions in such a plan.

The day may come—will come—when Canada will need for her own use all the power her rivers will generate.

Once we start selling this power to the United States, we might as well resign ourselves to continuing, policy if not in perpetuity then just as long as water power is the cheapest kind of power.

Power is such an essential ingredient in the twentieth century economy that its availability would transform those parts of the U.S. to which it was exported in large quantities. The withdrawal of this power would bring economic disaster to these areas, if no alternative source of power were available. Friendly though the U.S. is, Canada cannot afford to wreak havoc in a large segment of the U.S. economy. Reprisals would be inevitable. It follows that, if we started to export this power, we should have to continue to do so.

Issue may be taken with this argument. Nevertheless, it is basically the position which the Columbia Government took on the Columbia development scheme, with Premier W. A. C. Bennett advocating Mr. Smith's policy of power export. The fact that Mr. Smith has a vested interest in the 700,000 man-years of employment he estimates such projects would provide for Canadian construction and manufacturing industries does not, in our opinion, make him a more reliable guide than Premier Bennett.

Moving Day Emotions Same For P.M. As for You and Me

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — What is it like to step down as Prime Minister?

After six years when your every word was law, how does it feel to be stripped of power?

It must have been doubly galling for John Diefenbaker, for he saw his political rival triumphant, doing the very many things he himself had done back on that sunny day in June of 1957.

There was Mike Pearson, with an escort of newspapermen and photographers, leaving Lake Opposition Leader's office that he had left six years ago —and marching three times across Parliament Hill from the Centre Block to the East Block that he once had marched to meet "Uncle Louie" St. Laurent.

The victor always calls on the loser to arrange the take-over of power.

And so, while John Diefenbaker sat under the old painting of Sir John A. Macdonald in that musty East Block office, waiting for Mike Pearson to call he could accurately have helped but think back over the years and see history, as it always does, repeating itself.

FOND FAREWELL

He had risen early that morning.

There were many things to do before he kept his mid-afternoon appointment with the man who was taking his place as Prime Minister.

But there was time for a final stroll and romp with his Golden Lab, the dog "Happy," around the well - groomed grounds of the Harrington Lake Summer Home, 35 miles deep in the greening Gatineau Hills.

He and his wife, Olive, had been there more than the Easter weekend, and it was from the Harrington hide-away that he phoned Allen Price to announce that the Armed Forces vote came in to say that at least he was ready to concede the existence of the powers and privileges of Prime Minister.

He had slept there for the last time as Prime Minister and now it was time for a drive down through the Spring countryside to Gatineau to the Capital and his fateful rendezvous with Mike Pearson.

It must have been a wrench for John Diefenbaker to leave this last leave of lovely Harrington Lake where there had been the peace and quiet and respite from the pressures and where the fine swimming, and more important, the trout fishing, had been so good.

For all there were the first things, as it actually happened, that John Diefenbaker surrendered when he came down the hills at Harrington for the last time. The pine-sweet slopes and the deep lake. It might be necessary to make marriage under the age of 21, but surely that would have to be done in any case, if the school-leaving age were raised. Parents can hardly be required to support a married man, his wife and family because the law says the man must attend school.

NO CHOICE, NOW

There would be regret of an oddly different sort as John Diefenbaker moved from the Prime Minister's official residence at 24 Sussex Drive in the Opposition Leader's home in nearby ritzy Rockcliffe Village.

Neither the Diefenbakers nor the Pearsons owned the homes in which they lived, nor ever much of the furnishings.

The Prime Minister's residence, a $100,000 stone mansion perched majestically on the cliffs high above the Ottawa River, is owned by the Government, and for its use, the PM pays a token annual $5,000 "rent."

The Opposition Leader's home, "Stornoway," is a huge, gracious old $75,000 showplace hidden behind high cedar hedges in what unquestionably is Canada's wealthiest community, Rockcliffe, populated almost exclusively by rich civil servants, ance corporation presidents, embassadors, generals, newspaper publishers, construction magnates and just "ordinary" millionaires.

It was purchased, reconstructed and furnished by a non-partisan group of Conservatives and Liberals for the official use of the Opposition Leader.

And here is the rub . . .

TWO HOMES, TWICE

Diefenbaker, seven years ago, when he was Opposition Leader in the last stages of the Liberal St. Laurent regime, refused to occupy "Stornoway," and lived, instead, in a modest mid-town apartment.

WIVES ARRANGE IT

He would wait, he said, until he was Prime Minister, then move directly into the mansion at 24 Sussex Drive, and save a few dollars on the moving expenses.

His move into "Stornoway" would merely be an expensive and unnecessary "detour" on the road to the Prime Ministers residences.

He was terribly sure of himself in those days — and, as it turned out, he happened to be right.

He made it to 24 Sussex Drive and with no "detours".

But the "detour" had come now: there no longer was a choice.

The Pearsons were moving into the Prime Minister's official residence and the Diefenbakers must move out — and over to "Stornoway."

Olive Diefenbaker and Maryon Pearson arranged it, amicably, by phone.

There really isn't much to move, with nobody owning the rugs, draperies, furniture or kitchen, laundry and dining equipment they had been using these past six years.

Actually, little has to be changed except for personal effects: clothes in the cupboards, of course, and such trophies of the political chase as photographs with the world's great, framed cartoons and growing collections of such things as cigarette trays, cigar boxes, gold-leaf Bibles, and all those odd things that are presented to Prime Ministers and Statesmen Opposition Leaders.

And that is it like then, to step down as Prime Minister? Like moving day for anyone — invigorating, worrisome, and a little sad.

"I have a forty minute wait before I get my prescription . . . so we can have a nice chat".

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 29th, 1918.

On the production of agriculture this year much of the national effort in war rests. Last year the Farm Service Force set up an impressive demonstration of co-operation with the farming men in getting in the crop, seed planting and in harvesting a record crop. This year with the needs still greater than ever because of the larger number of men and women in the military arvices, the larger number of industrial workers, and the more pressing need of providing food for Britain, for the Canadian armed forces and for the civilian populations, the call goes out for greater effort and for the enlistment of larger numbers of volunteer workers in the Ontario Farm Service Force.

A program of nutrition in wartime will be presented in interesting and practical at the monthly meeting of the Queen Alexandra Women's Institute Club. Mrs. Wishart presided, and a pleasing entertainment opened with "O Canada" played by Mrs. R. Gibson. After the discussion of business and the minutes, the room had won the attendance prize, Miss Mary Lou Wishart pleased the members with two readings. The main part of the program followed in the form of a radio broadcast with several stations and food among five lady members - Mrs. R. Morden, Mrs. Sherlock Bayne, Mrs. Finkle, Mrs. Trudals and Mrs. Gordon Barclay.

Queer Ways To Measure

Milwaukee Journal

Ninety percent of the world's population uses the metric system of measures and weights. The United States is out of step with its more than 85 different weights and measures.

Only the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand still use the old English system of the centigrade system of measuring temperature. Britain was in step with the land but switched over last year.

George Washington and Thomas Jefferson urged the United States to adopt the metric system in 1790. Alexander Graham Bell couldn't see such sense in going on with a measuring system that in part grew out of gauges of the hand and foot. The yard, for instance, was the distance between King Henry 1's fingertip and the tip of his nose. Our research scientists, engineers, manufacturers, army and film makers use the metric system now. The army will use it for weapon systems after 1965.

Korea, India and Japan have seen the light and abandoned complex systems of measurements in favor of the metric system. The Indians had some fantastic means of measuring. Hindu tribesmen for example, had a measure called a "kos." It was determined by placing a wet jamun tree leaf in a headcloth and walking until it dried.

The Thais, who now use the metric system formerly had varied measurements on hairs, lice and grains of rice. An atom, for instance, was the width of a hair's breadth. Eight atoms made a molecular and eight molecular a louse egg. Eight hairs' breadths made a louse egg; eight louse eggs a louse, eight lice a grain of rice. Two grains of rice equalled a krabaid and four krabaids equalled a fingerbreadth. A thousand grains of rice was considered a handfull, four handfulls a dipperful, two dipperfuls a liter, 20 liters a basket, 30 baskets a beap and five beaps an cucarthai.

Our system of ounces, pounds, three types of tons, pints, quarts, acres and all the rest is more precise than the Thai system. But it is not as easy to work with as the metric system and one of these days we'll have to get in step with the rest of the world.

Immunize Against Poison Ivy, Pre-Season Treatment

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 18-year-son has only to go near poison ivy and he breaks out with it. Where can I buy pills to prevent the rash? He has been taking the ivy extract. Mrs. J. T.

There are a number of protective medications for poison ivy.

Although I avoid trade names whenever possible, in this case I'll mention two with which I happen to be familiar Tecnifax, a liquid extract, and Aqua Ivy, which comes in tablet form, have been effective in my experience. Doubtless there are others and I do not mean to slight them.

These oral preparations are available in drug stores. Follow the directions carefully - and remember that for maximum effect in building up protection against ivy, one must start taking them early — about three months before contact is expected.

Alternatively, other extracts can be injected under the skin by your doctor's approval. Too much can cause trouble.

Your son obviously is highly sensitive. He doesn't really have to come in contact with "ivy." The sticky juice of leaves or stems must be reaching him. The one thing, if you can call it by the fur of animals, only to be rubbed off on him or bushes which he may brush against. Some people break out from smoke of fires in which ivy is burning — the smoke carries the poison.

Even with pre-season treatment, it is still wise for your son to beware the "leaves of three," because the protection is relative. He may develop an exposure but not always heavy exposure.

If you live where ivy flourishes, destroy it with chemicals. Ammonium sulfamate serves well for this purpose. Your hardware or garden supply store can suggest other chemicals that are also effective.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet, "How Tense Is Headache." According to instructions I have sent 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Are B-12 shots good for migraine headaches?

Mrs. R. C.

They might help in selected cases when headaches are triggered by a run-down condition which can be benefited by the B-12. In most cases, however, a migraine is a migraine. The signs that show when a migraine is about to start. You can often prevent it from coming on then. You'll find more on the subject in the booklet.

Dear Doctor: I recently bought my sister, with whom I live, a plastic bowl in which to feed her dog. Figuring she should use it instead of sns of our table dishes. I claim that feeding a pet from our dishes is very unsanitary and not in good taste. Am I right?

M. M.

In the matter of taste, yes. I think dogs should have their own feeding bowl. Besides, it's good training for a pet to learn to eat from its own dish. As to the question of being unsanitary I see no great danger. Tests have shown that human mouths harbor many more germs. At any rate, I think you chose a tactful way of getting the idea across.

Never take a chance on diabetes. For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sunshine Syndicate, P.O. Box 120, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Brainpower Flow This Way

Sault Ste. Marie Star

University Affairs, a quarterly publication of the Canadian Universities Foundation, suggests that Canada may soon be losing as much brainpower as many people have feared. In fact, during the past two years we may have gained more highly trained people than we lost.

This is the conclusion of a study by E. . Stock of the National Research Council and A. M. Sargent of the Department of Labor about the intentions of Canada's new doctoral and master's graduates in the scientific and engineering fields, whether they plan to enter employment or continue with graduate studies. The study also covers Canadian students who were receiving doctoral degrees from American universities.

Almost 75 per cent of the 423 new doctorates from Canadian universities had firm employment commitments following graduation. Of those entering employment 24 per cent were leaving Canada for positions elsewhere.

However of this group of 74 leaving the country, only 30 were of Canadian citizenship.

Against this outflow was gaining 55 non-Canadians receiving doctoral degrees from Canadian universities, who had decided to remain in Canada, making a net gain of 25.

Canadians receiving doctoral degrees from American universities and entering employment were returning to Canada.

THE PACKSACK

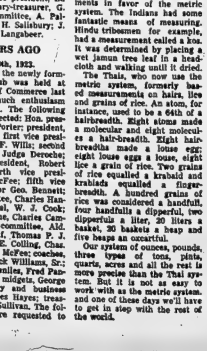
By GREGORY CLARK

St. Francis of Assisi not only preached to the birds and fish and all living creatures. He prayed for them and set a fash. He told men and women in the world over, whatever their Christian denomination. For St. Francis, all the saints belongs to all mankind.

Well, it is the Packsack's duty to remind you that this is the time to remember the wild animal kingdom in your prayers. It is now the season of letting go. It is the next little while that the waterfowl encollapses on the lakes. There are going to be frantic changes in the weather, from cold, to rain, to the blizzard that hits to cold again. And in the hard beaten, flooded inhospitable lots that the deer and the heavy with young, the rabbits are trying to find a dry spot to lay their infants, the two hundred thousand foxes, the millions of mice, the beaver the other why, it is too enormous a comprehension to lay hold of!



And this is the tragic time for them, sorry one.

Maybe it will not do them much good to pray for them.

— But it is likely to do us some good.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

BOBOLINK MIGRATION

Although the first bobolink will probably not enter Canada until May, several weeks ago they started on their northward course because theirs is a long trip, from an area about the size of Ontario in the centre of South America. There they all gathered last autumn, and remained while cold gripped their nesting grounds which reach from the Rockies in the Atlantic, from the farthest north meadowlands of Canada half way down the United States.

Starting north from that district (small for so large a company) with Paraguay at its centre, the migrating bobolinks widen their ranks until the flock stretches from the northwest corner of South America eastward to French Guiana. Then it narrows to a band about 500 miles wide by the time the flock passes over the Caribbean. Keeping a fairly direct path they proceed to about half way up the U.S.; then those with western summer homes turn to the left and those breeding in Quebec or the Maritimes turn e-stward. Bobolinks so far outnumber all other species on this flight that it is sometimes called "the bobolink route".

BY DAY OR NIGHT

Some birds prefer day travel, some night; but bobolinks migrate either time though more often by night. In spite of modern methods of obtaining data on bird migrations, how they find their way still remains a mystery.

Bobolinks that fly northward from Argentina to northwestern Alberta must travel approximately 8,000 miles twice a year. Yet they seem ordinary enough birds, slightly over seven inches long. They leave South America with a sparrowlike appearance, but moult by wearing off feather tips while in flight. By the time the flock has reached Florida, about mid-April, the males have changed entirely in looks. As you know, birds generally are lighter below than above. The male bobolink in spring dress has black underparts though his top side is mostly white and buffy yellow. Indeed, he is quite unusual looking.

SEED-EATER'S BILL

Bobolinks are equipped with the seed-eater's bill because seeds are their choice for autumn; however, in insect season they are insectivorous. Their tails are odd, ending in stiff, pointed feathers.

The song of the bobolink is of grass or grain.

famous. Loud and jolly, it seems to bubble, the notes getting higher and faster as the song progresses. The singer may be on a fence post, but is generally heard as he flies up from the grass on quivering wings. Since grass is the chief material of which the nest is made and grass is the usual setting for the home, a bobolink's territory must include a good-sized field

ROOTED OR ROOTLESS

"Society grows; it is not made." — King Edward VII.

"My husband has been given a promotion, which means we shall be moving to another community," one friend told another, who answered,

"I don't know how I'd feel about leaving here. It's been home all my life. I love every part and parcel of the place. But I must say friends and people whom I knew and grew up with have practically all disappeared for one reason or another. Unless I keep making new friends, which isn't easy for me, I find a sea of strange faces when I go down street to shop, to Church or wherever. Are you glad to be leaving?"

"It's hard to say, I find," the other replied. "We should be used to pulling and pulling down roots by this time, for my husband and I have moved a dozen times in our twenty years of marriage. We watch a place grow and expand. See old landmarks replaced by new. Meet and make new friends who come and go. Get to miss any of our wandering. Each new experience his enriched our lives".

There are two schools of thought on the matter of being rootless.

Christopher Morley, the English writer, says provided a place holds a sense of permanence and stability, it has meaning for and is the best gift a child could have. For it gives him a place to be. To be deeply rooted, in this case, with a place and with is ones friends, the humblest and happiest of life's institutions."

Bertrand Russell thinks there is no such thing; to say a person is a cosmopolitan. He feels one is unbalanced from his native soil loses that precious possession, one's childhood, "much more than one than a rotted plant".

That brave little writer Kathleen Norris, of California, who for reasons of health, could not be about very much, longed to live in the country but to pull up roots for new experience which she describes as a stimulating, characteristic, uncharted. Many she felt needed it in life as a plough in a field.

Some fear and resent new experience, and for them change is not welcome, but sudden twists or surprises. It must be gradual, slow in tempo and in a certain direction. Otherwise they would refuse it, she felt.

Lucky, lucky was the person, he said, who at a vital moment followed the voice within which is the traditional fields of destiny. Who would do it regardless of what the other fellow said who might be more competent, inert or influenced by other's ideas.

The late Isaac Rosenfeld said, since human beings are the most restless animals and intellectuals are the most restless of human beings, they have the animal right to set out unhindered and partake of the joys and discomforts of the rootless life. Due to their intellectual prerogative.

A rooted society, he said, was not healthy, hardly merely a refuge from the fear of animal freedom. Nor did an uprooted society prosper. It withered.

A vigorous society (which by the way should be neither rooted form to animals, not plants,) should be neither rooted nor rootless.

It should, he said, encourage individuality among its traditions, along with the right of everyone to cultivate and choose their own desires, provided no one suffers by this; it should fully expect eccentrics and nonconformists.

Uniformity of type among members was no criterion of a healthy society, he declared. One test was its ability to calmly encounter and learn from the uprooted intellectuals, who for the real freedom to seek out values of the highest order.

Such are four views on the day worker.

How do you feel about the matter?

The world's biggest bomb shelter is at Stockholm. Hewn from solid rock it serves as a garage but could hold 17,000 persons.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAKING A GOOD IMPRESSION

When high schools and colleges let out in June, there'll be a great rush to snap up summer jobs available to students.

Competition will be keen. So, to avoid the stampede, it's a good idea to start making plans right now. Letters of inquiry may be sent during the remaining weeks of school and personal interviews set up in advance of summer vacation. Whichever method of application is used, it's wise to remember that, all things being equal, good manners may be the deciding factor in whether you pull out a plum or not.

When writing a letter of application, here are a few tips to observe:

Be sure to address the letter to the proper person, not just to a title. If you don't know the name of the personnel director, for instance, make it your business to find out.

Be sure to enclose a brief resume, giving particulars about your education and any previous experience you may have had. Names of references, both business and personal, should be included.

NEATNESS NECESSARY

Make sure the letter and resume are neat as can be and, if possible, carefully typed on clean white paper. If you make typos or smudge the copy, take time to do the whole thing over rather than send in an unattractive package that's hard to read. The head of personnel has only your correspondence on which to base his first impression. If it's neat and well-organized, you're already one step ahead of the game, right unseen.

When a personal interview is arranged, be prompt and properly dressed. If an office job is at stake, wear a suit or a simple afternoon dress free of any ornate decoration. Hat and gloves are "musts."

Stand when the interviewer comes into the room and shake hands if he offers. Hold your bag and gloves on your lap and only place them on his desk if he invites you to.

DIRECT — CONCISE

When answering questions, be direct and concise. Rambling stories and reminiscences are not appreciated by a busy executive. Speak clearly and beware of nervous mannerisms, like giggling between sentences and twisting a handkerchief in your hand.

At the end of the interview, stand and say good-bye to the interviewer and, be sure to thank him for seeing you. If he says he'll let you know his decision, refrain from calling every hour on the hour — to find out. It takes time to consider an application and check references. Be patient and wait until you hear the final outcome.

In the meantime, be sure to write him a note thanking him for taking time to see you. It's a small courtesy, but it may be the final reference needed to clinch the job.

Women Like To Work Night Shift

MONTREAL (CP)—The first Canadian labor legislation in 1884 prohibited women working at night.

Today, of course, many women work overnight shifts in various industries and occupations.

Most, if not all, of this early legislation," says Evelyn Wolfenster, "not only fixed the maximum hours women and young persons, but also the limits within which these hours could be worked. The effect was to prohibit night work for women.

Miss Wolfenster's remarks are contained in a report she has compiled for the women's section of the federal labor department.

"The evidence," she wrote, "there is no general law limiting daily and weekly hours of work as there is in Ontario."

But in some industries hours are regulated under specific statutes. These for instance re-strict women to working 10 hours a day or more than 55 hours a week in industries of towns with more than 10,000 population.

MOSTLY TEXTILES

One labor department official said that "only in peak seasons for such industrists as seconds-type textiles are many women involved. Most of the night work done in Canada by women is in the traditional fields of employment such as hospitals and restaurants."

But there's a Montreal housewife who has spent 41 years as a night-time telephone operator. Mme. Jeanne Lardie works with 32 other women on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift.

"I prefer to work nights," she said. "It's more interesting than working days. We've had people phone us at night just because they wanted someone to talk to."

Mrs. Violette Monast is another who likes night work. "I find night work more agreeable to my temperament," she said. She is a night supervisor at Queen Elizabeth Hotel. "I hate getting up early in the morning and working all day. I'd rather get my housework and shopping done first."

Mrs. Constance Carignan started to work part-time at nights as a dietary aide at the Montreal General Hospital. She sets out for the hospital when her husband comes home from his day's work.

And Florence Elford, a night supervisor for 30 years at Montreal General Hospital, said: "Sometimes the work is lonely but I don't regret a night of it."

Probably most of the women night workers feel like Mrs. Lardie.

"When I tell people I work at night, they think I do nothing but sleep all day," she said. "But I have just as much time to putter in my garden as a day worker."

The only difference is that she does her gardening when the sun is coming up. "They do theirs when the sun is going down."

Advertising Soars Sky High Over Crowded Miami Beach

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Lying on our backs in the sun of the American Hotel's pool patio and looking out over the ocean, we learned that:

You can buy "fashion tress wigs" by Bess . . .

Or "pampered pups" for 60 cents . . .

And a white porpoise named Caroline Snowball performs daily at the Miami Seaquarium . . .

A Turkish belly dancer named Kismet was dancing somewhere . . .

We could rent a motor scooter . . .

And that a certain restaurant had added meat dishes to its dairy menu, another was featuring fruit blintzes, and somebody "tasses to please" at a downtown strip joint.

All this effortlessly absorbed intelligence is spoon fed to one of the world's most flamboyant (but captive) publics — the thousands of visitors along the Gold Coast's golden strand—by the world's greatest fleet of aerial advertising planes, many times called the Miami Beach Air Force.

People on vacation sometimes won't even listen to the radio or read a newspaper. But in fiercely competitive Miami Beach, it was inevitable that someone would dream up a way to get through to them. The idea is not certain, but for the past 20 years or so, planes towing signs have been one of the most effective means of advertising ever devised south of Madison Ave.

FLYING HIGH

Oldest and primest contractor in this line is Joseph E. Lee Gilbert, a retired theatre and motion picture entrepreneur from Boston who, he says, just couldn't get away from big letters. Finding himself in the unfamiliar surroundings of light planes after the war, he set up aerial shop here and has been flying high ever since.

Now in his 70's (though he looks 20 years younger), Gilbert no longer flies himself. He does, however, operate a fleet of five planes which make as many as 20 excursions a day along the beach and over other places of public assembly such as the tracks. His clients currently include more than 250 different firms and 50 kinds of businesses, including restaurants, night clubs, sightseeing operations, theatres, tracks jai alai frontons, shoe stores and realtors. Profits are boosted if festive seems to be indicated by the fact that Gilbert has all the business he can handle.

The banners are 250-foot long strips of linen netting on which lettering, cloth or paper are snapped on and secured with straps. An average sign has 600 square feet. It takes two hours to assemble and an hour to tear down. A single crane and boom truck and surrounding areas costs an advertiser $50.00 an hour, or three trips for $100.00.

The hardest part of the business is getting the signs into the air, a technique worthy of barnstorming pilots of yore, and one that requires a crew of Gilbert's employees away to look for easy jobs, like wing-walking.

The signs, the banners are carted by truck to Gilbert's operating field at Perry Field in nearby Hollywood. Here they are unfurled, and the taxiing plane's tow hook cuts them while gaining take-off speed. This is somewhat akin to threading a needle with spaghetti in the middle of a running broad jump.

Over the years competition has led to ever more imaginative signs and techniques (remote a circus), a 14-foot porpoise, a jockey on a horse, a Black Angus steer ("This is no boar steer," read the restaurant's sign), and a much-bigger-than-life jai alai player. However, he had to farm out to a blimp the biggest job ever offered him, a series of 350-foot long, 12-foot high posters which were used as the titles for the movie "Hole in the Head".

Some techniques have been tried and discarded as too ambitious. Among these were lighted trailers for night advertising (not enough generator power in the planes) and the now familiar ideas, a man suspended from a huge kite lofted into the air by a speed boat ("Too dangerous," admits Gilbert).

Gilbert's pie-in-the-sky has not been without its sour spplash. Once a plane made an emergency landing on N.W. 27th Ave., one of the area's busiest thoroughfares, tying up traffic for hours until it was dismantled and carted away. A too-low flight over a track ("Get even tonight at Jai-Alai," read the banner) grounded a power line and knocked the daylights out of the peri-mutual machines. Gilbert held his breath waiting for the sheriff—until the press got for the track called off—and thanked him for the greatest unplanned publicity stunt in his career.

Only one pilot ever landed in the ocean. It seems he became so engrossed observing through binoculars the ladies in the rooftop solaria of the beachfront hotels . . .

But Gilbert is philosophical about it all. Just another occupational hazard of being in business in Miami Beach.

QUESTION:

We have just finished eating the last of our 1963 Hot Cross Buns — we like last year's better! We baked them so well. I made 7 lots and week for my freezer and they were lovely when used — the texture was just as nice as fresh baked. I make them all year with just raisins leaving the fancier ones for Easter time. My husband likes them with his breakfast toasted. I would like to know if it is lovely! I made one Hot Cross Bun recipe leaving out fruit. I rolled out the dough to about ½" thickness, then spread with melted butter, rolled up, and cut in slices, let rise and bake either in 2 square pans around or 1 square and 1 spring form pan. Then I put thin icing on, and believe me they are delicious but I've no idea what they might be called but thought you might like to pass the idea along. Oh — I brushed tops with honey first before baking. I wonder if you have a recipe for all bran fudge squares. That is old . . . also any bran recipes you have besides muffins . . . would you have any suggestions or a good recipe for Boston Brown Bread, one with whole wheat flour and molasses in mine. Could you tell me how to make jelly from canned apple juice? — Lucy E. D.

ANSWER:

Your ideas using my '62 Hot Cross Bun recipe are so good that I am including them in full below for those who are curious.

I am glad you asked for the recipe for

WINTER APPLE JELLY:

Four cups canned apple juice, 1 teaspoon ground whole cloves. Bring to hard rolling boil, add a full bottle of certo, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, few red food coloring; boil hard 1 minute. Remove from heat, skim. Pour into hot sterile jars-tin. Yield: 9 glasses jelly.

1962 HOT CROSS BUNS (1½ dozen) (Recipe from March 26/62):

¾ cup milk (scalded), 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 package granular yeast, ½ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, (more flour below), ¼ cup soft butter (or margarine or shortening), ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1 beaten egg, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ (or ¾) teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ cup currants or raisins or mixed peel or 1-3 cup each, 3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour (second amount).

Scald milk first. Add the 1 tablespoon sugar and stir until lukewarm in large mixing bowl. Add the 1 teaspoon sugar to the ½ cup lukewarm water in a measuring cup, and sprinkle yeast evenly over top of water. Give it one little stir and let stand for 10 minutes, or until it rises to top of cup. When milk is lukewarm add yeast liquid to it and beat in the 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour until smooth. Cover and let rise at 80 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes. When sponge is bubbly add butter, ½ cup sugar, beaten egg, salt, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, fruit and 2 cups of the second amount of flour. Mix as well as you can in bowl. Sprinkle board with remaining ¼ cup flour, turn dough out on board and knead 300 times. Place in greased bowl, butter the top, and allow to rise until doubled, covered. This requires 1 to 1½ hours. Ideal room temperature is 90 deg. Fahr. Turn dough out on lightly floured board. Knead it down and cut in half. Roll each half about your pan size, cut, roll and cut into 9 uniform pieces — making 18 balls in all. Flatten each ball with palm and place on greased baking sheets 2" apart. Brush tops on each with bark of knife. Let rise until light and doubled. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 18 minutes but when baked but still pale and unbrowned brush with slightly beaten egg white to glaze and return to oven to brown lightly. Cool on cake rack. When cool, make a mix together ¾ cup sifted icing sugar, 1 tablespoon warm milk and ½ teaspoon vanilla and four in fine stream into crevices on top of buns to form cross.

NOT WHAT YOU WEAR — BUT HOW YOU WEAR IT!

Costume jewellery,. when blended with Aunt Maggie's heirlooms, can round out a sparse collection, and add a note of individuality. Little pins, graduated in size and fashioned to resemble plump, self-important bees, studded with fake emeralds and rubies are called by their designer, "He Bees" and "She Bees." (Nothing banal or dull, such as drones and queen bees, for this imaginative lady!) These bees are worn, either one on each lapel, or close together on the left side of a dress or suit. They can wander down to the waistline of a simple dress.

This same designer loathes scarves, liking to fill in a bare neck line with delicate chains, or fat pearls, depending on the nature of the costume. Bracelets are her special love. Her collection comprises gold metals "tubes" mixed with real 14-carat, gold link and bangle types. She is fond of using precious stones and uses them lavishly.

Most businesswomen and many homemakers say they dislikes bracelets because they are a distraction at the desk and hamper freedom of movement. This designer is right-handed and we notice that the bracelet on arm was free of jewellery, except in the evening. No one could accuse her of being dull and she certainly is not inefficient! Her bracelets were not worn by her simply to display herself. They were functional.

Another of her specialities is millinery — not your real millinery. She like millinery, which adapts itself to the head. This milliner feels that the hat itself must be soft. To watch her model a simple taffeta cloche was a joy. She took what, in her eyes, was a plain-brimmed hat, angled it on her head, jabbed in a few times, dinted the crown, turning it before our eyes into a Paris creation. Another taffeta turban in her hands and on her head, became a simple, profile beret, a back-swept fisherman's beret and then a halo, all in that order, all with a distinctive flair.

We watched her remove ceremitalous trims from a straw hat, setting the remaining skeleton on the model's head to arrive at pure beauty. She took ready-made garments, good, but uninspiring in themselves, and by the addition of unusual accessories, she transformed them into pictures from the quality fashion houses.

Her fashion creed is color and silhouette first — then the individual touch. This last, springs from her excellent sense of fashion and a feeling of balance, combined with true practicality.

LACK TIME AND PEACE

MONTREAL (CP)—Novelist, critic and university lecturer Monique Bosco says women in the field of art are handicapped because they lack time and peace of mind. The author of "Un Amour Maledroit," says a single woman usually works in the daytime and does housework at night. When married she has a family to look after. "Once a man comes home, his time is his own."

Why Princess Alexandra Prefers Kilts to Crown

by HELEN CATHCART

Royal Biographer — author of the recent best-seller Her Majesty — Helen Cathcart is widely considered the best-informed royal writer in the world.

A young Princess called on a bachelor boy in a trailer caravan at Birkhall, the Queen Mother's home near Balmoral.

They chatted enthusiastically of the fun of keeping house — and that's one of the stexins of circumstance that leads H.R.H. Princess Alexandra of Kent, Angus Ogilvy to their marriage in Westminster Abbey next week. (April 24).

Angus once boasted, "I'm too old for marriage. They can't catch me!" These now rank as famous last words. Yet they were uttered when he had been friendly for years with the Princess. Neither realized they had already crossed the great divide of friendship that leads into love.

For Angus Ogilvy the moment of truth was probably during Princess Alexandra's Far East tour in 1961 when she was perturbed at the loss of a scruffy teddy-bear which she always took on her travels as a lucky mascot.

The blushing Scotsman bought a replacement teddy in a London department store and had it specially flown out to her.

During her unwonted absence, Angus missed the Princess acutely. Perhaps, for the first time in his realized that a bride of the blood royal was not beyond his reach, and the Ogilvy family motto is, "To the finish!"

Princess Alexandra always said she wouldn't hurry about getting married. "When I do, it will be for love," she once confided. She is now 26, the bridegroom 33.

In the end the announcement of her engagement was delayed in order that it could be timed for her beloved mother's wedding anniversary. Thus a day of sadness was turned into an occasion of happiness — a pleasant example of a daughter's thoughtfulness.

STRANGE CORRESPONDENCE

Yet family history elicits a still stranger coincidence.

When Alexandra and Angus knceel at the altar of the Abbey on April 24, the Queen Mother will remember that it is just 40 years, bar two days, since she was herself wedded to King George VI, then Duke of York.

George of York set his heart at the feet of a Scottish girl, despite the intervening hopes of every eligible princess in Europe. And Alexandra of Kent is all set to marry a Scottish commoner after spurning every eligible bachelor crown prince in sight.

FIRM FRIENDS

What is more, the Queen Mother's influence in their love affair has proved persuasive. When she was a girl at Glamis, the Bowes-Lyons and the Ogilvys were firm friends and neighbors, constantly teaming up for visits and picnics.

This hospitable trend continued while the Queen Mother was chatelaine at Balmoral, where, Alexandra and Angus first met as children. When Princess Alexandra was 17 and Angus 24, they met again at Birkhall and went strolling among the cabbages in the kitchen garden, decisively aware of Dan Cupid's darts.

As long ago as 1954, when Princess Alexandra visited North America, her letters gave hints that she missed Angus Ogilvy's companionship.

FAMILY FRIENDSHIP

The two families were close. On competing their official duties in Canada, Princess Marica and her daughter went to stay in New York with Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan. And just who were the Ryans, privileged to entertain royalty in their lush Manhattan apartment? They were parents of the pretty American girl - an heiress of the Otto Kahn millions - who had married Angus's elder brother, David, Lord Ogilvy.

John Ryan brought out his color camera and had fun photographing the three Ogilvy brothers, David, Angus and James, among the Gothic arches and battlements of Cortachy and Airlie, their ancestral castles.

Princess Alexandra visited rambling Cortachy shortly afterwards. Then it seemed Angus and the Princess were at every meeting . . . at dances and weekend parties, in the motor-racing pit at Goodwood.

At an Eton charity ball, Angus and the Duke of Kent managed the raffle while the Princess handed out the prizes. "Too bad, Angus," she quipped, "I've no prize for you.

At this time she candidly thought herself heart-whole. She seemed oblivious to the hopes, often openly expressed, that a love-match and a high dynastic marriage might be combined.

MUCH PLANNING

When Prince Philip of Greece courted Princess Elizabeth, now Queen Elizabeth, a flurry of aunts and cousins boosted the attractive equivalent idea that Princess Alexandra might one day, through marriage, become Queen of Greece or Queen of Norway or Queen of Spain.

Love cannot grow in a vacuum and Princess Marina was tireless in creating the climate of social acquaintance and family connection that would give her daughter full freedom of choice.

Alexandra swam in a tidal ebb-and-flow of royal cousins. Private holiday journeys were focused repeatedly on Athens and the isle of Corfu, the summer home of Alexandra's "Uncle Paul," the King of Greece.

The Kents entertained the Greek royal family on frequent occasions at their London residence. Gradually the hope was openly expressed that Princess Alexandra and King Paul's handsome son, Crown Prince Constantine, might again ally the Greek and British royal families.

When Alexandra attended the famous "Princesses Ball" given by King Gustav of Sweden, in the royal palace in Stockholm, handsome dark-eyed Constantine was her frequent partner.

HAD OTHER DUTIES

On the other hand, when the Prince and Queen of Greece visited London last year, Princess Alexandra was probably absent on Northern Ireland . . . and when Constantine last checked into Claridge's in London, the Princess was engaged on royal duties in Portsmouth.

Examining her heart, Alexandra felt a warm affection for her young cousin. But he was more than three years her junior and she bluntly had no wish to change her religion or live in the exile that a foreign marriage entailed.

Meanwhile, Angus Ogilvy was always in the background, a staunch and reliable friend. He had a regular eight-hour-day job with a London insurance broker. After office hours he squired the Princess to concerts for they share a passion for Scottish and Chopin and in return Alexandra often sat beside him at rugger matches, unencumbered with half-frozen.

The marriage of her brother, the Duke of Kent, to Katherine Worsley was probably a final landmark in resolving her own marriage plans.

Returning to his secluded bachelor home in Mayfair, Angus realized that his bachelor catchkey opened only on loneliness. This sensation intensified when Princess Alexandra was absent on her long solo tour of the Orient.

Though Angus Ogilvy is a plain 'Mister,' his eligibility was never in question. Alexandra is a granddaughter of King George VI but Angus is a son of one of the premier earls of Scotland and ranks descent from Robert the Bruce.

MANY FAMILY HEROES

The men of Ogilvy have been heroes through history. A Master of Ogilvy perished in 1547 after an epic stand against the Scots. Another Master of Ogilvy joined bonnie Prince Charlie and fought at Culloden. Angus Ogilvy's uncle this tough family streak into the hard-fought modern battlefields of banking, industry, the stock market and property.

Angus himself holds down 29 directorships, their influence ranging from TV and tin-mining to Brazilian land holdings and Transvaal estate. His great-grandfather founded the Prairie Land Company in the covered wagon days and the family still holds vast slabs of California, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

Old folk recall an Ogilvy marriage when bride and bridegroom drove to Cortachy with an escort of 80 mounted tenant farmers.

The horses were unhitched at the castle gates and cheering tenants drew the carriage the rest of the way with plaited ropes of Ogilvy tartan.

Modern ways are plainer. When Princess Alexandra went by Mini-minor, smallest of baby cars. She tremendously enjoys being a Princess, but is also equally eligible to be a plain Mrs.

IT'S HARD to make exposed pipes look like anything but what they are. In your child's, or playroom, you might try changing them into flowering vines. Wind plastic flowers and leaf garlands around them. "Grow" the fantastic plant from a pot made of painted cardboard bent in a circle at the base of the pipes.

Dean of Ont. Addresses St. Thomas' W.C.Y. on 'Progress'

The ladies of St. Thomas' Church attended a corporate communion on April 10th. Coffee was served at the Parish Hall, followed by a brief meeting of the women's church year.

During the March meeting the W. C. Y. were pleased to have as their guest speaker the Very Rev. A. T. B. Browne, D.D., Dean of Ontario.

Dean Browne stated that "one measures the progress of a parish by the work of its members; their love for their fellow man, and their eagerness to help others".

To illustrate his message, he referred to the 12 playing cards as the main pegs by which one constructs his life. "The King stood for the King of Kings, in whose name we do everything. The Queen represented love and the sanctity of the home. The Knave was the workman who toiled endlessly, with the Ten Commandments standing for self-discipline. The nine represented the nine lepers who neglected to give thanks — thanksgiving should be part four nature, leading to beauty and strength. Happiness was summed up in the eight — happy are they who can see the mysteries of life without a complex. The seven was the answer to St. Peter's question, "What is the limit of forgiveness?". Not seven, but seventy times seven."

Initiative was illustrated by the six water pots filled with wine, and ingenuity by the five loaves of bread. Contrast in neighborliness was provided in the story of the Good Samaritan, and the number two depicted the difference present when we want to be at our best and fall short of the mark."

Dean Browne concluded by saying, "The Lord is One" and each individual is important in the eyes of the Lord.

The Golden Years

Learning to Play Not So Easy After You Reach Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

"We have not had much time to learn to play, and are wondering if it will be too difficult after we retire for us to adjust to a life where we could have some fun . . ."

Out of one of the glamorous retirement areas of the country comes this problem of a man and wife who both have been working for salaries for many years. They want to move to Southern California to do their playing.

"We fear that a lack of money may somewhat limit our chances of switching from a life of work to a life of play," according to the wife. "So we would appreciate an appraisal of our prospects in the light of what we own . . ."

Their resources: $17,000 in a savings account; $2,000 in government bonds; $3,000 in an investment fund; $3,100 in a second mortgage; and a home that is clear and worth about $11,000.

"Our combined pensions will bring us about $300 a month," they say. "Our plan would be to rent our Denver house for $100 a month and keep our savings intact. We would buy a new home in Southern California for not more than $12,000. We would hope to pay $750 down and get a mortgage on it that would cost not more than $97 a month. We would expect taxes to be not more than $22 a month.

"Before retirement arrives we would save enough extra money for the $750 down payment and for a good, conservative car. We would move our furniture in a rented trailer attached to our car . . ."

NOT MUCH ACTIVITY

This couple's social activity over recent years has been bridge-playing, on Saturday nights, about twice a month. Nothing more.

Can they have what they think they want?

From the money standpoint, yes. Their savings total just over $25,000 which, at 4 per cent, will bring them about $84 a month. The house rent adds another $100, and pensions $300, for a grand total of $384. They can live well on it, and buy their new house.

But they should rent quarters in California for at least a year. Only then can they be reasonably sure that the home they buy is what they will want for the long pull. They might well consider renting their old home, as planned, then at the end of a year—if they then know for sure that Denver is out of their blood —selling their old home. And buying the new one for cash. A mortgage at 65 is a lot of bother and in the case of a couple with enough money already and with a yen to play, it seems pointless.

If they follow this suggested plan they will have, a year after retirement, a paid-for retirement home and an income of $384 a month. They will be in fine shape for playing . . . and in a good spot to do it.

But fun—and here's where the rub comes—is not so much fun as this couple thinks it'll be. Or as most people approaching retirement think.

OTHER SIDE OF FENCE

Gee. The whole day free, and no work to do. And all sorts of things to play at! Play looks prettier to people than work, as a rule, only because it's on the other side of the fence. Free hours look prettier than regimented hours for the same reason. Once the retired person gets over the fence, he finds the golf, the socializing, the fishing, and all the rest begin to lose their allure. After a while it takes an effort to get up and go out and play.

There are exceptions to this general pattern. But it is doubtful that the couple in Denver, which has had time for only two bridge games a month, will be exceptions. Playing is not a natural inclination in the sixties, and the Denver couple, who at best is rusty at it, will have to learn how to have fun. They can do it, but they are going to have to work at it. Pretty hard.

Which isn't so sad. A couple with a home and $384 a month settling in California has only to look around at the dynamic life there and decide which morsel of it to pick—looking a bit more for satisfaction and pleasure than for fun. Fun is fun to 40 or so. After 60 it's contentment.

Public Control

to do anything, unless there is some very powerful public reason for doing so."

Earlier, for the second consecutive sitting, the legislature had been occupied with the government's action in guaranteeing an $85,000 bank loan to help the H. J. Fairfield Company renew operations at its vacant plant in Owen Sound. The loan guarantee was the first the province has made under its new development agency.

SOUGHT STATEMENT

Mr. MacDonald had asked Mr. Macaulay Thursday night for a statement on the transaction, saying a company known as Jamaica Woollens had failed after receiving a loan from the Jamaican Industrial Development Corporation and was being investigated now by a royal commission.

The NDP leader said it had been alleged that officers of the Jamaica company had used $160,000 of the industrial development loan to pay back salaries. He said Lorimer Fairfield was the company's first president and it had begun operations after a Fairfield company at Preston, Ont., had folded in 1958 or 1959.

Mr. Macaulay replied Friday that the government had had no direct dealings with Lorimer Fairfield. He said Lorimer and Mr. Fairfield had approached the government for such a guarantee late last year, but was "turned down because of our knowledge of his past experience in Jamaica," the minister said.

SHARES IN ESCROW

Mr. Fairfield later retired voluntarily from the company's management and his controlling shares were put in escrow, Mr. Macaulay went on. Five Owen Sound citizens volunteered their services without cost as directors of the company.

The government had then decided that the company should be re-organized and refinanced to keep its 75 employees working.

"It seemed we were missing a magnificent opportunity . . . just for the sake of avoiding this sort of criticism," he said.

It was learned Friday that Fairfield will probably be introduced Monday to allow the sale of colored margarine in Ontario. Agriculture Minister William A. Stewart has called a press conference for Monday morning, at which the bill is expected to be explained.

Attorney-General Fred Cass introduced legislation to ensure that people who supply labor, materials or services on provincial public works projects are paid in full. It would allow the government to pay any creditors and reclaim the amount from money owed to the contractor by the government.

STIFFEN MEDICAL ACT

The health and welfare committee approved amendments to the Medical Act which raise maximum penalties for persons convicted under the act of the illegal practice of medicine.

The fine for a convicted first offender was raised to $500 from $100; to $1,000 from $500 for a second offence; and to $1,000 plus six months in jail for subsequent offences.

Mr. Macaulay promised a special meeting next Friday to discuss the economic problems of Lake Erie commercial fishermen.

He said he would meet John Spence (L — Kent East) and representatives of the Lake Erie fishermen "to see how we can assist them in terms of marketing and in terms of finance."

Mr. Spence said perch prices were so low recently that fishermen dumped tons of their catch back into the lake rather than accept the market price.

The income of some of the fishermen was $1,200 a year, the Liberal member said.

Story of Terror

as the man's condition deteriorated. The morning also brought with it a howling blizzard forcing members of the party to remain huddled in their tents.

He stripped himself to the waist and bathed himself with a sharp object which was immediately taken away from him. He started to throw things around the tent and finally picked up the hot stove and threw it outside.

TRIED TO CUT SELF

He tried to fashion a weapon out of a tin can and cut himself.

He was seized and bound with lampwick, a material used for smoldering fires.

This action was accomplished without any struggle. The man accepted soft - spoken advice that the step was necessary for his own protection and so that he could go home.

For the next three days and nights the blizzard raged.

The party was completely immobile. Members maintained three-hour watches for the three days and nights to ensure that no harm came to the man and that he was comfortable.

The RCMP said that Constable J. C. A. Genereux of Schefferville early on Feb. 24 by plane for the camp in a Laurentian Air Services plane piloted by Lester Best.

After the plane landed the man offered no resistance. He was placed aboard the aircraft and flown to Schefferville. He later recovered.

Ann Landers

Time Heals—Otherwise Humans Could Not Survive

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Six months ago Timmy gave me an engagement ring. I was the happiest girl in the world. We went together two years and he was the kindest, most considerate person I had ever known.

We spent our weekends looking for a little home to buy and we even had some furniture picked out. Tim was never out of my thoughts and I'm sure it was the same with him.

Some things are too good to be true and maybe this is the way it was with Timmy and me. He was killed in an accident five weeks ago. When our minister came to the house to tell me the terrible news I became hysterical and they had to call the doctor. I was in bed for three days.

No one else can ever take Timmy's place. I will never fall in love again. Would it be wrong to continue to wear his engagement ring? My mother has been pleading with me to put it away and forget. She says I'm torturing myself.

Is it wrong to cling to this wonderful memory? Please, Ann, help me.—BLACK BLACK BLACK.

DEAR FRIEND—Your mother has given you sound advice. I hope you take it. There's a big difference between cherishing a memory and attempting to hang on to something which no longer exists.

Time heals. The pain will gradually diminish and one day it will disappear. If this were not a fact, life would be unbearable.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—As the wife of a personnel manager I've been fairly close to office problems of every type. May I offer some suggestions for women employees?

1. Forget your feminine wiles during office hours. You'll advance faster by concentrating on your specific assignment.

2. Don't try to take over the office. Bossy people are resented. Especially women.

3. Don't toot your own horn. If you are competent and productive everyone will know it.

4. Stop the gossip and small cliques to yourself. Your boss has enough to think about without becoming enmeshed in petty office problems.

5. Avoid becoming chummy with married co-workers. Don't ask them to pick you up or to drive you home.

6. Never call your boss by his first name. Keep it on a Mr. basis at all times. And address all other executives by their titles, too.

7. Forget everything you know about the office personnel when you go home at night. And forget what went on at home when you leave for the office in the morning.—BUTTE.

DEAR BUTTE—You've packed a lot of common sense into limited space. I hope your letter lands on many an office bulletin board.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How to Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

Successful Living

By DORIS CLARK

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Ex-Mental Patients' Recovery Group

DORIS CLARK

Do you panic when you oversleep in the morning? Do you get all hot and bothered when you have to answer a question in public? When the milk boils over or the vacuum cleaner balks, does it ruin your day? Take a lesson from Recovery Incorporated, a ten-year-old organization for nervous people and ex-mental patients, dreamed up by an overworked psychiatrist.

Dr. Abraham Low believed that he could help solve the problem of professional shortages by talking to fifty people at once instead of just one. Out of his experiments came a book entitled "Mental Health Through Will Training," and the club known as Recovery, Inc., which now has branches in many American and Canadian cities.

Members learn that it is usually the trivial and not the major problems which upset us. They find that even panicky people can use specific techniques, to chase away the bugaboos and help them find serenity. Recovery, Inc., does not eliminate the doctor; it follows through on his treatment, helping to prevent relapses and making continuing improvement possible. It has been found especially helpful with tense people and those with nervous symptoms.

HOW IT WORKS

Mary R., ex-mental patient, piled her three children in the car to start out on her 40-mile trip to the airport to meet her husband. She turned the key in the ignition but the car would not start. After several efforts, she glanced at her watch. She had barely time to make it! She ran into the house, pushed the phone book with her fingers down the page with vision so blurred she could not see. Eventually she reached the garage man, who said he would be there just as fast as he could get there.

Just four minutes later she panicked and called again; the man on the other end, in a rather bewildered tone, said the truck had not yet had time to get out of the garage. Sheepishly she sat down. "Recovery" thinking took over. She calmed herself.

Once on her way, she found that the main road was closed. Panic rose again; she found her head shaking and her pulse racing. She asked directions of a roadside stand but did not register one word that was said. When she came to a fork in the road, she paused, confused, until her daughter told her which way to go.

She speeded up, and so did her pulse, until it dawned on her that her husband would be more pleased to see his family all intact than to have them arrive on time. She was carrying precious cargo.

She invoked about four "Recovery" principles, and these they were: She told herself:

1. I am an average person and I cannot do the impossible. My husband, too, is an average person, and no harm will be done if he must wait for us.

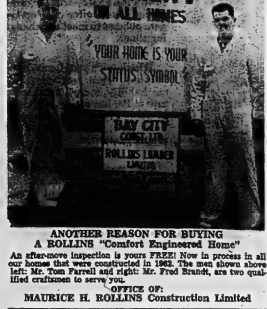
2. I can't change my entire environment, but I can the inner.

3. I must think of my children and take care of all of us ("group mindedness").

4. My symptoms (perspiration, headache, fast pulse, tension) are distressing but not dangerous. I can put up with this discomfort.

Mary B arrived at the airport relaxed and with a smile for her husband, who had waited just ten minutes for their arrival.

Prior to Recovery Inc., she said, she would have had a headache all the next day; she would have resented any remarks from her husband; she would have been very sorry for herself.



* * *

Every small triumph is a step forward. In group discussions a person who has experienced the devastation of a nervous breakdown can share experiences and build up his own security. Feelings of isolation and stigma have no place where all have had the same misfortune. The philosophy of temper control, the practical good sense of "commanding the muscles," and other teachings are thought-provoking.

Mr. Pearson said March 20 that it is an "absolute necessity" for Canada to keep on good terms with the U.S.

This doesn't mean, however, that the new Liberal government intends to kow-tow to Washington.

"We'll be prepared to ruffle when we have to," one source said.

A good example of this may be a Canadian declaration of a 12-mile territorial limit. The limit now is three miles and two international conferences in recent years failed to reach agreement on broadening it.

Mr. Pearson said at Charlottetown March 19 that Canada should declare a 12-mile limit unilaterally. Both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and former Liberal Prime Minister St. Laurent rejected such action, partly on the grounds that the U.S. might retaliate with quotas or higher tariffs against Canadian fish imports.

Tempering Self-Assurance Key to Attaining Greatness

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

"Self-trust is the first secret of success." So wrote Emerson. A certain amount of self-assurance is necessary to get us started in life and to keep us going. It was not until after months, nay years, of discouragement and disappointment that Thackeray gained a hearing from the public. But he had taken measures of his intellectual capabilities, and knowing what he could do if an opportunity were given him, he waited without repining until it came. His self-assurance saved him.

Yet while self-assurance can thus sustain a person, it may also prove his undoing. The collapses of cleverness and self-confidence are too numerous to need recounting. In the treatment of an entrenched habit like that of drunkenness, the victim must be brought to the point where he no longer thinks that he can manage himself, and where he puts his trust in a higher power. How far then is self-assurance a virtue to be encouraged?

MATTER OF TEMPERING

Perhaps we think that the answer to this question depends on a person's temperament. If he is timid or doubting, then self-confidence should be inculcated. If he is by nature boastful and conceited, then restrain his self-assurance. But would not a deeper observation be that self-assurance is a matter of tempering rather than temperament. Belief in oneself is a native ore which needs to be tempered into the steel of strong character.

Beethoven said of Rossini that he had in him the making of a great musician if he had only been well-flogged as a boy, but that he had been spoiled by his facility of composition. However that may be, Beethoven's estimate of Rossini, it is a fact that early success and facility have often not been tempered by sufficient hardship and struggle to make a great talent. Great art has usually come out of great tribulation.

For great living the native ore of self-confidence must be tempered into an assurance that can steel the character against the attrition of adversity, the tension of delay, and the attacks of opposition. And if I sense the mood of our time, it is such tempered self-assurance that we need now. Mere buoyant self-confidence is not enough for these times. We need a deeper and divine assurance.

And for this I offer the formula of the Psalmist in the one hundred twelfth Psalm: "He shall not be afraid of evil tidings; his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord."

When a man's "heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord," he gets the self-assurance which comes from the greatness of God. We little men move about our daily rounds somewhat as a spider crawls up the sides of a skyscraper. He comes to a mortared crevice between the stones, and what a barrier it seems to him. He reaches an overhanging ledge of stone, and he thinks how topsy-turvy the building is.

LIMITED OUTLOOK

So we move about the immensities of God. We are prone to judge the nature of things by the little measures and hands we know. When our outlook is thus limited, we have no perspective which can prepare us for untoward circumstances. We need to be lifted out of our littleness to catch the perspective of God's greatness. That is why Paul's Psalming, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, whence cometh my strength. My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth." Thus the greatness of God calmed the Psalmist's shrinking soul.

And we get assurance also from the goodness of God. Jesus pictured God as a Father whom we can trust. How it helps our self-assurance to know that others are trusting Him.

Well do I recall my first efforts at public speaking. My mother had been a teacher and sometimes gave readings. She wanted her boy to be a speaker. So I was put up to "speak pieces" at community gatherings. More than once my voice cracked and I came off the stage in tears. But she had faith in me and finally I overcame my fear of audiences.

men who have served in Parliament for many years—and "the new guard."

A spokesman for Mr. Pearson would only say that the Liberal leader is having to "equalize" some differences of opinion.

Meanwhile, in the Conservative ranks, retiring ministers are preparing to pay a brief visit to Government House late Sunday to take formal leave of Governor-General Vanier.

Normally this visit—a courtesy rather than a constitutional requirement—takes place an hour or so before the new cabinet is sworn in. It was arranged for Sunday, however, to lessen the burden on Gen. Vanier, who is recovering from a mild heart attack he suffered April 9.

Mr. Pearson, with his cabinet list in his pocket, will go to Government House at mid-day Monday. As soon as he has shown the list to Gen. Vanier, it can be made public. The new ministers will then be sworn in immediately.

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

My father belongs to a number of clubs and has always been at work with one of them and even more so now. He is not home very often and when I ask him the spelling or meaning of a word he says, "So look it up in the dictionary."

When I ask him about a person or a place or something he says, "So look it up in the encyclopedia." When I tell him about something I believe is interesting, he just goes on with whatever he has been doing and doesn't listen.

What's wrong and what should I do? VICTIM

Dear Victim:

Go to your father and say: "I dont want a dictionary, I don't want an encyclopedia, I don't want a yes-man for a father, I want you." I think he will take it from there.

Dear Henry:

What would you do with a little girl that takes school too seriously? She gets very upset whenever she makes a mistake.

MOTHER

Dear Mother:

Try day when your girl comes home from school, ask her to tell you everything that happened during the day. Praise her when she was successful and encourage her when she didn't do so well.

She will see then that she has her parents right behind her and she will not be too upset when something doesn't work out well at school. You will also develop a good relationship with your girl and she will always confide in you. This kind of relationship is priceless.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

I am 15 and my boy friend is 17. He comes over several times a week to do homework with me. My mother makes our whole family put our pyjamas on at 7 o'clock. I feel a bit odd when he comes and I'm dressed like that, although he doesn't act differently then. Do you have any suggestions? Should I feel this way? SINCERELY.

Dear Sincerely:

You are a girl and he is a boy. I think you should skip doing homework together while you are in your pyjamas. He may not act differently, but are you sure that he is thinking about homework?

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Belleville Kenmore, 1962 Ontario Baseball Association senior champions, will enter a team in the Lakeshore Baseball League this summer.

SID FORSTER

The announcement made today by Coach Sid Forster should clear up a situation that has been more or less shrouded in mystery since former-manager-sponsor Ken Soden announced his retirement from active participation in the sport.

"The fans attending the games last year in Ontario Baseball Association baseball indicates interest in the sport is on the upsurge here," the coach said.

"We believe the fans here want the better class baseball as offered by the Kenmore Kingsmen and other clubs in the Lakeshore League, and we intend giving it to them this summer if it is at all humanly possible," Forster said.

Financing the club this year will be the biggest problem, the coach pointed out, "but we'll do it if we have to stand on street corners holding tin cups, or post the boys at strategic spots selling lead pencils."

Mr. Soden, whose outstanding financial aid other contributions kept the flickering flame of baseball alive here in the lean years, dropped out of sponsorship this year due to business pressure and the fact the financial burden was becoming too heavy for a single individual.

He brought his fine crew of Kenmore baseballers to his sponsorship climax last season with the winning of the OBA senior crown. The club has an enviable record in that it has played as an entity since its midget days, winning a junior "A" provincial title one year and finalists the next. Its minor league record is a proud one.

He acquired the services of Coach Forster whose mentor contribution was no small factor in the winning of the 1962 senior title. He has color and showmanship besides a yen to be tossed out of a game occasionally, but he is well liked by fans and players if not at times the top contestant for umpire popularity.

"It's all in the game," Sid smiled. "These fellows (the umps) have to be kept on their toes and a little needling now and then adds color to the game even if a coach is invited occasionally to spend part of the game out of sight of the bench, diamond and the arbiters."

But Forster is serious about the operation of the Kenmore's this summer. "I am definitely going to enter the team at the meeting of the Lakeshore League," he said. "As I said, I believe the fans like baseball as they saw last summer and will turn out again this year."

"Something was mentioned about it taking $2,000 to operate the club this year, but I believe this included new uniforms. I think we can get along with the uniforms we have and thus cut the estimated season expenses."

Baseball, to create and maintain fan interest needs "outside" teams as league competition, Forster believes, and rightly so. Kingston and Peterborough played in the Lakeshore Loop last year and their appearance, particularly in the latter stages of the schedule—and the playoffs—upped fan attendance considerably.

What about securing an individual, association or industrial sponsor? somebody asked.

"We are trying to interest people along this line but at the moment there is nothing definite," Forster said. He would not comment on those approached.

He reiterated his belief that senior calibre baseball is on the upsurge here. "It seems too bad that we may have to drop out of the picture when the sport is again coming into its own."

However, he has faith in fans and others who like and would want to support baseball. "If we have to go to the city and fandom for contributions I hope we meet with some modicum of success. As I said before we are entering the club in the Lakeshore League—and hope for the financial best."

"We have lost some of last year's players," Forster said, "but we have the nucleus of a strong team on hand. Moe Hunter, Gary Goyer and Billy Moxon have departed but Art Auchinleck a possible player, another may be back. We have other good players to fill the gaps and the 1963 edition of the Kenmore—or whatever the team is named—should be as good as that which won the senior crown last year."

Bulldogs Nip Maroons In Cup Opener

By JIM McKAY
Canadian Press Correspondent

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Bulldogs, despite turning in what coach Harry Watson described as one of their poorer efforts of the season, today own the early lead in the 1962-63 Allan Cup finals.

With a season's record crowd of 4,563 looking on, the Bulldogs nipped Winnipeg Maroons 5-4 Friday night in the first game of a best-of-seven series to determine the senior hockey champions of Canada.

Windsor's powerful Irwin Gross - Bob Brown - Tommy Walker line set the scoring pace by combining for four of the Bulldog goals, Brown sniping a pair.

But it was a late second-period goal by defenceman Tom Micallef that proved to be the winner in the face of a determined Winnipeg rally in the last period that just failed to net the equalizer.

Lloyd Orrix, Fred Dunsmore, Chuck Lumsden and Gord Simpson were the Maroon marksmen.

"Boy, I thought we were lousy," grumbled Watson afterwards. "We were stumbling around, getting in our own way and didn't display much drive. We sure have to get better after this one but it's still nice to be able to say you came out a winner."

Bill Juzda, the stubby, 43-year-old playing coach of the Maroons, and a former teammate of Watson and veteran Bulldog Joe Klukay with Toronto Maple Leafs, also thought his club would improve.

"Harry says they played bad, eh? Well, maybe our forechecking made them look bad. We'll keep it up and see what happens," Juzda commented.

Juzda criticized Windsor's fourth goal by Brown that gave Windsor a 4-2 lead in the second period.

"It never went over the line," he said. Maroon goalie Julian Klymkiw concurred but despite their protests at the time, referee Dutch Van Dessien of Edmonton refused to listen.

Winnipeg's first goal came by courtesy of Micallef, who tipped Orris's routine shot neatly past his own goaltender, Wayne Rutledge and Lumsden was credited with a Maroon goal in the second frame when Bod Hillman knocked the puck into his own net.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Sunday afternoon with the third and fourth contests next Tuesday and Wednesday. All games will be played in Windsor.

Balk Rash Said Not Serious

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League said Friday it believes the controversy all will work itself out as players and umpires agree that the balk rule means what it says.

It says that a pitcher must come to a one-second stop before delivery when there are runners or a runner on base.

Thus far, NL umpires have called 39 balks with 20 of them being called by the umpiring team headed by Augie Donatelli. There have been none called in the American League.

Houston Golf Classic

Nicklaus Stroke Short

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bob Charles, a New Zealand left-hander who taught himself how to play golf, held a one-stroke lead today over Jack Nicklaus and young Kermit Zarley after 35 holes in the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic.

Charles, 1962 U.S. left-handed champion, moved ahead of the Masters champion and U.S. collegiate titlist Friday by missing only two greens while taking a 32-34—66 in the second round.

This left Charles in front with 67-66—133, seven under par.

Fred Hawkins, Charles Sifford and amateur Homero Blancas were three strokes off the pace at 136.

Three others, including Tommy Aaron, the first-round leader, followed at 137 and five more at 138. South Africa's Gary Player was in a seven-way jam at 139.

Al Balding of Toronto, who had a 73 in the opening round, cut that down to a 68 Friday for a 141 total.

Toronto's George Knudson also shot 73 Thursday but did better Friday, coming in with a 72 to just make the 145 "D" Finals. Art vs Wellington Dukes, at Trenton, 8.00 p.m.

Cup Jousts Set Marks, Equal Others

Hull Ties Record

By RON ANDREWS

TORONTO (CP) — Two records were set and another two equalled in this year's National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs. The semi-final series between Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks produced the three of the marks.

The Wings and Hawks in their series, which Detroit won four games to two, were assessed the most penalties in a cup playoff series, 98, and equalled the goal-scoring mark for two teams in a semi-final series with 44. Hawks' Bobby Hull tied the mark of most goals in a semi-final with eight.

Leafs' Dick Duff chalked up the other record by scoring the two fastest goals ever fired at the start of a Stanley Cup game in one minute and eight seconds.

Another oddity about the three playoff series, which ended with Leafs winning their second straight cup championship by defeating Detroit in the best-of-seven final 4-1, was that all games were decided in regulation time. This is the first year since the NHL gained full possession of the Stanley Cup in 1927 that no overtime games were needed in the playoffs.

ONE FOR BOWER

Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower, who gave his club great clutch netminding over the 10 games against Montreal Canadiens and Detroit, probably rates a mention in the record books, too. A thorough search of NHL records reveals that Bower, in the semi-final against Montreal, became the first netminder to earn an assist in Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Wings and Hawks in their six-game series eclipsed the former mark of 87 penalties, established in last year's six-game final between Toronto and Chicago.

Detroit players received a total of 52 penalties, including 48 minors, two five-minute majors and two 10-minute misconducts for a total of 126 minutes. Hawks were penalized with 46 minors, two majors and a misconduct, a total of 106 minutes. The total of 233 minutes, however, is short of the record of 241 minutes handed out in a six-game semi-final between Chicago and Montreal in 1961.

HULL TIES MARK

Hull's eight goals against Wings, tying the record set by Gordie Howe of Detroit in 1945 against New York Rangers and equalled by Jerry Toppazzini of Boston and Ernie Bruins in 1958, also against Rangers.

The 44 goals Detroit and Chicago scored in their series matched the output of Rangers and Boston Bruins in 1958 and by Detroit and Boston in 1945.

The previous mark for the fastest goals scored by a team at the start of a game was set in the second game of the 1947 final series, won by Leafs over Montreal Canadiens four games to two. Ted Kennedy scored at 1:12 and Vic Lynn at 1:26 as the Leafs went on to defeat Montreal 4-0 April 10 at Montreal.

Another record was extended when Henry Bassett, his referee total to 72 assists by getting nine during the 11 games he played.

Leaf centre Red Kelly, a former Red Wing all-star defenseman playing in his 14th playoff year, moved to within five games of Maurice Richard's record of most games played in Stanley Cup action. Kelly's 13 games this season gave him a total of 128.

Thousands Acclaim Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Thursday night Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup, top prize in the National Hockey League.

Friday afternoon they won a ticker-tape parade, a civic reception, the clips and the deafening applause of thousands of fans.

An estimated 25,000 persons were in the immediate area around the city hall—termination point of the parade—police officials said.

One police officer estimated more than 100,000 persons were packed up to six deep along the half-mile parade route up Bay Street, the heart of Toronto's financial district.

Ing City Hall, spreading, for

The 25,000 persons surrounded full block and cup-to-curb canyon and were loud and clear in their chant:

"We want Keon."

There was no doubt they did. The chant was kept up until centre Dave Keon appeared on the steps. He waved at the crowd and, as one police officer said while wincing "everyone within 40 miles of this place is applauding."

Friday was declared "Maple Leaf Day" in Toronto by Mayor Don Summerville.

After a formal introduction outside the players and officials moved inside to city hall chambers and received gold tie-clips with the city crest engraved on them.

After the team copped the cup last year they were presented with gold cuff links.

Gary Schrieder Called To the Bar

In addition to his many athletic accomplishments, Gary Schrieder, Ottawa Rough Riders - Hamilton Tiger-Cats football star is now a full-fledged lawyer.

The 28-year-old Stewart, a football-playing "buddy" was among 238 law school graduates called to the Ontario Bar in a special ceremony yesterday at O'Keefe Centre, Toronto.

Lawyer Schrieder's legal future has been decided yet, proud "poppa" Ed. Schrieder said via telephone this morning.

Gary, who celebrates his 29th birthday tomorrow has been articling in Toronto for some time, in fact since he was transferred to the Tiger-Cats from the Rough Riders.

He said in an interview while attending the Sports Celebrities Dinner here, that he would like to play football for a few more years and he intimated he had a "soft spot" for Ottawa and the Capital City may enter into his legal plans for the future.

"However" his father said, "Gary has no immediate plans for the future."

Gary received his early education here under the excellent tutelage of Sister Mary Avila at St. Michael's Academy. He learned his football fundamentals and later starred on the same school under the mentorship of Coach Jack Doran.

Both teachers followed his career with a warm interest and were among his greatest fans while he was making a name for himself in college and professional football.

Gary with Stewart starred for Queen's football teams while studying here for his B.A. degree. He obtained his law training at Ottawa University before going to Ongoode Hall.

Gary is married to the former Pat Rooke of Toronto and is busy raising three young football players, Gary, Roger and Tommy.

MAY BE CALLED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Professional football stars Paul Hornung and Alex Karras may be asked to testify under oath here about the bets that led to their indefinite suspensions. "We may put them under subpoena," Sen. John L. McClellan, (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the Senate's permanent investigations sub-committee, told a reporter Friday.

SAO PAULO, Brazil (CP-AP) — Friday after a chilly 62 the day before and spirits of the athletes rose, too, as they bestled about the spanking new Olympic - type village where they are housed.

While the athletes prepared for today's big opening parade before an expected 70,000 in Pacaembu Stadium, the Pan-American Sports Organization kept a delegation from Winnipeg waiting in suspense over its bid to stage the fifth Games in 1967.

The organization tabled final action on 1967 site selection until Monday when it will designate Winnipeg, Santiago, Chile or Caracas, Venezuela.

Meanwhile, a visa problem for the Canadian team of 134 athletes—97 men and 37 women—persisted several Canadian basketball players, ill with mild food poisoning believed caused by cream puffs eaten during a flight here from Puerto Rico, had recovered.

RECOVERY REPORTED

Members of the Puerto Rican delegation, on the same flight, also were reported recovered Friday.

Beverley Coward, a 24-year-old team basketball player and a member of the Canadian girls basketball team, who was the most seriously ill of the affected group was released from a Sao Paulo hospital.

Both the men's and women's basketball teams from Canada —the men's made up basically of the Lethbridge, Alta., Canadian champions and the women's centred around the Vancouver Maids—had light workouts without ill effects.

In the athletes village, Cuba's athletes, attired in red sweat suits, attracted considerable attention as several squad members thumped bongo drums and held an impromptu calypso concert.

Athletes from Canada, Venezuela and Uruguay clustered around Modesto Modern, Cuban high jumper, as he chanted to the accompaniment of the drums.

The Pan-American Sports Organization met 10 miles from Monday its decision on the 1967 the village and postponed until site. Gen. Jose D. J. Clark of Mexico, organization president, appointed a three-man committee to study the proposals and qualifications of the bidding cities.

REPORT MONDAY

The committee will report to the general meeting Monday morning. Then representatives of the three cities will make presentations and Gen. Clark said he hopes the selection will be cleared up by nightfall.

Mark Dainker, spokesman for the Winnipeg delegation here to push the Manitoba city's bid, said he was disappointed over the delay, but added:

"We will stay here no matter how long it takes, until the selection is made. We still are very hopeful of getting the Games."

Governor Adhemar de Barros of Sao Paulo state will open the Games officially at 1:50 p.m. EST today, an hour after stunt planes streaming smoke have started over the stadium, and military bands have played martial tunes.

PARADE SCHEDULED

After the governor arrives comes the parade of athletes and officials, which will require 50 minutes.

Brazilian runner Jose Telles da Conceicao will carry the Olympic torch into the stadium at 3 p.m. EST to light the fire which burns until the Games end May 5.

First competition begins tonight with the United States, expected to dominate the over, all Games, meeting Cuba in soccer and Brazil facing Peru. First-round judo matches also start. Canada has no entries in these competitions.

Among first Canadians to see action will be tennis players Don Fontana, 23, of Toronto, and Harry Fauquier, 21 of Toronto who face Brazilian and Uruguayan opponents in the opening round of the men's tennis singles Sunday afternoon. The Canadian men's volleyball team also is scheduled to play its opening match Sunday.

Crackers Shade Leafs 11-10

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs figured they had their second International League win Friday night —until Johnny Lewis stepped up to the plate.

Lewis's pinch single in the eighth inning sparked a five-run uprising by Atlanta, then he slugged a home run in the ninth to give the Crackers an 11-10 upset win.

In other action, Syracuse Chiefs downed Arkansas Travellers 10-3 and Rochester Red Wings blanked Jacksonville Suns 2-0. Indianapolis Indians and Columbus Jets were rained out as were Richmond Virginians and Buffalo Bisons.

The Leafs now are in last place in the northern division with a 1-3 record. Atlanta, drubbed 11-4 by Toronto Thursday night, leads in the south with three wins and one loss.

Toronto held a three-run lead after six innings and was ahead by five after scoring three in the top of the eighth.

Lee Jackson homered off Atlanta starter Allen Brice in the fifth inning and veteran Joe Morgan clouted one off Toronto's Cal Browning in the seventh.

Time Comes to Bid Goodbye To Cancelled TV Shows

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The time has come for our annual dirge for television's losers, the shows that won't be back next season.

It's a sad business, saying farewell to those series that started out with fond hopes of being another Dr. Kildare or a Hazel but never made it.

It's even sadder to bid goodbye to those successes that have lived their span and must shuffle off to syndication. All series must face it some day, unless they're Ozzie and Harriet or Ed Sullivan.

And so, so long to The Untouchables; too bad you ran out of ammunition.

Goodbye Hawaiian Eye and Sing My Way.

McKeever And the Colonel and Ensign O'Toole, you're discharged.

Rifleman, you've shot your wad.

Lloyd Bridges, back to your aqua-lung.

The Voice of Firestone will be stilled, fadder yet is the loss of Dick Powell Theatre.

Sam Benedict, you've handled your last case.

CAR 54 IS LOST

Car 54, Where Are You? cancelled, that's where.

The network ride was too rough for Stoney Burke and Wide Country.

And Laramie, The Dakotas and Empire will be riding off into the sunset.

There have been a lot of laughs with Dennis the Menace, Real McCoys and Doble Gills, but not any more.

The Dickens, Hey Fenster are finished, as are Our Man Higgins and Leave It To Beaver.

Jet off, Jetsons.

Back soon, Fred Astaire.

Stairs.

Goodbye, too, Naked City, Stump the Stars.

Goodbye, all of you. Sorry you have to move over for the bright new shows that will be taking your time slots this fall, most of which—alas—we'll be saying goodbye to at this time next year.

Koufax Two-Hits Colts, Whiffs 14

Casey Breaks Duck Egg; Giants On Top

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Howard hit the first home run of the season for Los Angeles Friday to give the Dodgers a 2-0 victory over Houston Colts and their fifth win in 10 starts.

Howard's two-run shot provided the game's only runs. It came after Junior Gilliam opened the seventh inning with a double—the Dodgers' first extra base hit in 31 innings.

Sandy Koufax, a fireballing lefthander, allowed only two hits and struck out 14 Colts, the 42nd time in his career he has fanned 10 batters or more in a game.

The win put Los Angeles in fifth place ir—the 10 - team league.

San Francisco took over first place by beating Chicago Cubs 5-1 behind Juan Marichal's six-hit pitching. At the same time, New York Mets won their first after eight losses, ending Milwaukee's seven - game winning streak and dropping the Braves to second with a 5-4 decision.

St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 5-1 in the only other game played as Curt Simmons continued his pitching mastery over his former Phillies' teammates. Bill Clinchant at Pittsburgh game was rained out.

BASEBALL STARS PLAY

The Giants put it away with three runs against Larry Jackson in the fourth inning as the soggy turf in a rain-interrupted game slowed the fielders. Willie Mays' homer got San Francisco started before singles by Willie McCovey, Orlando Cepeda and Tom Haller plus a force out got the other two runs across.

The Mets came from behind to beat the Braves on Ron Hunt's two-run double in the last of the ninth, tagging Frank Funk with the loss and giving victory No. 1 to reliever Ken McKenzie.

Hank Aaron's 300th homer, with one man on, was the key blow in the eighth inning as the Braves tied the score with three runs off Roger Craig. Milwaukee moved ahead in the ninth when Eddie Mathews walked with the bases loaded, but it turned out to be the Mets day.

The Cards scored four uncarned runs in the first inning and that was all Simmons needed. Curt Flood started over his mates since the Phillies gave him his release in 1960.

ERIC HOUSE RETURNS

Eric House has returned from London where he appeared in the all-Canadian revue "Clap Hands." He will star in a CBC-TV play for the Playdate series.

Elusive '300' May Be In Reach

Early Still Seeking Big Win

VENICE, Fla. (AP)—Early Wynn is like the guy in the downstairs apartment waiting for the other shoe to drop.

That shoe would be an offer of a job from a major league club.

The job could lead to Wynn's pitching his 300th win, placing him in an elite circle with the 13 pitchers who have achieved this coveted goal down through baseball history.

Meantime, Wynn admittedly is nervous and somewhat impatient.

"I would like to get my game, and it's time I got to work hard without a direct incentive. It's a strained middle kind of thing when there's nothing definite," he said in an interview.

Wynn has been working as a free agent with the White Sox farm club in Sarasota. He pitches batting practice every day.

At 43, Wynn was the oldest active player in major league baseball, but says he still has the old steam to win his 300th and possibly 301 more.

HAD BETTER SPRING

"I had a better spring this year than I had in the last couple of years," Wynn said. "I threw better. I pitched pretty good my last four times. I think I could pitch every fifth day for somebody."

That somebody could be any of several clubs Wynn says he has had contact with during the last few weeks.

Two clubs are believed to hold major interest in Wynn. They are St. Louis Cardinals and the Houston Colts.

"I have talked with them a couple of times," Wynn said, "but we haven't come to any kind of agreement."

Working out with the farm clubs isn't taking up all of Wynn's time. His restaurant-bowling alley occupies much of the time not spent in reading and answering a flood of mail.

Most of the letters wish Wynn good luck in his bid for No. 300.

He said fans from New York who used to write and vex me are now writing and they seem to be pulling for me."

Wynn was dropped from the White Sox roster this spring after the management decided to go with younger pitchers. He won seven and lost 13 with the White Sox last season and then drew his release to make a deal for himself this season.

His 23-year record is 290-243.

'Risk Is Too Great'

Fontinato Quits Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Tough Lou Fontinato, his head immobile in a plaster cast and his face set in a grimace, vows he will never play hockey again even if doctors someday say he still can.

"No, sir," he said Friday, "the risk is too great."

Leaping Lou, a bone-crunching defenceman for Montreal Canadiens, had just finished taking his first wobbly steps unassisted after lying six weeks in a hospital flat on his back.

He was cheerful about his progress in recovering from a broken neck suffered in a National Hockey League game in Montreal March 9.

"If I can keep on improving like I am now," he said from his hospital bed, "well, heck I'm laughing."

"Look at this," he said quickly hitting up a powerful-looking right hand.

"A few days ago I couldn't do that." He clenched his fist, and beckoned. "I'll bet I can even throw you."

Fontinato, a grey - haired, muscular type who has 'averaged more than 145 minutes in penalties in each of his eight full NHL seasons, expects to leave the hospital sometime next week to return with his family in their Montreal apartment. The heavy cast won't be removed for a few more months, and Lou says he'll have to stay in the city for at least one year commuting to the hospital for treatment.

After that, he wants to return to his farm in Guelph, Ont., for a further period of recuperating.

The Tracks

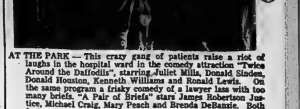
FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Lanson Farms' King Gorm came from last to first place in the last furlong to win Aurora Pace at Fort Erie this Friday before a dampened crowd of 4,609 fans.

King Gorm, bay son of the Epsom Derby winner, Never Say Die, was purchased by Toronto mining magnate M. J. Boyles for $35,000 from Windfields Farm's annual yearling sale.



Gordon Lanoway, who rode King Gorm, also won the eighth at R. E. Strome's Fassiffofy. Sam McComb also had a winning double, bringing in Kingsey in the first and Lord Quillo in the sixth. Both Kingsey and Lord Quillo are owned by Sarto Desnoyers of Montreal.

The daily double of Kingsey and the second race winner, Dew Valley Farms' Sports Lady returned $160.60 for $2. Gardens Win and No Nonsense combined in the fifth race to return a $44.60 quinella.

Niacin May Be Means Of Reversing or Arresting Process of Heart Disease

By BOB TRIMBEE

SASKATOON (CP)—A multi-million-dollar study may be undertaken in the United States to determine the practical value of a University of Saskatchewan doctor's work with a vitamin as a possible means of reversing or arresting the fatal process of a major heart disease.

The doctor is Rudolf Altschul, head of the university's department of anatomy. He has worked at the university here since he fled his native Czechoslovakia at the start of the Second World War.

The vitamin is nicotinic acid, or niacin, a member of the vitamin B family. Doctors have known about it for 60 years. Scientists have been aware for years that it is a constituent of several respiratory enzymes—an organic catalyst that unlocks the oxidation chain, a vital part of body nutrition.

The disease is arteriosclerosis, commonly called hardening of the arteries. It is the disease that causes most strokes and coronaries. It degenerates arteries, building up layers of fatty-like substance in artery walls. These layers gradually plug the circulation system and prevent movement of blood to vital organs.

EIGHT-YEAR STUDY

The study would determine whether there is a connection between use of the vitamin and an apparent arrest of the disease, or whether the action is the result of a process still unknown. It would take eight years to complete at an annual cost of $12,000,000.

First suggested in 1961 to the U.S. National Health Council by its advisory committee on anti-atherosclerotic drugs, the study would follow this pattern:

About 3,700 persons who have suffered a mild coronary would be placed in one group, half being given daily large doses of the vitamins. The progress of individuals in both sections would be followed for five years or until they suffered a second heart attack.

A second group would comprise 10,000 persons who have never suffered an attack, but who have a high cholesterol level in the blood, a factor which the vitamin can reduce—though no one yet knows why.

(A high cholesterol level in the blood has been associated with the development of arteriosclerosis.)

MYSTERY SUBSTANCE

As with the first group, half those in the second would receive daily doses of the vitamins and the remainder would not, with those in both groups being followed for five years.

Cholesterol is a fatty-like substance found in all body cells. Its level in the blood varies from person to person. No one knows why, although doctors suspect diet and heredity may play a part. Doctors also are unsure what causes arteriosclerosis, but again diet and heredity factors appear to play a part.

The association between the two facts has given medical researchers a front which they can attack in trying to find an answer to hardening of the arteries. It is in this field Dr. Altschul has worked since 1943.

In the late 1940s he found that oxidation of pure cholesterol before feeding it to rabbits resulted in a decrease in the animals' cholesterol level. A further series of experiments with irradiated ultraviolet irradiating given rabbits after feeding them with pure cholesterol reduces the level.

Similar reactions were noted among many patients, with various diseases, who had undergone single, strong doses or a series of strong doses of ultraviolet irradiation.

CHANCE ENCOUNTER

Later Dr. Altschul discovered oxygen inhalation had the same effect.

But while conducting tests with both methods in late 1953, Dr. Altschul had a chance conversation with a former student, Dr. Abraham Hoffer, now head of Saskatchewan's psychiatric research program.

Dr. Hoffer told his former teacher he was having significant success in the treatment of schizophrenia through the use of large daily doses of niacin. He added that the patients had suffered no toxic effects from the heavy dosage.

Said Dr. Altschul:

"My early work had shown that respiratory enzymes could stimulate oxidation processes in the body. I also knew the nicotinic acid was a constituent of some of these enzymes and the thought struck me that perhaps it could use this vitamin to stimulate oxidation in the blood and thereby lower the cholesterol level."

In 1955 the first results of his experiments were published.

"We were able to conclude definitely that nicotinic acid decreases serum cholesterol levels among the 68 individuals studied." Eleven of the group had no illness while the others were hospital patients.

LOWER CHOLESTEROL

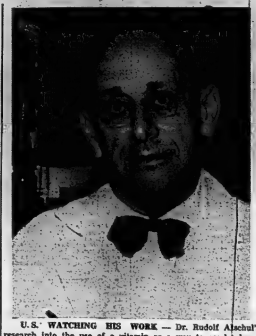
"After giving large doses (about one gram for every 50 pounds weight) of nicotinic acid to healthy and sick people we observed an immediate and highly significant lowering of the cholesterol level as long as the treatment was continued.

"Whether this lowering of the serum cholesterol is influencing the course of arteriosclerosis can only be established later."

Researchers in nine other countries have confirmed the results of Dr. Altschul's work.



"Many doctors use the vitamin so aid in lowering the cholesterol level of patients who have arteriosclerosis. The vitamin has no toxic effects and since it is safe, it is used despite there having been no large-scale co-operative clinical studies to confirm that it can influence the course of the disease."

Dr. Altschul said "It's the best and surest way known to reduce this level, so really it's worth trying in the treatment of the disease."

While no decision has been made for a start on a mass treatment study of the vitamin, Dr. Altschul said it's only a question of time.

U.S. WATCHING HIS WORK — Dr. Rudolf Alschul's research into the use of a vitamin as a way to combat heart disease may result in a multi-million-dollar study in the U.S. The head of the University of Saskatchewan's anatomy department has found that niacin reduces the bloodstream level of cholesterol, believed to be the cause of strokes and coronaries (CP Photo)

Hallowe'en Antics Child's Play Compared to Escape Of Doctor From the Czechs

By BOB TRIMBEE

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. Rudolf Altschul arrived in Saskatoon Oct. 31, 1939, but the Hallowe'en antics were child's play compared with the doctor's melodramatic escape from Czechoslovakia.

It was a flight prompted by the Nazi invasion and one in which the doctor and his wife were separated for three months, reunited in London, England, only to be torpedoed en route to Canada when safety appeared just days away.

Dr. Altschul accepted a post in the University of Saskatchewan's anatomy department, which he now heads, when it was obvious the Nazi forces would occupy Czechoslovakia.

WIFE DELAYED

"We decided to make our way to Southampton and catch a boat there for Canada. It was impossible for a man to get an exit permit (from Czechoslovakia) so I decided to escape to Rome and hide there until I could work my way to England, his Paris. My wife was to reach England on her own.

"But it took me three months to get out of Rome. I had to hide in a clinic where I had done post-graduate work and a man risked her life to bring me food. Meanwhile, my wife was stranded in Belgium. I lost touch with her.

"When I reached Southampton, shipping officials said they had not seen or heard from her. I had little money and there was no place to stay in Southampton and legally I was not supposed to be in the country more than 24 hours.

"I returned to London and decided to wait at an hotel where most of the ship passengers were billeted until their departure for North America.

"After two days a woman my wife had met in Belgium saw me sitting in the lobby and told me my wife would reach London within two days. She recognized me from a picture my wife had shown her."

Three days later Dr. Altschul and his wife boarded the Athenia. Just hours out of Southampton the liner was torpedoed by a submarine. The couple spent 24 hours on a lifeboat before being rescued by a Norwegian freighter.

Without money and with only the clothes on their backs the couple landed at Galway, Ireland. Taken to a hostel they met Mrs. Altschul's cousin, their only relation living in Ireland.

"It was a relatively quiet trip to Saskatoon and we arrived Hallowe'en night. We didn't have too many possessions and I often say to my wife we came here on a witch's broom."

Gordon Given Finance Post, Hellyer Defence

Martin Gets Portfolio Of External Affairs

OTTAWA (CP)—Lester Bowles Pearson, smiling and jaunty in striped pants and cut-away coat, arrived at Government House today and was sworn in as 14th prime minister of Canada.

With him were 25 Liberal members of Parliament, his choices for cabinet posts in the new government.

Mr. Pearson first went in alone to see Governor-General Vanier to take the oath of office and present Gen. Vanier with his list of cabinet members. The list required formal agreement of the Governor-General.

As soon as Gen. Vanier consented to the list, the names of the 25 cabinet members and their portfolios were made public.

There were few surprises in it.

Top posts went to Paul Martin, 59-year-old veteran MP for Essex East, who becomes external affairs minister; Lionel Chevrier of Montreal Laurier, justice; Paul Hellyer, Toronto Trinity, defence; Mitchell Sharp, Toronto Eglinton, trade, and Walter Gordon, Toronto Davenport, finance.

Other ministers included J. W. Pickersgill, Canso-Antigonish-Guysborough, secretary of state; Judy LaMarsh, Niagara Falls, health and welfare; J. R. Garland, Nipissing, national revenue; William Benidickson, Kenora-Rainy River, Mines; George McIlraith, Ottawa West, Transport, and Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Senate.

SPECULATION AROUSED

There was speculation immediately that Maurice Lamontagne, member for Montreal Outremont - St. Jean, named president of the Privy Council will become head of the new industry department when it is created by legislation.

Similarly, Rene Tremblay who was picked as a minister without portfolio, could be in line for the associate agriculture ministry promised during the election campaign by Mr. Pearson. Mr. Tremblay is from a Quebec farm area, Matapedia-Matane, and Mr. Pearson had said the associate agriculture minister would concentrate on Canada farms and farmers. Harry Hays, Calgary South, got the agriculture post.

Mr. Pearson said he hoped to be sworn in, followed immediately by the four ministers who had been sworn in the previous Liberal government in 1957 and defeated were members of the Privy Council—Messrs. Martin, Pickersgill, Mr. Chevrier and Mr. Hellyer.

Then the other new cabinet

Charlotte Asks So Many Questions Moscow Top Planner Begs Mercy

MOSCOW (AP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa began her tour of the Soviet Union today by visiting Moscow's city planning office.

She asked numerous questions, especially about the organization of the city government and the functions of the departments.

She asked so many questions that her escort, Chief Planner Gennady Fomin, had difficulty getting on with his lecture, which he was delivering with the help of a pointer and several maps.

"Perhaps," he said politely, "it would be best for me to continue and then we can have the questions later."

Miss Whitton nodded agreement. Fomin then explained that Moscow is very overcrowded, and that the planners hope to keep its population (about 6,000,000) at the present level for many years to come.

He said this would be accomplished by removing unessential factories from the city and relocating them. He said various government institutes, such as those dealing with agriculture and coal, will be moved out of the city and into areas where they will be closer to their work.

Teachers Oppose Any Reduction In Top Salaries

TORONTO (CP)—The 8,500-member Ontario Public School Men Teachers Federation called for a provincial uniform salary schedule at its annual convention during the weekend.

It adopted a resolution which said schedule negotiations should be conducted in cooperation with women teachers.

Delegations agreed that all teachers, supervisors and principals should unite in negotiations instead of trying to reach agreements as separate groups. They opposed any reduction in maximum salaries and decided to issue a booklet on salary negotiations procedure.

The federation shelved discussions on a formula to determine resignations when staff reductions become economically necessary. One faction said qualifications should be the primary consideration in deciding who should resign. Another felt seniority should be the decisive factor.

Delegates split again during discussion on a committee report which recommended that mass resignations at the end of a first contract term be opposed except where the federation's provincial executive considers such action proper "under extreme circumstances."

The report was filed for future reference after three delegates criticized it as a negative approach and described it as "timid."

FIVE CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE AT WELLAND

Father Being Held Under Mental Act

WELLAND (CP)—Police said today that laborer John W. Smagata, 41, father of five children who died in a fire which swept through their home here early Sunday, is being held under the mental hospitals act.

He was to be taken today to the Ontario hospital at Hamilton for observation.

Smagata, father of 11, was taken into custody after police found him wandering in a dazed condition outside his blazing three-room home in the south end of this Niagara Peninsula city.

A patrolling police constable who discovered the fire rescued two other children but was foiled by intense heat from reaching the others.

The victims were identified as five of the 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. John Smagata — Gerald, 2, Robert, 4, Ronald 6, Carol, 8, and Michael, 8.

Jerry Raso, who occupies the other half of the semi-detached concrete-and-wood duplex, told reporters: "It went up so fast nobody could have done anything."

WAS SOON OUT

The fire was completely extinguished within 45 minutes and left virtually no trace left on the outside of the home. The inside was destroyed.

Two other children were in satisfactory condition in hospital. Margie, 11, suffered burns to the face while Joseph, 5, was burned on the hands.

Mrs. Smagata, 37 who was with a neighbor, was treated for shock and released. Of the other four, Ann, 17, and Edward, 16, were out with friends, Frances, 14, was baby-sitting and Joanne, 10, was visiting relatives in Hamilton.

Neighbor Barry Jewell said he first saw sparks and smoke while making his rounds at 2 a.m.

"Then a neighbor woman started screaming that the house was on fire," he said. "She said there were children upstairs . . ."

The constable telephoned the fire department, then tried valiantly to get inside the house through the back door. "There was no chance."

FOUND TWO

Police said in the front of the house, went in and found two children near the door.

Three men arrived with a ladder and they placed it against the building, Const. Jerwell said. "We tried to go through the bedroom window, but the smoke and heat were so bad we couldn't even start up the ladder."

Police said Mrs. Smagata and the two older boys left the house when the husband, a 41-hour-a-week millwright, arrived about 10 p.m.

Police said Mr. Smagata was found wandering about in a daze outside the house. One child was found in the dining room and the others beside their beds.

Police officials said the fire broke out in the kitchen, but the cause is not yet known.

The Welland Fire Marshal's office is investigating.

Disillusions, Frustration Sweeping Cuban Exiles

MIAMI (AP)—For all practical purposes, any effectiveness of the Cuban exiles in the battle against Fidel Castro has been shattered.

Hope dies hard among the 200,000 Miami area exiles, but it is gasping for breath now.

The blowup between the Cuban Revolutionary Council and the Kennedy administration seems likely to leave the exiles with nothing to do and nowhere to go. They may, as they have threatened, try again to hit Cuban targets, but their prospects for success are diminishing.

Just how effective the exile efforts were in the past—divided as they were on almost everything except enmity to Cuban Premier Castro — is a matter of hot debate.

However, members of those fighting groups—and, indeed, a large number of the exile community—are boiling with resentment.

"They (the Kennedy administration) want us to sit and do nothing and wait for the Communists to fall by their own weight," a young member of a fighting anti - Castro organization told me. "But a Communist government does not fall by itself. It must be pushed."

The exiles—and some American close to the situation in Miami — picture United States policy as having shifted from active efforts to rout communism from the hemisphere to one of containing the Communists in Cuba and preventing their expansion.

The administration says it is not going to put itself in the position of having its policies dictated by sporadic acts of violence perpetrated by exile organizations. The United States must think of possible grave consequences of their acts.

The exiles say it will be almost impossible to supply underground anti - Castro forces inside Cuba with what they need.

Today the exiles have a bad case of the blues. They see the possibility of disaster for the internal resistance movement in Cuba, the end of sabotage and harassment of the regime.

U.S. spokesmen indicate a hope for internal rebellion and have told the United States would not stand by and watch

Bombing Attacks Continue Montreal Watchman Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Bomb scares and flag-burning flared up again in Montreal Sunday following the death of an elderly night watchman in an explosion at the rear of a downtown army recruiting office.

The fatal blast just before midnight Saturday was blamed on Le Front de Liberation Quebecois, which describes itself as a Quebec separatist group of "suicide commandos" pledged to destroy by sabotage "all colonial symbols and institutions, particularly the RCMP and the armed forces."

Dead is William Victor O'Neill, a 68-year-old civil servant due to retire on pension next month. He was killed when the bomb exploded in a wooden refuse box behind the recruiting office, which faces the Sherbrooke Street entrance to McGill University.

His wife survives. It is believed the couple had no children.

Army sources said Mr. O'Neill was doing another employee a favor when he came on duty at 11:30 p.m. EST instead of midnight. He walked out the back door shortly before the bomb went off at 11:40, throwing his body about 10 feet into a lane.

Other Quebec secessionist groups united in condemning the bombing.

There was no indication whether the device was activated by a timer or was a booby trap, set to go off when the box was opened.

Det.-Sgt. Leo Plouffe, Montreal bomb expert, said it might take several days to reconstruct what happened.

It's possible that Mr. O'Neill heard a noise at the back of the building and went to investigate."

Nothing was found at the scene to link the explosions directly with the FLQ.

But the slogan "Vive le Quebec Libre" (Long Live Free Quebec) was scrawled on a nearby telephone booth, and an

AUTHORITIES MEET DEMANDS OF 3 CONVICTS

Guard Released In Good Condition

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—An investigation opens today into a penitentiary riot in which the life of a guard was spared by meeting the demands of three desperate convicts that they be transferred to prisons elsewhere in Canada.

The guard, Pat Dennis, 33, was held hostage by the three for 14 hours from Friday night until Saturday morning at the British Colgnbia Penitentiary, a maximum-security federal institution. He was wired to a chair while a six-inch knife was held at his throat.

While negotiations for his release went on, 200 other prisoners went on a rampage, smashing furniture and windows in the grey-stone penitentiary and setting fire to bedding. They were finally quelled by tear gas fired by a force of 200 police and prison guards.

In return for Dennis' release, Gerard Caissey, 28 and Wayne Carlson, 21, were put aboard a plane for St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary near Montreal. Nelson Wood, 27, serving eight years for robbery, was sent to Stoney Mountain prison near Winnipeg.

Caissey had served five of 17 years for attempted murder and armed robbery and Carlson three years and eight months for theft.

STAYS ON JOB

Reunited with his wife, his son David, 4, and his 10-year-old daughter, Carol Anne, Dennis said Sunday that he would be back on the job today.

He was offered time off but I feel fine," he said.

Warden Tom Hall will conduct the investigation into the causes of the riot and said the 670 prisoners in the big prison, 12 miles east of Vancouver, may lose their evening recreational period as a result of the uprising.

He said "It will be a matter of study as to whether we have been correct in allowing as broad a night recreational program as we have. There may be good reason to question whether the inmates are responsible

Grove Street Woman Found Shot To Death

Husband Walks Into Police Station Here

A 42-year-old re-training student attending classes at Cornwall has been charged with murder in the shooting death of his wife at 46 Grove St. in Belleville.

Charged with murder is Vincent Armand Caissie, who about one o'clock this morning walked into the Belleville police station.

A few minutes later police found the body of Mrs. Dorothy May Caissie, 46, in the kitchen of their home on Grove St.

Police said the woman had been shot with a .22 calibre rifle.

REMANDED WEEK

Caissie, a slight, sandy-haired man, clad in a grey check coat and flannel trousers with brown shoes, appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills at 12.30 p.m. this afternoon.

He stood briefly in the dock in city magistrate's court beside police sergeant Ralph Bletchford as he was formally remanded one week in custody without bail.

"Have you anything to say Mr. Caissie?" asked the magistrate.

"No, I have not," the accused man answered quietly.

He was then escorted below stairs to the cells and later was to be removed to the county jail.

HEARD SOME SOUNDS

The shooting took place in the kitchen of an upstairs apartment at 46 Grove St.

Mr. Bob Burke, who with his wife and family occupy the downstairs apartment as the same address, said he was in bed when the incident occurred.

He said that Mr. Caissie was attending a trade school in Cornwall and came home for theweekends. He said he did not know Mr. and Mrs. Caissie very well, but considered Mr Caissie a quiet type.

Mr. Burke said he had heard the sound of three dull plops coming from upstairs after he had gone to bed.

However, he had not associated the sounds as being gunshots.

TAKING COURSE

Until about a year ago Mr. Caissie had been working as a presser at the Tip Top Cleaners on Station Street, but in recent weeks is said to have been taking re-training as a machinist at a Cornwall trades school.

The couple moved into the Grove Street home in January, but previously had been living in the same general area.

There are no children, but Mrs. Caissie is said to have a daughter by a previous marriage, living in the Bancroft area. Mr. Caissie was the former Dorothy Bellis and is said to have two sisters and a brother living in Belleville.

The investigation into the shooting is under the direction of Inspector J. B. McLaughlan.

Comb Valley For Missing Dutch Girl

CORNWALL (CP)—Five hundred volunteers combed the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Valleys today in a vain search for a missing Dutch girl after twin searches on separate continents, predicted by extrasensory perception that her body would be discovered near Cornwall today. Police did not take part in the search.

Ineke Verkuyzen, 17, disappeared from her home in Lansdaster, 17 miles east of here, more than three months ago. She was reported at North Bay a month later.

Her uncle, Rev. John Verkuyzen, a Roman Catholic priest at a seminary in Curp, The Netherlands, travelled here early in March to search for the girl.

He says twin brothers in both priests, one at his seminary and the other in Fort Wayne, Ind., have predicted where reincarnation that her body will be found within 100 miles of here at an old shack near a river.

He said they had both provided, in separate letters and without prior knowledge, accurate descriptions of the girl, her home and her history.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marinus Verkuyzen, think Ineke ran off to get married. A neighboring farm worker, when the girl had dated, disappeared the same day.

Father Verkuyzen appealed over a local radio station and 500 people turned out to search for the girl Sunday.

DOWNGRADES SEAT BELTS

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Seat belts offer little protection in rollover accidents, says the former director - general of Royal Air Force medical services. Group Capt. Imrie, a pivot to smash the head of the driver or passenger against the steering wheel or windshield. "A belt worn low around the belly has no effect on the velocity of the head but the seat is it thrown forward," Sir Philip Livingston said in an interview Friday.

"HI-JINX — '63"

The curtain rolled down on "Hi-Jinx — '63" after two very successful performances.

Interesting comment indicated that "Hi-Jinx '63" will go down in Belleville District Scouting History as a great 'hit'. The tremendous effort put forth by the show committee brought out much talent among the cast who enjoyed taking part in the program. To show appreciation to the boys who took part in the show the committee invited them at the Kiwanis Centre on Saturday afternoon, April 20th. Entertainment was provided by Gail Chapman's dancers and soloist Norma Wilcox and his guitar.

"The power squadron movement has grown "rapidly in Canada since the war," the vice commander said. "This squadron is less than ten years old and during that time it has become one of the outstanding squadrons in the country. Ten per cent of its membership are full navigators. There are few squadrons that can say that.

Schools Key To Cutting Use Of Cigarettes

It is now ten years, the Canadian Cancer Society points out, since the "lung cancer scare" began with proof that cigarette tars could cause cancer in the skin of laboratory mice. It is not unreasonable, says a Society release, for educational authorities and parents and others interested in the health and welfare of our youth to ask: What is the situation now? Has the relationship between cigarette-smoking and lung cancer been proven? If not, will it ever be?

"Statistical evidence for this relationship," says Dr. R. M. Taylor, executive vice-president of the Society, "has been building up in many parts of the world. The Canadian Medical Association is satisfied that there is a direct link between lung cancer and smoking. The National Cancer Institute of Canada has likewise accepted this relationship. Dozens of medical and health organizations throughout the world have also done so. And yet the cigarette companies still say, with justification, 'There is not proof yet.'"

"The reason for this simple cause-and-effect proof that lung cancer in human beings can be produced by smoking cannot be obtained without setting up a laboratory experiment in human beings. Obviously this is out of the question. Apart from the fact that it would involve cruelty in this fashion, there is the time factor; it would need hundreds of thousands children and having half of them smoke a pack of cigarettes a day for a period of years, the other half abstaining, after which it would be determined how many more had died of lung cancer."

One of the big advances in human history, says Dr. Taylor, was the invention of writing. This permitted human knowledge to be handed from one generation to another. Experience of others and eliminated the necessity for each individual to learn only by his own mistakes.

Unless we are going to turn back the clock a few thousand years, we can only accept the truth about lung cancer without waiting for conclusive proof, or as of experience.

"The statistical evidence is this: the death rate due to lung cancer among those who smoke cigarettes is up to 40 times that of non-smokers; and it is the fact that the rise in the rate of deaths from lung cancer, the overall death rate among those from all types of cancer would be falling as it is failing in women."

Dr. Taylor points out that the campaign to stop cigarette smoking among adults has not been successful, particularly the consumption of cigarettes. "In spite of this," he says, "the fact is that we convince students that they should never start the habit. Of the 1,000 who start one day with they didn't, has been intensified, with consequently co-operation from the schools."

"Upon parents must fall the prime responsibility for the habits of their offspring. But educational authorities can help tremendously in this 'never-start children' campaign. Indeed, without the help of education, people—and even more important, without their good example—a campaign to divert children and girls from the dangers of smoking can have little success."

Caught in Grave Austrian Dies Of Starvation

WOLKERSDORF, Austria (AP)—A 25-year-old man died of starvation Sunday after he had been trapped for 13 days in an empty grave vault at the cal cemetery.

Police said Johann Schleifer, a jobless worker who suffered from mental depression, apparently climbed into the grave April 7.

He was discovered Saturday when visitors to the cemetery heard moaning and sounds of scratching.

Police said Schleifer apparently climbed into the heavy marble slabs covering the grave to climb into the vault and was trapped when they fell back into place.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mary Reid, who passed away April 22, 1923.

Two bright eyes, a tender heart

A loving hand that knew no guile;

Such was that kin God took all too right,

Her joy to make some other bright.

If sick or suffering one she knew,

Some gentle act of love she'd do;

Her thought in life for each other, and,

I know she said, well done, dear mother.

—Ever in our thoughts and sadly missed by all the family.

STAPLETON — In loving memory of Mary Stapleton, mother and grandfather William H. Stapleton who passed away April 22, 1958.

We often sit and wonder,

What you would say and do,

If you only knew the changes,

Since you passed on from you.

To some you are forgotten,

To others part of the past,

But to us who loved and lost you,

Your memory will always last.

—Lovingly remembered by his wife Bertie, sons, sons, daughters and grandchildren.

D. G. Dillon Appears on Theft Charge

A 31-year-old Belleville office manager, who obtained his job through a newspaper advertisement, today went before a magistrate accused of stealing more than $5,000 from his employer.

Charged is Donald G. Dillon, office manager and bookkeeper for Avon Jewellery Limited. Dillon's preliminary hearing opened this morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The hearing adjourned at noon after Avon general manager, Joseph Mazer had been on the stand all morning. Crown prosecutor R. P. Millgan of Cornwall told the court at that time he expected to call only one more witness — a company auditor — before asking the magistrate for a decision on whether or not Dillon should stand trial.

The bulk of Mr. Mazer's testimony however was given under cross - examination by Ronald Cass, Dillon's defence lawyer.

Mr. Mazer said Dillon was hired by his company in February or March 1960 after he replied to a newspaper advertisement and had been screened by company auditors George E. Welch.

He said the company had three bank accounts, one in New York and a general fund and payroll in a local bank.

He said he was first informed of "certain irregularities" in company books by auditors early last November.

QUITE SHOCKED' CLAIM

He said the items included "certain overdrawings on the payroll" and items from local (local) bank accounts all of which weren't backed up by adequate vouchers.

Also there were a number of items on the payroll bank account for which there were no cancelled cheques, said Mr. Mazer.

"I was quite shocked," he told the court.

Under prolonged questioning by Mr. Cass, Mr. Mazer said Dillon's salary at that time "was in the order of $100 or $110 per week."

Mr. Mazer denied signing cheques on the payroll account that were used for general company purposes.

"It was apparent after the auditors brought this up that cheques had been drawn on ostensibly the general account and then after being signed, or before I suppose, the thing was marked payroll underneath.

"What color are the payroll cheques?"

"Pink."

What color are the general account cheques?"

"Green."

"Are you color-blind?" asked Mr. Cass.

"No sir," replied Mr. Mazer.

HANDED IN VOUCHERS

Mr. Cass suggested to the witness that there were a large number of unvouched items that had never been questioned in years previous to 1962.

"I suggest to you there were expense account items that were never vouched for," he added.

Mr. Mazer replied he kept track of his travelling expenses in notebooks and also handed in vouchers for all receipted items.

He was asked in years immediately preceding the 1962 audit if all cancelled cheques were available for the audit.

"I would presume they were," said Mr. Mazer.

"Do you know?

"No I don't know."

Mr. Cass mentioned the figure $5,300.

"Is that the amount which must be said . . . that Mr. Dillon took from the company?

"I would accept the auditor's figures on that."

Mr. Mazer added: "There are reservations—and still are as far as I am concerned as to the total amount.

Mr. Mazer said at one time the company ran out of the printed payroll cheques and used general account cheques marked "payroll."

Mr. Cass said one of the items listed against Dillon was a $500 cheque signed by Mr. Mazer and unvouched.

"I could not say," replied Mr. Mazer.

"Well if that is so could you tell us what that is about?"

"I could not."

BEHIND IN POSTING

"There are said to be a number of missing cheques represented by no cheque stubs and represented by the ledger entry," noted Mr. Cass. "How far behind was the ledger posting?

"At the time the auditors started to finish the audit I would say it was about a year-and-a-half behind.

Mr. Mazer also told the court that the only cheques he signed "to my knowledge were cheques on the general account."

Asked if he was aware Dillon had paid a Division Court settlement against the company out of his own pocket Mr. Mazer replied: "I certainly was not. This is the first I am hearing about that."

Mr. Mazer also said his company took in about $1,000 annually from retail sales of jewellery. Asked by Mr. Cass if he had pocketed the money from the sales to avoid income tax, Mr. Mazer replied: "Oh no. Absolutely and definitely not."

Mr. Cass asked him if it was true that Mr. Mazer's father accused Mr. Dillon of stealing $700 at Christmas 1961.

"It was never brought to my attention," said Mr. Mazer. He said the money had never received from the office manager was for travelling expenses, which he noted on notebooks given to Dillon at the month's end.

Mr. Cass asked him about a missing notebook.

"Where is the one exception?" queried Mr. Cass.

"I don't know, I believe Mr. Dillon should be asked where that book is."

MAGISTRATE COMMENTS

"I am asking you," said Mr. Cass.

"I don't know," answered the witness.

"Was there $240 left in the desk on one occasion which you accused Mr. Dillon of taking and later found that your father had taken it out of the desk?

"No, I don't know. What I do deak are you talking about? There should be no money around the office other than in Mr. Dillon's cash box."

At one point in the cross examination the magistrate commented of Mr. Mazer: "This man is perfectly frank. He is the general manager of the company. He does not know about books.

Mr. Mazer also told the hearing his company had brought jewellery into Canada from the United States without paying duty, the reason being the items were only used for copying.

Mr. Mazer remained on the stand until the noon - hour recess and Mr. Cass asked that he be allowed to recall him if necessary.

"I don't know whether this witness is entitled to be recalled," commented the magistrate. "This isn't Perry Mason."

Chaput Wants Probing of Police Tactics

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Chaput, leader of the separatist Quebec Republican Party, says he has written Attorney-General Georges Lapalme to ask for an investigation of police tactics during a roundup last week of persons suspected of belonging to the Quebec Liberation Front.

The FLQ is a group of self-styled "suicide commandos" pledged to bring about Quebec independence by violent means. It has claimed responsibility for a series of bombings in recent weeks, mainly in the Montreal area.

Mr. Chaput said Saturday night that if the actions of the police were described accurately in the newspapers, "they were actions worthy of a police state."

He said it was a very serious matter that police should arrest suspects in the middle of the night and hold them several hours for questioning.

It was far less serious "that patriots in Quebec should overturn a monument that should never have been erected in the first place" as was a parish hall melodrama that apprentice conspirators should tie dynamite sticks to a television tower, taking care to alert the authorities before the explosion."

Mr. Chaput was referring to the shattering of the Wolfe Monument on the Plains of Abraham by vandals last month and to an attempt to dynamite a radio-television tower atop Mount Royal two weeks ago.

Ricky Nelson Weds Daughter Of Tom Harmon

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rick Nelson was married Saturday to a beautiful teen-ager who asked only publicity as her fee in exchange for the first time she met him.

A pretty wedding in St. Martin of Tours Roman Catholic Church united Nelson, 22, with Kristin Harmon, 18.

She is the daughter of Tom Harmon, the Michigan football great, and Mrs. Harmon, the former actress Elyse Knox.

Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, parents of the groom's side of the church for one of the year's biggest weddings. More than 400 guests filled the Brentwood church and later attended a reception at the Harmon home in Brentwood.

Rev. Frank Parrish, S. J. of Loyola University read the rites in front of the altar. The bride is Catholic. Nelson is not. The blue-eyed honey blonde was a vision in her white empire style wedding gown. Her younger sister, Dana Jean Harmon, was maid of honor. Rick's brother Dave was best-man.

The couple first met five years ago. Kristin remembers the occasion well. Rick and the family team was playing a basketball game against a CBS team which had sportscaster Harmon on it.

Rick was only 13 at the time. After the game she asked Rick for his autograph.

Channel Markers Not Yet Placed In Bay

Channel markers are still resting on the government dock waiting to be picked up by the buoy tender but navigation on the Bay of Quinte has already commenced insofar as the bridge tenders at Rossmore are concerned.

Late last week the tug "Louis M" passed through the bridge on its way east and the following day made a return trip.

The government buoy tender has still to make its annual spring trip up the bay to place channel markers for the summer although bridge tenders said they expected the boat to put in its appearance shortly.

Adult Retarded Training Will Be Emphasized

Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children will be one of 85 Ontario groups participating this week, April 28 to 27, at conference sessions at Kingston in which the emphasis will be on training for adult retarded.

This will be the tenth annual meeting of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children, begun in 1953 by nine local associations to enlarge the services for the mentally re arded. Initially preoccupied with establishing day schools, the local associations have expanded their programs through the provincial organization to finance medical research, plan recreational projects, develop home care services and other facilities for both the retarded and their families guidance.

With the Ontario Government's announcement last month of increased grants for local day schools serving the mentally retarded and a long-range plan to relieve the local associations' financial problems such schools, O.A.R.C. is turning its attention to adult training. Twenty-one of the 85 local associations now have adult training programs in various stages of development.

The adult programs range from handicraft production to sheltered workshops which take on contract work for industry. Mentally retarded from age 18 upwards are trained in such programs to some degree of economic self-sufficiency, in answering the increased grants for day schools last month, Ontario Minister of Education William G. Davis cited these local training programs. "Sufficient evidence has been accumulated to show that trainable retarded children can through carefully planned programs of educational training be assisted to develop some degree of independence and self-support," said the Minister.

Former Pro Football Player Held for Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — Douglas Harold Brown, 29, a former professional football player with Calgary Stampeders, was charged Saturday with capital murder in the slaying of a Franciscan priest.

He was charged less than 12 hours after Father Cuthbert Seward, 51, died of bullet wounds in the doorway of his monastery beside St. Francis Roman Catholic Church.

Det. Sgt. William Porteous identified Brown as a former member of the Western Conference team. He played four years with Stampeders until 1960.

He was listed on police charge sheets as an unemployed pressman, resident in Vancouver.

Priests within the monastery heard a shot seconds after Father Cuthbert had left the room Friday night to answer the door. They found him lying in a pool of blood. He died moments later.

Brown was arrested after police surrounded an apartment house six blocks from the monastery.

Detective Inspector Ian McGregor said officers outside the building could see a man pacing up and down a room carrying a rifle.

Peace-Loving?

Nikita Khrushchev was 69 on Wednesday The Associated Press made his birthday the occasion for an article by a "news analyst" (press association editorial writer) comparing him to Stalin. The conclusion—he is a vast improvement.

With this nearly everybody in the Western world will agree. They are not communists. Most Russians would also agree but, while they may be communist in outlook they are not party members. Communists, the capital C variety, may have different views. Those in China would prefer Stalin.

The main reason why, East and West, most people would consider Khrushchev a vast improvement over Stalin is that, in their judgment, he is less likely to plunge the world into war.

In this, public opinion is almost certainly right. But it is a measure of our scant regard for history that few should question this conclusion.

Actually, for the greater part of his reign, Stalin could hardly have conducted himself more peacefully had he been a pacifist. From the time when he succeeded Lenin until the summer of 1939, when he signed the infamous non-aggression pact with Germany and divided up Poland, Russia lived within its borders with hardly a threatening gesture. Exceptions, such as Russian intervention in the Spanish civil war and the border strife with Japan's puppet state of Manchoukuo, were virtually forced on Stalin.

Even the Russian seizure of the eastern half of Poland and the first war against Finland can be interpreted as efforts to guard against war with Germany, by strengthening Russia's strategic position.

Was Stalin really a lamb? Hardly. He avoided war because he could not afford it. When he had to fight, he did so with ferocity. After the war, he swallowed Eastern European lands and made communism an expansionist force in widely separated parts of the world.

But in his day Russia did not possess the secret of nuclear weapons. Under Khrushchev this power was gained. And that made the danger of war greater, because it gave the U.S. and the West greater reason to fear Russia. Khrushchev has recognized this fact and has conducted himself accordingly. Whether Stalin would also have recognized it is a moot point. He was a fanatic. But he was a fanatic who could keep the peace when it was to his advantage to do so. The record proves that.

The Second Time Around

The United Arab Republic has been organized—again.

This is the second time around for Egypt and Syria, in their effort to devise an acceptable union. Divorced couples have tried the trick and sometimes made a go of it—but rarely with the addition of an offspring with whom neither of the main contracting parties has had any past home-life.

It was in 1958 that Egypt and Syria first tried to pull together in the double harness of the United Arab Republic. After a few years, Syria broke away, leaving Egypt with nothing but memories and the name. Now the two countries have agreed to renew the union and they are being joined by a third party, Iraq.

Little that has happened in recent years, and certainly not the addition of Iraq, suggests that it will be any easier for the countries to make a go of it now than it was five years or so ago. But sometimes persistence does pay off. And there is this to be said for the plan—it makes excellent sense.

Nasser confounded his critics once, with his successful management of the Suez Canal. If he can repeat and bring some union out of Near East chaos, his claim to be considered a truly big man will be enhanced. Some disquiet is being felt by other countries in the area, but if the new UAR can swallow its chagrin about the growth and prosperity of Israel and eventually make its peace with that state, it could become a force for good in the Near East.

The Canadian Cancer Society, as part of its educational program, makes available and distributes for different English-language films. It also makes six films available to doctors. Contributions to the Society's appeal for funds pay for this program, as well as supporting 94 separate cancer research projects and assistance to cancer patients.

The liberal arts college today has less to fear from world conquest by communism or regulation by some state or federal agency than it does from its own current blind submission to the authority and prestige of scientific research.—Dr. Maurice Baum, professor of philosophy at Kent State University, Ohio.

Now War Against Poor

Christian Century

In general the American people live much better than they did in the 1920s. Let us say that FDR's one third of a nation "ill housed, ill clad, ill nourished" has now been reduced to one fifth of a nation.

Such comparative figures — even if accurate — are little comfort to the one fifth who still live in rural shacks or in tenement-choked downtowns in big-city slums; who do not know where tomorrow's bread will come from; who have been automated out of the only kind of work they know how to do or who in their declining years can wear the honorable title of senior citizen on an income of $580 a year.

What can reports of increasing national prosperity possibly mean to people who have no share in that prosperity?

Who are the one fifth? They are widely dispersed over the nation: Negroes in the Black Belt cane in East Harlem; Negroes in the semi-circle of slums encircling Chicago's Loop; idle miners and steel workers in West Virginia; poor whites and Negro share croppers in the South; a million families of migratory laborers moving from crop to crop in conditions nowless, ostracized, unhealthy American society's skid-road derelicts; Indians; Spanish Americans along the Mexican border; aged people abandoned by family and society.

We pass them unnoticed as we travel our superhighways from the shops, theatres and offices of Central City to the rush suburbs, eyes buried in the daily paper; fly over them on our way to Florida (the corrugated hills of West Virginia are lovely from 10,000 feet); skirt their shacks as we drive federalised highways through the South; miss the stoop-laborers in the fields as we hasten to the blue lakes of Upper Michigan and Wisconsin.

And seldom are we reminded of the millions of elderly people, living either in dire or meagre incomes, isolated from society in their one-room homes.

The problems of the poor are compounded by the fact that increasingly the politicians who control municipal and state welfare agencies—and the power behind them—are using as one of the slogans proclaiming universal American prosperity to curtail public aid.

From arguing that relief and welfare payments must be restricted because they cannot be afforded, the opponents of welfare programs turn to the even more absurd argument that such aid is not needed.

Signs are multiplying that callousness quickly turns to aggression when poverty becomes an impotent, pathetic issue.

In Illinois, where relief costs for the biennium covered by the legislative session amount to hundredths of what politicians have taken to voting appropriations on a hand-to-mouth basis as a matter of habit.

There are other indications that the war against poverty has become a war against the poor and those who try to help them.

It is high time that the churches and synagogues of the nation rose to the challenge.

Three Shades of Red

By Quincy Howe in Atlas Magazine

Although Brazil's statute books outlaw the activities of the Communist Party, three rival Communist organizations now exist there.

The Brazilian Communist Party, ruled by veteran party member Carlos Prestes, takes its orders from Moscow and the newspaper Novos Rumos sets them forth every week.

The Communist Party of Brazil, on the other hand follows a pro - Chinese line. Its weekly publication Classe Operaria echoes the Moscow Communists for having passed a resolution that called for "an alliance with the bourgeoisie and other progressive elements."

According to Classe Operaria:

"This resolution will draw the militants of the Brazilian Communist Party, almost all most of them are, behind the opportunistic and traitorous policy of Joao Goulart's Labor Party which compromises with imperialists and with our own reactionaries.

"Those who, like ourselves, see no difference between politicians such as Goulart — who always wants to make a deal — and the reactionary leaders of the capitalist parties, will be called sectarians and dogmatists. But at least we shall not be the ones who fool the workers."

Brazil's third communist group favors a peasant revolution. Its leader, Francisco Julião, has organized a network of peasant leagues and claims a pro - Chinese bi-monthly called Liga.

He received some welcome, if adverse, publicity in the columns of Tribuna da Imprensa of Rio de Janeiro which sets forth the conservative views of its owner, Governor Lacerda, sometimes known as the Joe McCarthy of Brazil.

"Francisco Julião started his movement in Pernambuco. He broke his ties with his former comrades and gave his revolutionary movement a Marxist - Leninist structure along Chinese lines.

"Moscow - directed Communists believe that a movement like Julião's can lead only to military reaction and an anti-leftist dictatorship that would liquidate communism in Brazil, but Julião seems convinced that the peasants can be used against the principal allies to put through a Brazilian revolution.

"At the moment the Brazilian Communist Party, led by Prestes, wants to strengthen and broaden democratic institutions. It backs President Goulart, who handles the Communists with kid gloves provided they respect the Constitution.

"Julião is willing to gamble for the highest stakes and risk everything on one throw of the dice. That is why the Communists have denounced his activities and asked God last to take measures against him."

Giannino Carta, Rio de Janeiro correspondent for Milan's Corriere della Sera, reports that Francisco Julião has aligned his peasant leagues more closely with Mao Tse-tung's one Communist Party of Brazil.

"Brazil's problems," Julião told a meeting of Prestes, "are very like those of China, and in any case it is almost certain Mao's Asian Peoples Union is moving closer to the satisfied nations, and Brazil is an unsatisfied nation.

"I respect the Chinese and the Orientals in general for their logic and their politeness. They recognize that Khrushchev's liberalization policy is doing the Soviet Communist movement grave damage, but they can well for time to prove them right and the Moscow revisionists wrong."

Julião's statements also confirm reports from Cuba indicating that Fidel Castro has still nothing done to check the spread of Chinese influence among Cuba's Communists.

According to Carta:

"This gives rise to the suspicion that the Italian contingent of Soviet forces still present in the Communist citadel are there primarily to keep an eye on Fidel from falling completely into Mao's arms.

"Such an embrace would prove that the attraction Peking exerts on countries on the periphery of communism is commensurate with the distance of those countries from Moscow.

"Such an embrace could also produce serious chain reactions throughout South America with great damage to Khrushchev and to the Communist cause."

This Boy Just Too Logical

Ottawa Journal

The British Medical Journal has a report from a Surrey doctor who had a four-year-old boy brought in by his mother who suspected he had appendicitis. The doctor washed out the lad's stomach and found the remains of several mothballs plus a "rather damp, but nonetheless intact, moth."

Asked what had happened, the boy explained he had accidentally swallowed a moth ball and therefore swallowed a mothball to catch it.

Children are so logical that they give their parents bottomless pits in the stomach if not moths.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 22nd, 1942.

Successful efforts to hold the annual Eastern Ontario Checker championships in Belleville again this year were announced with J. E. Shortt, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.—the Eastern Ontario Checker championships have been played in Belleville for the past seven or eight years on Easter Monday. The area composing the district is from the Quebec border to the west boundaries of Peterborough and Durham counties.

Featuring 100 per cent attendance, the largest clinic ever to be held at the Kiwanis Centre for Blood Donor Clinic took place on Wednesday evening with 148 airmen from No. 8 Initial Training School donating their blood for the cause of their country. The entire 148 donations made in record time with station doctors, Flight Lieutenant Riddell and Flying Officer Thomson attending the airmen, according to clinic officials.

Five roads were reached in the Belleville General Hospital at midafternoon on Wednesday as the result of an alarm arising out of an over-heated electric fire on the third floor of that institution. Upon the arrival of firemen, however, no fire was in evidence but the fan was discovered to be smoking considerably.

A broadcasting station is to be established here. Mr. Carl A. Read of this city, has received a grant from Mr. W. R. Hammond, M.P., for South Hastings, that his application which was made some months ago for permission to erect a broadcasting station has been granted. Estimated cost of the station which is expected to be in operation within the next three months, has been put at $15,000. No definite location or sponsor of the project has yet been secured, but numerous minor details still remain to be worked out. The station will be in the Central Ontario, and will have a day range of 40-mile radius. Night reception will be over a much greater distance. For programs Mr. Read intends to relay mainly on hookup from some Toronto station the same as now being used by large stations. Local talent will be offered a chance to go on the air at frequent intervals.

At the Y.M.C.A. alleys last evening, the local high school team defeated the G.W.V.A. team, the score being 2354 to 2415. The following composed the teams: High School — Ross, Bateman, Buck, Gilbert — and Hall. G.W.V.A. — Lancaster, Lorimer, Cummings, Johns and Hall.

Dr. R. Bruce Taylor, principal of Queen's University, Kingston will address members of the Belleville Club on the evening of April 24th.

Miss May Rose Bird of Kingston, was a weekend guest of Miss C. Torney in this city.

Mr. J. Orval Herity will go to Renfrew on the 24th inst., and will address the members of the Board of Trade there on the subject, "Better Citizenship".

Sir Lawrence Cowly will also address the meeting.

50 YEARS AGO

April 22nd, 1913.

Mr. Fred Snider addressed the ladies' meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday afternoon. His excellent address was on the subject of "Short Sightedness."

Mrs. Wesley Post and young son Earle, recently visited Prof. Arbuckle in Kingston.

The licence commissioners met here yesterday and licences were renewed to fifteen hotels and three liquor stores in the city; this is the same number as last year.

The city council has appointed police magistrate Stewart Mauson to the position of city solicitor at a salary of $500 per year.

The post office at Sidney Crossing will be closed on May 1st after being in existence for 33 years. During that time the office has been faithfully conducted by Mr. W. R. Vandervoort. The reason for closing the office is that rural delivery is well established and no doubt will prove to be more convenient to all concerned.

Glaring Inequities In Tax Laws

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If I give a hundred dollars, or a thousand dollars as a contribution to any college of my choice, I am allowed an income-tax deduction. But if I send my child to a private college, thus relieving the public colleges of a financial burden — I am not allowed to deduct a cent.

Of all the inequities in the tax laws which there are many) this one strikes me as among the most senseless and unjust. The public colleges and universities are bursting at the seams and all the states are heavily pressed to cope with the rapidly expanding school population.

If we grant incentives to oil men and farmers and shippers and other segments of the population, how much more sensible to grant some tax relief to those parents who are putting their children through the increasingly expensive private colleges.

Several such bills have been proposed in Congress, and the arguments for them have seemed overwhelmingly persuasive to me, but they have all died in committee, because there is no cohesive group of voters willing or able to pressure their congressmen on the issue. There is no parents' lobby and Congress is not responsive to unorganized (if widespread) sentiment.

Education is the biggest business in America today. More is spent on it — from nursery to kindergarten up through college than any other segment of our national economy, more than a share of our taxes, at the town and county and state levels, go to pay for the building and operation of the school system.

Those parents who send their children to private colleges are paying twice and sometimes three times as much as those who take advantage of state and municipal colleges. In addition, they are helping indirectly reducing the population (and therefore the expenses) in the public colleges.

It would seem only just that a tax deduction be granted for such tuition; not the whole amount, perhaps, but certainly the difference between the amount paid to the private college and the amount that would have been paid to the public one.

If we are to encourage education at the higher levels — and our national need is great in these areas — parents should not be penalized for sending their children to relatively small, top-grade, and expensive colleges. More of this, indeed, should be encouraged, to take some of the burden off the immense, sprawling and depersonalized state universities. Any rational system of tax reform would include college tuitions on its priority list for the national welfare.

Gamma Globulin Injection Often Fights Germs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner—What is wrong when a person is hungry all the time? When I finish dinner I feel as though I hadn't eaten.—S. S.

The likeliest cause is that you aren't eating the right things, and your system is trying to tell you so. Do you get plenty of protein? Fresh or cooked vegetables, including green, leafy ones? Fruit and fruit juices? Protein has great satisfy value, it satisfies hunger. The vegetables and fruit provide bulk. You may have hypermotility or excessively rapid emptying of the stomach. Try eating more slowly. Hypermotility can be lessened by sedative drugs taken before meals. Another cause is low blood sugar, which can be corrected by diet.

THE PACKSACK

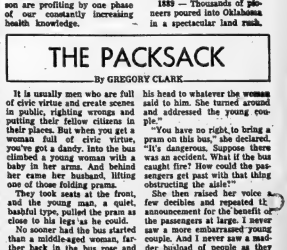
By GREGORY CLARK

It is usually men who are full of civic virtue and create scenes in public, rising to their feet and putting their fellow citizens in their places. But when you get a woman full of civic virtue, you've got a dandy. Into the bus climbed a young woman with a baby in her arms. And behind her came her husband, lifting the baby carriage aboard.

They took seats at the front, and the young man, a quiet, inoffensive looking chap, came close to his legs as he could.



No sooner had the bus started than a middle-aged woman, father back in the bus rose and walked forward to speak to the young man. She made quite a production of manoeuvring her way past the pram. The driver shook his head to whatever the woman said to him. She turned around and addressed the young couple.

"You have no right to bring a pram on this bus," she declared. "It's dangerous. Suppose there was an accident. What if the bus caught fire? How could the passengers get past with that thing obstructing the aisle?"

She then raised her voice a few decibles and repeated the announcement for the benefit of the passengers at large. I never saw a more embarrassed young couple. And I never saw a murder busload of people as they glared at the woman until, filled with civic virtue, she resumed her seat. She hadn't a friend in the bunch.

Sparky of Moiradale, owned by Jim Carruthers of Corbyville, was fourth, and Pickaxe Peggy Sage, owned by Chuck Durham of Westmeath, was reserve. Will Preshes of Foxboro, and George Woodhouse of Belleville, judged the afternoon trial.

Nineteen dogs were entered in the 13-inch class, and 16 in the 15-inch class, both tried under cloudy skies with a stiff wind. About 25 people attended the event.

Between events, Veterinary Dr. H. W. Burns, of Belleville, presented the Dr. Burns' trophy—for the best Quinte District Beagle Club dog of 1962 —to Jim Carruthers of Corbyville, for Sparky of Moiradale. Sparky, a 15-inch dog, is four years old and a regular winner of fun trials. Last year Sparky won the United Counties Beagle Club licensed trial at Baltimore.

SPARKY OF MOIRADALE was "Best Dog of 1962" in the Quinte District Beagle Club and Sparky's owner, Jim Carruthers of Corbyville, was presented the Dr. Burns' Trophy at Thomasburg yesterday. In the picture, Dr. H. W. Burns, right, presents the trophy.

BUNNY'S UP — and the dogs are released at the Quinte District Beagle Club fun trial, near Thomasburg Sunday. Nineteen dogs were entered in the 13-inch class, shown here. Winning dog was Baron Corbo of Packsong, owned by Chuck Durham, of Westmeath, Ont.

School Display Nearly Ready At Museum

The highlight of the Hastings County Museum's opening on Saturday, May 4, will be a special education display. The display is being arranged to show something of the school equipment used fifty to one hundred years ago.

Many district residents have helped by loaning or donating articles of interest. However, there is still a need for materials connected with education a century ago and anyone willing to assist the museum by supplying early school benches or other equipment is asked to contact the chief curator, Mrs. Dorothy Sargent at WO 2-3731.

Among the articles to be displayed for the first time is the society's extensive collection of school books. These date back to the early 1800's, and at least one of them is unique in that no other copy of it is known to exist today.

ARE YOU DISTURBED ?

Have you managerial ability, a good education record, the desire to earn a good income, good health and character?

We will hire one man who can say "Yes" to the above. Reply in confidence to Box 194, c/o The Ontario Intelligencer giving brief history of business experience and phone number.

Six Former Members Quinte High School Board Honored

Six former members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board were honored Saturday evening at a dinner held in the cafeteria at the Moira Secondary School.

Honored were five board members who retired at the end of 1962 — A. L. Greatrix; Brooks Allen; W. David Rowe; W. T. Simpson and William Argue. The sixth was Mr. A. O. Drysdale, who is retiring from the board at the end of this month.

Attending the dinner were board members and their wives, high school principals and their wives, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Birkenshaw, representing the local branch of the teachers' federation.

Board member Arnold Campbell acted as master of ceremonies and referred to the long and capable service given by the six retiring board members.

GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Board chairman Bruce Pertt also expressed appreciation for the work of the retiring members and made presentations of gift certificates on behalf of the school board.

Mr. Harry Birkenshaw presented Mr. Simpson, 1963 board chairman, with an engraved tray on behalf of the teachers' federation.

Expressing board appreciation in the retiring members, Mr. Campbell said there were two conflicting areas confronting school trustees.

Their first and foremost duty was to provide the best education possible and secondly to control the cost. Because of the conflictive many of the board decisions take much time, study and thought, he said.

Four of the retiring members Mr. Greatrix, Mr. Allen, Mr. Drysdale and Mr. Simpson have served as board chairmen and have a combined board service of 43 years.

"Such length and calibre of service will be missed by the board and citizens of this area owe them a very deep debt of gratitude," he said.

TWO SINCE INCEPTION

Two of the retiring members, Mr. Greatrix, Thurlow township, and Mr. Allen, Hastings county representative, had been members of the high school board since its inception in 1952, while Mr. Drysdale was appointed in 1955 after serving on the advisory vocational committee.

Mr. Rowe was appointed Ameliasburg township representative in 1958, Mr. Argue was appointed city representative in 1961, and Mr. Simpson was named public schools representative in 1960.

Plan to Attend the Jaycees Home and Sports Show

THE STAR OF THE NORTH — More than 40 carats of man-made ruby is the highlight of this $4,000 one-of-a-kind necklace, which will be displayed by the Belleville Jewellers' Association at the Quinte District Home and Sports Show, in Belleville this week.

Necklace Displayed Here Features Man-Made Jewels

Diamonds, 166 of them even, are just frills on a $4,000 necklace to be shown at the Quinte District Home and Sports Show. There are also six star rubies totalling 20 carats in the necklace. But they're just frills too.

The feature jewel is the "Star of the North," forty-two-and-a-quarter carat, man-made, star ruby, set in the pendant. The 68 smaller man-made star rubies are graduated in size and set on either side of the "Star of the North". The settings are white gold.

Commissioned by Linde Gases Division of Union Carbide, the necklace is an original Canadian design. Now part of the Canadiana Collection, it will be displayed at the Quinte District Home and Sports Show by the Belleville Jewellers' Association this week.

The "Star of the North" and the other man-made rubies in the necklace are identical with real stones in every respect but two. The artificial stones are flawless; and almost all natural stones have some flaws. They differ in price too - natural stones, complete with flaws, cost about ten times as much as the man-made, flawless kind. The finest stones of both types are characterized by the way they disperse light as a six-rayed star. "Star" sapphires and rubies are among the most prized of all gems.

WAR DEVELOPMENT

The artificial stones were first developed in Europe. During the Second World War, when the supply of synthetic stones from Europe was cut off, means of manufacturing the the U.S. government asked the Linde company to devise a synthetic stones, used as bearings in precision instruments.

During 1942, the year the U.S. actually entered the war, the Linde Company had begun production of synthetic sapphires at a new plant in Hammond, Indiana. During the war, this plant supplied synthetic sapphires to all allied countries, but as peace came the European factories resumed production, with lower prices, and took over the industrial market.

LACKED STARS

However a small gem-cutting industry had developed in the U.S. and Linde continued to make some stones for jewellery purposes. But the synthetic jewels had no "stars", and it is the "stars" cerning them, that make the and the legends con- finest natural Burmese stones so valuable.

The "stars" of really fine stones are supposed by some to ward off evil and bring good luck to their owners. Other stories attribute to "stars" the power to cure fever, to calm jangled nerves and to act as a powerful love charm. Sir Richard Burton, a famous traveller of the 19th century, was reported to have paid his way in Asia by allowing people to look at a magnificent "star," in return for services rendered.

The "stars" were added to the synthetic stones in 1947, by slight changes in the methods of manufacture. The stones are created from aluminum oxide powder, sifted through a white hot oxy-hydrogen flame. The powder lands on a small platform and crystalizes as it cools. Each boule — or raw chunk of gemstone — takes about four hours to form. In nature, the same stone would take more than 1,000 years to crystalize.

Jr. Chamber of Commerce Sponsoring Quinte District Home and Sport Show Here

Watch out for this week's Home and Sports Show men. It's a sneaky mixture. You'll be mooning about the house waiting for a chance to sneak down to the armories for a look at the fishing equipment, when the little woman comes in with her coat on. Good news! You don't have to sneak out! Not only can you go to the show, your soul mate is going with you.

But when you get there, do you think you're going to look at fishing rods? Don't be foolish. You're wife has her eye on the home part of the show, and her plans for your house won't leave you much time for fishing anyway. Exhibitors will be showing her everything she's ever dreamed of and quite a few that she hasn't and you'd better be there to keep track. But the show goes on until 11 p.m., so you can probably sneak back for a late look at the sporting goods.

OPENING THURSDAY

M. H. E. Moerel, first secretary of the Netherlands Trade Commission will open the show on Thursday, at about 8 p.m. Early birds will have a chance to get in before the official opening though, at noon. They can be looking over the nearly fifty booths Mr. Moerel is looking over the city, on a tour guided by Don Burr, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the show, and Earl Dickmoether, Secretary manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The members of the official party will be back at the Hotel Quinte by 5.30, for a reception and dinner given by the Belleville Industrial Commission. At 7.30, they will join a parade from the Federal Building down Front St. to the armories, arriving at 8 p.m. for the official opening. That parade should be quite the sight — the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Band will be there, a local majorette corps, and the RCAF pipe band is expected.

The official opening ceremonies will be on the stage in the armories at eight o'clock. Officers of the Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce and civic officials will be on stage with Mr. Moerel.

THREE DAY SHOW

The three-day show is being presented by the Jaycees partly to give the members experience in organizing events of this sort. Equally important is the opportunity it will give local manufacturers and merchants of showing their wares, and the opportunity for local people to see what is available. Home builders, building products, dealers, appliance and furniture dealers and sporting goods dealers will be represented. If the show goes as well as expected this year, it will be an annual event.

Professional entertainment will be provided Friday and Saturday evenings by "The Skyliners and Penny", a singing group from Toronto, and by Joey Hollingsworth, singer and dancer. Thursday afternoon, the French Salon of Hair Dressing will present a hair styling demonstration. The YMCA will present a judo and trampoline demonstration Saturday afternoon.

Admission will cost 50c per person, with children under 12 years old free, if accompanied by an adult. Any profit realized by the show will be used for civic betterment projects, according to the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

BOUT UNSCHEDULED

LONDON (AP)—British television fans saw an acid-tongued commentator punched by a member of the studio audience Saturday night. The commentator, Bernard Levin, was about to embark on a debate about pacifism with 10 ban-the-bomb crusaders. A bespectaled man walked up from the audience and unloosed a couple of body punches.

Joey Hollingsworth, popular singing and dancing star from Toronto will entertain visitors at the Quinte District Home and Sports Show, Friday and Saturday evenings.

26-Man Crew Rescued by U.S. Cutter

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The 36-man crew of the 2,600-ton freighter Helga Smith was rescued Sunday night by the United States Coast Guard cutter Campbell after the ship sprang a leak and began sinking 40 miles east of Cape Race.

A spokesman at the U.S. Naval base at Argentia, Nfld., said the cutter picked up the men from lifeboats in 14-foot waves.

The Helga Smith is listed in Lloyd's registry of shipping as Swedish, but was flying the Greek flag.

Many Students Are Paying For Privilege to Attend Saturday School in Wpg.

By JIM NEAVES

ST. JAMES, Man. (CP)—Use like Shakespeare's "whining schoolboy," students enrolled in special Saturday morning classes in this Metropolitan Winnipeg city don't creep like snails unwillingly to school.

For the most part they're eager to go and, what's more, they pay for the privilege—$10 for 20 weeks of instruction.

An educational experiment, the Saturday school was introduced as a remedial measure in 1959 after it was found many students in need of help were unable to attend summer classes.

Ron Thomson, school superintendent, says that since the corrective classes couldn't be held during regular school hours or in the evenings, Saturday was chosen.

The idea was well received and the classes now are attended by more than 600 students in the school division, which has a total school population of 7,700.

The two-hour classes—which are not limited to students with low marks—include mathematics, English, French, composition, reading, art and typing.

ALL VOLUNTEERS

The special sessions are held in St. James Collegiate and attendance is voluntary. A teacher may suggest in a letter to a student's parents that extra tuition would be helpful "but that's as far as it goes," says Mr. Thomson.

Teryl Johnston, a petite blonde 17-year-old Grade 12 student at Silver Heights Collegiate, is taking an extra mathematics course.

"I decided to take the course myself," she said. "This is my final year and I have to get the highest marks possible. It's helping me immensely and math seems to become clearer to me in my regular week-day class. Also the extra course is not as expensive as a private tutor."

Dennis Bell, a tall 14-year-old from Britannia School, says he has always had trouble with French.

"I'm taking Grade 8 French. I needed it. Mother pays but I wanted to come.

"We get a test every Saturday and what I like most about it is that I get a different viewpoint from another teacher."

NO STIGMA

Both Teryl and Dennis attend with school friends. In fact so many students attend the classes "no one gets ribbed about going to school on Saturdays," says Teryl.

Peter Lewis, principal of the Saturday school and vice-principal of Woodhaven Elementary School during the week, says "we have a waiting list as our 29 classes are limited to 25 students each."

He adds that provision is made, in the form of bursaries, for students who otherwise might not be able to attend because of financial problems.

Teachers, who also volunteer to handle the classes, get $5.50 an hour for the two hours and their salary comes out of tuition fees.

Bombing

anonymous telephone caller old the Montreal bureau of The Canadian Press about an hour earlier that the FLQ's Operation Jean Lesage "is continuing as announced."

A similar telephone tip to The Canadian Press Friday night about "operation Jean Lesage" was followed in 18 minutes by an explosive at the rear of the RCMP garages in suburban Westmount. That blast shattered windows but caused no injuries.

NAMED FOR PREMIER

The FLQ named its sabotage campaign after Mr. Lesage in a mimeographed press release, describing the Quebec premier as a "collaborator and a traitor to his people."

A rash of bomb scares and incidents involving Quebec's blue-and-white fleur-de-lys flag broke out Sunday night.

Police were kept hopping as 13 callers reported bombs planted in various locations and demonstrators hauled down the fleur-de-lys from the downtown Place Ville Marie skyscraper and the Windsor Hotel.

All the bomb scares were hoaxes. Sgt. Flouffe took apart the cleverly-contrived fake in the main Montreal post office and was called out to check a crude device left in an east-end parking lot.

Police described most calls as the work of cranks.

The FLQ has claimed responsibility for a series of acts of sabotage extending over several weeks.

ATTACK ARMORIES

Molotov cocktails — bottles filled with an inflammable liquid and carrying a lighted wick — were thrown at three Montreal-area armories but caused little damage.

A bomb described as a factory-made high explosive was lobbed into the ventilating system of the National Revenue Building in downtown Montreal. It exploded over a locker room and caused extensive damage, although no one was injured.

A short section of track on the CNR main line south of Quebec City was damaged, apparently by dynamite, during the April 8 federal election campaign. It was replaced about an hour before a special train carrying Prime Minister Diefenbaker passed through.

An explosive package of 24 sticks of dynamite was planted at the foot of a 364-foot radio and television tower atop Mount Royal two weeks ago. It was discovered accidentally by a CBC technician and police dismantled it minutes before an alarm clock timer was to have detonated it.

UNEMPLOYMENT CLIMBS

—Unemployment in Canada stood at 540,000 in mid-March, 4,000 higher than the figure a month earlier.

Total represented 8.4 per cent of the labor force, and was 11,000 lower than the number of jobless in March, 1962.

COUNT 75 PER CENT

TORONTO (CP) — Although barely a third of Ontario's 1962 motor vehicle accidents occurred on rural roads, these accounted for nearly 75 per cent of the year's fatal accidents, Transport Minister Auld disclosed Friday. He released statistics showing there were 94,221 motor vehicle accidents during the year, accounting for 1,383 fatalities, 41,766 injuries and total property damage of $45,000,000.

Nuclear Subs May Unlock Canada's Arctic Treasure

HALIFAX (CP) — Commodore O. C. S. Robertson, who discovered the first usable North West Passage, believes nuclear submarines hold the key to the exploitation of Canada's ice-locked Arctic treasures.

Commodore Robertson, now retired, sees a bright future for the Arctic with its great deposits of iron ore, copper, sulphur and other natural resources.

But, he says, it will not be accessible by sea transport for a "few generations."

A practical explorer, Commodore Robertson was captain of HMCS Labrador—now a transport department icebreaker—when she sailed across the Arctic Ocean to the Pacific from the Atlantic in 1954.

He said the voyage revealed a usable North West Passage—one that could be used even in winter by nuclear submarines. The RCMS vessel St. Roch had traversed the Arctic Ocean in 1942 but her route was not practical for general use.

TRANSPORT UNDER ICE

Now a geography lecturer at McGill University and a governor of the Arctic Institute of North America, Commodore Robertson says the atomic-powered submarine would be the vehicle to transport the minerals of the far north under the ice to world markets.

The 56-year-old sailor, in Halifax recently on a short visit before leaving for the Arctic with a United States expedition as no stranger to travelling under ice.

He was in the U.S. submarine Sea Dragon as an observer on a 44-day undersea trip to the North Pole in 1960.

He said rigors of the Arctic had been exaggerated by early explorers. With modern equipment the prospect of living and working in the north was comparable in safety to living on the Prairies.

The commodore said when the Sea Dragon crashed through five feet of ice to surface at the pole he casually talked to his wife in Washington by radio-telephone.

He said low temperatures posed no great problem as at times it was colder in Winnipeg than at the pole. Snowfall in the region was only nine inches annually.

SEEKS TREATMENT

PRAGUE (AP) — East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht, 69, arrived in Czechoslovakia today for "medical treatment," the official Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported. CTK gave no details of the nature of Ulbricht's ailment and did not say to what town he would go.

The Skyliners and Penny will appear for a total of four shows Friday and Saturday nights, at the Quinte District Home and Sports Show, at the Armouries in Belleville. The Toronto-based group normally works on radio and television.

Pr. Ed,-Belleville Ladies' Club Holds Fine Eatate Service

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club was held at the Recreation Centre on Wednesday.

The president, Mrs. Garbutt, opened the meeting and extended a warm welcome to the 15 members and three visitors, and expressed the regret of the club in the passing of a member, Mrs. Thomas Skeggs. Two minutes of silent tribute was observed and "Abide With Me" sung in her memory.

A letter was read from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, asking assistance financially, to install an elevator at the Quinte-St. Lawrence Hall at Kingston. The club voted $25 towards this project.

The corresponding secretary reported flowers sent in memory of Mrs. Skeggs, and an Easter lily to Mrs. Farnsworth, in memory of her son, Dr. J. F. Farnsworth.

Mrs. Weese, program convener, presented the following program: "The Loom of Life," read by Mrs. Weese; followed by an Easter hymn "Alas and Did My Saviour Bleed?" "The Real Meaning of Easter," by Mrs. Parliament, a solo, "Were You There?" by Mrs. Wanamaker, with Mrs. Prentice as accompanist.

Mrs. Weese, who had just returned home after spending the winter in Florida, showed slides of some of the scenes she saw while there and one that impressed her was a pretty little garden in a dry river bed called the "Garden of Gethsemane." The "Last Supper" is sculptured with life-size figures.

Mrs. Weese also spoke of the symbols of Easter. The Easter lily with its six petals and the butterfly, the broken shell and the 'New Life.'

"Why is the Maple Leaf the Symbol of Canada?" was read by Mrs. Wanamaker.

Mrs. Garbutt read a paper, prepared by late member, Mrs. Shelly Anderson, "My Motto," you are only as old as the tune you whistle.

Another Easter hymn, "Rejoice," brought the meeting to a close.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Weese's group, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

B.B.G. Couples' Club Plans April Dance

The B.B.C. Couples' Club held its last regular meeting for the season at Allisonville Hall, as a pot-luck supper with 19 adults and three children present.

Grace was offered by the Rev. Trear. Clare McFaul, president, opened the meeting by calling on Doug and Hilda Harns for the devotional.

In the absence of the secretary, Richard Hall, Thelma Hough acted.

Jean Root gave the treasurer's report.

Marion McFaul thanked everyone for the cards sent her.

Applications were available for Quin-Mo-Lac camp, also dance for the coming Belleville Presbytery Couples' Club dance to be held later this season at Club Canada. Each lady is to take lunch. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

It was decided to have a get-together on the night of May 25th at Huffman's Pit, and each family to bring around $2. worth of fireworks and the children.

Lunch will be hot dogs and coffee. If an unsuitable night, Doug and Hilda Harns invited the club to their home.

The executive will meet in the near future to plan summer months' activities, some suggestions for this were given. Those unable to come as he had already made arrangements but would be pleased to come at another time.

Clare thanked all for the cooperation given them during the past.

DROWN IN MAY

More people are drowned from boats in Canada during the month of May than in any other month of the year.

Seen admiring the Manly Macdonald painting to be the draw prize at the University Women's Club Spring Fair next month are Mrs. J. H. Bateman, painting exhibit convener; Mrs. R. E. Barrett, vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Pugh, president, and Mrs. F. B. Sheffield, fair convener.

University Women's Club Now Planning Spring Fair

Once again, members of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district are busily planning their annual Spring Fair. On this occasion, the club is pleased to present, in addition to tea and a sale of home baking, an exhibition of Manly Macdonald paintings. Over the years, this exhibit has proven so widely popular that visitors attend from as far away as London, Toronto, Kingston and Peterborough.

Mrs. W. Neal presided at the piano for the program. Mr. Ron. Reid Brown introduced the guests at the head table, and various toasts were given. Richard Martin expressed thanks to the ladies who catered. The master of ceremonies was William J. Barlow and the remainder of the program was as follows: vocal solo, Ken Bain; selection by the Buffalo Girls and a sing-song led by Ken Bain.

Mrs. Macdonald's generous donation of one of his paintings as a draw prize makes it possible for the University Women's Club to present two scholarships of three hundred dollars each, to girls graduating from the city and district high schools who plan to attend University in the fall.

This year, an additional scholarship, also valued at three hundred dollars, will be awarded.

Mr. Macdonald, who was born in Point Anne, lives there several months of the year. He is a graduate of the Albright Art School, Boston, the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts and of the Ontario College of Art. He is an associate of the Royal Canadian Academy and of the Ontario Society of Artists. Paintings by Mr. Macdonald hang in the National Gallery in Ottawa.

His work has a particular appeal for all in this district, for he paints the country we all know and love.

Mr. Macdonald and Mrs. J. H. Bateman, convener of the Spring Fair painting exhibit will be guests of Claire Leonard on Almanac, over CKWS television on April 23rd at 3 p.m.

East Central Ontario Art Assoc. Opens Exhibit at Library

The East Central Ontario Art Association is currently holding its annual exhibition, of paintings at the Belleville Public Library.

This year's exhibit opened earlier this month in Lindsay. From approximately 200 pictures submitted from all parts of East Central Ontario, Mrs. Stewart Bagnani, head of the Extension Department, Toronto Art Gallery, selected 60 for this show.

Each year's exhibit seems to offer something new and different from the year before and as well as many of the more conventional types of paintings, there are several, experiments in different styles and techniques, resulting in some unusual effects.

LOCAL ARTISTS REPRESENTED

Once again Belleville was well represented in the show. Pat Gardner, Dorothy Heaven, Muriel Andrews, Dorothy Brown, Bea Williamson, Nancie DePaul, Edna Henderson, Helen Graham, Margaret Pedersen, Irene Fleming and Dorothy Watson were all successful in having pictures selected.

The Belleville showing of this exhibit is opening this evening, and will continue next Saturday. It may be seen at any time during Library hours.

Mayor of Ottawa Glad To Pay Visit to Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa arrived here Sunday for 12 days of sightseeing in the Soviet Union and shop talk with municipal officials.

Met at the airport by Moscow's Mayor Vladimir Promyslov, Miss Whitton told him:

"I am glad to be in Moscow. I have come what Napoleon couldn't do. I don't think he would ever really get to Moscow."

Promyslov told her through an interpreter: "We are glad you are here."

In the airport lounge the welcoming party stood around for long minutes while the mayor unmanged through her handbag looking for her plane and baggage tickets.

TICKETS ELUSIVE

Unable to find them in the bags bag, she said impatiently:

"This is a woman's bag just like the United Nations. You have everything but you can't find a thing."

"I guess it I don't find my ticket, I'll just have to stay in Russia."

The mayor of Moscow grinned and made no reply.

Miss Whitton told Promyslov that one of her major interests is Moscow's snow removal methods. "We had 59 inches of snow in Ottawa during the past winter," she told him. "The Russian mayor said he would do his best to show her how the Muscovites cope with snow removal.

After Miss Whitton located her tickets, she told her hosts that there are many Russians in Canada. After an awkward silence from the Russians, she explained that they started coming about the turn of the century—well before the Bolshevik revolution of 1917.

GIVES LESSON

She also commented that Canada is geographically the second largest country in the world after the Soviet Union. Miss Whitton also informed the Russians that, next to the United States, Russia is Canada's nearest neighbor.

"At one place in the Arctic we are only 43 miles apart," she said. "How long it takes in Moscow, I am closer to my own city than if I were in the Mackenzie River in my own country."

She said she planned to stay in the Soviet Union until May 3, and expressed eagerness at the prospect of seeing Moscow's mammoth May Day parade in Red Square.

Her official itinerary calls for visits to Leningrad and Kiev as well as Moscow.

Miss Whitton was invited to Russia by the former Soviet Ambassador to Canada, Amazasp Aroutunian, but he was not at the airport to meet her. It was said that he is ill.

Departing Residents Feted By Friends

WALLBRIDGE — On Wednesday evening relatives and friends gathered in the church hall to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Morley Phillips and daughter, Nancy, who are leaving on Monday for Exeter.

A pleasant evening was spent with Mr. Arthur Carleton, as chairman. Films were shown, which were interesting.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and Nancy were called to the front. Mrs. Harold Phillips read the address and they were presented with numerous gifts for which they all thanked their many friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and Nancy will be greatly missed in the neighborhood and all church activities.

Mr. Phillips has been a school trustee for many years but Wallbridge's loss will be a gain to their new home.

Lunch was served by the ladies.

CHAIN OF HISTORY

Historic forts and 16 public parks run in a chain the 170 miles from Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario, to Lancaster on Lake St. Francis, Que.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be

RAWDON — A miscellaneous shower was held last Tuesday evening, honor of Miss Muriel McMullen, bride-to-be, at the home of Mrs. Blake Faulkner. Twenty-two ladies were Mrs. Larry McMaster and Mrs. John Williams.

The ladies were in attendance and the group enjoyed various games and contests.

The honored guest was the recipient of a large array of lovely wrapped gifts, which were opened and displayed.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close and the group extended best wishes for future happiness.

Successful Living

By DORIS CLARK

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Who Wears the Flowers?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My nephew is being married. Personally I think the girl's family is trying to put on airs which they cannot afford to do.

First: Should grandmothers and aunts wear corsages at weddings?

Second: Should bride-to-be, her mother and all assisting at trousseau tea wear corsages?

Third: When a man and his wife enter the church does the usher take the wife up the aisle and man follow like a lamb or should usher walk ahead of man and wife who walk up together?—AUNTIE.

DEAR AUNTIE:

First: No. Only members of the bridal party carry or wear flowers.

Second: No.

Third: Man follows like said lamb.

DEAR DORIS—I read your very understanding answers to the homosexual who wrote in, and I am very grateful to have someone to ask advice from.

I am the mother of a boy of ten who seems to have homosexual tendencies. He likes dressing in girl's clothes, high heels, glamorous veils, hats, etc. He'd rather play games with the girls.

We have four children, all very normal. This one is quite artistic, has drawn beautifully-formed women since four years off age.

My private talks with the family seem to have paid off. Although they all know this one is different, I tell them he'll make them proud some day as an actor, dress designer, or choreographer, or artist.

Is there anything I can do to help him? Shall I let him take ballet before 16? Can I teach him anything that will help him when problems arise?

His maternal grandfather, although a prominent business man and ball player, was a very gentle, kind man, who especially enjoyed many feminine friends and had a tremendous respect for women and motherhood.

My husband has a delightful sense of humor and is a good man who will do anything to help his boys become worthwhile men. He loves the children very much but he can be tough with them when they need it. He's left this one up to me mostly, because he can't understand his feminity.—PUZZLED MOTHER.

DEAR PUZZLED MOTHER—In seeking to prove him normal but "different," you have reinforced his "different" tendencies. Have you unconsciously taken to this gentle son of yours because of your attachment to your gentle father?

His own dad should be in there pitching; manly sports, physically challenging activities, should be part of his training. He must see that men can be attractive in looks, clothing and manner. Feminism in a man can only bring tragedy in Canadian society and he doesn't have to be a homo.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—One thing I would like to know is—do you open all your own mail and personally answer it? I would like to write you on a certain matter but would not like it put in the paper or even read by your secretary or accomplice. What do I do to insure that only you get it.—INCOGNITO.

* * *

DEAR INCOG—Without my secretary I'd get absolutely nowhere. She opens mail, dates it, hands it to me in order of receipt. Takes my dictation, types my replies. Mails them to you. Everything you write to me is just as secredly private to her.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I started going out with a boy until I realized that he was much too serious for me. Then I started liking another boy.

I've been hinting to him but when my Mom found out she told me that if I kept getting myself a new boy friend every other month, I'd lose my reputation. That's all she cares about. Do you think it's fair for her to make me stay away from this boy who is less serious?

I want to tell the first one that I still like him but I don't want to go with him any more. How can I tell him this without hurting him and stop my mother worrying about my reputation? If I do go on with him, I'll be miserable. — MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE—Were the hints pretty broad? Mom doesn't want her daughter throwing herself at anybody. Act like a lady and your reputation will take care of itself. And tell B.F. No. 1 just what you suggest, as gently as you can.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I am a 12-year-old girl with quite hairy legs. I don't mind it in the winter, but in the summer I wear ankle socks, so it is quite embarrassing. I was wondering if you knew of anything I could put on my legs so it wouldn't show so much.—WONDER.

* * *

DEAR WONDER—There are such things as leg make-up, bleaches and hair removers. Write to me for details enclosing a five-cent-stamped self-addressed envelope for private reply.

* * *

(Doris will reply privately to your question if you enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

FAULTING THE FAULTFINDER

It's a safe bet that when man first learned to walk upright, he complained about his new outlook on the world around him. He and the gentler sex have been finding fault with things ever since.

Faultfinding is one of mankind's minor vices. Carried to an extreme, it can degenerate into a vicious habit.

Most victims of this personality quirk don't realize they've been bitten by the critical bug. Very often, the people who say "Who, me?" are apt to be the "Yes, but . . ." carpers who overlook the big picture in search of a minor flaw.

To put it another way, if you look hard enough, you're sure to find something wrong in almost anything and anybody.

Consider these characteristic types:

The boss who ignores the new contract brought in by his hard-working salesman to wonder why they're not doing business with the little store around the corner.

The vice-president who pounces on a misspelled word in a brilliant 10-page report on business conditions.

The husband who smacks his lips over a dish that took six hours to prepare but moans that dinner was 15 minutes late.

The wife who spoils an otherwise wonderful night out by reminding her husband how he dropped an ash on their host's living room rug.

The inconsiderate gourmet who smirks authoritatively as he publicly announces that the stew was good but it could have used a little less pepper.

MUST CATCH MISTAKES

This does not imply that all faultfinders are blood brothers of those I've listed. Many an executive and supervisor must keep tabs on how things are being done and catch mistakes before they cause damage.

But faultfinders can be such an obsession that it becomes a way of life. Addicts greet most situations and people with suspicion and a "what's wrong with this" attitude.

Luckily, the victim must recognize that he's developed a bad habit. Recognition precedes remedy.

Then he can nurse himself back to proper attitude by looking at the bright side of things. If he offers criticism, it should be constructive.

If his eagle eye spots a mis- or goof, he should train himself to study the whole situation or performance before offering comment. He may easily decide that the flaw isn't worth mentioning.

When he finally understands that no one or nothing is perfect, he's well on his way to a cure.

Thereafter, his only problem will be the other faultfinders who meet him.

Alpha Lambda Gives History Plans Dance

The Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, compos[ed] of a group of young women active in community interests, was formed in 1946, with purpose of giving young women, in search of further cultural advantages and expanded social contact, the opportunity to unite in fellowship with other young women, who also desire to forward their cultural instincts by definite courses of study, having the ultimate aim of making life a thing of beauty.

Although culture is Beta Sigma Phi's main object, it has an impressive part of service work. Through the channels of the organization, much financial help has been given to the work of research. Girlstown, U.S.A., a home for underprivileged children is one work.

Through Belleville's Alpha Lambda, two European children have been adopted by means of Save the Children Fund, of Canada; a yearly scholarship has been given to the student with outstanding achievement in the Humanitarian field; as well other projects accomplished locally, including a glider chair given to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society; a Santa suit for the Pediatric ward of Belleville General Hospital.

SORORITY DA'ICE

The main undertaking each year of the Alpha Lambda is the Sorority Dance started 11 years ago, under the title, "The Black and Gold," which will be held later in April. The girls, numbering 20 along with the sponsor, Mrs. Society director, Mrs. Ralph Ketchenson and its cultural director, Mrs. Willies Tatlow, prepare the delicious buffet dinner which is served; decorate the hall for this year's dance, the theme of "Spring." They also fashion and present a yellow rose corsage to each lady attending the dance. Altoge.her, the "Black and G.ld" dance is a delight to all who attend.

A Rich, Popular, Inexpensive Buffet Casserole

by Mary Moore

Everybody clustered around one part of the buffet table where a chicken liver dish was sitting pretty.

I knew the dish was extra good but underestimated the knowingness of the guests.

What pleases me most is that with this dish that I made I am helping the casserole-buffet-budget-conscious hostesses with their entertaining.

Alfretta was my mother's name so the name pleases me too. She was a magician when it came to cooking liver. It was always a treat.

Chicken Livers Alfretta is a rich and popular dish but inexpensive. Paradoxical but true.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Sweet and Sour Spareribs; Glazed Sweet Potatoes; Buttered Spinach with Sliced Celery (cook spinach and celery separately); Individual Fruit Salads: Grapefruit Sections, Pineapple Rings, Cheese Stuffed Plumped Prunes; Nut-Coated Cheese Balls; Assorted Crackers; Tea.

CHICKEN LIVERS ALFRETTA (Casserole):

This amount serves 8 or 10. Cut this recipe in half to serve 4 or 5. 1 12-oz. package fine (or standard-cut) noodles. 1 cup half and half ground parsley and green onion tops (tee be low). 2 tablespoons oil, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 clove garlic chopped, ½ to 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup sherry (optional), 1 10-oz. can consomme, undiluted, 2½ lbs. chicken livers, ¼ cup flour, 2 teaspoons paprika, 1 teaspoon salt (second amount), ¼ to ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup butter or margarine (second amount).

In a very large kettle boil the noodles in a gallon of boiling water 8 or 10 minutes. Drain in colander and rinse under running cold water to keep it from clinging together. Turn it into a large bowl. Meanwhile, grind (or chop finely) enough fresh parsley and green onion tops (a half and half mixture) to fill 1 cup. Gently saute it in the 2 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons oil with the chopped garlic clove, until the vegetables are soaked with the fat and wilted but not brown. Pour it over the drained noodles and gently toss with 2 forks until mixed. Turn into very large shallow casserole or baking dish (I used a white corningware roaster 8½ x 13 x 3½") or two average-sized casseroles. Sprinkle with the ½ or 1 teaspoon salt. Pat dry the chicken livers with paper towel or thin clean tea towel. Prick surfaces of each in 2 or 3 places with point of knife to prevent spattering when cooking. Mix together the flour, paprika, salt and pepper and dredge the livers in this flour mixture. Melt the butter or margarine in large frying pan, add dredged livers (and any leftover flour mixture) and gently saute until just set. Spread evenly over green noodles in casserole. Pour over evenly the consomme and sherry, if used. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes or until bubbling. I brought this directly from the oven to the buffet table and lowered it into a cradle over a bread board and served it with plain quick-cooked asparagus. It was a smash hit and wowed my crowd.

S.S."Simcoe" Sails Again As Drilling Ship

Exploring Lake Erie For Offshore Gas

Crew members of drilling ship Simcoe tighten head onto length of pipe as production well is sunk towards gas reservoir a thousand feet down in sandstone.

Hull down over the Lake Erie horizon from the lush farmland of the Ontario shore, the drilling ship Simcoe sails on venturesome voyages of discovery. Making ready for the coming summer season, her crew of gas-exploring seamen keep weather eyes open as they prepare to sink their drills down through Erie's shallow but easily-aroused waters. Last year, as Canada's total natural gas production zoomed 44 per cent to 2.6 billion cubic feet per day, Lake Erie gas drillers put down 47 new holes into the 400-million-year-old Silurian Sea deposits a thousand feet beneath the lake bed. While these operations are but a fraction (less than three per cent compared to Alberta's nearly 80 per cent) of Canada's overall, thriving gas industry, Ontario gas production is economically very important. Close to heavily-industrialized, densely-populated areas, the gas from southern Ontario has a value four times that of gas from more remote regions. Gas from the new wells will replace present provincial daily imports of 14 million cubic feet from the U.S., due to terminate in 1967. Today, with Canada exporting in return a billion cubic feet per day, the nation's estimated recoverable reserves are counted in the tens of thousands of billions. This year the converted freighter Simcoe, in her third season of off-shore drilling, will add more wells to the 200 already in production in Lake Erie, will add to the significant shoreward flow of gas through a 15-mile underwater gathering system, play a major role in bringing the long-hidden energy under Lake Erie to the heart of Canada's industrial south.

Drillers stand by during tense moment in final operations. From left: Stan Boyt, Sarnia; "Duke" Wilson, Windsor; Doug McKinnon, Sarnia, and Joe Shelton of Simcoe.

This Texas Tower drilling rig is serviced by Simcoe with crew and equipment needs. Above, diver Brian Cooper of Fort Dover signals for diving barge to move closer as he prepares to go down and cap new well.

Another section of production pipe is brought to drilling tower from the stock piled on the deck of the Simcoe. In 1961 the drilling ship lost her 90-foot tower and superstructure in a gale of wind. National Film Board Photostory

Ontario Cancer Foundation

THE ONTARIO CANCER FOUNDATION—WHAT IS IT?

by Matthew B. Dymond, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario

The objectives of The Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation as stated in the Cancer Act, 1957, are "to establish and conduct a program of research, diagnosis and treatment in cancer." Financial assistance is extended by the Foundation to the several regional cancer treatment centres set up in Ontario, which include the Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto, the two divisions of the clinic at Ottawa, and clinics at London, Kingston, Hamilton, Windsor and Port Arthur.

Hospitalized patients at these centres have their radio-therapy treatment covered by Ontario Hospital Insurance. Out-patients receiving treatment who can afford to pay, are charged fees which cover only a comparatively small portion of the cost. The balance is paid by the Foundation, from Provincial and Federal cancer control grants. No patient is ever refused treatment because of lack of money.

Transportation costs of needy patients to treatment centres for necessary diagnosis, treatment and follow-up examinations are paid by the Foundation. This is usually arranged through local units of the Canadian Cancer Society, who are then re-imbursed by the Ontario Cancer Foundation.

Hostels are attached to the cancer clinics at Hamilton, London and at the Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto. Excellent accommodation and meals are provided for ambulatory patients receiving treatment. A nominal charge is made for those who can pay, otherwise the Foundation again meets the expense. These hostels were built and furnished by the Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society, but their maintenance is the responsibility of the Foundation.

Uniform records are kept in all the treatment centres and this is an important aspect of the subsequent analysis of treatment experience. The Medical Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Health provides manuals and directions for the maintenance of cancer registries in general hospitals throughout the Province.

The Foundation supports a very active research program. This is chiefly in the field of clinical research but the Foundation also contributes money to the National Cancer Institute of Canada in support of its work in basic research. A number of research fellows are supported by the Foundation and it also provides the funds to maintain the excellent research departments at The Ontario Cancer Institute. Scholarships are available to aid in the training of young doctors and scientists and for technicians employed in special fields of investigation.

The Ontario Cancer Foundation, which is supported by Provincial and Federal Government grants maintains an excellent staff of high-calibre specialists in all the centres for radio-therapy across the Province. Cancer is an expensive disease because of the high cost of radiotherapy and other treatment. Money raised for work in this field, such as the Canadian Cancer Society's annual campaign now in progress, is badly needed and well spent. Because of The Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation many people in this Province receive expert and capable treatment at very nominal, if any, cost to themselves.

Eskimos Have Last Laugh On Helpful Bureaucracy

By STEWART MacLEOD

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP)—Considering the basic Eskimo obsession with cleanliness, it wasn't surprising that the instructions got messed up.

But while the mixup lasted it was certain that Arctic char, those delicious fish with the best qualities of salmon and trout, went to their final resting place with far fewer cavities.

When a northern affairs department official visited the Eskimo char factory at Fort Chimo, Que., he saw that the workers were having a tough time satisfying their own high standard of cleanliness in preparing the fish. They insisted on perfection.

The head and tail were left on the fish, but the insides were thoroughly cleaned and the Eskimos insisted on scrubbing the backbone with a bush so that not a tiny particle was left.

The official watched this operation and concluded that tooth brushes would be ideal for the job. So when he returned to Ottawa he saw to it that a shipment of such brushes would go to Chimo.

A few months later he went back. The Eskimos were still using the old brushes for the backbone, but they had set up a new position in the assembly line where workers were diligently cleaning the char's teeth.

It caused the biggest laugh since the time, a few years ago, when the government shipped material for five prefabricated houses to Grise Fiord on southen Ellesmere Island, the most northerly Eskimo settlement in Canada.

The Eskimos discarded the carefully prepared instructions for erecting the five buildings, and built six instead.

The camel is vitally important to the tribeswomen of Somalia who use its milk for food, its hide for water pouches and its dung for fuel.

Gone With the Wind

A Scene of Empty Splendor Where Whites Once Ruled

KISENYI, Rwanda (AP) — Once celebrated resort area of the Belgians, surrounded by the spectacular beauty of Lake Kivu, now reminds the visitor of a scene from Gone With The Wind.

In empty splendor many of the great mansions and hotels look down on the lake from brilliant tropical settings. Broken windows and tall grass around them are reminders of a faded era that may never return.

Only a few Europeans remain to run hotels and restaurants. Once there were 500 European families, mostly Belgian, living in luxury by African standards. Now approximately 20 European families remain.

The Goma area is made up of two resort communities on Lake Kivu, the lake that divides the Congo from Rwanda. Goma is in The Congo. Kisenyi, one mile to the east, is in Rwanda. The Congo received its independence from Belgium in 1960. Rwanda, a UN trust territory administered by the Belgians, received its independence last year.

BACK TO BELGIUM

For all practical purposes The Congo and Rwanda were nearly considered as one by the Belgians. Whatever happened in one affected the other.

So, when independence came this celebrated resort area of hotel owners of Kisenyi, in Rwanda, fearing that the violence might spread here too, packed their belongings, left their homes and farms and headed back to Belgium.

Not many have returned. A hardy few stayed on, running their small businesses and farms amidst great difficulties.

Kisenyi, in its heyday, was referred to as the African Riviera, a pleasant resort city for the European businessman or government official and their families from East or Central Africa.

You can still get comfortable hotel quarters in Kisenyi. Room and meals average $6 a day. The French cooking is good despite the difficulties hotel owners experience in getting foods they would like.

BUILDINGS VACANT

Village streets are practically deserted. Stores, hotels and restaurants on the flue de la Palm, the main thoroughfare are mostly vacant. Palm trees grow over the street, making a traffic hazard.

The sandy beach stands in stark loneliness, with the waves making practically the only sound to be heard—but at the only restaurant on the beach still open, a tape recorder blares out French songs.

Once 10 hotels were filled in Kisenyi. Now two still operating are half-filled.

members were sworn in.

Later each minister took a separate oath to be invested with his particular portfolio.

The oaths were administered by Robert Bryce, clerk of the Privy Council, in the presence of the Governor-General.

Gen. Vanier handed over the Great Seal of Canada to Mr. Pickersgill, who in turn gave it to Jean Marchon, undersecretary of state.

SOME WORE SUITS

Mr. Pearson wore a short black jacket with striped trousers, and a four-in-hand. Some of the ministers were in morning suits similar to Mr. Pearson's, but many came in business suits.

When the Diefenbaker government was sworn in six years ago, most of the ministers arrived at Government House four and five to a taxi.

Today, nearly all the ministers arrived singly in taxis or in their own cars.

The new finance minister, Walter Gordon, arrived alone in a mud-splashed taxi.

As four of the party Pickersgill and External Affairs Minister Martin walked toward the main entrance, the former said:

"You're walking too fast; you scare people."

"We've lots to do," Mr. Martin said.

10 FROM ONTARIO

In the geographical breakdown 10 or the 26 cabinet members—including Mr. Pearson—are from Ontario constituencies.

There are eight from Quebec, two from British Columbia and one each from Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Alberta.

Only province not represented is Saskatchewan where the Liberals did not win a seat in the April 8 federal election. All ridings in that province elected Progressive Conservatives.

In the former Liberal government, which was defeated in the 1957 election, Mr. Martin held the health portfolio. Mr. Gordon had transport, Mr. Pickersgill immigration and Mr. Hellyer supply and defence.

Mr. Pearson was the external affairs minister in that administration, led by Louis St. Laurent.

Counting the new prime minister, the Liberal cabinet totalled 26 members compared to the 24 in the outgoing Conservative cabinet.

The Conservative cabinet never had more than 24 members or twenty ministers.

The last previous Liberal cabinet in 1957 had 21 ministers, headed by Louis St. Laurent.

The average age of the new cabinet was 52 years. This compared with the average age of 59 years for the first Conservative cabinet in 1957 and 56.5 years of the last previous Liberal cabinet in that year.

JUDY IS YOUNGEST

The youngest member of the Liberal cabinet is Miss La Marsh, 38, followed by Mr. Hellyer, 39. Oldest—and only member of the upper house in the ministry — is Senator Macdonald, 71. Mr. Pearson, who will be 66 Tuesday, is the second oldest.

Mr. Pickersgill, as well as being secretary of state, will act as House leader in the Commons. This is an important post in which he will be in charge of the day-to-day schedule for moving governmegt business through Parliament.

Senator Macdonald was solicitor-general during the former Liberal administration and also was not sworn-in to take the Privy Council oath again.

Two members of the new cabinet have been members of the Commons continuously since 1925—External Affairs Minister Martin and Postmaster-General Denis. Justice Minister Cherrier also entered the Commons first in 1925 but his service is not continuous since he served three years—1954 to 1957—as president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. Ranking next in terms of Commons service is Transport Minister McIlraith, MP since 1940.

Absence from the cabinet lineup of Alan Macnaughton, Montreal Mount Royal, heightened speculation that he will be Mr. Pearson's nominee as Speaker of the 26th Parliament.

Mr. Pearson took over from John Diefenbaker who earlier called on the Governor-General and spent 19 minutes with him.

Mr. Pearson was scheduling a similar broadcast tonight.

Mr. Diefenbaker congratulated the new prime minister publicly, said his party will never be guilty of obstruction in opposition and suggested that "what matters now is the future of our country."

He reviewed contributions he said his government had made of substantial nature for the long-time benefit of Canada.

HAD SIX YEARS

Mr. Diefenbaker and his Conservative administration moved out after six years in office, among the most politically hectic in Canadian history.

Twelve of his outgoing ministers paid their respects to the Governor - General Sunday instead, of today. This was the highlieh ifch ceremonial load for Gen. Vanier, recovering from a mild heart attack suffered April 9.

The 13 spent about 40 minutes in Gen. Vanier's bedroom, where he sat up in bed and gave them the External Affairs Minister Green described as "a marvelous talk." The Governor-General was reported in improved health and good spirits.

Technically, there was no new cabinet until the new cabinet members were sworn in.

ADMINISTERS OATHS

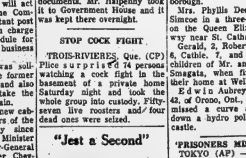
At the ceremony in the presence of the Governor-General, three oaths are administered by the clerk of the privy council. The clerk is still Robert B. Bryce, who performed the same task in 1957.

First came the oath of allegiance. This was followed by the oath for members of the privy council—one clause being that no cabinet minister talks what goes on in cabinet. Finally came the oath of office for the individual ministers, including the first minister. The longest was the privy council oath—about 220 words.

Mr. Pearson and other ministers who had served in previous cabinets could omit the privy council oath.



The prime minister is sworn in first, followed by other ministers in the order of precedence, according to Gen. Vanier.

The last part of the ceremony is an official photograph. The proceedings were private and dress formal.

Outgoing State Secretary Ernest Halpenny handed over the Great Seal of Canada Sunday night. The great seal is used to stamp all official government documents. Mr. Halpenny took it to Government House and it was kept there overnight.

Glenn Urges Space-Age Research Centre

NEW YORK (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. proposed today creation of a United States information centre in which would be channelled the vast new quantities of space-age information.

The marine lieutenant-colonel, first American to orbit the earth, made the proposal in a speech prepared for delivery to editors and publishers at the annual Associated Press meeting.

Glenn said such an information centre "can pave the way in many fields toward "one systems" of our knowledge, not just 'file systems.'"

By this, he explained, he meant that highly technical information would be more easily understood and thus be better applied in everyday living.

WOULD AID INDUSTRY

"The effect on business and industry alone probably would far surpass the initial outlay of such a system, since an American businessman knows that an idea needs little prodding," Glenn said.

Glenn said the immediate purpose of the U.S. space program is "providing transportation to new areas and worlds.

"None of the manned space programs of the future is going to be worth that man can adapt and is reliable or can live aboard a space craft," he said. The long range "payoff" comes when we start using these capabilities to learn new things.

But he emphasized: "We have developed an "information gap" between the discoverers of the researchers and those who would normally make use of such information."

To solve this problem, Glenn proposed "a national repository for information . . . designed to utilize all the techniques at our disposal for sorting, cataloguing, analyzing, storing and making readily accessible new information as it becomes available."

27 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fires and traffic accidents claimed at least 27 lives in Canada during the weekend, accounting for all accidental deaths for the 54-hour period.

Nine children died in two fires in Ontario and British Columbia. Two adults died in fires in Saskatchewan and New Brunswick.

At Welland, five children of a family of 11 died when fire destroyed their two-storey home. Four children burned to death as their parents and two other children escaped from their Metlakatla Indian village home near Prince Rupert, B.C.

Ontario also had the heaviest traffic toll with eight of the total of 16. Quebec had three traffic victims, B.C. two and New Brunswick, Manitoba and Alberta one each.

Three Atlantic provinces, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, remained fatality free.

The Canadian Press survey starts at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Sunday night, local times. It does not include natural deaths, industrial accidents or known murders or suicides.

K Claims U. S. and France Aggravating Situation by Continuing Nuclear Tests

Copyright 1963
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, in a wide-ranging interview with an Italian editor, has declared the West's position on nuclear inspection is forcing the Soviet Union to consider whether it must withdraw its readiness to allow even two or three inspections a year on its soil.

Both the United States and France are aggravating the situation by continuing tests, he said.

Hopes growing out of the easing of the Cuban crisis are not being fulfilled because of elements in the United States want to deal from a position of force, Khrushchev said. He contended that the United States, by calling for atomic warheads in Canada and by sending Polaris submarines to the Mediterranean, is trying to divert the possible first blow of U.S. missiles against the United States.

Praising Pope John XXIII as a proponent of peace, Khrushchev reiterated his stand that the Communist view of the German question can bring peace to Europe and consequently throughout the world.

MINIMIZES FUED

He sought to minimize Peking-Moscow differences.

The views given in the 10,000-word text of an interview with the Soviet leader, obtained by Radio Free Europe from Il Giorno, a Milan newspaper.

The Italian editor submitted his questions in advance. He received the answers in the course of a discussion with Khrushchev Saturday, lasting an hour and 15 minutes. Pietra said Khrushchev avoided any of the questions although he addedtepped a point or two.

The Soviet premier is afraid of nuclear tests, Khrushchev said the United States and Britain "do not help us by accepting a positive result" in negotiations.

The Soviet Union declared at one time its disposition to sign an accord against tests by utilizing the country's own methods of detecting explosions, he asserted. He referred to this as "technical means of revelation."

SENATE WAS BARRIER

Scientists confirm that such means of control are sufficient, he said, but the United States, which was saying it could not sign an accord, said it would be impossible to convince the American Senate to ratify it unless limited or eight or 10 minimum quota of inspections on the spot."

The Soviet Union agreed to two or three inspections a year, he said, but the United States then insisted on eight or 10 "although previously responsible representatives of the U.S.A. in talks with Soviet representatives declared they could accept two to four inspections a year."

"As soon as we made a step to meet the U.S. position the United States let it be known announced what they themselves proposed to us," he said.

"Now (Secretary of State (Western) representatives use the figure of seven inspections and make it pass for an important concession on their part."

Turning to Cuba, Khrushchev said "the liquidation of the Caribbean Sea zone crisis," as he described it, had created great hopes for settlement of international problems through discussion.

"Unfortunately, these hopes are not coming true," he went on.

". . . In the United States there are forces which continue the old policy from a position of force.

END JUSTIFIES MEANS

Khrushchev argued that the United States and its NATO allies act on the principle that the end justifies the means.

"They (the United States) send into the ports of their allies atomic submarines armed with Polaris missiles, in this way exposing these countries and the peace to a mortal danger, or force upon Canada the safeguated anti-aircraft missile Bomarc, declaring cynically—as did the secretary of defence of the U.S.A., McNamara—that their installation in Canadian territory will draw away from the United States the fire of Russian missiles. They provoke a nuclear missile attack against a neighboring and allied country to eliminate . . . the number of missiles that might invest their territory."

The last was a reference to testimony by McNamara that Bomarcs based in Canada might "at the last moment serve as a sort of decoy for enemy missiles. Canada has acquired Bomarcs but not nuclear warheads for them.

Khrushchev said it was logical to conclude that the stationing of Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean was aimed at "drawing away from themselves (the United States) and bringing upon them a portion of a part of the nuclear missile reprisals."

"What a moving solicitude for the allies!"

Disillusions

Cuba converted into another Hungary but Washington apparently, the United States would actively oppose any attempt by Soviet troops to flatten a popular revolution.

A Prague doctor widely acquainted with Cuban exiles says some are talking gloomly about the possibility of changes in Cuba, despite the Communists.

Any reverse flow of exiles to Havana, however, would be a severe embarassment for the United States.

enough to have the program."

The trouble started during a recreational period in the auditorium outbuilding when Caisey, Carlson and Wood tried to escape by going through an auditorium window. They were stopped and went back into the auditorium, where they jumped Dennis, who was supervising the meeting in the building. About 15 other prisoners also stayed in the auditorium, barricading themselves there.

PRISONERS RIOT

They demanded to see radio commentator Jack Webster to air their grievances and he was called to the prison. While he was negotiating for the release of Dennis, talking to the three in the auditorium, then going to the warden and back again, about 200 prisoners began smashing windows and furniture and ripping out plumbing. Dennis remained a hostage until prison authorities agreed to demands of the three convicts that they be transferred out of the penitentiary.

Warden Hall called in 150 troops from nearby Chilliwack army camp and they remained in the prison during the weekend while the mess from the riot was cleaned up by prisoners. The wardin estimated damage at about $10,000.

Jordan's King Calls Election For New House

AMMAN (AP)—King Hussein has ordered the election of a new Jordan parliament in an effort to restore peace to his troubled land, torn by pro-Nasser demonstrators demanding union with Egypt, Syria and Iraq.

Moving swiftly as police and army gunfire continued to echo in Amman, Hussein dissolved Parliament Sunday and named his great uncle, Sherif Hussein, ibn Nasser, as caretaker premier to manage the government until elections are held within four months.

The new premier succeeded Samir Rifai, whose government fell Saturday after 24 days in office. Rifai, an advocate of Arab unity, resigned after 31 of the 60 members of the House of Deputies voted against his administration on a vote of confidence.

Premier Nasser met with his new cabinet Sunday night, then told reporters his government will "strike with an iron rod" against anyone who disturbs the peace.

INCOME SOARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. national income, increased by record corporate earnings of $51,300,000,000, second best in unequalled $458,000,000,000 last year. The commerce department, reporting this Thursday, said corporate income before taxes shot to a seasonlie-adjusted annual rate of $54,-000,000,000 in the fourth quarter of 1962—higher than in any previous three-month period.

VIRGINITAOWN, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police investigating a $250,000-a-year highgrading operation at Kerr-Addison Gold Mines Limited made two arrests and recovered $30,000 worth of pure gold during the weekend.

The arrests followed nine simultaneous raids on homes in this Northern Ontario mining town, at nearby Larder Lake and Kenora and Red Lake, 25 miles to the west.

Raids were also carried out in Toronto and Ancaster, as by the mine's security police.

Edward Sancartier of Timmins and Benjamin Keith of Larder Lake were charged with possession of high-grade ore. Keith, who worked in the mine's processing mill, is also charged with stealing high - grade ore. Both are scheduled to appear in magistrate's court Thursday.

Police said Keith was arrested at his home and Sancartier was arrested by a provincial police highway patrol on a Kirkland Lake area road.

Police said the investigations will continue, but declined to say whether they expect to make more arrests.

Russians Can Never Melt Our Arctic Ice Packs

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—In this theoretical situation, big Russian cargo planes have managed to slip through North America's radar defences and are circling the Arctic ice cap.

The planes drop hundreds of tons of pulverized coal dust on to the ice cap until it's covered with a black blanket a fraction of an inch thick. The planes head back to Russia.

The rays of the sun, absorbed by the black blanket, begin to melt the multi-million-square-mile ice pack. Over the months and years following, the waters from the melted pack rush down along the Pacific and Atlantic shorelines — flooding coastal cities.

Warm air and moisture, rising now from the open, warmed-up Arctic Ocean, mix aloft in the winter months with cold air from adjacent continents. This creates cyclones over large areas, deposits heavier snowfalls than usual on coastal areas, increases the size of existing glaciers and causes new ones to form.

Eventually a new "ice age" prevails — extending from Arctic regions even to the middle latitudes.

Fantastic and impractical?

Of course.

BIG SOWING JOB

For one thing, it would take more than 1,500,000,000 tons of coal dust to cover the ice pack with a blanket only one-fiftieth of an inch thick. That's more than twice the annual output of all U.S. coal mines.

Spreading the blanket would require hundreds of planes for only a single application. There would have to be repeated sorties because the dust would blow away.

Even if those drawbacks were surmounted, the Russians themselves would suffer from the resultant floods and ice age.

Yet the spreading of soot on the Arctic ice pack is one of the bizarre things that have been suggested seriously as a means of giving man control over the weather.

Knowledgable meteorologists have challenged the feasibility and practicality of the Arctic soot-sowing idea.

They've also lambasted other sensational ideas—such as using H-bombs to melt the ice pack. They point out that it would take 4,000,000 big H-bombs just to melt the Greenland ice pack alone.

IDEA PERSISTS

Still, the idea of making broad, relatively controlled changes in weather and climate continues to persist.

Vice-Admiral William Raborn, the U.S. Navy's research chief, said in a recent article in a Navy publication:

"The possibilities for the military employment of the 'weather weapon' may be as diverse as they are numerous.

"Large-scale weather control techniques might (eventually) be used to cause extensive flooding of strategic areas or even bring a new 'ice age' on the enemy. Raborn didn't say how he thought such an ice age might be created.
